—⁵. 'To ride in heaven upon the clouds (Deut.xxxiii.26)=to enlighten the understanding through the influx of spiritual truth into natural truth, which is the truth of the sense of the letter of the Word. As Divine truth in the Heavens is spiritual, and Divine truth on earth is natural, and the latter is enlightened through the former, it is said, 'In His magnificence upon the clouds.'

[E.594]⁶. That the obscurities of the literal sense are thereby dissipated, is meant by, 'at the brightness before Him the clouds passed away' (Ps.xviii.12).

—⁷. 'Him that rideth upon the clouds' (Ps.lxviii.4) = the Lord as to enlightenment; 'clouds' = truths in ultimates which are enlightened . . . through the influx of light, which is Divine truth, out of the Spiritual World.

—⁸. 'The clouds are the dust of His feet' (Nah.i.3) = truth in ultimates, which is the truth of the sense of the letter of the Word . . . and which is the natural and lowest truth; in which ceases, and upon which subsists the Divine truth in Heaven, which is spiritual.

594⁹. 'A faithful witness in the clouds' = that He is the Divine truth.

—¹⁰. 'Who maketh the clouds His chariot' = doctrine from ultimate Divine truths; 'clouds' = ultimate Divine truths such as are in the sense of the letter of the Word. . . . This is said because all the doctrine of the Church is to be formed and confirmed from the sense of the letter of the Word.

—¹¹. 'I will command the clouds that they rain no rain upon it' (Is.v.6); 'clouds' = the Word in the letter; and 'not raining rain' = no understanding of Divine truth from the Word.

—¹². 'To cover the heavens with clouds' (Ps. cxlvii.8) = to protect and preserve the spiritual things of the Word, which are in the Heavens, through natural truths such as are in the sense of the letter of the Word.

—¹³. 'The heavens dropped, the clouds also dropped water' (Judg.v.4) = instruction, influx, and perception of Divine truth. . . 'Heavens' = the interior things of truth; 'clouds,' its exterior things such as are in the sense of the letter of the Word.

—¹⁴. 'The clouds dropped waters' (Ps.lxxvii.17) = that genuine truths are derived from the sense of the letter of the Word.

—¹⁵. 'A cloud of dew' (Is.xviii.4) = truth from good fructifying.

—¹⁶. The cloud over the tabernacle by day represented the presence of the Lord through Divine truth; the fire by night, His presence through Divine good. The same is signified by the cloud which covered mount Horeb, and into which Moses entered; also by the cloud in which Jehovah descended on mount Sinai.

—¹⁷. This Divine truth, as it descends out of the inmost Heaven into the lower Heavens, and at last into the world where men are . . . from being pure becomes dense; and hence it is that in the lowest degree it appears as a cloud; by which therefore is signified Divine truth accommodated to the apprehension of the Angels who are in the lowest Heaven . . . and finally to that of men in the natural world; and as the Divine truth in this degree is similar to the Divine truth such as there is in the sense of the letter of the Word, by 'a cloud' is signified the Word as to the sense of the letter . . .

—¹⁸. As the higher Heavens appear before the eyes of those who are in the lower Heavens as if covered over with a thin and bright cloud . . . the Divine truth in the higher Heavens, or what is the same thing, the higher Heavens themselves, are meant by 'clouds' in some places in the Word. III.

—¹⁸. In these passages the same thing is signified by 'clouds' as by 'the waters above the firmament,' and by 'the waters above the heavens;' for clouds are composed of water, and water = Divine truth.

—¹⁹. As there are some clouds which are thinner and brighter, and some which are grosser and blacker; and as the former appear below the Heavens, and the latter around many of the Hells, it is evident that in the opposite sense 'clouds' = the falsities of evil which are contrary to truths from good. III.

630¹⁰. 'The cloud,' and 'the resplendence of Jehovah' (Ezek.x.4) = the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord.

644²⁰. 'A cloud rising out of the west' (Luke xii.54) = the Lord's advent at the end of the Church foretold in the Word; 'a cloud' = the Word in the letter.

—²². That these things are devoid of obscurity is signified by 'the light of a morning without clouds.'

654³⁸. 'A day of cloud' (Ezek.xxx.3) = the state of the Church from truths not understood, thus from falsities.

—⁴⁸. 'A light cloud' (Is.xix.1) = Divine truth spiritual natural; from which it appears what man's quality is as to his Natural.

670. 'They ascended into heaven in a cloud' = separation as to internal things, and their protection . . . 'A cloud' = the ultimate of Divine truth, or the external of the Word, which is called the sense of its letter. It is this external in which many of the evil are . . . and which is here meant by 'a cloud.' 671².

687⁹. 'To come upon the clouds of heaven' = through Divine truth in the Heavens . . .

700⁸. 'The cloud of Jehovah by day' (Num.x.34) = protection through Divine truth in ultimates such as is the Word in the sense of the letter; for through this the Lord can be approached even by the evil; and it protects the interiors of the Word.

905. 'Behold, a white cloud' = Divine truth in ultimates, such as is the Word in the sense of the letter containing the spiritual sense within it . . .

906. 'Upon the cloud One sat like unto the Son of Man' = the Lord in the Divine truth or the Word which is from Himself . . .

— The reason it is Divine truth in ultimates which is signified by 'a cloud,' is that in the Spiritual World Divine truth flowing down from the higher Heavens into the lower ones appears as a cloud; I have seen it; and from it and its variegation I could form an idea as to the nature of the truth which the Angels of the higher Heavens were talking about.

—². 'To come in the clouds of heaven' = the manifestation of the Lord in the Word; for after His advent they manifestly saw the predictions concerning His advent in the propheticals of the Word, which they did not see before: and still more manifestly at this day . . .

937³. 'The darkness of a cloud' (Ex.xix.9) is mentioned, because 'a cloud' = the Word in the letter.

955². 'A cloud' = the Word in the natural sense.

1029¹³. 'The heights of a cloud' (Is.xiv.14) = the interior truths of the Word.

D. Love iii. The Angels are veiled over by a thin cloud, lest they should be injured by the ardour of the Divine love.

5. M. 16. On the advent of the Lord in the clouds. Gen. art.

18. A bright cloud then suddenly appeared under the spiritual Sun, which did not obstruct the light, but transmitted it. Beautiful appearances in and about the cloud, described. Dew also dropped from it, which condensed into manna: then rain, which the Angels called the morning rain . . .

19. The bright cloud was the angelic Heaven: the other appearances also explained.

— The bright cloud itself in which the angels were seen, represented the Lord's Divine truths with them; for the spheres of thoughts from truths and of affections from goods proceeding from the Angels everywhere appear as clouds.

21. A fearful black cloud seen, which was composed of satanic Spirits who had formed as it were Heavens for themselves.

Cloven. See BIFID.

Cluster. Glomus, Glomerare.

M. 2^o. Each company clustered themselves into a ring . . .

427. A conglobated heap or ball . . .

—^e. The evil of adultery is a ball of concupiscences of evil.

B. 56. Joined together as into one ball . . .

T. 174². Clusters of wicked heresies . . .

178^o. (A spider's ball of eggs.)

361^o. Like a cluster of serpents in a cavern . . .

539². Innumerable concupiscences inhere in every evil, as in a cluster . . .

D. 2274. Clumps of cloud . . .

Inv. 8. Every concupiscence . . . is a cluster and heap of many; the man sees only this cluster.

Cluster. Racemus, Racemosus.

See GRAPE.

W. 415. The clustered vesicles of the bronchia . . .

T. 351³. The glandular substance of the brain is arranged into clusters, like grapes on a vine; these clusterings-racemations—are its series.

E. 313¹². 'Gleanings'-racematio (Is. xxiv. 13)=vastation. 638¹⁸.

Coal. See CHARCOAL.

Coal. Pruna.

A. 1042³. 'Live coal' (Ezek. i. 27)=the Celestial of love. 6832⁴.

7573⁴. 'Hailstones and coals of fire' (Ps. xviii. 12)=the devastation of truth and good through the falsities and evils of cupidities.

W. 254^o. Such . . . have no other light than as it were a light of coals or burning brands.

E. 455¹⁶. 'Burning coals' (Ps. cxl. 10)=the conceit of man's Own intelligence.

503¹. 'Coals' or fire (Ps. lxxviii. 48)=the love of evil and its ardour to destroy the goods of the Church; therefore it is said, 'he shut up their beast to the hail, and their flocks to coals' . . . 'Coals' or fire=the cupidity and ardour of destroying.

580⁴. 'A coal from the altar' (Is. vi. 6)=the Divine love, from which comes all purification.

Coarse. See GROSS.

Coast. See under BOUNDARY, and EDGE.

Coat. Tunica.

A. 183. They seemed as it were to roll off the coat of the left eye . . . H. 450.

292. 'Jehovah God made for the man and his wife coats of skin' (Gen. iii. 21)=that the Lord instructed them in spiritual good, and in natural. . . Spiritual good, and natural, are expressed by 'a coat of skin.' 294. 295.

3300. 'The first came out red all over like a hairy coat' (Gen. xxv. 25)=the good of life of truth in the Natural. . . 'A hairy coat'=the truth of the Natural.

— 'A coat,' in the Word,=that which invests something else . . .

3301. 'A hairy coat'=the truth of the Natural, because 'a coat'=that which invests something else, here, therefore it=truth, because this invests good.

4411. (Correspondence of the coats of the eye.)

4412. He acted by a gentle and soft influx into the coat of the left eye . . . Such are they who belong to the coats of the eye . . .

4677. 'He made him a coat of various colours' (Gen. xxxvii. 3)=the appearances of truth thence. 'A coat'=the truth of the Natural. —² III.

—⁶. 'Upon My vesture they cast lots' . . . For 'the vesture'=the Lord's Divine truth, which being the only Divine truth, and being from good, was represented by 'A vesture without seam, and woven from above throughout.

—⁷. Aaron's 'coat' (Ex. xxxix. 27), had a similar sig.

—⁸. 'Neither have two coats apiece' (Luke ix. 3)=truths which are from the Lord alone . . . 'A coat'=interior natural truth.

4741. 'They stripped Joseph of his coat'=that they dispelled and annihilated the appearances of truth . . . 'The coat,' being of various colours,=the appearances of truth. 4742. 4768. 4771. 4775.

4763⁵. 'Hushai the Arkite came to meet him with his coat rent' (2 Sam. xv. 32) has a similar signification.

—⁷. The coat falling off Elijah and being taken up by Elisha, represented that Elisha continued the representation. 'A coat'=Divine truth, wherefore the garment that was rent in such mourning, was the coat.

8956. (The inhabitants of Saturn) are girt with a thick skin, or coat, which repels the cold.

8980^o. Like the cuticles, or coats, in the body. Enum.

9049⁶. 'The coat,' and 'the cloak' (Matt. v. 40)=truth in the external form.

[A.] 9093⁵. His 'garments' represented truths in the external form; and His 'vesture,' in the internal. . . Truths in the internal form are such as are in the spiritual sense of the Word.

9826. 'A chequered coat' (Ex.xxviii.4)=the Divine truth there, inmost proceeding immediately from the Divine Celestial. 'A coat'=natural truth; but when predicated of Aaron . . . 'a coat'=Divine truth inmost in the Spiritual Kingdom, thus that which proximately proceeds from the Divine Celestial.

9942. 'Thou shalt chequer the coat of fine linen' (ver. 39)=the inmost things of the Spiritual Kingdom proceeding from the truths of celestial love . . . As 'the coat' was the inmost of Aaron's garments, it=the inmost things of that Kingdom.

—3. The Spiritual which is from the Celestial, is also signified by 'coats' elsewhere in the Word. III.

—'. 'Coats of skins' (Gen.iii)=truth from a celestial origin . . . The truth of that Church is signified by 'coats of skins.'

—6. 'The coat of various colours'=the states of the good and truth which Joseph represented, which was the state of spiritual good and truth proceeding from the Celestial.

—7. The 'clothing' of the king's daughter (Ps.xlv. 13), means the coat, as is evident from the meaning of that word in the Original Language, for it there means the garment next the body. That it is a coat, is evident from John xix.24, where the Lord's vesture is treated of.

—8. As a king's daughter, and her clothing, or coat, represented such things, king's daughters were at that time clothed in such things, as is evident from 2 Sam.xiii.18, 'There was upon Tamar a coat of various colours, for with such robes were the king's daughters apparelled.'

—9. Nadab and Abihu 'were carried in their coats out of the camp' (Lev.x.5), for . . . the spiritual goods and truths which are signified by their 'coats' had been defiled, and therefore they were carried in their coats out of the camp.

—10. 'Ye pull off the coat from them that pass by securely' (Mic.ii.8). Here, 'coat' is another word in the Original Language, which nevertheless=spiritual truth and good. 'To pull off the coat from them that pass by securely'=to deprive of their spiritual truths those who live in simple good.

—11. 'To sue at the law, and want to take away the coat' (Matt.v.40)=to dispute about truths, and want to persuade that it is not true; 'a coat'=truth from the Celestial; for they leave to everyone his truth, without further ratiocination.

—12. 'A coat'=truth from the Celestial, elsewhere; 'Possess not . . . two coats' (Matt.x.10) . . . 'Two coats'=truths from both the Lord and self.

—13. The Lord's 'vesture'=Divine truth spiritual from the Divine Celestial; the same as 'Aaron's coat' . . . That the coat was not divided, signified that Divine truth spiritual proximately proceeding from Divine truth celestial could not be dissipated, because that truth is the internal truth of the Word, such as is with the Angels.

9947. 'For Aaron's sons thou shalt make coats' (Ex. xxviii.40)=those things which are of faith. 'Coats,' when predicated of Aaron,=the Divine truth inmost in the Spiritual Kingdom, thus that which proceeds immediately from the Celestial; but when predicated of Aaron's sons, 'a coat'=that which is of faith, for it=the proceeding from the Spiritual which is from the Celestial; this proceeding is what is called the truth of faith.

10004. '(Thou shalt put upon Aaron) the coat' (Ex. xxix.5)=the inmost of that Kingdom. 'The coat' with which Aaron was clothed=the Divine Spiritual immediately proceeding from the Divine Celestial, thus the inmost of the Spiritual Kingdom.

10005². Aaron's 'coat' represented the uniting medium of the Spiritual Kingdom with the Celestial Kingdom, wherefore also it was distinguished by a girdle from the robe and the ephod, which represented the Spiritual Kingdom internal and external.

10013. 'Thou shalt put the coats on (Aaron's sons)' (ver.8)=a representative of the Divine Spiritual proceeding. 'The coats' for Aaron's sons=the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Spiritual which is represented by Aaron's 'coat.'

10754. (A woman of the fifth Earth wore) a coat which hung becomingly behind her.

L. 16⁶. The Lord's 'vesture'=the spiritual sense of the Word.

W. 260. If the tunics around the body were not in reaction . . .

314. Vegetations are brought about by the outer and inner barks and coatings . . .

P. 313⁶. 'Coats of skin' (Gen.iii.21)=the appearances of truth in which alone they were.

M. 15⁶. The prince wore a coat of hyacinthine silk under his robe. . . The courtiers wore vests of opaline silk . . .

20². The bridegroom wore a vest of shining linen . . .

75⁴. The man was dressed in . . . a vest of shining wool.

266. A vest of resplendent linen under it . . .

T. 130³. 'Upon the vesture they cast a lot'=that they had dispersed all the truths of the Word, but not the spiritual sense; this latter was what the Lord's 'vesture' signified. E.64⁴. 195²¹. 375⁶.

346². The sclerotic coat.

695⁶. The things of nature are as coats, sheaths, etc., to spiritual things.

D. 3700⁶. They constitute the external tunic of the genital provinces . . .

E. 395⁵. The vest or inner garment . . .

555⁸. 'To draw off the coat' (Mic.ii.8)=to deprive them of truths.

556⁹. 'Coat' (Matt.v.40)=interior truth; and 'cloak'=exterior truth.

Cock. *Gallus.Cockcrowing. Gallinaceum, Gallicinium.

A. 2745. Wives who do not love their husbands . . . are represented by a cock, etc. .D.3198.

6073^o. 'Before the cock crew'=before a new Church should come into existence.

10134¹³. The time when the cock was crowing=the last state of the Church; which time is also called the cockcrowing.

—^o. That cockcrowing and dawn are the same thing . . .

M. 378. The reason cocks display such jealousy, is that they are vain-glorious lovers, and the glory of that love cannot endure an equal; that they are vain-glorious lovers, above every species of bird, appears from their gestures, nods, gait, and the sounds they make.

T. 571². The first (of the two states of regeneration) may be compared to dawn or cockcrowing.

803^e. Some say it is a cock; others an owl.

839². External men are like cocks . . .

E. 9^o. Before the cock crew, he should deny Him thrice=that at the last time of the Church there would be no faith, because no charity; for cockcrowing equally with dawn=the last time of the Church.

187². 'The cockcrowing,' or dawn (Mark xiii.35)=a state of commencing faith and charity, which exists when man loves truths, and reformation through them.

Cockatrice. Regulus.

A. 251. 'Out of the serpent's root shall come forth a cockatrice' (Is. xiv.29); 'a cockatrice'=evil from falsity thence. 1197³.

3923⁴. 'Serpents, cockatrices' (Jer. viii.17)=reasonings.

9013³. Poisonous serpents: as asps, cockatrices, vipers,=the deceitful.

Codex. Codex.

A. 4495. Because they are in the holy codex . . .

S. 20. All their manuscripts and books were written by correspondences.

R. 95^e. These words are omitted in some of the codexes.

T. 33. Codicillus, occurs.

137⁵. As many as the verses in the holy book . . .

431. They would fill a book . . .

483. Like an empty codex . . .

487⁵. The codex which you call the holy Word . . .

503^e. What is the Word without it but an empty codex?

519. Like the barks and rinds around rotten wood . . .

Coffer. Capsa.

A. 6723. 'She took a coffer of rush' (Ex. ii.3)=what is mean round about. . . 'A coffer,' or little ark=that which is round about, or that in which something is enclosed.

6732. 'A coffer of rush'=what is mean, yet is still derived from truth.

Coffin. Cippus. T.453. 595.Coffin. Locus.

A. 3324². With little birds, in their crop . . .

4622⁴. Through my eyes he saw his own coffin, etc.

T. 361³. Like a dead man in a coffin of precious and gilded wood . . .

Cohabit. See DWELL TOGETHER.Cohere. *Cohaerere.Cohereence. Cohaerentia.

A. 4599⁵. Thus these things cohere; (but otherwise) they do not cohere.

5881. The scientifics and truths in man's memory . . . cohere fascicularly . . . These coherences are more wonderful than any man can believe . . .

9141. The consuming of cohering goods. Sig.

9852. Coherence with the good of the whole Kingdom. Sig.

—'. 'Chains'=coherence. 10406⁴.

9853. All coherence in the Spiritual World is effected through influx.

10406². The formation of these falsities in order that they may cohere. Sig. —⁴.

R. 208. They do not know that all they know and think about the truths and goods of the Church does not at all cohere together. Sig.

—'. 'Wretchedness'=no coherence.

T. 15. With men who do not acknowledge one God, but a number, nothing of the Church coheres. Ex.

47. The universe is a work which coheres together from primes to ultimates.

352. Faith is perfected according to the abundance and coherence of truths. Ex.

393². Neither is this consistent . . .

591. Oceurs.

D. 242. In the minutest human fibres there is nothing solid, or cohering, and thus rigid; for if it cohered, or were rigid through coherence, it would be in the highest degree brittle . . . it is only corporeal things which can be said to cohere . . . The less coherent a thing is, or the less it resembles a solid, the more durable it is. . . Their coherence depends upon this, that all the particulars are yielding.

E. 176². 'They shall not cohere the one with the other' (Dan. ii.43) . . . The destruction of falsities not cohering with truths from the Word is here signified. 237^e. 411⁴. 1029⁵.

431⁸. 'Jerusalem'=the Church as to doctrine, which is said to be 'built as a city that is compact together' (Ps. cxxii.3), when all the doctrines thereof are in agreement with each other and unanimous, and when they reciprocally regard the Lord and love to Him from Him as the beginning and the end.

Cohobation. Cohobatio. M.145².Cohort. Cohors.

A. 842². Evil Spirits in the World of Spirits sometimes consociate in cohorts . . . but they are dispersed by other cohorts of Spirits . . . The cohorts of Spirits who thus disperse them are called the east wind. 2128^e. D.2122.

[A.] 958. There are cohorts of Spirits who wander about, and whom Spirits are terribly afraid of . . . 2128.

10585. There were many Spirits (of the fourth Earth) in sight, and they were in companies.

6926. The Spirits of Mercury go by regiments and divisions . . .

M. 2³. There were six troops or cohorts . . . 3. 4. 5. 7.

T. 72. There was a company of Spirits reasoning about imputation and predestination . . .

135^e. When I had said this, the company of Spirits retired from around me . . .

352. Crowds of confirmations in nature . . .

680². Unless armies were distinguished into divisions; these into regiments; and these into troops . . .

D. 1722. There are regiments of (these babbling Spirits); more than can be conceived.

Coin. Nummus.

A. 4400. 'Kesithae,' which were coins=such truths.

M. 268. Tables seen, on which was much gold coin.

—². The coins on the tables . . . were little grains of gold, magnified by their phantasy.

D. 5666. Silver or gold coins are given to the maidens there as tokens of diligence or virtue.

Coincide. Coincidere. A.1980. 1981. M.251. T.700. 758.

Coition. Coire.

A. 4029. 'The first in coition' (Gen.xxx.41)=things spontaneous.

4031. 'The next in coition' (ver.42)=what is compulsory, or not free.

Cold. Frigus, Frigidus.

Grow Cold. Frigescere.

See under HEAT.

A. 34. Spirits who are in mere knowledge are in so cold a life . . .

817^e. (This poisoner) became cold; thus was among the cold infernals.

933. 'Cold and heat' (Gen.viii.22)=the state of the man who is being regenerated, which is such as to the reception of faith and charity; 'cold'=no faith and charity. Ex.

—³. When he returns into the body again he is again in cold.

934. 'Cold'=no love, or no charity and faith. Ill.

935. The alternations of those who are to be regenerated are likened to cold and heat, but those of the regenerate to summer and winter. Ex. . . . For the man who is being regenerated begins from cold . . .

1111. (The meritorious) are cold, and try to warm themselves by sawing . . . 2027². 4943.

1268. When I got near that misty rock, cold met me, which invaded the lower part of the back.

1528. That (infernal) fire is extinguished, and turned into cold.

2910². In course of time charity begins to grow cold.

3340. To this heat the opposite is cold; in this live the infernals; their cold is from the evils in which they are . . . and the further they are from good, the greater is their cold . . . Their heat is turned into cold as soon as they perceive anything of good.

3643. They who are in Hell are in . . . cold . . . In proportion as the infernals are in hatred and thence in falsity, they are in darkness and in cold. . . Cold there, has hatred in it.

3755². Lest one come into a state of too much cold. Sig. There is cold when there is aversion for these (goods), which is induced by the loves of self.

4046. A cold breathing into my forehead.

4175. 'In the day the heat devoured me, and the cold in the night' (Gen.xxxi.40)=temptations. 'Heat and cold'=too much love, and none of it, thus the two extremes. . . Spiritual cold is no love. . . Cold, however, does not signify the deprivation of all love, but the deprivation of spiritual and celestial love . . . When man is deprived of this love, the love of self and of the world is kindled; this love is relatively cold, and also becomes cold, not only with man while he lives in the body, but also when he comes into the other life. If, while he lives in the body, the love of self and of the world is taken away from him, he grows so cold that he has scarcely any life; in like manner if he is driven to think wholly about heavenly and Divine things. In the other life, if he approaches Heaven, his fire and heat are turned into cold, which is the more intense the nearer that he approaches. . . This cold is what is meant by 'the gnashing of teeth.'

4416. They who have known truths, and have confirmed them, yet have lived a life of evil, appear in a snowy light, but cold.

5716. Spirits who infuse unclean colds, like those of ague.

7270³. The ultimates which are with man, are comparatively sluggish, and thence cold.

8629. This Spirit . . . was cold, as was plainly felt from his afflatus; which was a sign of merely natural lumen . . .

8737. The Spirits say that they know them by their cold . . .

8739. Although their faces are fiery, they are cold . . .

9278⁴. When in externals, man . . . grows warm from the world, and grows cold to Heaven, unless it is as the world. —⁵.

9400². Without that heat . . . the internal of man would grow cold.

9801. In proportion as the internal man is closed towards Heaven to the Lord, he is in cold and thick darkness as to those things which are of Heaven.

9802. They who are in self-love, and in the persuasion of intelligence and wisdom from self, are in such cold and thick darkness.

H. 132. Truths outside the Heavens shine coldly . . . Wherefore when the light of Heaven falls upon that cold light, it disappears.

572. This infernal heat is turned into intense cold when heat from Heaven flows in . . .

C. J. 47. Melancthon . . . appears clothed with bear-skin on account of the cold.

P. 230³. 'A cup of cold water' = something of truth.

R. 202. 'Neither cold nor hot' (Rev. iii. 15) = that those who are such sometimes deny, and at other times acknowledge, that the Word is Divine and holy.

203. 'I would thou wert cold or hot' = that it is better for them either from the heart to deny the holy things of the Word and of the Church, or from the heart to acknowledge them. 204.

M. 44⁷. The Angels grow cold over the whole body at unchaste or extra-marriage love.

55⁵. Next spoke those who were in cold and heat ; in cold towards their wives, and in heat towards the sex . . .

59². Those who love natural things only . . . cannot be conjoined with their consort as into one, except as to those externals ; and when these fail, cold invades the internals, which disperses the delights of that love . . .

147. Marriage love grows cold as soon as it is divided ; and this coldness-frigescientia—causes it to perish.

153³. If wives were to say that they love . . . cold would invade their husbands, and would separate from bed, chamber, and look ; but this takes place with those who do not regard marriages as holy, and therefore do not love their wives from spiritual love : it is otherwise with those who do.

161². (When the inspiration of love from the female sex was cut off, the men became completely cold.)

167. Marriage cold is deeply seated in most men . . . If wives were to disclose the affections and inclinations of their husbands, this cold would burst forth from its hiding-places, and would first chill the interiors of the minds, then the breast, and thence the ultimates of love . . .

191. The intermissions of marriage love with those married partners who love each other only exteriorly are not from the same causes ; but from alternate cold and heat. Ex.

208⁴. The inclinations and affections of men grow cold towards their wives, while the husbands think vain things against the Lord and the Church ; they grow cold while they are in conceit from their own intelligence ; they grow cold while they regard strange women with concupiscence ; they grow cold while the subject of love is adverted to by their wives ; they, moreover, grow cold with a varied cold . . . If the men are cold to their wives it is ill with them . . .

214^e. With those who (are not in true marriage love), and who do not think of separation, love remains in the externals, but is cold in the internals.

234. On the causes of colds, etc., in marriages. Chapter.

— . Opposites induce cold to one, if not to both.

235. There is spiritual heat, and there is spiritual cold ; and spiritual heat is love, and spiritual cold is the deprivation thereof. Gen.art.

—². Spiritual cold is from the sun of the natural world, and from its heat and light . . . When natural heat is separated from spiritual heat, as is the case with those who love natural things, and reject spiritual, spiritual heat becomes cold.

—^e. Merely natural Spirits are chilled with intense cold, when they apply themselves to the side of some Angel who is in a state of love ; and it is the same with the Spirits of Hell when heat from Heaven inflows to them.

236. Spiritual cold in marriages is disunion of souls, and disjunction of minds ; whence come indifference, discord, contempt, loathing, aversion ; from which with many comes separation as to bed, chamber, and house. Gen.art.

— . Marriage cold resides over all other colds in human minds ; for the marriage principle itself is inscribed on the soul . . . Hence it is that this cold commences there, and successively descends into the consequents, and infects them . . .

237. The causes of colds in their successions are many ; some internal, some external, and some accidental. Gen.art.

238. The internal causes of colds are from religion. Gen.art.

239. Where there is no marriage love, there is cold. . . Marriage cold is also the privation of the state of the Church, or of religion.

240. The first of the internal causes of colds, is the rejection of religion by both. Gen.art.

—². Such, as to marriage love, are chilled with cold more than all others.

241. The second of the internal causes of colds, is that one has religion and not the other. Gen.art.

— . When marriage love is banished, there ensues cold ; but this with the married partner of no religion : this cold is not dissipated except through the reception of a religion which agrees with that of the other, if the latter is a true one ; otherwise, with the married partner who has no religion, there ensues cold, which descends from the soul into the body, even to the cuticles . . .

242. The third of the internal causes of colds, is that one is of one religion, and the other of another. Gen.art.

— . Hence with the married partner who is in falsities of religion there commences cold, which is intensified in proportion as he differs from the other.

243. The fourth of the internal causes (of cold), is falsity of religion. Gen.art.

244. The above-named causes are causes of internal cold, but, with many, not at the same time of external. Gen.art.

— . If the causes which are causes of cold in internals were to produce a similar cold in externals, there would be as many separations as there are internal colds ; and there are as many colds as there are marriages of those who are in falsity of religion, in different religions, and in no religion.

—². There are many causes which conjoin dispositions, but which do not conjoin souls . . . but still cold lies hidden inwardly, and causes itself to be noticed and felt every now and then . . .

[M.] 247. The external causes of cold are also many; and the first of these is dissimilitude of dispositions and manners. Gen.art.

247. The second of the external causes of cold, is that marriage love is believed to be one with scortatory love, except that the latter is not allowed by law. Gen.art.

—^e. For nothing stores up in itself marriage cold more than scortatory love; and as it passes into it, it may not undeservedly be called marriage cold itself.

248. The third of the external causes (of cold), is a striving for pre-eminence between married partners. Gen.art.

249. The fourth of the external causes of cold, is no determination to any study or business; whence comes wandering cupidity. Gen.art.

—^e. With these, marriage cold is different from that cold with others; it is indeed the privation of marriage love, but from defect.

250. The fifth of the external causes (of cold), is inequality of state and condition in external things. Gen.art.

256. The accidental causes of cold are also many; and the first of these is what is common from being constantly allowed. Gen.art.

257. The second of the accidental causes of cold, is that living with a married partner from covenant and law seems compulsory, and not free. Gen.art.

— . This cause exists only with those with whom marriage love is cold in the inmosts, and as it adds itself to inward cold, it becomes an accessory or accidental cause: with these, extra-marriage love is in heat; for the cold of the one is the heat of the other; which, if not felt, is still in it; nay, in the midst of cold; otherwise there would be no reparation.

258. The third of the accidental causes of cold is affirmation by the wife, and a talking about love by her. Gen.art.

259. The fourth of the accidental causes of cold, is the man's thought by day and night that his wife is willing; and on the other hand, the wife's thought that the man is not willing. Gen.art.

260. As cold is in the mind so it is in the body; and according to the increasings of that cold, the externals of the body too are closed. Gen.art.

270. I was thinking deeply . . . in what region of the mind . . . does marriage cold reside?

—⁶. Marriage cold too dwells in the highest region of the mind; but only in the chamber of the understanding; that of the will being then closed; for the understanding with its truths can ascend as often as it likes by a winding stair into its chamber in the highest region, but if the will with the good of its love does not ascend at the same time into the consociate chamber, the latter is closed, and cold ensues in the other, and this is marriage cold. While there is such cold towards the wife, the understanding, from the highest region, looks downwards to the lowest one, and also, if not held back by fear, descends, in order to warm itself there at an illicit fire.

281. Marriage love with the spiritual married partner is heat, and with the natural one is cold; and it is evident that heat and cold cannot be together, and that heat cannot kindle him who is in cold unless this be first dispelled; nor can cold flow into him who is in heat unless this be first removed.

—². But between two natural married partners no inward love can exist, because both are cold . . .

290. As heats communicate with each other, so do colds . . .

292^e. While the men are in the alternate colds, let them not consider their wives as beneath their maid-servants.

294³. With every man who is not spiritually, but only naturally rational and moral, there is cold towards a wife; this cold lies hidden with him in the inmosts: this a wise and sagacious wife observes exquisitely and acutely, and in the same degree she conceals her marriage love . . . The reason is, that in proportion as it appears, the marriage cold of the man pours forth from the inmosts of his mind into the ultimates, and induces a total coldness on the body . . . I then asked, Whence comes such cold, as you call marriage cold? They replied, It is from their insanity in spiritual things; for everyone who is insane in spiritual things, is inmostly cold to a wife, and inmostly warm to harlots; and as marriage love and scortatory love are opposite to each other, it follows that marriage love becomes cold while scortatory love is heat; and that when cold reigns with a man he cannot endure any sense of love, and thus not any afflatus of it, from his wife.

304^e. As in the beginning it was all on fire, so its fire suddenly goes out, and passes off into the cold of winter; whence defect is accelerated.

305^e. If the successive order of this love is precipitated . . . there thence arises cold for marriage . . .

313^e. As many unchastenesses, so many colds; and so many as there are of the latter, so many obstructions are there of the inmost life . . . whence the spring is dried up.

331². If the intelligence of the man does not unite itself with its own genuine love, which is with the wife . . . marriage love becomes cold. What woman can unite her love to cold?

433². With adulterers, virility is weakened even to nothing; and then there commences cold even to the sex . . . 453.

T. 61. Evil is in the cold of Hell, and falsity is in its thick darkness.

185. In the frigid zones in the Spiritual World there are the same appearances as in the frigid zones in the natural world. Des. D.5144.

385³. Whenever those approached who had separated faith from charity, such cold seized my feet, and successively my loins and my breast, that everything vital of my body would have been extinguished unless the Lord had driven those Spirits away. . . Yet those Spirits felt no cold in themselves; wherefore I compared them to fish under the ice, which likewise feel no cold, as their life and thence their nature is in itself cold. I perceived that that cold emanated from the deceptive light of their faith . . .

—⁴. Faith without charity is dead . . . and its death is from the cold ; from which faith expires like a bird in a severe winter . . .

617. The man who believes regeneration to be possible without any free-will in spiritual things, thus without co-operation, becomes as cold as a stone as to all the truths of the Church . . .

797. Melancthon appears clothed with a hairy skin, because faith without charity is cold.

D. 271. That the lower place of damnation [i.e., of vastation] is very cold.

— The bodily life they had been cold, having been imbued with no true love, but only with the pleasures of the body . . .

314. The inmost joy of one . . . was nothing but cold . . .

318. That I was surrounded by such a diabolical crew . . . I plainly felt from a coldish wind whenever they were assembled . . .

324. That the states of the spiritual things of man's life are also represented in the other life by cold and heat.

— They who have led a life of the body, or one of the love of the world and of self, are cold as to the degrees and varieties of every state ; and indeed so cold that when they approached they struck my limbs with cold, and also with cold blasts . . .

406. On the cold of those who are of the devil's crew.

— Whenever there have approached any of the diabolical crew, whether few or many, I have been seized with cold in a greater or less degree in various parts of the body ; round the head, at the ears, round the body, at the feet : I could tell when they came from the cold, and also from the breathing, which was usually cold.

534. On my asking whether he was cold ; he replied that he was not warm, although he appeared fiery. 549. 629.

575°. (They who acknowledge God the Father only) after death are cold, and seek to obtain warmth by sawing grass into very little pieces.

595. A certain one of the very learned . . . was cold, as I plainly felt from his cold afflatus . . .

660. The life of his faith flowed in, as I could plainly perceive by this ; that I began to doubt or feel coldly respecting the Lord's government in singulars . . . The cold was that of his intellectual faith, or of truths, but not so much of affection.

1262°. I felt the coming of (the assassin) ; he was now cold ; thus was among the cold infernals.

1523. (The inhabitants of Saturn) do not suffer from cold ; thus have no concern about garments.

1688. A certain rather cold breathing on my forehead (from those Spirits of the dura mater).

1812. Wherever these Spirits (who constitute the spurious animal spirits) go, they stiffen all other things ; they induce cold on them . . .

1858. I could not perceive the heat of those who are delighted with the more interior things of the Word ; wherefore I felt something of cold in externals.

1909. Certain Spirits celebrated the feast of tabernacles ; but as they did it from mere cupidity, without any view of interior things, their delight was turned into sadness and into cold, which was communicated to my feet and knees ; for they desired only natural things . . . thence came the cold : certain Spirits also complained of the cold : such is the case with merely natural gladnesses.

2392. Cold and heat felt from Spirits ; cold the more frequently.

2570. When the interior Spirits of the World of Spirits flow in even only a little, there is at once perceived a cold or weariness towards those things which are of the Lord's Word, of faith, and of salvation . . .

3054. So far as they place merit in themselves, they grow cold.

3207. When Sirens approach the celestial things of love, thus towards Heaven, they become cold ; as cold as snow and ice. They can become both fire and ice, and thus undulate from one extreme to the other ; so that they are miserably tortured.

3432. A certain preacher together with his like said that their life consisted in their being nothing : they did not admit any knowledges of faith, hardly the terms faith and love, except from the bodily sense of love ; for they suppose that marriages in common are allowable : their life was perceived to be cold . . . the cold seizing on the hands, the left knee, and the foot even to the sole. 3434. 3444.

3484. Through the removal of imperfections, as of those things which cause weight, rest, cold . . .

3519. The life of business of the Dutch was represented as a life of wintry light ; I felt much cold therefrom in the foot and knee. I was let into that light, and at the same time into the state in which they are when all their business succeeds ; they then said that they were in their Heaven ; but the cold of that life was felt round the left part of the head ; they, however, did not feel the cold, but a heat, which, when communicated to me, affected the left part of the forehead and the left knee. But their heat is turned into frost. 3522.

3539. The life of cupidities is as it were fiery, and the life of reasoning is as the lumen thence ; but on the approach of the life of love the fire is dulled and extinguished, and at last is turned into cold, and the lumen into darkness.

3550. I felt a great cold from the soles of the feet, and through the feet into the loins, and I perceived that it was Spirits who were rising up who were thus cold, or rather frozen : they were those who as to externals had lived as beasts, and supposed that they would die like beasts ; but they were vivified by the Lord through Angels. Afterwards I also felt cold from them, but verging to heat. 3555.

4572. There are also Spirits . . . who infuse colds, and thereby the paroxysms of ague . . . 4591.

5627. (Spirits) have an idea of heat and cold, but only from the state of the life.

E. 102⁶. 'To give a drink of cold water'=to exercise charity from obedience.

231. 'Thou art neither cold nor hot'=that being without charity it is between Heaven and Hell. 'Cold'=those who are not in spiritual love but in infernal love. . . Hence 'to be neither cold nor hot'=that it is in neither infernal love nor spiritual love, but between both; and he who is between both is between Heaven and Hell.

—^o. The reason 'cold'=infernal love, is that 'heat'=heavenly love.

232. 'Would thou wert cold or hot'=that it is better there should be no faith, or that there should be charity alone.

—³. He who is 'cold,' that is, without faith, does not profane.

411²⁸. 'Snow'=cold truths.

—'. 'The strange cold flowing waters' (Jer.xviii.14) =falsities in which there is no good; 'strange waters'=falsities; and 'cold'=in which there is no good, for truths derive all their heat from the good of love.

419¹⁴. 'Who can stand before His cold?' (Ps.cxlvii.17)=man's state before reformation.

419¹⁴. The scientifics and Knowledges which are with man before reformation are signified by 'hail like balls, who can stand before His cold?' (Ps.cxlvii.17); for before reformation man is completely cold, and that cold is manifestly felt when the Divine flows in from Heaven; and as these colds are dissipated through the reception of Divine good and Divine truth, thus through reformation, it is said, 'He sendeth forth His Word, and melteth them: He causeth His wind to blow, and the waters flow.'

481⁴. Aversion to truths is signified by 'cold in the night' (Jer.xxxvi.30); for when the light of Heaven, which in its essence is Divine truth, flows in, they who are in falsities from evil are seized with cold, intense according to the warmth of the falsity from evil.

503^e. Cold=the deprivation of the good of love.

543¹⁰. 'The day of cold' (Nahum iii.17)=a state of the love of evil.

624⁶. 'To give to drink a cup of cold water'=to teach from a little innocence.

695¹⁰. 'To give to drink a cup of cold water in the name of a disciple'=from obedience to do good and teach truth; for 'water'=truth in affection; and 'cold water,' truth in obedience; for mere obedience is a natural and not a spiritual affection, wherefore it is relatively cold.

Cold. See RHEUMATISM.

Colic. Passio iliaca. M.253^e.

Collar. Collarium.

M. 28³. A collar or necklace of pearls . . .

42⁴. A collar or necklace of rubies . . .

T. 137. Some in collars with ruffles; some in collars with points . . .

Collateral. Collateralis.

A. 3612. Collateral good of a common stock. Sig. 3676. 3974².

3665⁴. More and more in an oblique or collateral line . . .

3974². Collateral good is not genuine good, but appears as genuine, and serves to introduce truths. 3981.

4189². Laban here represents . . . good at one side, or collateral good . . .

—³. Hence it is that Laban here represents the goods of works, such as are with those who are at one side, that is, with the gentiles: the gentiles are said to be at one side, or in collateral good, because they are outside the Church: they who within the Church are in good and truth are not in a collateral, but in a direct line . . .

4234. Afterwards, Jacob represented the truth to which there is adjoined collateral good . . .

9836³. They are collaterally in similar order . . .

9866. What is simultaneous from these three (stones) in collateral order . . .

Collation. Collatio, Conferre.

SEE BRING TOGETHER.

A. 4774. A comparison should be instituted . . .

7233^e. Rightly compared with one another . . .

10403. A collation into one. Sig.

M. 68. Into marriage love are collected all joys and delights . . .

T. 280⁷. No opportunity of comparison (between the two worlds) had before occurred, and these differences cannot be known without comparison and relation.

Collect. See GATHER.

College. Collegium.

See under GYMNASIUM.

R. 386. The Angels said, There are colleges which we call inns, where they debate . . .

M. 207⁶. They were taken to the museums, gymnasia, and colleges . . .

261². I entered one of the colleges . . .

College. Lyceum.

B. 59. (The old Church ministers, when at college . . .)

Colligament. Colligamentum. A.9837. 9895.

Collision. Collidere, Collisio.

A. 831^e. Punishments by collisions. 957. 959.

3289. 'The sons struggled together in the midst of her' (Gen.xxv.22)=combat. 'To struggle together'=to combat. E.710²¹.

—'. This collision or combat is treated of in this chapter . . .

3614⁵. Things which are repugnant are in collision, and then evil and falsity are punished; for in evil there is repugnance to good, and in falsity there is repugnance to truth; and as there is repugnance, there is also collision.

4424³. 'The gnashing of teeth'=the collision of falsities with truths.

6206^e. Opposite spheres collide with each other . . .

7390². If the internal man afterwards denies what miracles have confirmed, there take place an opposition and collision of the internal and the external man.

8924². Combats would be impossible without collisions of opposites . . .

9992². When the falsity of evil approaches good, there arises a heat; and when it approaches truth, a collision.

10312. I felt anxiety, arising from the collision of the spheres . . .

H. 380³. The interiors of those who live in such marriage, collide and combat with each other . . . The collision and combat of their interiors reveals itself after death . . .

M. 10⁶. The delights of these two loves collide together like enemies . . .

315. Clouds seen as it were colliding together. 415.

B. 102. If the faith of the New Church were together with that of the former Church, there would be such a collision and conflict that everything of the Church with man would perish. Gen.art. T.647.

Colocynth. Colocynthis.

A. 8408⁵. 'Gourds from a wild vine' (2 Kings iv. 39) = falsification.

10103³. 'A wild vine,' and 'gourds' = falsities and evils.

10235⁵. The 'knops' upon the brazen sea (1 Kings vii. 24).

R. 411⁶. The like is signified by the gourds put into the pottage . . .

T. 148. It is like the gourds which . . . they put into the pottage . . .

E. 618⁶. The pottage into which they put bitter 'gourds' = the Word falsified.

Colon. Colon.

A. 5174. Those with whom evils have predominated . . . are carried into the intestines, even to the last of them, namely, to the colon and rectum . . .

5379. When those who constitute the colon intestine infest those who are in the province of the peritoneum . . .

5392. Wherefore they who are in the colon and rectum are near the Hells which are called excrementitious.

5393. The colon is of wide extent, and so are those who are in that province. Des.

—². Such are they who are in the Hell of the colon and rectum.

— (The better sort of the Spirits of the colon and rectum, described.)

D. 937. (The Spirits of the colon described.) 993. 1062. 1066.

Colonnade. See under ARCADE.

Colour. Color.

Coloured. Coloratus.

Colouring. Coloratio.

See RAINBOW.

A. 184. A celestial colour . . .

731. Black and white, when variously tempered by the rays of light, are turned into beautiful colours . . .

1042². For any colour to come forth there should be something dark and snowy, or black and white, in which the colours come forth when the rays of light from the sun fall into them, according to the varied tempering of the black and white, from the modification of the influent rays of light. Some of these colours derive more or less from the black, some more or less from the white; hence their diversity. (The correspondence of this.)

1043. The bow, or the colour of the bow, never comes forth except in a cloud; it is the darkness itself, through which flash the rays of the sun, which is turned into colours; thus such as the darkness is, which is touched by the flashing of the rays, such is the colour. (The correspondence of this.)

1053. The sphere of a man or Spirit, whenever the Lord pleases, is represented by colours like those of the rainbow . . . In the other life there are colours which in brightness and resplendence far surpass the beauty of the colours seen on earth; each colour represents something spiritual and celestial. These colours are from the light of Heaven, and from the variegation of spiritual light. The light of Heaven is to the light of the world as the noonday sun to a candle; in Heaven there are celestial light and spiritual light . . . and it is the same with the colours there.

1589³. Objects which turn the sun's rays into most beautiful colours, and others which turn them into most ugly colours. 2045³.

1623. Every colour consists of innumerable rays . . .

1624. The colours flowed not from bright lucidity, but from what is flaming . . . All the visible colours in the other life represent what is celestial and spiritual; colours from what is flaming, those things which are of love and of the affection of good; colours from bright lucidity, those things which are of faith and of the affection of truth; from these origins are all colours in the other life; they are therefore so refulgent that the colours of this world cannot be compared to them. There are also colours which are never seen in this world.

2296. Flowers resplendent with most lovely and with celestial colours.

2519⁶. As light can enter into shade, and modify it variously into colours.

2715⁴. The quality of the objects which receive it causes the light to appear there under the appearance of colour, (beautiful or ugly according to the quality of the form and reception). 3001⁶. 3743⁶.

3993⁶. Colours actually appear in the other life, so beautiful and resplendent that they cannot be described; they are from the variegation of light and shade in white and black . . . as in planes; the variegations thence are what are called colours.

4214³. It is perverted, as when the sun's light inflows into ugly and dirty objects, and makes ugly colours.

4301². According to the forms, colours, etc.

[A.] 4320. The objects receive light from the sun, and thence colours, according to their forms; objects which suffocate and pervert the light appear of a black or dirty colour.

4412. A Spirit who could present . . . colours of every kind, and beautiful coloured forms.

4530. Colours in the other life are from the variegation of the light and shade there, and as it is intelligence and wisdom from the Lord which appear there as light . . . the colours there in their essence are variations, or, so to speak, modifications of intelligence and wisdom. The colours there with which the flowers are adorned, the atmospheres enlightened, and the rainbows varied, and also those which are presented distinct in other forms, have been seen by me innumerable times; their resplendence is from the truth which is of intelligence, and their refulgence from the good which is of wisdom; and the colours themselves are from their brightness and dimness; thus from light and shade, as are colourings in this world. Hence it is, that the colours which are mentioned in the Word . . . represent such things as are of intelligence and wisdom. . . In general, in proportion as the colours there possess resplendence, and are derived from brightness, they relate to the truth which is of intelligence; and in proportion as they possess refulgence, and are derived from crimson, they relate to the good which is of wisdom. 4677. 4922.

4627². They saw the thoughts of these angelic Societies by means of things variously coloured . . . and thus perceived that they were of the province of the eye.

4677. 'He made him a coat of various colours'=the appearances of truth thence. . . 'Various colours'=the appearances of truth by which the Spiritual of the Natural is known and distinguished. 4741. 4742.

4742². When the light of Heaven passes into the World of Spirits, it is presented there under the appearance of various colours . . . As the colours in the other life come forth thence, in their origin they are nothing but appearances of truth from good. Ex.

4922. All colours in the other life=something of good and truth, for they come forth from the light of Heaven, which in itself is wisdom and intelligence from the Divine of the Lord.

— That the colours are thence, and that they are variegations and modifications of that light. Refs.

7343². The light of the sun is white, but is varied according to the forms into which it flows, whence come colours . . .

7622. Changes of colour=the varieties of life as to wisdom and intelligence.

9466. Hyacinthine is of a celestial colour.

— There appear most beautiful colours in the other life, and in Heaven itself; and they all derive their origin from good and truth; for the sphere of the affections of good and truth is sensibly presented before the eyes of Angels and Spirits by colours, and specific things by means of objects variously coloured. . . The reason is that colours are modifications of the heavenly light, thus of intelligence and wisdom. 9467. 9833. 9865. 9905, Refs.

9467. There are two fundamental colours, from which are all the rest, the colour red, and the colour white; the colour red=the good which is of love, and the colour white the truth which is of faith . . . Hence it is evident what the rest of the colours signify; for in proportion as they are derived from red they=the good which is of love, and in proportion as they are derived from white they=the truth which is of faith; for all the colours which appear in the other life are modifications of heavenly light and flame upon these two planes . . . 9833^e.

9865. Precious stones take a representation according to their colours.

—³. The light which proceeds from the Lord appears in the inmost Heaven as flame, wherefore the colours which are thence are red and refulgent; but the same light appears in the middle Heaven as bright light; wherefore the colours which are thence are bright, and in proportion as they have good in them they sparkle. Hence it is that there are two fundamental colours, to which all the rest relate, namely, the colour red, and the colour white . . .

—³. It is evident from this why stones of so many colours were set in order in the breastplate.

10163^e. (How they colour their garments in that Earth.)

9868². The stones in the breastplate derive their signification from their colours.

— Colours in the Heavens are modifications of the light and shade there; thus are variegations of the intelligence and wisdom with the Angels. Refs.

H. 178^e. The still less intelligent Angels have garments of diverse colours—diversicolores. 179.

179^e. Brightness and whiteness correspond to truth; and colours to its varieties.

(s). Colours in the Heavens are variegations of the light there. Refs.

— Colours=various things which are of intelligence and wisdom. Refs.

— In proportion as colours derive from red, they =good; in proportion as they derive from white, truth.

356². The planes of that light, in which variegations as of colours come forth, are the interiors of the mind; and the confirmations of Divine truths by such things as are in nature . . . produce these variegations.

(b). Colours in the Heavens . . . are appearances of truth from good, and=such things as are of intelligence and wisdom. Refs.

450. A celestial colour. E.576².

W. 348. In the same way the white light of the sun is turned into hideous colours, and into black . . . D.2876.

380. In the Spiritual World there are colours of every kind; the colours red and white are their fundamentals; and the rest derive their varieties from them, and from their opposites, which are fiery dusky and black. Ex. R.231.

P. 298. Colours appear in both winter and summer light . . .

R. 566⁶. (Colours in relation to the three Heavens.)

915². There are in general two colours which are pellucid in precious stones, red and white; the other colours, as green, yellow, azure, and many others, are compounded of these with black between them . . .

M. 42¹. The colours were varied according to her aspect towards her husband.

105². Horses of a light bay colour.

136^e. Mantles of an opaline colour.

T. 360^e. Thus does man's Natural become as it were beautifully coloured . . .

763. Sight is bedimmed by white alone, but is vivified by a colour which inwardly derives something from black; as green.

Ad. 1026. Every colour has its own difference between black and white; there are a dull blue and a bright blue . . .

3/1288. They highly value this colour . . .

D. 682. In the rainbow, nothing but what is most general appears, namely, the planes of successive colours; whereas each colour consists of an indefinite number of rays, which flow distinctly thither, and form this general plane. The eye only perceives myriads of rays all at once, and indeed obscurely; and this obscurity appears only through some colour . . .

1087. Decorations of many colours . . .

1311. Hereditary evils in infants and children appear tempered with goods; like the colours black, green, azure . . .

1393. On colours, by which spiritual things are represented.

3474. In the rainbow, the colours derive their origin from black and white . . .

3578. Such subserviences are represented in the other life by colours . . .

5464^e. From the colours black, white, flesh, azure, yellow, around a Spirit or a man, some evil Spirits infer the state of the man as to his proprium or self-love . . .

6064. I spoke with Newton. . . He said that colours appear to him which are much brighter and of far greater variety than in the world; and that the colours there originate from the modification of the Divine light in the forms which are receptible of life in Angels and in men; and thence come the varieties of understanding. . . The planes of colours are three; white from light, red from fire, and black from [shade]; and the varieties of all colours thence originate.

E. 364. There appear in the Heavens colours of every kind, and they originate from the light there; and as that light far surpasses the light of the world in brightness and resplendence, so also do the colours; and as the light there is from the Sun of Heaven . . . all the colours=spiritual things . . . Therefore, there are two colours which are fundamental ones of all there; red and white; red deriving its origin from the flaming light which is from Divine good, and white from the bright white light which is from Divine truth; wherefore, in proportion as colours derive from red, they =good; and in proportion as they derive from bright white, they =truth.

— . Refs on the subject of colours.

431². The light in Heaven is modified into various colours according to the truths from good which are received; hence it is that in the Word, colours from correspondence=truths from good; wherefore answers were given through the flashing from the colours of the stones in the Urim and Thummim . . .

J. (Post.) 267. Concerning colours, Newton said, that in the world he had believed them to originate from substances, or as it were variously coloured matters which continually flow forth from the solar ocean . . . But the Angels did not recognize this cause of colours; saying, that there are equally colours in the Spiritual World . . . and that they know them to be variegations of their light, corresponding to their love or good, and to their wisdom or truth; and that the Sun from which their light proceeds is the Lord Himself . . . and from that Sun, which is pure love, such substances or matters do not flow forth; but that pure light presents the variegations of colours in objects according to the reception of wisdom by the Angels; a red colour in proportion as their wisdom derives from good, and a bright white colour in proportion as their wisdom derives from truth; and the other colours as it were partake of their defect and absence, which correspond to shades in the world. Moreover, the Angels . . . demonstrate that colours are nothing but variegations of flaming light and of bright white light in objects according to their forms; and that colours are not material . . .

—³. A certain Spirit then approached, and said to him; Do not think of colours from any little prism, or from some wall; but from the green colour of all the woods and grassy plains of the whole Earth . . .

—^e. After he had thought more deeply about this subject, he said; Now I know that colours are modifications of light in objects, in the forms of which they make common planes, upon which the light is variegated according to the forms of the parts; whence come colours. These are Newton's own words, which he wants me to communicate.

C. 190. As sight perishes if there is only one colour before it . . .

Column. Columna.

A. 699. I perceived that a certain column surrounded me . . . and it was insinuated that it was the 'wall of brass;' it was formed of angelic Spirits, in order that I might be let down in safety to the unhappy. 4940. D. 228. 262.

1861². 'Pillars of smoke' (Joel ii. 30)=falsities.

4328. How it was with the good of the Celestial Church, was shown by a column descending from Heaven, which was of an azure colour, and at the left side of which there was a lucidity like the flaming solar lucidity; by this was represented their first state . . . (the succeeding states of that good represented by changes in the appearance of the column.)

7989^e. The presence of the Lord is described in what follows, by the pillar of cloud by day, and the pillar of fire by night, to lead them; and His presence with both those who are in good and truth, and those who are in evil and falsity, by that pillar interposing itself between the camp of Israel and the camp of the Egyptians . . . 8039^e. 8110. 8195.

[A.] 8099². They are surrounded with a column of Angels, with whom the Lord is present.

8106. 'By day in a pillar of cloud' (Ex.xiii.21)=that when there was a state of enlightenment, it was tempered by obscurity of truth.

—⁴. It is said 'in a pillar of cloud and of fire,' because by 'a pillar' is signified that which supports (Ill.); and it is predicated of the Natural . . . Hence it is that the feet of the Angel coming down from heaven appeared 'like pillars of fire' (Rev.x.1).

8108. 'And by night in a pillar of fire to give them light'=that when there is a state of obscurity it is tempered through enlightenment by good.

— The reason Jehovah appeared or went before them in a pillar of cloud by day, and in a pillar of fire by night, was that there was thereby represented the state of Heaven; for there are perpetual variations and changes of state there . . .

8110. 'The pillar of cloud by day, and the pillar of fire by night, did not recede before the people' (ver.22)=the Lord's presence, that it was perpetual; for so did the Angels in whose midst was the Lord appear before the people. 8192.

8195. 'The pillar of cloud went from before them, and stood behind them' (Ex.xiv.19)=the Lord's presence protecting voluntary things, as before it protected intellectual ones. . . It was an angelic choir in which was the Lord.

8197². As to the pillar bringing darkness upon the Egyptians, while it gave light to the Sons of Israel, the case is this. The Lord's presence, which is here signified by the pillar, is heavenly light itself . . . but this same light causes thick darkness with the evil . . .

8213. 'In the pillar of fire and of cloud' (ver.24)=the presence of Divine good and truth there.

8864^e. In the Lord's Prayer, all things follow in such a connexion, that they constitute as it were a column which increases in size from the top to the bottom, and in the interiors of which are those things which precede in the series. Ex.

9163⁴. On which they rest, as columns on their bases . . .

9406³. 'He spake unto them in the pillar of cloud' (Ps.xcix.7) . . . 'A cloud'=the Word in the letter, or Divine truth in ultimates; hence it is evident what it=to speak in a pillar of cloud.

9674. 'Thou shalt place it upon four pillars of Shittim wood' (Ex.xxvi.32)=the good of merit which is the Lord's alone, conjoining and supporting. . . 'Pillars'=support. . . The reason the pillars=support, is that they supported the veil.

—². By 'pillars,' in the spiritual sense, are signified those things which support Heaven and the Church, which are the goods of love and the goods of faith from the Lord. Ill.

9689. 'Thou shalt make for the hanging five pillars of Shittim wood' (ver.37)=the support of the uniting medium so far as is sufficient, through the good of merit which is of the Lord's Divine Human. . . 'Pillars'=support.

9747. 'Its twenty pillars' (Ex.xxvii.10)=the goods of truth fully supporting. 'Pillars'=the goods of Heaven and the Church supporting. 9757.

9768. 'All the pillars of the court round about' (ver.17)=all the good which supports Heaven. . . 'The pillars'=goods supporting.

10551. 'When Moses entered into the tent, the pillar of cloud descended, and stood at the door of the tent, and He spake with Moses' (Ex.xxxiii.9)=that after the Word had vanished from their apprehension, a dense obscurity took possession of them without, and yet there was clear perception from within. . . 'The pillar of cloud'=a dense obscurity relatively to that nation . . .

C. J. 89. Upon these three things as pillars, the universal Heaven depends.

S. 38. Successive order is like a column with steps from the top to the bottom. . . Successive order, in the ultimate, becomes simultaneous order . . . which is comparatively like the column of steps subsiding into a plane . . . W.205². —³. M.314².

R. 191. 'I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God' (Rev.iii.12)=that truths from good from the Lord, with those with whom they are, support the Lord's Church in Heaven. . . 'A pillar'=that which supports and strengthens the Church; and this is the Divine truth of the Word.

468. 'His feet as pillars of fire' (Rev.x.1)=the Lord's Divine Natural as to Divine love, which supports all things . . . 'A pillar'=support.

M. 12. Six columns of lapis lazuli before the entrance.

76³. At the sides of the steps were columns of jasper.

155a². Two columns of cedar before the door.

T. 159². Lo, there appeared a column of light around us . . .

220. Truths and good in ultimates, such as are in the sense of the letter of the Word, are represented by the curtains, veils, and pillars of the tabernacle. Gen.art.

403^e. They are the hands of the king, and the pillars of society.

627^e. Hence it is evident upon what pillar the house of God is at this day founded . . . and that if it were pulled away, that house would fall, like the house in which were the satraps and people of the Philistines . . . the two pillars of which Samson pulled down.

D. 3455^e. He was then placed against a column . . .

E. 78². Man cannot live as to the body in the Lord's presence; and they who do live are surrounded by an angelic column, which moderates the Divine influx . . .

—³. The reason Jehovah was seen by many, as recorded in the Word, was that they were at the time surrounded by a column of Spirits, and thus preserved; thus also has the Lord been sometimes seen by me.

219. 'Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of My God'=that those who endure to the end shall be in the Divine truth in Heaven. . . 'A pillar'=Divine truth supporting . . .

— The Heavens which are in a lower degree, support those which are in a higher one; here, therefore, by his being made a pillar in the temple, is signified that they will be in a lower Heaven.

—² ‘Pillars’ are mentioned in various places in the Word, and by them are signified lower truths, because they support the higher ones. III.

— ‘For a pillar’ of iron (Jer.i.18)=truth supporting it.

—³ ‘To appoint signs, and to place pillars’ (Jer. xxxi.21)=instruction in the things of the Church which are fundamental, which are called ‘pillars’ because they support.

—⁴ ‘To strengthen the pillars of the earth’ (Ps. lxxv.3)=to support the truths upon which the Church is founded.

—⁵ The porch of the temple signified those things which are of the ultimate Heaven; and because this Heaven supports the two higher ones, those two pillars were placed in the porch of the temple (1 Kings vii. 15–22).

504¹⁰. (The pillar of cloud and of fire=the protection of Heaven and of the Church by the Lord.)

539⁸. ‘Pillars of smoke’=pure and dense falsities.

597. ‘His feet as pillars of fire’=Divine truth or the Word in ultimates, which is natural, and supports the interior things therein, also full of the good of love. . . ‘Pillars’=the lower truths which support higher ones.

Comb. Pectere.

A. 2125. Children cruelly combed by their mothers.

5570. Such appear to comb the hair; for to comb the hair=to accommodate natural things so that they may have a becoming appearance.

D. 3992. Children whom they would amend they were seen to comb cruelly. . .

Combat. Pugna, Pugnare.

Combative. Pugnax.

See SWORD, and under TEMPT.

A. 12. In the sixth state . . . his natural life is delighted and supported by those things which are of the body and the senses, from which comes combat, until love reigns, and the man becomes celestial.

55^e. While man is spiritual, as while he is becoming spiritual, he is in combat, wherefore it is said, ‘Subdue the earth, and have dominion’ (Gen.i.28).

59. While man is being regenerated and becoming spiritual, he is continually in combat, wherefore the Lord’s Church is called militant. . . In the time of combat, the evil Spirits . . . leave him no meat except what is compared to ‘the green herb’ (ver.30).

—^e. From the experience of so many years I have been fully instructed about the combat, which they who are being regenerated must undergo.

63. Meanwhile the Lord continually fights for him against evils and falsities, and through combats confirms him in truth and good; the time of combat is the time of the Lord’s operation . . . Nor does He rest until love acts as principal; then combat ceases.

81³. A dead man, when in combat, almost always yields, and when in no combat, evils and falsities dominate him . . . A spiritual man is in combat, but always conquers . . . A celestial man is not in combat. . .

84. As combat then ceases, the Lord is said to ‘rest from all His work;’ wherefore the seventh day has been made holy.

87. The reason the celestial man is ‘the Sabbath’ or ‘rest,’ is also that combat ceases when he becomes celestial . . . And as the man himself has not fought, but the Lord alone for him, it is said that ‘the Lord rested.’

88. When the spiritual man becomes celestial, he is called ‘the work of God,’ because the Lord alone has fought for him.

90. ‘The rain,’ which is presently called ‘a mist’ (Gen.ii.5,6)=the tranquillity of peace, on the cessation of combat.

91. While man is spiritual, the external man is not willing to serve the internal, wherefore there is combat; but when he becomes celestial, the external man begins to serve the internal, wherefore combat ceases . . .

227. When evil Spirits begin to have dominion, the Angels labour to avert evils and falsities, wherefore combat takes place; it is this combat which is felt through perception, dictate, and conscience . . . Such, if they felt combat a hundred times, would say that they were phantasies, and caused by unhealthiness of mind. For some years it has been given me to feel combats and their living sensation a thousand thousand times, and almost continually; also who they were, their character, where they were, when they came, when they departed, and to speak with them.

261. ‘In multiplying to multiply sorrow’ (Gen.iii.16) = combat, and from combat anxiety.

263. When the Sensual averts itself, or ‘curses’ itself, what follows is that the evil Spirits begin to fight strongly, and the Angels who are with man to labour, wherefore the combat is thus described by ‘in multiplying to multiply sorrow,’ as to the conception and as to the birth of sons, that is, as to the thoughts and productions of truth.

653. While man is being reformed, which is effected through combats and temptations . . .

— The evil Spirits who excite the man’s reasonings, draw forth all his false things . . . with which the man, while in temptations, ought to fight; but it is the Lord, through the Angels who are adjoined to the man, Who fights. After false things have been separated by combats, and as it were dispelled, the man is prepared to receive the truths of faith . . .

986. Before man is regenerated, the cupidities and falsities which are of the external man continually predominate; hence comes combat.

1444. The Lord derived evils from the mother, against which He fought. . . He fought alone, and of His own power, against all Hell.

1656. After these combats, evil and falsity submitted itself. Sig.

1659². The combats which are signified by ‘wars.’

1661. It treats of the Lord’s combat against evils and falsities, here of His first combat, which was in His childhood and first adolescence. 1705.

[A. 1661]². No one can ever combat against evils and falsities before he knows what evil and falsity are, thus not before he is instructed . . . Every man first of all combats from the goods and truths which he receives through Knowledges . . . Every man too, when he first begins to fight, supposes the goods and truths from which he combats to be his own . . .

—⁴. It is, however, the Lord alone Who fights and overcomes.

—⁵. As the Lord in His earliest youth was introduced into the most grievous combats against evils and falsities, He could suppose no otherwise, and this because it was according to Divine order that His Human essence should be introduced to the Divine essence, and united with it through continual combats and victories, and also because the goods and truths from which He fought against evils and falsities were of the external man . . . In a word, in the first combats the goods and truths with the Lord, and from which He fought, were imbued with the hereditary things from the mother . . .

1663. So many kinds of cupidities of evil and of persuasions of falsity against which the Lord fought. Sig.

1664³. 'Men of war' (Jer. xlix. 26) = those who fight.

—⁷. The Lord alone fights for man.

—⁸. The wars waged against the idolatrous inhabitants of Canaan all represented the combats of the Lord with Hell, and therefore those of the Church, and of the men of the Church. Ill.

1668. The evil Spirits rebel in proportion as the man who wants to be in goods and truths confirms with himself any evils and falsities, or in proportion as evils and falsities insinuate themselves into his goods and truths; in these things is the life of evil Spirits, but the life of the Angels is in goods and truths; hence come infestation and combat . . .

1683. The Lord never began combat with any Hell, but the Hells attacked Him; as is the case also with every man who is in temptation, or in combat with evil Spirits . . .

1685. Truth is the first of combat, for from truth he fights . . . wherefore such combats never take place until the man has been imbued with the knowledges of truth and good. Sig.

1690². From love towards the universal human race He fought against the loves of self and of the world. Sig.

—^e. The grievousness of His combats . . .

1692. Hence the Church is called militant. 6308. 8351^e.

1709. The holy things of combat. Sig.

—'. 'Six' = combat. (See SIX.)

1752. The Angels who were with the Lord when He fought. Sig.

1785. After the combats in childhood there was revelation. Sig. and Ex.

1789. Reward after the combats of temptations. Sig.

—'. He fought from love towards the universal human race. 1812². 2405⁴.

1812. The Lord was in continual combats of temptations.

—'. From the love from which anyone fights is known what his faith is. Ex.

1813. He alone fought from Divine love . . .

—'. He became righteousness through the combats of temptations and victories, and this from His Own power; and as often as He fought and conquered, it was imputed to Him for righteousness . . .

—². Man . . . can never fight from any other love, from himself, than the love of self and of the world . . . He who supposes that he fights from himself against the devil errs enormously . . . It is the truth of faith, that is, the truth itself, that the Lord fights.

1820. The end is the love against which the evil Spirits and Genii fight . . . Evil Spirits never fight against anything but what a man loves, and they fight the more sharply the more ardently he loves; evil Genii are those who fight against those things which are of the affection of good, and evil Spirits against those things which are of the affection of truth . . .

—³. They do not fight by reasoning against goods and truths; such combats go for nothing, for if they were conquered a thousand times, they would still press on, because reasonings against goods and truths are never wanting; but they pervert goods and truths, and inflame by a certain fire of cupidity and of persuasion . . .

—⁵. Against this Divine love all the Hells fought with the most malignant deceit and venom . . .

1864^e. Through combats of temptations and victories, the Lord more and more conjoined and united Himself to Jehovah.

1902³. That through combats of temptations, and victories, He might reduce all things into order.

—^e. The human race, for which, and for the salvation of which, He fought in all His temptations . . .

1923. When the Rational rises up against the Intellectual, there takes place intestine combat.

—'. Temptations are nothing but intestine combats . . .

1935^e. They who have no conscience can have no interior thought, wherefore with them there exists no combat. Ex.

1950. 'His hand against all' (Gen. xvi. 12) = that it would fight against those things which are not true; 'and the hand of all against him' = that falsities would fight back again.

—². The Rational, without life from celestial good, fights against all, and all fight against it: rational good never fights, however it is attacked . . . and although it does not fight, it conquers all; nor does it ever think about combat. Ex.

—³. But truth separated from good, here represented by Ishmael . . . fights against all, and all against it, nay, it thinks of and breathes scarcely anything else but combats . . .

1962². From Scientifics and Knowledges, without the life of use, the Rational becomes like a wild-ass; morose, combative . . .

2077. From this love the Lord continually fought against the Hells. 2777.

2159. The hereditary which He conquered through the combats of temptations . . .

2276. 'Thirty'=somewhat of combat, thus a little of combat. Ex. 5335.

2406². The Lord continually fights with man and for man with Hell, although it does not appear so to man.

2523². In order that He might fight with the Hells, He had to do it from the Human, for there is no combat with the Hells from the Divine.

2576¹⁸. The Lord's Human, which, through combats of temptations, and victories, He of His Own power made Divine.

2686. The Book of the Wars of Jehovah . . . treated of the Lord's combats and temptations, also of those of the Church, and of those who are of the Church.

—³. 'Arrows,' or 'missiles'=the doctrinal things from which and with which they fight, especially those who are spiritual.

2710. The state of the Spiritual Church is militant. Ex.

2714⁴. The journeys of the people in the wilderness all =the state of the Church militant, and its temptations.

2760². He is said 'to make war' (Rev.xix.11), from truth.

2776. The Lord united the Human to the Divine through combats of temptations and victories. Refs.

2793. The Divine Rational in a state of truth girded for the most grievous and inmost combats of temptations. Sig.

2799. 'A sword'=truth fighting . . . and in the opposite, falsity fighting. Ill.

—⁵. 'To break the bow, the sword, and the war' (Hos.ii.18)=that there will be no combat there about doctrine and truth.

—⁶. All weapons of war in the Word=those things which are of spiritual combat, each something special.

2881. While man is in combats, or one of the Church militant, it appears as if the Lord compels man, thus that he has no freedom, for He then fights continually against the love of self and of the world, thus against the freedom into which he is born . . . But in the combats in which he conquers, freedom is stronger than out of combats, but this freedom is not from himself . . .

3286². The internal or rational man often fights with the external or natural, and while there is combat, the natural is not regenerate.

3289. 'The sons struggled together in the midst of her' (Gen.xxv.22)=combat.

3301³. Celestial men are such, that before they put off this state, they are in the Natural so strongly as to truth, that they are able to fight with the Hells, for truth is what fights, never good . . .

—⁴. The Nazarite . . . represented the Lord, Who from the natural man as to truth would fight with the Hells.

3318. 'He was weary' (Gen.xxv.29)=a state of combat. 'Weary'=the state after combat; here a state of combat. Ex. 3321.

— . Good cannot be conjoined with truth in the natural man without combats. Ex.

3321. The conjunction of good with truth in the Natural takes place through spiritual combats.

—³. Such things cause the natural man to receive truths with much more difficulty than his Rational; hence is combat, which lasts a considerable time, nor does it cease until the vessels which receive good in the natural man are softened . . . The harder they are, the more grievous is the combat, if the man is to be regenerated.

3448. As truths, or doctrinal things, are the things through which spiritual combats take place, they are signified by 'armies;' and also, in the opposite sense, falsities. Ill.

—⁶. As the Lord alone fights for man against the Hells which are in the constant endeavour to invade him, He is so often called 'Jehovah Zebaoth' . . . that is, 'of armies.' Ill.

3469². This is the reason why, when he is being regenerated, man perceives a combat between his rational or internal man and his natural or external man . . .

— . Many new states into which he is introduced . . . thus of humiliation, through the combats of temptations.

3601. The conjunction is effected through combats, that is, through temptations . . .

3696². Unless there were inmost a state of peace, he would not fight, for in the combats in which he is he continually has regard to it as an end; unless it were the end, he never would have force and strength to fight . . . and as this is the end, after the combats or temptations he comes into this state.

3923³. Truth is what fights and conquers.

3927. When the dominion is concerned, combat takes place, which here is 'struggling' (Gen.xxx.7).

—². The Lord fought from His Own power. Refs.

—³. It is the combat between them which is perceived by man as temptation.

3928. Between these two kinds of delights there is combat while man is in temptations; this the man does not know . . .

—². He who does not affirm and acknowledge the good and truth which are of faith and charity, cannot come into any combat of temptation, because there is nothing within to combat back against evil and falsity.

—³. Freedom is what is fought about in temptations.

4249². The combats of the evil Spirits with the Angels, from those things which are with a man who is to be regenerated, appear under the form of fear, straitness, and temptation.

4274². The reason the first of combat is as to truth, or about truth, is that he chiefly loves it . . .

4287. Victories in combats as to truths and goods. Sig.

—². He Himself not only sustained all the combats of temptations, but also sustains them with every man.

—³. The Lord fought from Divine love, differently from all men. Refs.

— . The Lord fought against the hereditary evil from the mother. Refs.

— . Through the combats of temptations, the Lord disposed all things into the heavenly form.

— . Through continual victories in the combats of temptations, He united the Divine essence to the Human essence. Refs.

[A.] 4295. It is the angelic Heaven with which the Lord fought. Sig.

—². That in temptations the Lord at last fought with the Angels themselves, nay, with the whole angelic Heaven, is an arcanum not yet unfolded. Ex.

457². This combat takes place among the Spirits who are with man. Ex.

4599⁶. The falsities from which they fight are signified by 'towers.' Ill.

5023⁴. It treats here of the spiritual combats into which will come those who are of the Church, after the internal or spiritual things of the Word have been opened.

5036². It is this combat which with man is perceived as temptation, but so obscurely that he scarcely knows otherwise than that it is mere anxiety; for man... perceives scarcely the thousandth part of those things about which the evil Spirits and Angels combat... for they fight from those things which are with man, and about them... I have heard the combat, I have perceived the influx, I have seen the Spirits and Angels, and have then and afterwards spoken with them, even about this very thing.

5280³. Hence there is a combat between the evil Spirits and the Angels, which combat with man is felt as temptation.

5335². As man cannot be regenerated, that is, admitted into the spiritual combats through which regeneration takes place, until he has received remains to the full...

5356². Temptations confirm goods and truths, for man then fights against evils and falsities.

5718. In order to domineer, they excite combats among others...

6202². The evil Spirits excite the evils which a man has done... and the Angels then fight with them...

6365². A Celestial Angel never fights.

6369. They who are in celestial good never fight, but are safe through good...

6419. The Spiritual Church fighting against falsity. Sig.

6423. Safe by the fighting truth of doctrine. Sig.

—¹. In order that good may fight with that crew which is from Hell with man... good acts through truth.

6424. The power of the forces of fighting. Sig.

6427². As the good with the spiritual is impure, they cannot but be infested by evils and falsities, and thus be in combat; but the Lord provides that through these combats what is impure with them shall by degrees be purified, for the Lord fights for them. Sig.

6611. The Lord then fights through the Angels against evils and falsities.

6656. 'Wars'=combats about truths and falsities, or spiritual combats; and as it proceeds, 'Lest He join himself to our enemies' (Ex.i.10), prevailing in these combats is signified.

6657. 'Lest he fight against us' (id.)=to occasion evil...

—². When man comes into temptation... there is a combat around him between Spirits from Hell and Angels from Heaven, which combat lasts as long as the man is kept in his evil: in this combat it sometimes appears to the Spirits from Hell that they are conquering...

—³. When the Spirits from Hell are fighting against the Angels, they are in the World of Spirits, and are there in a free state. Ref.

6658. The Church is not fully established with man until he has fought against evils and falsities.

6663. In order that he who is being infested may appear to himself to be in freedom, and so to fight from himself against evils and falsities...

—². When this takes place, not only are the truths and goods strengthened which had been implanted before, but many are also insinuated; all the spiritual combat in which the combatant is victorious is attended with this. Ex... And this is still more perfectly the case with spiritual combats, because the combat takes place in the spirit, and concerning goods and truths, and especially because the Lord is present... In such combats it is general that the Lord turns into good all the evils which the Hells intend, wherefore it is not permitted to produce more and other evils than can be turned into suitable good with him who is in combat.

6764. 'Two Hebrew men quarrelling' (Ex.ii.13)=that they fought together within the Church.

6765². While man is being regenerated, he is let into combats against falsities, and then is kept by the Lord in truth, but in that truth which he has persuaded himself to be truth, from this truth the combat is carried on against falsity. Combat can also be carried on from truth not genuine, provided it be such that it can in some way be conjoined with good...

6978². Combat against truth. Sig.

7090³. Such are let down to the Lower Earth, and there also are in combats... Their worldly and earthly things can be separated and removed by nothing but combats against falsities. These combats take place in this way; they who are there are infested by fallacies and falsities thence derived... but which are rebutted by the Lord through Heaven, and at the same time truths are insinuated, and these appear as if they were with those who are in the combats. Hence it is that the Spiritual Church is called militant.

—⁴. But at this day combat is rare with anyone in this world, for while he lives in this world, the man of the Church does not support combat, on account of the crew of the evil in the midst of which he is, and on account of the flesh in which he is, which is infirm. In the other life man can be firmly held in the bonds of conscience, but not so much so in this world, for if in this world he were to be brought into anything of despair, as they who are in combats are wont to be, he would at once burst those bonds... Hence it is that few within the Church are now admitted by the Lord into combats for truths against falsities. These combats are spiritual temptations.

7104². Grievous things from combats are signified by 'works' and 'burdens' (Ex.v.4).

7105. 'Get ye to your burdens' (id.)=that they should live in combats... 'Burdens'=infestations by falsities, thus combats against them.

7122². Before goods and truths can appear . . . evils and falsities must be revealed to them, so that they may see and know them, and thus learn what is true and what is good. This cannot be done at all without combat with evils and falsities in himself. This combat actually takes place, and evil Spirits excite the falsities and evils, and the Angels excuse if the end has been good, and insinuate truths. This is perceived as if it were in him . . . yet it is a combat of Angels with evil Spirits outside of him. Refs.

7198. 'Groaning' (Ex.vi.5)=grief and pain from combat. 'The Sons of Israel'=those of the Spiritual Church, who are infested by falsities, and are thence in combat.

7236. Their going forth out of Egypt=when they will come out of combats with falsities.

7320. The reason of their aversion to truths, is that the truths which are being perverted by falsities, secretly and silently fight . . .

7251. So long as truths are with falsities, they fight against them . . .

7729³. The open combat of falsity against truth. Sig.

7906². The purification of truth from falsity with man, can never take place without fermentation so called, that is, without the combat of falsity with truth, and of truth with falsity; but after the combat has taken place, and truth has conquered, falsity falls to the bottom, like dregs . . . This fermentation, or combat, takes place especially when the state is changed with man . . .

—³. Spiritual combats or temptations are fermentations in the spiritual sense. Ex.

7990. Those are said to be in spiritual captivity, who are kept by the Lord in good and truth as to the interiors, but as to the exteriors in evil and falsity by Hell; whence is the combat of the external man with the internal. They who are being infested are kept in this state; and then the Lord through influx through the interiors fights for them against the afflux of evil and falsity from the Hells . . . This takes place to the end that the external man may be reduced to obedience to the internal . . .

8131. The temptations with man are spiritual combats between evil and good Spirits; the combats are from and about those things which the man has done and thought, which are in his memory; the evil Spirits accuse and assault, and the good excuse and defend; these combats appear as if they were in the man . . .

8159². After He came into the world, from His Divine Human He could fight for them against the Hells. Sig.

—³. As to temptations the case is, that the Hells fight against man, and the Lord for man; to each falsity that the Hells introduce, there is an answer from the Divine . . .

—⁵. In temptations it is not man who fights, but the Lord alone for man, although it appears as if it were from the man; and when the Lord fights for man, man conquers in everything.

8175. 'Jehovah shall wage war for you' (Ex.xiv.14) = that the Lord alone supports the combats of temptations. Ex.

8179². In temptations . . . prayers do not effect anything, but combat is to be carried on against the evils and falsities which are injected by the Hells; this combat is effected through the truths of faith . . . In the combats of temptations, man ought to fight as from himself, yet acknowledge and believe that it is from the Lord; if man does not fight as from himself, the good and truth which flow in through Heaven from the Lord are not appropriated to him; but when he fights as from himself, yet believes that it is from the Lord, they are appropriated to him . . .

8273. 'A man of war' (Ex.xv.3)=Him who fights against falsities and evils, that is, against the Hells, and overcomes them . . . For the Lord alone fights for man . . . and that continually, especially in temptations, which are spiritual combats.

8294. 'I will draw the sword' (ver.9)=the continual combat of falsity from evil. Ill.

8295². The wish to destroy Heaven . . . does not take effect by a hostile invasion, for such an invasion, or such a combat, has no existence in the other life; but it is effected through the destruction of the truth of faith and the good of love . . . In this consist combats and wars there . . .

8346. Temptations are spiritual combats, or combats against evils and falsities.

8351². The combat of the internal man with the external, which is called temptation.

8403². Hence it is evident how absolutely necessary combat is; for the life of the old man resists, and does not want to be extinguished, and the life of the new man cannot enter, except where the life of the old one has been extinguished; hence it is evident, that there is combat on both sides, and ardent combat, because for life. He who thinks from an enlightened Rational may thus see and perceive, that man cannot be regenerated without combat, that is, without spiritual temptation . . .

8506. 'Six days' (Ex.xvi.26)=states of combat and of labour, here a state of reception of truth, or the state when good is acquired through truth, for in this state there are labour and combat. In this state man is let into temptations, which are combats with the evils and falsities with him; and then the Lord fights for the man, and also with him. But after this state, there is a state of the conjunction of good and truth . . . represented by rest on the Sabbath . . . then man is in the Lord, and is led by Him without labour and combat.

8555. It afterwards treats (in this chapter) of the combat of falsity from evil against the truth and good of faith: this combat is represented by the combat of Amalek against Israel.

8567. During extreme temptation, in the midst of despair, the inmost is held by the Lord in combat against the falsity . . .

8581². 'The bulwark' itself is the truth of faith, for from it the combat is carried on against both falsities and evils.

8594. 'And fought with Israel in Rephidim' (Ex.xvii.8)=that they assaulted while they were enduring grievous temptation. 'To fight'=to assault through the falsities from interior evil.

8595. 'Moses said to Joshua'= Divine influx into truth fighting.

— That Joshua=truth fighting, is evident from the fact, that he was commanded to fight against Amalek, that is, against falsities from interior evil : against these must fight the truth which is made fighting through the influx of Divine truth. The truth Divine itself which proceeds immediately from the Lord, is not fighting . . . but in order that it may be made fighting, it flows into such Angels as are in ardent zeal for truth and good, and, being stirred up by this zeal, they fight; hence comes the truth fighting which is represented by Joshua.

8596. That it should arrange the truths for combat. Sig.

8598. As to the conjunction and influx of the good of charity into truth fighting, the case is this; truth Divine becomes fighting through conjunction with those who are in zeal; they who are in zeal fight, but not from any enmity or hostility, but rather from charity; for zeal differs from anger thus; zeal has the good of charity in it; wherefore, when zeal fights, it only removes those who are in falsity and evil, lest they should injure those who are in good and truth . . .

8606. The reason why the faith which looks to the Lord conquers, is that the Lord then fights . . . and the reason why the faith which looks away from the Lord to self and the world yields, is that then the man fights from himself. Sig.

8615. When that state of combat with falsity from interior evil ceased. Sig.

8626. The infernal Genii cannot at all wage war and fight against the Lord; but it appears to them that they are fighting, and sometimes that they even conquer, when they subjugate those who are in evil . . .

8888. 'Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work'=the combat which precedes and prepares for that marriage. 'Six days'=a state of combat.

—². By the combat which precedes and prepares for the heavenly marriage, is meant spiritual combat or temptation; for before man enters into the heavenly marriage, that is, before he is regenerated, he is in combat against the evils and falsities with himself . . .

8893. Before man is regenerated, he is in a state of in tranquillity and unrest, for at that time his natural life fights with his spiritual life . . . hence at that time the Lord has labour, for He fights for the man against the Hells which attack him; but as soon as the good of love has been implanted, the combat ceases and rest comes, for he is then introduced into Heaven . . .

8924. Temptations are combats with falsities and evils: when man conquers these he is confirmed, for he fights from truths and for truths against falsity and evil. That he fights from truths and for truths, the man does not feel at the time, because the truths are in his interiors . . . but that it is from and for them, is evident from the fact that there is combat, and afterwards victory, which are impossible without collisions together of opposites . . .

—³. Man, however, does not fight, but the Lord for man, and, in fact, against the Hells, which are then endeavouring to invade and subjugate the man. Refs.

8959. Temptations are spiritual combats in man, for they are combats between the evil which is in him from Hell, and the good which is in him from the Lord.

8962. These combats are effected through the truths of faith which are from the Word; from these man must fight against evils and falsities, for if he fights from anything else, he does not conquer, because the Lord is not in anything else.

8963. As the combat is effected through the truths of faith which are from the Word, man is not admitted into combat until he is in the Knowledges of truth and good, and has thence acquired some spiritual life; wherefore these combats do not take place with man until he is of mature age.

8964. He who has not the truths of faith from the Word through which to fight . . . is not admitted into any combat, for he would yield; and if man yields, his state after temptation becomes worse than his state before it, because then evil has acquired power over good, and falsity over truth.

8969. In temptations, man ought to fight against evils and falsities as from himself, but still believe that he does so from the Lord . . . If, after the temptation, the man does not believe that the Lord alone has fought for him . . . he has undergone only an external temptation . . .

8975. 'Six years shall he serve'=a state of labour, and of some combat, and thence of confirmation of truth. 'Six years'=a state of labour and combat.

— It is said of some combat, because they who are in the truth of faith and not in the corresponding good of life, are not admitted into any grievous combat . . . for they would yield. Ex.

8978. A state of truth without delight also after combat. Sig.

8980. A state of truth conjoined with delight also after combat. Sig.

8981. Good adjoined to truth by the Spiritual while in combat, (and not after combat). Sig.

—². With those who are in the externals of the Church from infancy, spiritual good cannot be conjoined, but only adjoined so long as they are in combat; and after the combat it recedes. Ex.

—⁴. They admit spiritual good only into the Intellectual of the mind, that is, into the thought, while these evil loves are slumbering, which takes place when they are in a state of sickness, of misfortune; or in anxiety; thus in labour, and in some combat.

8984. The state after combat, which is only one of truth confirmed and implanted. Sig.

9278. 'Six days shalt thou do thy works'=a state of labour and combat, while in external delights which are to be conjoined with internal ones. The six days which precede the seventh=a state of labour and combat. (Refs.) The labour and combat which then exist are signified by 'the works' which are to be done on those days.

—³. While man is in externals, he is in labour and combat, for he is in the life which savours of the world, into which the Hells flow from all sides, and are continually endeavouring to subjugate the things which are of Heaven with man ; but the Lord continually protects and delivers ; hence come the labour and combat which are signified by the six days of the week in which works are to be done. But when man is in internals, then, being in Heaven with the Lord, labour and combat cease, and he is in the quiet of peace, in which also conjunction is effected : these are the things which are signified by the seventh day.

9330². They who are in falsities from evil, in the other life first fight against those who are in truths from good : the reason they are permitted to fight is . . . that those who are in truths from good are thereby confirmed in truths against falsities ; and that those who are in falsities from evil are confirmed in falsities, and thus devastate themselves . . .

9338³. 'To overcome'=to fight from good and truth ; for evil is overcome through good, and falsity through truth.

9715. By the Lord's merit and righteousness is meant that He fought alone with all the Hells, and subjugated them . . .

—². Through continual combats with the Hells, the Lord also glorified His Human . . . for as man is regenerated through combats, which are temptations, so the Lord was glorified through combats which were temptations . . .

—³. His combats with the Hells are described by 'His garments being sprinkled ;' by being 'red as to His garments ;' and by 'His garments being as of Him that treadeth in the winepress ;' and by 'the days of vengeance' (Is. lxi. 3). L. 14.

—⁷. For the Lord fought and conquered in the world from Divine love ; and from Divine power in the Human thence acquired He afterwards alone fights and conquers for Heaven and the Church, thus for the universal human race to eternity . . .

—⁸. On the Lord's combats or temptations while He was in the world. Refs.

— That the Lord alone fights for the human race against the Hells. Refs.

9780⁶. In the universal sense, by Jehovah going forth and fighting against the nations, and His feet standing upon the Mount of Olives which is before the faces of Jerusalem (Zech. xiv. 3, 4), is meant that the Lord would fight against the Hells from Divine love . . . 10261⁶.

9809³. This passage (Ps. ex. 1-7) contains arcana concerning the Lord's combats while He was in the world . . . 'Sit Thou at My right hand'=the omnipotence of Divine good through Divine truth, which the Lord then was, and from which He fought and conquered . . . 'Thy people is one of promptitudes in the day of Thy bravery'=the Divine truths then fighting. . . 'Melchizedek' means 'the King of righteousness,' thus=Jehovah made righteousness through combats and victories . . . 'The day of anger,' was when He fought against evils, and destroyed them.

9937². The Lord 'bears iniquities' when He fights for man against the Hells ; for man cannot fight against them from himself ; but this the Lord alone does, even continually for every man, but with a difference according to the reception of Divine good and Divine truth.

2 Y

When the Lord was in the world, He fought against all the Hells, and completely subjugated them ; hence, too, He became righteousness ; thus did He redeem from damnation those who receive Divine good and truth from Him . . .

9978. They who place merit in works cannot fight against the evils which are from the Hells, for this no one can do from himself ; but they who do not place merit in works, for them the Lord fights and conquers.

9992². The reason 'heaven'=falsity from evil, is that that falsity defiles good, and also truth ; and also because it excites combat . . .

10178. The reason why 'shittim wood' also = love, is that when the Lord was in the world He fought from Divine love against all the Hells, and subjugated them. Refs.

10225⁹. With those who are in a state of childhood and youth, truths and goods are not so ordered as to enable them to go forth into the army and into warfare ; for they do not as yet discriminate and form conclusions from themselves ; thus they cannot as yet disperse anything false and evil through the Rational ; and they who cannot do this are not let into combats ; wherefore man is not admitted into temptations, which are spiritual combats against falsities and evils, until he is in a state of intelligence, that is, capable of exercising his own judgment. Sig. and Refs.

—¹⁰. 'To go forth into warfare' (Num. xxvi. 2)=to go forth into combats against the falsities and evils which are from Hell.

10367⁶. While man is in the first state, that is, while he is being led to good through truths, he is in combats against the evils and falsities which are with him ; for through combats, which are temptations, evils and their falsities are dispersed and separated . . . Then man has rest, and the Lord has rest ; for man does not fight against evils and falsities, but the Lord in him. . .

10456. Suspense of combat between falsity and truth, and no decision. Sig.

10488. Truth fighting against falsity and evil, and conquering, must be from good. Sig. and Ex.

10490⁴. It here treats of the spiritual combats, which are temptations, which those who are to be regenerated will undergo ; thus of the discordances in man between the falsities and evils which are with him from Hell, and the goods and truths which are with him from the Lord ; and as these combats are here described, it is said, 'he who doth not take up his cross, and follow after Me, is not worthy of Me.' —⁷.

10659³. For from the Human He could fight against the Hells ; but not from the Divine without the Human.

10685. The reason the internal is opened and is given through temptations, is that when man is in temptations, which are combats against evils and falsities, the Lord flows in from within, and fights for him ; which, also, man may know from this ; that when he is in temptations, he inwardly resists . . .

H. 575. 'The gnashing of teeth'=the continual disputing and combat of falsities with each other, thus of those who are in falsities . . . For everyone fights for his own falsity.

N. 198. Spiritual combats are especially effected through the truths of faith.

— Truth is the first of combat.

— The men of the Spiritual Church are tempted as to truths of faith, wherefore with them there is combat through truths; but the men of the Celestial Church are tempted as to goods of love, wherefore with them there is combat through goods. Refs.

— They who are of the Spiritual Church, for the most part do not fight from genuine truths, but from those which they believe to be truths from the doctrine of their Church.

200. The Lord fights for man in temptations. (Refs. to passages on this subject.)

— 2. Temptations . . . do no good, if man does not believe that the Lord has fought and conquered for him.

— They who place merit in works cannot fight against evils, because they fight from proprium, and do not permit the Lord to fight for them.

L. 3^d. The Lord came into the world in order to effect a last judgment, and thereby subjugate the then dominant Hells; which was effected through combats, or through temptations admitted into His human from the mother . . .

12. The passion of the cross was the last combat, through which He fully conquered the Hells, and fully glorified His Human. Gen. art. 14, III.

18². The Lord alone fought and conquered the Hells; and He alone also afterwards fights for man and conquers the Hells for him.

S. 12. By 'the bow' of him who sat on the white horse, is signified the doctrine of charity and faith fighting against falsities.

49. The power of Divine truth is especially exercised against falsities and evils, thus against the Hells; the combat is to be waged against these through truths from the sense of the letter of the Word.

103. By the Wars of Jehovah in that ancient Word, as in ours, are meant and described the combats of the Lord with Hell . . . The same combats are meant and described in many places in the historicals of our Word; as in the wars of Joshua with the nations of Canaan, and in the wars of the judges and kings of Israel.

Life 63^e. After some combat against these evils, they do not will them, thus they do not lust to do them . . .

66^e. No one can shun evils as sins, unless he acknowledges the Lord, and approaches Him, and unless He fights against evils, and thus removes concupiscences.

92. No one can shun evils as sins, even to being interiorly averse to them, except through combats against them. Gen. art.

94. Everyone fights who believes that there are a Heaven and a Hell, and that Heaven is eternal happiness, and Hell eternal unhappiness, and who believes that those who do evils go to Hell, and that those who do goods go to Heaven; and he who fights, acts from what is interior, and against the concupiscence itself which constitutes the root of the evil; for he who fights against anything does not will it, and to feel concupiscence is to will. Hence it is evident, that the root of evil is not removed, except through combat.

96. The man who fights against evils, cannot but fight as from himself, for he who does not fight as of himself does not fight at all, but stands like an automaton . . . But it is to be carefully remembered, that the Lord alone fights in man against evils, and that it only appears to man as if he fights from himself; and that the Lord wills that it should so appear to man, for without that appearance there would be no combat, thus no reformation.

97. This combat is not grievous, except with those who have loosened all the reins to their concupiscences, and have indulged them of set purpose; and also with those who in stubbornness have repudiated the holy things of the Word and of the Church: but with others it is not grievous; let them resist evils in intention only once a week, or twice a month, and they will perceive a change.

98. The Christian Church is called the Church militant, and it cannot be called militant except against the devil, thus against the evils which are from Hell. The temptation which the man of the Church undergoes, is this combat.

99. Concerning combats against evils, which are temptations, it treats in many places in the Word. III.

101. Man ought to shun evils as sins, and fight against them, as of himself. Gen. art. T. 330^e.

P. 41. This happiness rarely shows itself in the world . . . except by a certain quiet and peace of mind, chiefly following combats against evils.

145². As the internal and the external of the mind are so distinct, the internal may even fight with the external, and through combat force it to consent. Combat exists when man thinks that evils are sins, and therefore resolves to desist from them; for when he desists, the door is opened, and the concupiscences of evil which beset the internal of thought are cast out by the Lord . . . But as the delights of the concupiscences of evil, which beset the external of thought, cannot be cast out at the same time, combat takes place between the internal and the external of thought . . . From this contrariety there arises combat, which, if it becomes severe, is called temptation . . . It is evident that this is not contrary to rationality and freedom, but according to them, for rationality makes that combat, and freedom carries it on . . .

146. Take a thief for example . . . When he desists, there arises a combat of the internal man with the external; the internal man is in the affection of sincerity, but the external is in the delight of defrauding; which delight, being entirely opposite to the delight of sincerity, does not recede unless it is compelled, nor is it compelled except through combat; and then, when the victory has been gained, the external man comes into the delight of the love of what is sincere . . . It is the same with other sins . . . But the most difficult combat of all is with the love of dominion from self-love; he who subjugates this, easily subjugates all other evil loves, because it is the head of them.

147². This is what appears to man as combat; and, with those who have indulged much in the delights of evil, as temptation; for there comes suffering to the mind when the order of its thoughts is inverted. Now as there is combat against those things which are in the man himself, and which he feels as his own, and as no one can fight against himself except from a more interior self, and also from freedom there, it follows that the internal man then fights against the external, and that it does so from freedom . . .

284. While man is being reformed, good and evil are set at each other, and then there comes forth a conflict and combat, which, if grievous, is called temptation, but if not grievous, it takes place as wine or strong drink ferments . . .

R. 88. 'To him that overcometh'=him who fights against evils and falsities, and is reformed. 146.

99. Hence come interior combat and anxiety . . .

185. 'Because thou hast kept the word of My endurance'=because they have fought against evils, and have then rejected falsities.

— . Spiritual combat, which is temptation, is called 'the word of the Lord's endurance,' or 'patience,' because the Lord fights for man in temptations, and fights through the truths of His Word.

299. 'He who sat on him had a bow'=that they have the doctrine of truth and good from the Word, from which they have fought against the falsities and evils which are from Hell, thus against Hell.

300. 'A crown was given to him'=a badge of combat. The reason a crown is a badge of combat, is that in ancient times kings wore crowns in battle. Ill.

379. All who in the world have fought against evils, and have believed in the Lord, after their departure out of the world, are taught by the Lord, and are withdrawn by truths from the falsities of their religion, and are thus reformed . . .

385. 'God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes'=that they shall no longer be in combats against evils and falsities . . .

436. The argumentations from fallacies through which they fight and prevail. Sig.

548. 'There was war in heaven, Michael and his Angels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels' (Rev.xii.7)=the falsities of the former Church fighting against the truths of the New Church.

581. 'Who is like unto the beast? who can fight with him?' (Rev.xiii.4)=the excellence of that doctrine above all others, because it can be contradicted by no one.

743. 'These shall fight with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them' (Rev.xvii.14)=the Lord's combat with them concerning the acknowledgment of His Divine Human . . . Their combat with the Lord, and that of the Lord with them, does not mean such a combat as there is from the evil and with the evil, but such as there is from those and with those who are not as yet in truths concerning the Lord.

821. 'In righteousness He doth judge, and fight' (Rev. xix.11)=that the Lord separates the good from the evil. —^e.

839³. Their appearing to hold back their horses, was because they feared combats . . .

M. 415. The cause of this spiritual combat was . . .

T. 68². Unless man on his side fights with the evil in himself (for this too is a law of order), he must sink down into Hell . . .

116. The Lord while in the world fighting against the Hells. Ill.

123⁴. The combat of the Lord with Hell may be compared to . . .

124². The combat of the Lord with the Hells was not an oral combat . . . such a combat effects nothing at all there; but it was a spiritual combat, which is that of Divine truth from Divine good, which was the Lord's vitality itself; the influx of this, by means of the sight, no one in the Hells can resist . . .

302. By the six days of labour (in the third commandment), is signified combat against the flesh and its concupiscences, and at the same time against the evils and falsities which are with one's self from Hell . .

596. When this takes place, there arises a combat between the internal and the external man, and then whichever conquers has dominion over the other. Gen.art.

— . Good cannot fight from itself, but it fights through truths; nor evil from itself, but through its falsities; as neither can the will fight from itself, but through the understanding.

—². Man does not feel this combat otherwise than in himself, and as pangs of conscience; nevertheless, it is the Lord and the devil, that is, Hell, which fight in man, and fight concerning dominion over man, or who shall possess him . . .

—³. Yet, although this combat takes place in the Spiritual World, still it is in man between the truths of good and the falsities of evil which are in him, wherefore man ought to fight entirely as of himself . . .

D. 3620. How great a cupidity some Spirits enjoy from combats.

4377. On a tranquil combat of the virgin sex against evils.

E. 131². Falsities cannot be cast out except through combats by these truths.

356². No one can fight against evils and falsities, and disperse them, without doctrine from the Word.

357. See Bow at this ref.

447⁴. Combat through truths in the natural man, which are from the Spiritual and its influx and conjunction. Tr.

504³¹. Before the Lord came into the world, there were in the Church mere falsities and evils, thus there was no combat between them and goods and truths; but after truths and goods had been opened by the Lord, then first combats could take place; and without combats between these things there is no reformation. Sig.

556³. The Angels do not fight with the evil . . . but permit them to do it, because they are protected by the Lord. Sig.

558². Spiritual combats, which are for truths against falsities, are effected from the Word, and are confirmed through a series of arguments and conclusions . . .

[E.] 710²⁰. The signification of 'Jacob fighting powerfully with God' (Hos.xii.3).

734¹⁴. Hence the Church is called militant . . .

735. 'Michael and his Angels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels'=a combat between those who are for the life of love and charity, and for the Divine of the Lord in His Human, against those who are for faith alone, and who are against the Divine of the Lord in His Human.

938^e. But still there exists combat, because the evils which are of man's life are stirred up by the evil ones who constantly rise up from Hell, and then man ought to fight against them, and indeed as of himself; if he does not do so as of himself, the evils are not separated.

973^e. In the same proportion the Lord removes things insincere and unjust, as to the very intentions and will, where their roots are, and always with less resistance and combat, thus with more easy work, than at the beginning.

C. 180. The Lord with man fights with the devil, and if the man also fights as from himself, he conquers.

Combine. Combinere.

A. 9639. 'Combined each to the other' (Ex.xxvi.17)=thence the conjunction of the Lord with those who are in that Heaven. 'To be combined,' when said of the power which is signified by the hands,=conjunction through truth from good . . . It is this conjunction which is signified by the combination of the hands of every board (of the tabernacle) the one with the other.

Come. Recidere.

T. 50^e. It comes to the same thing.

Come. Venire.

See ADVENT.

A. 408^e. This was the reason why the Lord did not come into the world until the Jewish Church acknowledged and believed nothing.

1438. 'They came into the Land of Canaan' (Gen.xii.5)=that He arrived at the celestial things of love.

1853. 'To come to his fathers' (Gen.xv.15)=to pass from the life of the body into the life of the spirit.

2513. 'God came' (Gen.xx.3)=perception; for perception is nothing but the Divine coming or influx into the intellectual faculty.

3016. 'To come to days' (Gen.xxiv.1)=when the state was at hand.

3850. 'He came to Rachel' (Gen.xxix.30)=conjunction with the affection of internal truth. 'To come to'=to be conjoined.

3914. 'To come' to any woman, or to enter, when what is matrimonial is meant,=conjunction. 3918. 4870.

4247. 'To come to meet'=to flow in.

4443. 'To come from the field' (Gen.xxxiv.7)=consultation from their religion.

4446. He cannot come into Heaven . . .

4612. 'Jacob came to Isaac his father' (Gen.xxxv.27)

=the Divine Rational with which it was conjoined. . . The conjunction is signified by his coming to him.

4740. 'As Joseph came to his brethren' (Gen.xxxvii.23)=when it had been predicated of Him. . . When this is said to 'come' to them, it denotes that it is predicated to them.

5015. 'To come,' here, (Gen.xxxix.14)=to will, for he who comes with a purpose, wills.

5249. 'He came to Pharaoh' (Gen.xli.14)=communication with the new Natural. 'To come'=communication, here, through influx.

5275. 'Lo, seven years come' (ver.29)=a state of Providence. 'To come'=what is of Providence . . .

5433. 'To come to see' (Gen.xlii.9)=to desire to know that it is so. 5439.

5505. 'They came' (ver.29)=what is successive of reformation.

5674. 'Joseph came home' (Gen.xliii.26)=the presence of the internal.

5934. 'Joseph's brethren have come' (Gen.xlv.16)=the presence of the truths of the Church in the Natural. 'To have come=presence.

5941. 'To come' (ver. 19)=to approach.

6046. 'They have caused to come' (Gen.xlvi.32)=to be present.

6063. 'To come' to anyone=presence. 6089. 6224. 8939. 9329.

6077. 'To come to sojourn' (Gen.xlvii.4)=to seek life.

6115. 'To cause to come' (ver.14)=to refer to, and introduce.

6117. 'All Egypt came to Joseph' (ver.15)=application to the internal. 'To come to him'=to be applied.

6638^e. The sons of Israel coming into Egypt (Ex.i.1)=truths initiated into scientifics. 6639.

6782. 'They came to Renew their father' (Ex.ii.18)=conjunction with the good itself of the Church. 'To come' to anyone=to be conjoined. 6783. 8657.

7167. 'To come to speak' (Ex.v.23)=to bring a command.

7317². When such are newly come into the other life . . .

7498. 'Come to Pharaoh' (Ex.ix.1)=the appearance of truth from the Divine with those who infest. . . 'To come,' or enter into anyone, = presence or appearance. Ex.

8185. 'To come,' or enter in through the midst, (Ex.xiv.16)=to pass across.

8187. 'They will come after them' (ver.17)=the effort to do violence through the influx of falsity from evil. 8209. 8231.

8398. 'To come' (Ex.xvi.1)=a stage of what is successive.

8692. The people coming to Moses to inquire of God (ver.15)=to consult as to what the Divine dictates. 8694.

9193². 'To come to them' (John xiv.18)=to lead into good. See 10153².

9256⁷. They 'come' to the Lord when they acknowledge Him as their God.

9382. 'To come,' when predicated of the Lord as to the Word, = enlightenment, for when the Lord comes, or is present in the Word, there is enlightenment.

9457^e. Then the Lord came into the world . . .

10240^e. 'To come, and go away' (John iii.8) = the state of a thing from beginning to end.

H. 51. Hence, when anyone is raised into any Society of Heaven, it is said that he comes into Heaven.

54. 'To come into Heaven is not merely to be raised among the Angels . . .

J. 74. Things to come they know not . . .

R. 13. 'He who is, Who was, and Who is to come' (Rev. i.4) = the Lord, Who is infinite and eternal, and Jehovah. E.23. 42.

24. 'He cometh with the clouds of heaven' (ver.7) = that the Lord will reveal Himself in the sense of the letter of the Word. E.36.

518. 'To come quickly' (Rev. xi.14) = after this.

831. 'Come' (Rev. xix.17) = a calling.

D. 2390. Hence it is evident that unless the Lord had come into the world at that time . . . the communication of Heaven with men would have been broken, and mankind must have perished.

E. 173. 'Until I come' (Rev. ii.26) = visitation.

354. 'Come and see' = attention and perception. 'To come,' when anything is presented to view, = to attend, for in the spiritual sense to come means to approach with the sight, thus to attend.

386⁷. 'To come to the Lord' (John vi.35) = to do His commandments.

659⁷. After death, everyone comes to his like. Sig.

Come down. See DESCEND.

Come forth. See EXIST.

Come in. See ENTER.

Come to pass. See under MAKE-facere.

Come up. See ASCEND.

Comedy, Comedian. Comœdus.

P. 298^e. Occurs. M.18³. 78⁴. T.381⁴.

T. 148^e. Their comedy is then turned into tragedy.

D. 4315. On comedians in the other life.

Comet. Cometa. T.339.

Comfort. Consolari, Consolatio.

A. 531. 'To comfort us concerning our work' (Gen. v.29). Ex.

699^e. It was granted to comfort them.

1779. The Lord's consolation after the combats of temptations. Sig. 1787. 1801. 1865.

1865². The salvation of the human race was the Lord's only comfort . . .

2692. Comfort. Sig.

— The influx of the Lord into the affection of truth, when it is in the deepest grief on account of deprivation, is comfort.

2702⁴. Afterwards, it treats of comfort, re-creation, and instruction after desolation. 2708³.

2821. Comfort from the Divine itself. Sig.

2822. A perception of comfort in the Divine good of the Rational after temptation. Sig.

—^e. Truth, from which comes combat; good, from which comes comfort.

2841. Consolation of the Lord still greater. Sig.

— 'To cry out of Heaven' = to console.

—^e. No one has any consolation except from those things which are of his love.

3212. 'Isaac was comforted after his mother's death' (Gen. xxv.67) = a new state; for 'to receive comfort' = a new state, because the state of comfort is new . . .

3610. 'Esau thy brother is comforting himself for thee, to kill thee' (Gen. xxvii.42) = a disposition to invert the state, and to deprive truth of life from itself. 'To comfort' one's self for anyone = to appease unrest of mind with hope. 4783.

4783. 'To comfort' (Gen. xxxvii.35) = interpretations which are made from the sense of the letter. Ex.

5043. 'To give grace' in temptations, is to comfort and uplift with hope.

5044. Wherefore, when this truth comes into the light, he who is in temptations receives comfort, and is uplifted with hope.

5078⁵. Who does not comfort a sick person, by saying . . .

5628. Comfort after hard things. Sig.

— 'Shaddai' = temptation, and comfort after temptation; here, therefore, comfort after the hard things which had been suffered in Egypt.

6577. 'Joseph comforted them' (Gen. l.21) = hope. 'To comfort' = to calm the unrest of the mind with hope.

6578. 'To comfort' is predicated of the understanding.

6829. Falsities take away the light, and thus the perception of consolation by truths from him who is in temptation; but when the man emerges from temptation . . .

7193. The Lord's temptations as to the human, and the temptations of the faithful, and afterwards consolation. Sig.

8165². (After deliverance from a state of despair in temptations) man for the most part is brought into a bright state of hope, and thence into consolation.

8259. The encampment at Elim = consolation after temptation. 8367, Ex.

8395. Consolation after temptations is signified and described by the manna which they received, and by the quails.

8415. Consolation by the Lord. Sig.

8478². There is no comfort for such . . .

8567^e. After temptations there is consolation. Refs.

R. 264. 'Weep not' = consolation.

T. 512. The contrition which is said . . . to be followed by the consolation of the Gospel, is not repentance. Gen.art.

E. 295⁷. Wherefore it is said, 'to comfort all that mourn' (Is.lxi.2). 612⁶.

326⁵. 'Jehovah shall comfort Zion' (Is.li.3). Ex.

365²⁹. 'The breast of her consolations' (Is.lxvi.11) = the Divine good.

405⁹. That this is for the sake of reformation and regeneration, is signified by, 'Jehovah hath comforted His people' (Is.xlix.13).

507⁴. 'I am He that comforteth you' (Is.li.12). Ex.

695¹⁵. That there no longer remained any spiritual truth, is signified by, 'Rachel weeping for her sons, refuseth to receive comfort upon her sons, because there is not any' (Jer.xxxi.15).

721¹¹. 'To comfort' (Is.li.) = to restore the Church.

727². 'Thy rod and Thy staff shall comfort me' (Ps. xxiii.4) = that Divine spiritual truth together with Divine natural truth will give protection, because they possess power. . . 'To comfort' = to protect.

730²⁷. That Church is meant by 'Zion,' and its establishment and their reformation by 'to comfort' (Is.li).

750¹². That there is not any nourishment of faith and of the understanding, because there are no longer any truths in consequence of evils of life, is signified by, 'Far from me is he that comforteth, who restoreth my soul' (Lam.i.16).

897. Consolation by the Lord after temptations. Sig. —². Something shall now be said about consolations after temptations. . . . When the evils and falsities of man have been removed, the temptations are over, and when they are over there flows in joy through Heaven from the Lord, and fills his natural mind ; it is this joy which is here meant by consolations. All who undergo spiritual temptations receive these consolations. I speak from experience.

1115³. 'Comfort ye My people' (Is.xl.1). Ex.

Comfort. Solatum.

A. 1992⁶. As after temptations there is comfort . . .

2535. Then in the prayer there comes forth something like a revelation, which is manifested in the affection of him who is praying as to hope, comfort, or a certain internal joy.

2561. Thence he would have this comfort. Sig.

2682². They who are being reformed are reduced into ignorance even to despair, and then they have comfort and enlightenment. 2694.

4248⁸. Man cannot undergo temptations before, because he is not as yet in Knowledges by which to defend himself, and to which he may have recourse for comfort.

4572. 'I am God Shaddai' = a state of temptation which is past, and now of Divine comfort.

— The reason that now there is comfort, is that through the temptations the conjunction of good and truth has been effected in the Natural ; the conjunction itself makes the comfort . . . for everyone when he arrives at the end has comfort according to the hard things which he has suffered.

—^e. When the Spirits who are in evils and falsities are conquered by the Spirits who are in goods and truths, and are compelled to recede, the latter have joy through Heaven from the Lord ; this joy is also perceived by man as comfort, as in himself ; but the joy and comfort are not on account of the victory, but on account of the conjunction of good and truth, for all conjunction of good and truth has joy in it . . .

5773⁸. For when temptation is over, the Lord shines on them with comfort.

8567. Wherefore also this despair is presently dissipated through the comforts which are then insinuated by the Lord ; for after all spiritual temptation there is consolation, and as it were what is new of life.

D. 2880. Evil Spirits have also their comfort from hope, namely . . . of doing evil ; then they have comfort, and are at rest.

Comforter. Paracletus.

A. 4673^e. This Divine truth is the Holy Spirit itself which proceeds from the Lord, and is called 'the Comforter,' and the 'Spirit of truth' (John xiv.16,17). 4710^e. 6788, Ill. 8724. 9199³. —⁴, Ill. J.9^e. R.6^e. T.85². 139³. E.16^e. 25². 28³. 183⁹. 635⁴.

9199³. 'To send the Comforter' = to enlighten and instruct in the truths of faith.

R. 490. 'The Comforter' . . . is the Divine proceeding and is the Lord Himself.

T. 139^e. That by 'the Comforter,' or 'Holy Spirit,' is meant the Lord Himself. . . .

E. 476². By 'the Comforter, the Spirit of truth,' is meant the Divine truth proceeding from His glorified Human, as the Lord Himself teaches in John vii.39.

Command. Imperium.

To exercise Command. Imperare.

A. 451. A certain person who . . . there retained his desire to exercise command . . . H.407. D.3872.

1675⁷. Persuasions from self-love are characterized by wanting to exercise command over all things . . .

1802. Angelic subordination is not that of command . . .

1812. To want to be the greatest is to want to command others ; thus he combats for command.

1921. Command. Sig.

1983³. Sirens . . . are chiefly from the female sex, being those who in the bodily life . . . entered into everyone's affections and delights, with the end to exercise command . . . 3750^e.

2140. Because the human race was imbued with such great self-love, and thence with the cupidity of exercising command over others from evil and falsity . . .

2307². One who had died as an infant . . . had the disposition to exercise command over others.

2910². Under these loves hatred against the neighbour hides itself, which is such as to want to exercise command over all . . .

3417⁰. They exercise command there relatively . . .

4227. There are many of both sexes, who have been such in the bodily life, that whenever they could, they sought by art and guile to subjugate under themselves the minds of others with the end of exercising command . . . D.1808, et seq. (Their arts and correspondence.)

—². They were so subtle, that sometimes I did not perceive that they had the intention to exercise command . . . The Lord, under Whom they said they wanted to exercise command, they held cheap.

—³. They who act at the hinder part, want to exercise command.

5648. The command is then transferred from the natural to the spiritual man.

5718. They stir up combats, because they strive to exercise command alone, according to the maxim, divide and command . . .

6312. The Hells of those who have plotted how to exercise command.

6390. The affection of the former love flows in from Hell, which violently exercises command; but the affection of the latter love, from the Lord, Who does not exercise command, but leads.

7293⁵. With their lips they profess goods and truths for the sake of the lust of exercising command.

7363. The inhabitants of Mars are not under sovereignities, but . . . 10160.

7364⁰. The loves of self and of the world are what have caused them from societies to become empires and kingdoms . . .

7396. Empires and kingdoms are represented in Heaven as a man, and the societies in them, as the members of that man, but the king as the head.

7773. But the subordinations in Hell are of command, and thence of ferocity; he who commands rages against those who do not favour his every order.

8118². Then, for the sake of protection, mankind gathered themselves into kingdoms and empires . . . N.81, Refs.

8232⁰. Especially do they do evil to each other from theupidity of exercising command . . .

8743. With the man who is not regenerate, the external or natural man exercises command . . . but with the man who is regenerate, the internal or spiritual man exercises command.

10160⁰. The most ancients did not know what it was to exercise command over others from self-love.

10173. To want to exercise command in marriages destroys genuine love. Ex.

10445². The end in view is what exercises command with man . . .

10791. From the hereditary it is connate with every-one to want to exercise command over others.

10813². (In that sixth Earth) they do not know what it is to exercise command and domineer; they flee at the bare idea of command, or dominion.

H. 218. The governors who are such do not domineer and command, but minister and serve . . .

220. In Hell everyone wants to command others, and to be over them . . .

559. Self-love . . . would not only want to exercise command over the whole world, but also over Heaven, and over the Divine itself . . .

563. They said they had been in stations of great dignity in the world, and that they deserved to be above others and to command them . . .

573. The delight of raging against others, is completely conjoined with the delight of exercising command . . .

C. J. 19⁰. Those who were in the insane love of exercising command over all, appeared fiery.

51. Wives who aspire to command over their husbands dwell at one side of the city . . . De Conj. 59.

—^e. Marriage love is a heavenly love, which is devoid of command.

W. 225. The greatest things, in which there are degrees of both kinds, are . . . every empire, and every kingdom in its complex . . .

R. Pref. They have applied the Revelation to the states of empires . . .

M. 269⁰. There are three universal loves of which every man is moulded from creation: the love of the neighbour . . . the love of the world . . . and the love of self, which also is the love of exercising command over others . . .

D. 2740. On the sphere in the other life of those who are worldly, and desire to command others. 2812. 2820.

4427⁰. The Angels are such that they want to command no one.

4573². Sirens are of two kinds; some have as an end to command man, and every society to which they can come . . . The other kind have not such a burning heat to exercise command . . .

5001. In the other life it cannot but be that some command, and others obey; the former have contracted from the world the life of commanding, and have that sphere . . . While they who have served in the world have contracted the life of obeying; they know no other, and want no other; hence it is necessary to exercise command; but it must be the command of spiritual and celestial love, which thus regard others as equals, love them, and do good to them. The reverse is the case with the command of infernal and diabolical love.

5049. They who have been strongly excited with the heat and lust of exercising command, cannot be ruled through Heaven by the Lord . . .

E. 1016². Hatred especially prevails with those who are in the love of exercising command over all; with others there is enmity.

C. 87. As the human race is distinguished into empires, kingdoms, and republics, everyone is the neighbour according to the good of religion and of manners, and according to the good which he does to his country.

De Conj. 58. That to exercise command in marriages takes away marriage love.

Command. Jubere.

A. 3463³. Because it is so commanded, and not from any affection . . .

5368. The internal man is what ought to command . . .

W. 387². The one would command, and the other hearken . . .

Command. Mandare.

Commandment. Mandatus.

See under COMMAND-præcipere.

A. 14. The Lord has commanded, saying . . .

249^e. The Lord commanded the disciples . . .

1664². 'Who keep the commandments of God' (Rev. xii. 17).

2165⁵. This external symbol was commanded . . .

2180⁵. (Why sacrifices were commanded.)

4788³. They who are in truth are not in the affection of doing what is good because it is good, but because it is so commanded . . . 6396². 8399^e.

5057. Such things would never have been commanded . . . 6914³.

6405³. The Pharisee also went down justified, because he had done works by command.

6903. The Divine of the Lord in the Church, and His command. Sig.

6914^e. Many things which have been commanded by Jehovah, in the internal sense do not signify that they were commanded, but that they were permitted.

7167. When the command from the things of the Divine law appeared to those who are in falsities. Sig.

—. 'To come to speak'=to bring a command, here, to appear; for a command from the Divine is not manifestly brought to those who are in the Hells; but an exhortation through Spirits is made to them; hence it appears to them as a command from the Divine.

7231². Then man wills the truth of faith, and does it, because it is so commanded in the Word. Sig.

7240. The state of the Church when there was command through the law from the Divine to those who are of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom. Sig.

—. 'Jehovah spoke'=command. 7286. 7310.

8690. Obedience is from will, but it is the will of doing the truth from command, and not from affection.

—. ². This good which he then does is truth, because it is only from command . . .

10217. In the Original Language, 'to number' means to command, etc.

10645⁶. 'If ye love Me, keep My commandments; he who hath My precepts, and doeth them, he it is that loveth Me' . . . 'If ye keep My commandments, ye shall abide in My love' . . . The commandments and precepts which are to be kept . . . are taught by the doctrine of charity and faith.

H. 271. That which is committed to life . . .

—. They commit them to life . . . 280².

348. It is afterwards taken from the memory, and committed to life.

517. Knowledge in Heaven are not only committed to memory, but to life.

L. Pref. Now, by command of the Lord . . . the following works are to be published.

W. 237². Love to the Lord is nothing else than committing to life the precepts of the Word . . .

335^e. The Lord is with those who do His commandments, thus uses . . .

R. 443. A command by the Lord out of the Spiritual Heaven to those who were exploring and manifesting. Sig.

—. 'A voice'=a Divine command.

479. A command from Heaven that they should receive this doctrine concerning the Lord. Sig.

565. 'The rest of her seed, who keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ' (Rev. xii. 17)=the novitiates who receive the doctrine of the Lord and of the decalogue.

638. 'To keep the commandments' (Rev. xxiv. 12)=to live according to the precepts which are contained in a summary in the decalogue. 951.

937. Those who are in truths through the Word from Him and do His commandments will be with Him. Sig.

962. By command it behoves me . . .

M. 21. By command he introduced them . . .

B. (Cover). Written by command.

T. 135². By command of the Lord three Angels descended . . .

283². They encamped in order by command . . .

329. Why things which are directly of love and charity have not been commanded . . .

337. Is evident from the commands frequently repeated by Him . . .

—. That faith in Him has been commanded by Him . . .

340. These two generals of the means of salvation are not only prescribed to man in the Word, but are also commanded; and as they are commanded, it follows that . . .

483². It behoves me to adduce some things which command man to do and believe. III.

503⁶. What is more frequently commanded in the Word than . . .

—. How could God prescribe and command such things to man, unless He had given him the capacity?

510^e. He commanded them to preach repentance . . .

530². In six precepts of the decalogue nothing is commanded but that they should not do evils.

726². Because they are commanded in the Word . . .

774. The Lord's Advent is only with those who receive Him; who are they who believe in Him, and do His commandments.

797³. By command of the Lord he was taken out thence . . .

E. 392^e. 'Testimonies' and 'commandments,' in the Word, = the things which teach life.

769. 'Who keep the commandments of God' = with those who live the life of faith. 'To keep the commandments of God' = to live according to the precepts in the Word . . .

Ecc. Hist. S. By command I wrote the same on two copies in Holland.

Command. Præcipere.

Commandment. Præceptum.

See DECALOGUE, and under LAW, and TABLE-tabula.

A. 31³. Everything commanded to that Church was representative of the Lord.

396². They were to distinguish the commandment of love above all the commandments. Sig.

783. 'As God had commanded' (Gen.vii.16)=for the reception of which he was prepared. . . 'To command,' with the Lord, = to prepare and to make.

1038⁵. All things of love, which are the truths of faith, and are called commandments, for all the commandments . . . are founded in one law . . . wherefore the tables on which the ten commandments were written are called the tables of the covenant.

1288². It is evident that in this passage (Ps.cxix.7-16) a distinction is made between 'commandments,' 'judgments,' 'testimonies,' 'precepts-mandata,' 'statutes' . . . all which are of the Word or of doctrine.

1482. 'The princes of Pharaoh'=the primary commandments . . . from the Word.

1489. Although the commandments a child learns are Divine, he has no idea of them other than from such scientifics . . .

1499. 'Pharaoh commanded the men concerning him' (Gen.xii.20)=that scientifics left the Lord.

1798². See CHARITY at this ref.

2089. The primary commandments which are of charity. Sig.

—'. 'Princes'=the primaries of truth, which are commandments. 2761⁵.

2231. '(Abraham) will command his sons' (Gen. xviii.19). Ex.

2235⁵. Thus 'judgments' have almost the same signification as 'commandments.' Ill.

2609. As to all the commandments of life, as all those of the decalogue, and many in the Law and the Prophets, these, being of service for man's very life, are of use in both senses . . . Unless the commandments of the decalogue contained internal things, they would never have been promulgated in so miraculous a manner on mount Sinai, for such things . . . are known to the gentiles . . . But as the commandments were of service for life in both senses, and were like external forms produced from internal ones, which corresponded with each other, they descended from Heaven upon mount Sinai with so great a miracle, being said and heard in Heaven in the internal sense, and being said and heard on earth in the external sense. Examp.

2634. 'As God commanded' (Gen.xxi.4)=according to Divine order . . . The commandments of God, or those things which God has commanded, are each and all things of Divine order, so that Divine order is nothing but a perpetual commandment of God; wherefore, to live according to the commandments of God, and in the commandments of God, is to live according to Divine order, and in Divine order.

3249. Charity towards the neighbour is nothing but a life according to the Lord's commandments.

3310². He who from nature inclines to adulteries, thefts, murder, but learns from the commandments of the decalogue that such things are of Hell, and so abstains from them, in this state is affected by the commandments, and learns from them, because he fears Hell . . . Thus when he does what is good, he does it from the commandments. But when he is in good, he begins to be averse to adulteries, etc. . . and then no longer acts from the commandments, but from good . . . Thus also stands the case with spiritual truths, which are called doctrinals, and are still more interior commandments.

3382. '(Abraham) hath observed My ordinances, My commandments, My statutes, and My laws' (Gen.xxvi.5)=through continual revelations from Himself . . . 'Ordinances'=all things of the Word in general; 'commandments,' its internal things; 'statutes,' its external things; and 'laws,' all things in special. —³, Ill.

—^e. 'Commandments'=the internal things of the Word, such as are those which are of life and doctrine.

3463³. He who acts from this commandment does indeed do good to others, but because it is so commanded, thus not from the affection of the heart, and whenever he does it he acts from himself, and also, in doing what is good, thinks of merit; whereas he who does not act from the commandment, but from charity, acts from the heart, thus from freedom, and whenever he acts begins from the will of good itself, thus from that which is delightful to him . . .

3661. 'To command,' in the historicals of the Word, = to reflect. 3682. 4242.

3690². When he begins to be delighted and affected with the commandments-mandatis-or commandments themselves, and lives according to them, he is then in the life of truth, yet is still remote from Divine doctrinals themselves, for life according to the commandments is only moral life, the commandments of which are known to all who are in human society . . . But he who is being regenerated . . . finds that throughout the Prophets, and especially in the Evangelists, each of those commandments contains more heavenly things within it. Examp.

3773. All doctrine is founded upon these two commandments . . .

3875². 'To cleave to Jehovah'=to observe the commandments, which is of spiritual love, for no one observes the commandments of God from the heart but he who is in the good of charity.

4197⁹. The commandments of the decalogue are therefore called 'the testimony,' because they relate to a covenant, thus to conjunction between the Lord and man, which conjunction cannot take place unless man keeps these commandments not only in the external form, but also in the internal . . .

[A.] 4289³. That nation was only required to keep the statutes and commandments in the external form . . .

4311². Wherefore, there was no communication with the man himself, but with the holiness itself, in which they were when they performed the statutes and commandments . . .

4353³. All Divine truth regards these two commandments . . .

4638¹⁰. The application of the life according to the commandments of faith, is 'to watch.'

— He who is in good, that is, who does according to the commandments, is called 'wise.'

5032³. When those who are in spiritual good lived in the world, they received commandments from doctrine through which they initiated the internal man; but those who are in natural good not spiritual . . . did not receive any commandments from doctrine . . . wherefore there is no plane with them into which Heaven can operate . . .

5432. So that they are no longer scientifics, but precepts of life . . .

5486. 'Joseph commanded' (Gen. xlii. 25) = influx from the Celestial of the Spiritual. 'To command,' when predicated of what is internal relatively to what is external, = influx; the internal commands no otherwise than through influx, and disposition to use. 5732.

5732. The reason 'to command' = influx, is that in Heaven no one is commanded, or commanded-mandatur, but thought is communicated . . . Communication of thought with the desire that it should be done is influx, and on the part of the recipient is perception; wherefore 'to command' also = perception.

5826². The case is the same with the doctrinals of faith from the Word, which are the precepts of the Christian life.

6105. 'As Pharaoh commanded' (Gen. xlvii. 11) = with the consent of the Natural where scientifics are. 'To command' = influx, but here consent, because the Natural, which is represented by Pharaoh, has everything that belongs to it through influx from the internal; wherefore that which the Natural commands does indeed appear to be commanded-mandatum—by it, but it is commanded by the internal; thus is consent . . . So it appears as though man's speech commands, or gives orders—mandet, but it is the thought.

6450. 'Israel commanded them, and said unto them' (Gen. xlix. 29) = insinuation. . . 'To command' = influx, thus insinuation. 6462.

6502. 'Joseph commanded his servants the physicians' (Gen. l. 2) = influx from the internal concerning preservation from the evils which impeded conjunction. 'To command' = to flow in. 6545. 6560.

6561. 'Thy father commanded before he died, saying' (ver. 16) = that it was from the command of the Church. . . 'To command' = influx, here, command, because of the Church, thus from the Divine.

— Thus that nation was in no commandment of the internal Church . . .

6663. Most Spirits who come from the world, and have lived the life of the Lord's commandments, are infested by the evils and falsities with them before they can be raised into Heaven . . .

6678. 'To fear God' = to keep that which the Divine has commanded, for they who fear God keep the commandments; but as all holy fear and consequent obedience and keeping of the commandments are from the Divine . . .

6692. 'Pharaoh commanded all the people' (Ex. i. 22) = general influx into scientifics contrary to the truths of the Church. 'To command' = influx, here, general influx, because from Pharaoh.

7089. Take the ten commandments . . . Thus are these four commandments of the decalogue understood in Heaven . . .

7110. 'Pharaoh commanded that day' (Ex. v. 6) = the cupidity of infesting the truths of the Church while in that state. 'To command' = a command-mandatum, and as in a command of the evil there is the cupidity of doing evil, for this is the reason the command comes from them, by 'he commanded' is also signified cupidity. 7227.

7270. 'Thou shalt speak all that I shall command thee' (Ex. vii. 2) = the reception of Divine influx, and communication. 'To command' = influx, here, the reception of influx. . . 'To command' = the immediate influx of the Divine into the Divine law.

7884. By worship according to the order of Heaven is meant all exercise of good according to the Lord's commandments.

8013². It is said, according to the precepts of faith and of charity, on account of the difference between them; for life before regeneration is according to the precepts of faith, but after regeneration is according to the precepts of charity. Ex.

8257. By the life through which the Lord is chiefly worshipped, is meant a life according to His commandments in the Word, for through these man knows what faith and charity are; this life is the Christian life, and is called spiritual life . . .

8360. The faith of the Lord's commandments. Sig.

— 'The voice of Jehovah' = what is uttered from the Word, thus the commandment of the Lord.

8361. Life according to His commandments; for the Lord is in His commandments when man lives according to them. Sig.

8362. 'If thou wilt hearken to His commandments' (Ex. xv. 26) = obedience and life according to the goods of faith, which are the interiors of the Church. . . 'Commandments' = the internal truths of the Word, thus the truths of faith which are the interiors of the Church; these are called goods of faith, because they are wills.

8363. 'Statutes' and 'commandments' are mentioned in many places in the Word, and when one is mentioned along with the other, 'statute' = what is external of the Church, and 'command,' what is internal of it.

8389. To do repentance, is after one has confessed sins, and from a humble heart supplicated forgiveness of them, to desist from them, and lead a new life according to the injunctions of faith.

8393. Sins are not removed from man except through a life according to the injunctions of faith ; in proportion as he lives according to these, sins are removed . . .

8466. 'This word which Jehovah commanded' (Ex. xvi.16)=a command-mandatum-about it from the Divine . . . 'To command,' when by Jehovah,=a command. 8524. 8534.

8495. Therefore the commandment relating to the Sabbath is the third in the decalogue . . .

8499. 'As Moses commanded' (ver.24)=according to instruction by truth Divine. 'To command'=instruction.

8512. The appearance of the Divine is darkened when man does not live according to the Divine commandments ; for when he lives according to them, he lives according to Divine order, for the Divine commandments are the truths and goods which are from order . . .

8513. 'How long do ye refuse to keep My commandments and My laws ?' (ver.28)=that they were not acting according to Divine order.

8549. Spiritual life is to love God above all things, and the neighbour as ourselves, and this according to the precepts of faith which the Lord has taught in the Word.

8720. 'If God has commanded that thou shalt do this word' (Ex.xviii.23)=that thus it is from the Divine.

8767. 'To keep the covenant'=to live according to the commandments, thus in good ; and to be conjoined with the Lord. Ex.

—^o. Hence he who lives according to the commandments is conjoined with the Lord, for they teach life, and also give life, and thus open the way to Heaven, and the sight to the Lord.

8793. The ten commandments promulgated on mount Sinai are internal truths ; and the laws and statutes which are delivered in the following chapters, are external truths ; by the latter and the former are signified the truths which are to be implanted in good.

8859. The ten commandments of the decalogue are truths Divine which are to be implanted in good with those who are of the Lord's Spiritual Church : the commandments about sacrifices and the altar, which follow in this chapter, are the external truths which are of worship.

8862. The ten commandments, which are called the decalogue, and the subsequent statutes promulgated and ordered-mandatum-from mount Sinai, are such truths as are not only for those on earth, but also for those in the Heavens . . .

—². Everyone may know that these commandments were such things as had been known everywhere . . . 8902¹⁷.

8881. 'And keep My commandments' (Ex.xx.6)=who receive the truths of faith.

8899. The commandments of the decalogue are intended to be rules both for those in the world and for those in Heaven, the sense of the letter for the former,

and the spiritual sense for the latter, and thus both senses for those who while in the world are also in Heaven, that is, for those who are in the good of life according to the truths of doctrine. Ex.

—². Hence this commandment is the fourth in order, and surpasses in holiness those which follow : the commandment about the worship of Jehovah, that is, of the Lord, is the first and second, because it is the most holy ; then follows the commandment about the Sabbath, because . . . After this follows the commandment about honouring parents, because . . .

8914². By truths Divine from good are here meant all the commandments of the decalogue . . .

8932². This commandment follows immediately after the ten commandments, because . . .

8940. For by the ten commandments are signified the sum total of all truths Divine.

—². Stones=truths ; this was the reason the ten commandments, which=Divine truths in the complex, were written on tables of stone.

8972². The laws delivered to the Sons of Israel were distinguished into commandments, judgments, and statutes ; those were called 'commandments' which were of life ; those 'judgments,' which were of the civil state ; and those 'statutes,' which were of worship. 9282. 9417.

9193^o. To acknowledge and worship the Lord is to live according to His commandments, that is, to live the life of faith and charity ; the life of faith is to do the commandments from obedience, and the life of charity is to do the commandments from love.

9290. 'As I have commanded thee' (Ex.xxiii.15)=according to the laws of order. 'To command,' when by the Lord,=the Divine truth proceeding from Him, for this contains and teaches the precepts of life and of worship . . . 10119. 10657.

9307. Obedience to the commandments which are from the Lord. Sig.

9311. Instruction about the precepts of faith, and reception. Sig.

9315. Life according to the Lord's commandments. Sig.

9416². The commandments were not written some on one table and some on the other, but . . .

9417. 'A law and a commandment' (Ex.xxiv.12)=truth in general and in particular . . . 'A command'=truth in particular . . . The several particulars of the law are called 'commandments.'

9525. 'To command,' when by Jehovah to Moses,=those things which are of worship, for all things which Jehovah commanded Moses for Israel concerned worship.

10143⁵. In a word, to do according to the Lord's commandments is truly the worship of Him, yea, it is truly love and truly faith. Ex.

10337. 'They shall make all that I have commanded thee' (Ex.xxxi.6)=the Divine truths which are from the Word, which are to be represented in externals . . . for Divine truths are called 'the Lord's commandments.' 10352.

10578³. He who believes that he loves the Lord, and does not live according to His commandments, is very much mistaken, for to live according to these is to love the Lord; these commandments are truths which are from the Lord, thus in which the Lord is, wherefore in proportion as they are loved, that is, in proportion as one lives according to them from love, the Lord is loved . . . To love the Lord without a life according to His commandments is not to love Him, for there is then not anything with man into which the Lord can flow, and raise him to Himself . . .

[A. 10578]⁴. To live according to the Lord's commandments is to live according to the doctrine of charity and of faith, which is prefixed to each of the chapters in Exodus. Ill.

10612. 'As Jehovah had commanded him' (Ex. xxxiv. 4)=that it was so done because they were urgent . . . It is often said, in connexion with the Israelitish nation, that 'Jehovah commanded,' but by this is not signified that it was well-pleasing, but permission that it should be so done because they were urgent. Examps.

10632². Now, therefore, it treats of the primary commandments, which are by all means to be observed. Enum.

— These commandments, however, are contained in the internal sense.

10637. 'Keep thou that which I command thee this day' (ver. 11)=if they do these primaries which are of Divine truth . . . For the things which Jehovah commands are Divine truths.

10638². By this is signified, that if they would do the primary commandments which are of eternal truth, evils and falsities would be removed; these commandments are what here follow in the internal sense, the chief of which are . . .

10645⁶. That to believe in the Lord, and to love Him, is to do His commandments, the Lord also teaches in John:—'If ye love Me, keep My commandments-mandata: he that hath My commandments, and doeth them, he it is that loveth Me: if anyone shall love Me he will keep My words; and My Father will love him, and We will come to him, and make our abode with him: he who loveth Me not, keepeth not My words' (xiv. 15-24); and again,—'Abide in My love; if ye shall keep My commandments-mandata, ye shall abide in My love: ye are My friends if ye do whatsoever I command you' (xv. 9-14). The doctrine of charity and faith teaches the commandments-mandata—and the commandments which are to be kept, and according to which we are to live.

10699. 'He commanded them all that Jehovah had spoken with him in mount Sinai' (ver. 32)=a command-mandatum—revealed from Heaven about the primary truths which were to be represented. 'To command,' when by Jehovah to Moses, = a command-mandatum.

10704. 'To be commanded' (ver. 34)=to be informed.

10762. The Lord's Church is internal and external; internal with those who do the Lord's commandments from love, for these are they who love the Lord; external with those who do the Lord's commandments from faith, for these are they who believe in the Lord.

H. 86^c. They have formed the idea that the life of Heaven with man is to live according to the Divine commandments.

202². The Word contains all the laws of Divine order, for the laws of Divine order are the injunctions which are therein; in proportion therefore as man knows them and lives according to them the internal is opened to him . . .

319. The precepts of every religion regard worship . . .

420². He receives Him who lives according to the laws of Divine order, which are the precepts of love and faith . . .

531. The laws of spiritual life, the laws of civil life, and the laws of moral life, are delivered in the ten commandments of the decalogue; in the first three, the laws of spiritual life; in the next four, the laws of civil life; and in the last three, the laws of moral life. In the external form a merely natural man lives according to the same commandments as a spiritual man . . .

—³. It is otherwise with those who at heart have acknowledged the Divine . . . and have acted according to the first three commandments of the decalogue equally with all the rest . . .

533. (All that is necessary) is to think that it ought not to be done because it is contrary to the Divine commandments . . .

N. 106⁴. The life of charity is a life according to the Lord's commandments, and to live according to Divine truths is to love the Lord. Refs.

S. 67. (The natural, spiritual, and celestial senses of five of the commandments given.)

Life 38. The Lord's 'commandments,' 'words,' and 'commandments-mandata'=truths.

66. Jesus is said to have 'loved him' because he had kept the commandments from his youth (Mark x); but because three things were lacking, which were . . .

91. The idea that man can be saved without keeping the commandments of the decalogue . . .

104. As there is reciprocity with man from the Lord, the Lord says that man must keep the commandments. Ill.

108. There exist moral men who keep the commandments of the second table . . . But if they . . . shun these evils only because they are evils, and not at the same time because they are sins, they are still merely natural, and with those who are merely natural the root of evil remains implanted . . .

W. 237². The third degree of the mind is opened by the celestial love of use, which is love to the Lord, and love to the Lord is nothing else than committing the precepts of the Word to life, the sum of which is, to shun evils because they are infernal and diabolical, and to do goods because they are heavenly and Divine.

239². I knew a poorly educated man in the world, and after death I saw and spoke with him in Heaven, and I clearly perceived that he spoke as an Angel, and that the things he said were imperceptible to the natural man; the reason was, that in the world he had applied the precepts of the Word to life, and had worshipped the Lord, and therefore was raised by the Lord into the third degree of love and wisdom.

249. There are three kinds of natural men : those who know nothing of the Divine commandments ; those who know there are such commandments, but think nothing of a life according to them ; and those who despise and deny them. Ex.

P. 33^e. 'To have the commandments' (John xiv. 21) = to know ; 'to do the commandments' = to love . . .

253². All can be saved, in every religion, provided they acknowledge God and live according to the commandments which are in the decalogue . . .

254². When a religion has once been implanted in a nation, that nation is led by the Lord according to the injunctions and dogmas of its own religion ; and the Lord has provided that in every religion there are injunctions such as those of the decalogue . . . The nation which holds these injunctions as Divine, and lives according to them from religion, is saved.

262^e. (The reason the Reformers could not regard the Lord's Human as Divine) is that no one can approach the Lord and at heart acknowledge Him as the God of Heaven and earth, but he who lives according to His commandments . . .

296². (If, when a man does evil,) he thinks that it is contrary to the commandments of the decalogue, and holds them to be Divine, he then commits it from purpose, and thereby lets himself deeply down . . .

326^e. These alone love God, for they love the Divine things which are from Him in doing them ; the Divine things which are from God are the commandments of His law ; these are God, because He Himself is His own Divine which proceeds . . .

R. 179. 'Thou hast kept My word' = because they live according to the Lord's injunctions in His Word.

272^e. Wherefore he who lives according to these things because they are Divine truths, or God's commandments, and thence of religion, is saved ; but he who only lives according to them because they are civil and moral truths, is not saved . . .

356². Love towards the neighbour is the love of obeying the Lord's commandments, which are especially those contained in the second table of the decalogue. Enum. and Ex.

366. 'Standing before the throne and before the Lamb' = hearing the Lord and doing what He commands. 369.

461. That the heresy of faith alone induces stupidity, subterfuges, and hardness on hearts, so that they think nothing about the commandments of the decalogue. Sig.

463². (What the solidians really mean when they preach that the commandments are to be kept.)

485, Pref. It treats of . . . those who being interiorly in faith alone are against the two essentials of the New Church, which are that the Lord is the only God of Heaven and earth and that His Human is Divine, and that we are to live according to the commandments of the decalogue. (See ESSENTIAL.)

490². Something shall here be said about conjunction with the Lord through a life according to the commandments of the decalogue . . .

500. Secondly, they have confirmed themselves in the dogma that a life according to the commandments of the decalogue is not a spiritual life, but only a moral and civil life . . . All who have had these dogmas strongly impressed on their minds do not afterwards recede from them. Ex.

502. The infernal loves . . . which exist in the Church . . . where they do not live according to the commandments of the decalogue. Sig.

— Nor is a life according to His commandments possible, unless man is led by Him.

555. Victory through the Divine truth of the Word, and consequently through the acknowledgment . . . that the commandments of the decalogue are precepts of life according to which men ought to live. Sig.

556^e. 'To love the Lord' = to love to do His commandments, for He Himself is His own commandments, for they are from Him, consequently He is in them, thus in the man on whose life they are inscribed, and they are inscribed on man by willing and doing them.

621. That they are conjoined with the Lord through love and faith in him, because they have lived according to His commandments. Sig.

628. These things are said to those who will be of the New Church on earth, because the first of reformation is to live according to the commandments of the decalogue, where are enumerated the evils which are not to be done . . .

656, Pref. From whom are separated those who have . . . lived according to the Lord's commandments. Tr.

662. Confession from charity, thus from a life according to the commandments of the law, which are the decalogue. Sig.

705. The Lord's Advent, and then Heaven for those who look to Him, and persevere in a life according to His commandments, which are the truths of the Word. Sig.

819. That the acknowledgment that the Lord is the God of Heaven and earth, and at the same time a life according to His commandments, are, in the universal sense, the all of the Word and of doctrine from it. Sig.

— His commandments, especially the commandments of the decalogue . . .

851. That salvation and eternal life primarily consist in worshipping the Lord and living according to His commandments in the Word, because through these there is effected conjunction with the Lord, and consociation with the Angels. Sig.

874. That those who had not lived according to the Lord's commandments in the Word . . . were condemned. Sig.

876. A new Heaven . . . where are those who have worshipped the Lord, and lived according to His commandments in the Word, in whom therefore there are charity and faith. Sig.

892. All those who make no account of the commandments of the decalogue. Sig.

903. All things of doctrine from the Word about the Lord and a life according to His commandments. Sig.

—². Love to the Lord is to have faith in the Lord and do His commandments; and to do His commandments is love towards the neighbour, for to do His commandments is to do uses to the neighbour.

[R.] 915. All things of this doctrine from the sense of the letter of the Word in their order with those who approach the Lord immediately, and live according to the commandments of the decalogue by shunning evils as sins, for these, and no others, are in the doctrine of love to God and of love toward the neighbour. Sig.

920³. In the Church those men are heavenly who live righteously according to the commandments because they are Divine laws . . .

925. That no others are received into the New Church . . . but those who believe in the Lord, and live according to His commandments in the Word. Sig.

949. That the Lord will certainly come, and that He Himself is Heaven and the happiness of eternal life to everyone according to faith in Him and a life according to His commandments. Sig.

951. 'Blessed are they that do His commandments-mandata, that their Power may be in the tree of life, and that they may enter by the gates into the city' (Rev. xxii. 14) = that those enjoy eternal happiness who live according to the Lord's commandments for the sake of the end that they may be in the Lord and the Lord in them through love, and in His New Church through Knowledge about Him.

952. That no one is received into the New Jerusalem who makes no account of the commandments of the decalogue, and does not shun the evils mentioned therein as sins. Sig.

M. 129. That the Church is . . . with those who approach the Lord, and live according to His commandments. Gen.art.

336. That all these (delights of marriage love) . . . exist only with those who approach the Lord alone, and live according to His commandments. Gen.art.

340³. This is effected if He is approached, and man lives according to His commandments; the sum of which is to believe in Him and shun evils because they are of and from the devil, and to do goods because they are of and from the Lord . . .

351. These commandments are the civil laws of righteousness in all the kingdoms of the earth . . . They were promulgated from Sinai with a stupendous miracle in order that the same laws might become laws of religion . . . T. 444.

528. He who from purpose or confirmation acts against one commandment, acts against all the rest. Ex. B. 113. T. 523. E. 1028².

B. 111³. That (regeneration) is effected through faith in the Lord, and a life according to His commandments.
— The precepts of regeneration are five. Enum.

T. 151. To believe in the Lord is not only to acknowledge Him, but also to do His commandments; for merely to acknowledge Him is only of the thought from some understanding, but to do His commandments is also of acknowledgment from the will . . . While man only acknowledges from the thought of the understanding, he goes to the Lord from half of the mind only ;

but when he does His commandments, then from the whole ; and this is to believe.

—^e. They who acknowledge the Lord but do not do His commandments, become such satans after death.

287. In the sense of the letter, the decalogue contains the general precepts of doctrine and life ; but in the spiritual and celestial senses, all universally. Gen.art.

291. (General articles on the ten commandments in their order.)

326. These two commandments have regard to all those commandments which precede . . .

329. The ten commandments of the decalogue contain all things which are of love to God, and all things which are of love towards the neighbour. Gen.art.

—^e. 'He that hath My commandments and doeth them, he it is that loveth Me' . . . By 'commandments' here are meant in special the commandments of the decalogue, which are, that evils are not to be done or lusted after ; and that so the love of man to God, and the love of God towards man follow, as good follows after evil has been removed.

330. In proportion as man shuns evils he wills goods . . . This is very manifest from eight commandments of the decalogue, so viewed. Enum. and Ex.

444. Moral life, when it is at the same time spiritual, is the life of charity . . . Let but the six commandments of the second table of the law of the decalogue serve for illustration.

—². He who thinks only from the external man cannot but wonder that the seven commandments of the second table were promulgated by Jehovah on Mount Sinai with so great a miracle, when yet these same commandments, in all kingdoms on earth, and consequently in Egypt, whence the Sons of Israel had lately come, had been the commandments of the law of civil righteousness . . . But the reason they were promulgated by Jehovah, and were moreover written by His finger on tables of stone, was that they might be not only the commandments of civil society, and thus of natural moral life, but also the commandments of heavenly society, and thus of spiritual moral life ; so that to act against them would be not only to act against men, but also against God.

D. 6065. On the ten commandments.

D. Min. 4632. He who has charity keeps all the commandments in the internal sense. Enum.

E. 154. Celestial love comes from the affection of the will of doing the Lord's commandments, and spiritual love from the affection of the understanding of doing the Lord's commandments.

3887. The life of charity is meant by 'walking in the statutes, observing the commandments and doing them' (Lev. xxvi. 3).

392¹³. By 'testimonies' and 'commandments-mandata' are signified the things which teach life ; by 'the law,' and 'the commandments,' those which teach doctrine ; and by 'statutes,' and 'judgments,' those which teach rituals. Ill.

696¹³. 'To be delighted greatly in His commandments (Ps. cxii. 1) = to love them, thus to will and do them.

696¹⁴. 'Commandments' = the laws of internal worship; 'statutes,' the laws of external worship.

902³. Man must keep these commandments from religion, because they have been commanded—mandata sunt—by the Lord; if he keeps them from any other reason whatever . . . he remains natural. Ex.

935². (The meaning of the ten commandments explained seriatim.) 949³, 950³, et seq.

939³. Hence the ten commandments were the first of the Word.

946¹. 'Judgments' = civil laws; 'commandments,' laws of spiritual life; 'statutes,' laws of worship. Ill.

1024². On the commandments of the decalogue in general. 1025². 1026², et seq.

1083². (The three senses of the commandments given).

D. Wis. xi. 15⁴ (Second series). What is spiritual, what is moral, and what is civil in the commandments of the decalogue. Ex.

Commence. See BEGIN.

Comment. Commentatio, Commentum. M. 181.

T. 349. 825.

Commerce. See INTERCOURSE.

Commingle. See MIX.

Commit. Committere.

See under COMMAND—mandare.

A. 2750. When anyone commits adultery on earth Heaven is at once closed to him. See CLOSE at this ref.

H. 384. When man commits adultery from delight Heaven is closed to him . . .

531. He commits it as often as he can . . .

Life 111. Thus he commits them in spirit . . . M. 494⁶.

P. 296⁵. He then commits them of set purpose . . .

Common. Vulgus, Vulgaris.

See also GENERAL.

A. 1878. The Word supposed to be only for the common people.

1931. Spirits perceive man's common thoughts; angelic Spirits, the more interior things . . .

1981. I dreamed a common dream . . .

2116. According to the common opinion . . .

5033. That the Church is only for the common people . . .

5432³. If only they can persuade the common people that they are true . . . 9367.

8944. Which they call bonds for the common people . . . T. 487.

9031. The common people would not have understood the Word . . .

H. 321. They cherish no other idea of Him than as of a common man . . . R. 42.

535². By which they induced the common people to believe that they were Divine holiness in them . . .

J. 56⁴. How the common people can be kept in blind obedience . . .

W. 40. The idea of common men about love and wisdom . . .

R. 834. Both the laity and common people, and the clergy and the learned. Sig.

T. 819². The business there, is to introduce the credulous common people into Heaven . . .

Common good. Commune bonum.

A. 1285³. They have one end, that is, the common good . . .

1316. When the common good of society is the end of all . . . —⁶.

— . Man's proprium . . . turns the common good of society . . . to self . . .

1673⁶. So with those who persuade themselves that their own profit is the common good, and account nothing as the common good but what is also their own . . . They who are of such a character as to regard what is their own as the common good, or to veil it over with the appearance that it is the common good, in the other life act in the same way in relation to the common good there.

2219⁶. Those are in self-love who . . . care nothing whatever about the common good, unless it is for them, and they themselves are as it were it.

2425³. They say that the common good is still more their neighbour . . .

2910². In the beginning every one is affected . . . for the sake of the common good . . .

4190. They think that such things are not only against their religion, but also against the common good . . .

5025². Use and end for the sake of the common good . . .

H. 392⁶. All uses . . . taken together make and perfect the general use, which is the common good.

D. 4433. On the common good.

— . He who is for the common good in the life of the body is also for the common good in the other life; the common good in the other life is the Lord's Kingdom . . .

C. 127. The common good exists from the goods of use performed by individuals, and the goods of use performed by individuals subsist from the common good. Gen. art.

130. The common good consists of the following things. Enum.

134. Ministries, etc. . . are the goods of use which individuals perform, from which the common good exists. Gen. art.

Common people. Plebs, Plebejus.

See under COMMON.

A. 2759. There rose . . . many Spirits from the unlearned common people . . . D. 3531.

4214⁴. Merely for the sake of the common people . . .

5390. There are Spirits who correspond to unclean excretions. . . Many of these were from the lowest of the common people . . .

[A. 5390]^e. Their talk had been like that of the lowest of the common people, but still more filthy . . .

W. 12. The common idea in Christendom about God is as of a Man . . . But they who are more sapient than the common people declare for an invisible God . . .

M. 364. Let us take a common idea, which also is for the common people . . .

T. 159^o. The plebeian herd . . . will . . . accede.

D. 3550. On the lowest of the common people.

Common sense. Sensus Communis.

A. 1385. Hence they have less common sense . . .

2588^o. They are blinded to such a degree that they have no common sense, that is, they are not able to apprehend what good and truth are.

3428^e. The simple . . . have a common sense of the perception of truth, but the former have extinguished that sense . . .

T. 335². They cried . . . He speaks against common sense . . .

463. To deny it would be madness, because against common sense.

D. 3860. On the general natural sense. (See A. 4325-4329.) D. 4519. 4521.

D. Love viii^e. (Common sense appealed to.)

Common soldier. Miles gregarius.

T. 424^e. Like a common soldier under his officer.

C. 166. On charity with a common soldier.

Commonwealth. Respublica.

A. 994². The pleasures of honours and of offices in the commonwealth. 995².

1509. On those who had been . . . useless in the commonwealth.

2417⁷. Charity thus . . . wishes well to others, and to the commonwealth itself . . .

3167^e. Natural good is then all delight and pleasure from the spiritual end of serving the neighbour, still more the commonwealth . . .

Life 53. Society, the commonwealth, and the kingdom would go to ruin without these laws . . .

108. Hurtful to the commonwealth . . .

W. 367^e. It is as in a city, commonwealth, or kingdom . . .

P. 215⁵. After the love of dominion had destroyed this commonwealth (of the most ancient times) . . .

220⁸. Dignities are natural and temporary when a man regards himself in them, and not the commonwealth and uses; for then he cannot but think inwardly that the commonwealth exists for the sake of him, and not he for the sake of the commonwealth . . . But the same dignities are spiritual and eternal when a man regards himself as to person for the sake of the commonwealth and uses.

M. 130². Those things which are of the commonwealth, and are called civil things, have a place below the former ones . . .

130⁴. To shun evils because they are hurtful . . . to the commonwealth . . . To do goods because they are profitable . . . to the commonwealth . . . He shuns the evil of adultery as the pest . . . of the commonwealth . . .

D. 3516. The Dutch pretended that they so act for the sake of their Republic . . .

C. 87. As mankind are distinguished into empires, kingdoms, and republics . . .

128. Wherefore, in a well-constituted commonwealth no one is allowed to be useless . . .

134. Of these four things the commonwealth or society consists. 135.

Commotion. See MOVE.

Communicate. Communicare.

Communication. Communicatio.

See under COMMUNION.

A. 50. The communication of man with the World of Spirits is effected through Spirits, and with Heaven through Angels; without this communication . . . he could not live at all.

315. In the other life there is a communication of all the ideas of thought. 443. 1389. 1673². 2329⁵. 2596. 2748.

549. The angelic state is such that everyone communicates his own blessedness and happiness to another; for in the other life there exists a most exquisite communication and perception of all affections and thoughts, wherefore each communicates his joy to all, and all to each.

— Such is the communication of all with each, and of each with all when one loves another more than himself; but if anyone wills better to self than to another, self-love reigns, which communicates nothing from itself to another, except the idea of self, which is most filthy.

697. Through the two evil Spirits the man has communication with Hell, and through the two Angels, with Heaven; without communication both ways man could not live a moment . . . But the torments of the infernals are not communicated to him . . . 986². 1088^e. 2354³. 2887. 5849.

784. Man no longer had communication with Heaven such as the man of the Celestial Church had. Sig.

— The state of the Most Ancient Church was, that they had internal communication with Heaven, thus through Heaven with the Lord . . . But this new Church . . . could not have internal communication, but external . . .

— All men have communication, even the wicked, through the Angels with them . . . The degrees of the communication are indefinite. The spiritual man can never have such communication as the celestial man . . .

805³. After these times, internal breathing ceased, and with it communication with Heaven, thus celestial perception, and there succeeded external; and as the communication with Heaven had ceased, the men of the Ancient Church could no longer be celestial men . . .

925². Such is the communication (by spheres) in the other life . . .

931. When there is no Church, there no longer exists the communication of man with Heaven ; on the ceasing of which communication every inhabitant perishes. Ex.

1119. This breathing was varied with them according to the state of their love and faith in the Lord, because they had communication with Heaven . . .

1120^e. Internal breathing then ceased, and with it immediate communication with the Angels.

1121. The Angels, with whom they had communication . . .

1388^e. This knowledge with man . . . originates from his communication with the World of Spirits ; this communicative perception derives its beginning from this, that the Lord wills that all good things be communicable.

1390. There is not only a communication there of the affections and thoughts of another, but there is also a communication of his knowledge . . . Some retain it, others do not.

1391. Communications take place both by their speech together, and by ideas and simultaneous representations . . .

1392. Delights and happiness in the other life are also wont to be communicated from one to many by a real transmission . . . which communications take place without diminution with him who communicates. It has been granted me thus through transmissions to communicate delights to others . . . The Lord thus communicates happinesses to the Angels. The communications of happiness are such continual transmissions, but without reflection . . .

1393. Communications also take place in a wonderful way by removals . . . the Angels then flow in and communicate their own happiness.

1399. Every Spirit has communication with the interior and the inmost Heaven, of which he is entirely ignorant, otherwise he could not live . . . Thus communications of his interiors exist in Heaven, as of his exteriors in the World of Spirits ; through the interior communications he is disposed to the use towards which he is borne . . . The case is the same with man, he also communicates through Angels with Heaven . . .

1463. As the men of the Most Ancient Church had communication with the angelic Heaven . . . 444S. 6516².

1638^e. The speech of Spirits, through which man, although not aware of it, communicates with Spirits.

1661³. He does not know . . . that through evil Spirits he communicates with Hell.

1702². Through the interior man the internal man communicates with the external ; without this medium, no communication is at all possible . . . Unless there were a medium through which there is communication, the Celestial could never operate into the Natural, still less into the Corporeal. The interior man is what is called the rational man, which man, being intermediate, communicates with the internal, where there is good and truth itself, and also communicates with the exterior, where there is evil and falsity. Through the communication with the internal, man can think about celestial and spiritual things, or can look upwards ; through the communication with the exterior, man can think about worldly and bodily things, or can look downwards . . .

1732^e. Without the interior man there is no communication between the internal and the external man ; a communication takes place of celestial and of spiritual things ; when there is a communication of celestial things the interior man is called 'Melchizedek,' but when there is a communication of spiritual things he is called 'Abram the Hebrew.'

1786^e. The Lord had immediate communication with Jehovah. This communication is represented by the vision in which Jehovah appeared to Abram. (Gen. xv. i.)

1791. Perception . . . was the continual communication and internal converse with Jehovah, which the Lord alone had.

1850². With them there was only the representative of a Church, because there could not exist immediate communication of the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens with any true Church on earth, wherefore the communication became mediate, through representatives.

1880². When first the interior sight was opened to me . . . Spirits and Angels . . . were affected with a new joy, that thus there would exist a communication of earth with Heaven, and of Heaven with earth.

1990². The communication of the Infinite with finites would never be possible (except through the Divine Human). 2016^e.

2057². Hence it is that the happinesses of all are communicated to each, and of each to all . . . Everyone is a kind of centre of communications, thus of the happiness of all from all . . . and as they who are in that love perceive the highest happiness from the fact that they are able to communicate that which flows into them to others, there takes place a perpetual and eternal communication, by virtue of which the happiness of each one grows in the same proportion as the Lord's Kingdom . . .

—³. Self-love communicates nothing to others . . .

2137. Thence comes the communication of the Divine with the Human, and of the Human with the Divine. Sig.

2179³. As the man of the Most Ancient Church communicated with Spirits and Angels . . .

2187. 'They did eat' (Gen. xviii. 8) = communication thus. 'To eat' = to be communicated. 3734.

2341. Good should have no communication with evil, or truth with falsity. Rep.

2449³. Such is the communication of all ideas of thought and of affections in the other life, that goods are communicated with goods, evils with evils . . .

2572⁴. Between the Infinite and the finite there is no proportion, yet there is communication from the Divine omnipotence . . .

[A.] 2872. Everyone who is in this freedom, from inmost affection communicates his own blessedness and happiness to another, and it is blessedness and happiness to him to be able to communicate it . . . the communication itself is effected by the Lord, through wonderful influxes in an incomprehensible form, which is the form of Heaven.

2895. Through the Word there is a communication of Heaven with earth. 2899, Ex. 6943. 9717, Ex.

2896^e. When the communication with the Angels began to cease . . .

2897. Representatives were granted them . . . in order that they might have communication with Heaven. 2910^s. 3147¹⁰.

3060. 'He said' (Gen.xxiv.12)=communication . . . for from perceiving and willing there is communication.

3061. The communication of His Divine called the Father, with the Divine Human called the Son. Sig.

3293². This good is twofold, interior and exterior, the interior communicates with the interior man, the exterior with the external . . . Without communication both ways man could not live as to reason, nor as to body. It is the interior communication which remains with man after death, and then makes his natural life . . . But it is the exterior communication which man has while he lives in the body; but this ceases through the death of the body.

3457. 'They did eat and drink' (Gen.xxvi.30)=communication. 'To eat'=to be communicated as to those things which are of good, and 'to drink'=to be communicated as to those things which are of truth.

3464². Thus man has communication through doctrinal things with Heaven, but according to the good of his life. Examp.

3480³. With those who are in the life of faith, the communication is effected through the goods with them.

3482^e. Hence it is that the communication with Heaven is now intercepted to such an extent . . .

3542². Hence it is that both influx and communication, and thus conjunction, are signified by this intermediate; (hence) 'to halve to the neck' (Is.xxx.28)=to shut off and intercept the communication and thence the conjunction of higher with lower things.

—⁴. As 'the neck'=this communication and conjunction, 'the bonds of the neck'=interception. III. 3603.

3679⁴. With him whose Rational corresponds to the Natural, the communication is open . . . But with him whose Rational does not correspond to the Natural, the communication is closed . . .

3691³. The communication between these Heavens can exist no otherwise than as the communication of the inmost things of man with his exterior things . . .

3695. 'He put them under his head' (Gen.xxviii.11) is the most general communication with the Divine. 'Under his head or neck'=communication with external things, thus the most general communication. 'The neck'=the communication of interior with exterior things, or what is the same thing, of higher with lower things, and thence conjunction. Hence those things which are under the neck, or pillows, here=the communication of the inmost or of Divine things with the outermost things, which communication also is most general. 4352.

3699. 'A ladder set up on the earth' (ver.12)=the communication of the lowest truth and good thence. 'A ladder'=communication.

3700. 'Its head reaching to heaven'=communication with the Divine.

3701. 'The Angels of God ascending and descending upon it'=infinite and eternal communication and thence conjunction.

3708². When man suffers himself to be illuminated through the Word . . . the internal way is opened, thus is there effected influx and communication through Heaven from the Lord. But when he does not suffer himself to be illuminated through the Word . . . the internal way is closed, and there is not effected influx and communication through Heaven from the Lord . . .

3750. They who above all others believe that they have communication with Heaven . . .

3938². The Lord's being, or Jehovah, could never be communicated to anyone; only to the Lord's Human.

4038². When first born, man is merely corporeal . . . he afterwards becomes natural, and at last rational; hence it is evident that there is a communication of the one with the other; the Corporeal communicates with the Natural through sensuous things. Ex.

—³. These three things are what constitute man; between these three things there are communications; external sensuous things are those through which man's Corporeal communicates with his Natural, and interior sensuous things are those through which man's Natural communicates with his Rational . . .

4047^e. There are intermediate Spirits between the Heavens, through whom there is communication . . .

4067³. Thus in all other things they communicate with Hell . . .

4126. There was no longer any communication. Sig. 4143.

4131. 'Laban said to Jacob' (Gen.xxxi.26)=a state of communication. . . 'To say,' here,=communication. Ex.

4154. Without intermediates there is no communication.

4186. They claim for themselves the goods and truths which belong to the angelic Society, and which they have had through communication.

—². It has been given me to know through much experience how the affections of good and truth are communicated to others. Examp.

4189³. Through the Word they have direct communication with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord; but not the gentiles.

4208³. In order that a representative Church might exist, and thus some communication of the Lord through Heaven with man, they had to be kept especially in the acknowledgment of Jehovah . . . for the representatives with them did not go forth from internal but from external things, and thus communicated themselves, otherwise than in a genuine Church, in which the communication is effected through internal things.

4239. The first communication with celestial good. Sig. 'To send messengers' = to communicate.

4279². The literal sense is such that the interior sense can be communicated to man, and also the internal and the supreme senses, for man communicates with the three Heavens . . .

4280³. Through the knowledge of correspondences communication with Heaven is given to man . . .

4288³. They who were of the representative Church communicated with the three Heavens as to the interior things to which external things served as a plane; but they who were in the representative of a Church did not communicate with the Heavens as to interior things; yet the external things in which they were kept could serve as a plane . . . in order that that there might exist somewhat of communication between Heaven and man through a sort of image of a Church, for without the communication of Heaven with man through somewhat of a Church the human race would perish. 4293⁶. 6304². 7290. 7893. 8588⁵. 10436. 10500, Ex.

4311². Wherefore there was no communication with the man himself, but with the Holy itself in which he was . . . But with these there is a communication of Heaven with themselves . . .

—³. Neither do these have communication with Heaven with themselves, but they who hear the words from their lips . . .

4330⁶. There are spheres of thoughts and affections in the other life, and they are mutually communicated according to presence and approach. Refs.

4403. Societies send Spirits from themselves to others, and through them they perceive the thoughts and affections, and thus communicate. 5856.

4423. Without a Church somewhere in the Earth there is no communication of Heaven with man . . .

4424. Lest through the Knowledges of good and truth they should communicate with Heaven, and through evils and thence falsities they should communicate with Hell, and thus hang between the two . . .

4453. 'To trade' = to acquire knowledges, and also to communicate them.

4464. Through internal things man has communication with Heaven . . . Unless man is in Heaven as to his thoughts and affections, he cannot go there after death, for there is nothing of communication; man procures this communication for himself in the bodily life . . .

4545². The communication of Heaven with man is necessary for the human race to subsist, and this through the Church . . .

4570. Through these things man has communication with worldly and bodily things . . . Thus does the Natural communicate through sensuous things with worldly and bodily things, and through analogical and analytical things with the Rational, thus with those things which are of the Spiritual World . . . There exists also an intermediate which communicates with both . . .

4638⁵. They want good to be communicated to their empty truths, or to their empty faith, by others. Sig. For in the other life all spiritual and celestial things are mutually communicated, but only through good.

—⁶. It cannot be communicated, because the little of truth they have will be taken away. Sig. For as to the communication of good with those who are in truths without good in the other life, the case is this; they as it were carry off good for themselves, and appropriate it, and do not communicate it with others, but defile it, wherefore no communication of good takes place with them.

4797. Every Angel . . . communicates generally and widely with all who are in the same province . . .

4802². They know there that through truths they have communication with some Societies of Heaven . . .

4950. I perceived from their thought communicated to me . . .

5032. The communication of falsity which appeared as truth. Sig. 'To hear the words' = communication, for 'to hear' = to perceive, thus to be communicated . . . The communication of falsity is with natural good not spiritual.

5060. Hence a perceptible communication is given with the Spiritual World . . .

5126³. The communication with the interior man is not as yet open (in infancy) . . . From childhood to adolescence the communication is opened to the interior Natural . . . From adolescence to young manhood the communication between the Natural and the Rational is opened . . .

—⁴. To the same extent he closes the Rational and also the interior Natural, but still of the Divine Providence, so much of communication remains . . .

5127². As with them the communication with the interiors is closed . . .

5133. Communication with the interior Natural. Sig. 'To remember to do to anyone' = to communicate. . . By communication with the interior Natural is meant conjunction through correspondence; the interior Natural is . . . that which communicates immediately with the Rational.

5247⁶. Although the internal sense be not understood, it still affects, because the affection of the Angels is communicated; hence it is evident that the Word has been given to man in order that he may have communication with Heaven . . .

5249. Communication with the new Natural. Sig. 'To come' = communication, here, through influx.

5370. Communication from the remains. Sig. 'To open,' here, = to communicate.

5383⁶. Such is the communication there (of thoughts and affections). Des.

5384. Through this cupidity these Spirits communicate with the Hells, and through the justice of the cause . . . they communicate with Heaven; wherefore they are kept in this province.

5492⁶. Unless this were so there would be no communication of man with the Angels, or of the world with Heaven.

[A.] 5597. In Heaven there is a communication of all thoughts . . .

5658³. The ancients knew this from communication with Spirits and Angels.

5664². The reason he does not perceive it is that his interiors are closed, so that he cannot have perceptible communication with Spirits and Angels.

5719⁶. Such are kept separate from others in their own Hell, and only communicate with those who are like them . . .

5776. Communication with the internal. Sig. 'To enter a house' = communication, because 'a house' = the man himself.

5794. The communication of the external man with the internal through good. Sig. 'To approach to speak with anyone' = communication.

5856^e. Hence it is evident that the Spirits and Angels who are with man are for the sake of communication with Societies in Hell, and with Societies in Heaven.

5880. When the internal is conjoined with the external, or good with truth, then first is effected communication on the part of the internal with the external, but not as yet reciprocal communication; when there is this, there is conjunction. Sig.

5883. Interior communication. Sig. and Ex. 'To approach' = to communicate more nearly.

— . The communication with the natural or external man is interior and exterior . . .

5983. That man has communication with Hell and with Heaven, through two Spirits and through two Angels, is evident from the fact, that in the other life one Society cannot have communication with another Society, or with anyone, except through Spirits who are sent forth by them. These emissary Spirits are called subjects . . . To send out subjects to other Societies, and thus procure communication with themselves, is one of the familiar things of the other life, and has become perfectly well known to me from this, that they have been sent to me thousands of times, and that without them they could know nothing of what was with me, and could communicate nothing to me of what was with them. Hence it may be known, that the Spirits and Genii with a man are nothing but subjects, through whom there is communication with Hell; and that the celestial and spiritual Angels are subjects, through whom there is communication with the Heavens.

5984. When the Spirits who are in the World of Spirits want to have communication with a number of Societies, they are wont to send out subjects, one to each . . .

6027. The communication of the good of the Church with the celestial internal. Sig. . . 'To send before him' = to communicate.

6042. Communication with the Natural where are the scientifics of the Church. Sig. 'To show' = communication.

6057³. Hence it is evident that the intercourse of the soul with the body is properly the communication of the spiritual things of Heaven with the natural things of the World, and that the communication takes place through influx, and is according to the conjunction.

The reason this communication is now unknown, is that everything is attributed to nature . . .

6193. The case with communications in the other life is this . . .

6228. The communication of natural truth with the internal. Sig. 'To say' = perception, and also communication, for what is perceived by another is communicated.

6333⁴. Through the historical things of the Word communication is thus given to children with the Heavens, which communication is grateful, because they are in a state of innocence and charity.

6388². In proportion as they do this, the joy and happiness from Heaven cannot be communicated to them . . .

6476. Whenever I have read the Lord's prayer . . . the ideas were opened, and thus was effected communication with some Societies in Heaven . . .

6478. When an Angel is doing good to anyone, he also communicates to him his own good, joyousness, and bliss . . . When he is in such communication, there flows into him good with joyousness and bliss much more than he gives . . . But as soon as the thought suggests itself that he wants to communicate what is his own in order to obtain that influx . . . the influx is dissipated; and still more if there is any thought about recompense from him to whom he is communicating his good.

6604. The changes of his face came from the Societies with which he had communication, and manifested themselves according to the variations of the communication . . .

6612. They who think exteriorly, that is, in the Sensual, communicate only with the grosser spirits; but they who think interiorly, that is, from the Rational, have communication with the Angels . . .

6655². When the men within the Church make sagacity to consist in cunning, they have communication with the Hells.

6692. Through representatives and significatives in the time of the Ancient Church there was communication with Heaven, which communication was with those who lived in the good of charity, and was opened with a number; but those who did not live in the good of charity . . . sometimes had open communication given them with evil Spirits . . . Hence magic.

6813. There exists such a communication among Spirits, that when they are in a Society, if they are accepted and loved, all things they know are communicated, not through any speech, but through influx.

6880. Hence it is evident, that the Divine being cannot communicate itself to anyone except through the Divine manifesting, that is, the Divine itself cannot do so except through the Divine Human, nor the Divine Human except through the Divine truth, which is the Holy Spirit.

6901. Communication with those who are in falsities, and who have infested. Sig. 'To enter' = communication, for in the spiritual sense to enter is to communicate one's thought to another . . . Thus the communication of such things as are of law from the Divine and thence of intelligence with those who are in falsities and who have infested, is signified.

6914¹. In the other life, to be enriched with truths and goods is effected through the adjunction of Spirits who are in truth and good, for through these the communication is effected. Sig.

9626. The Spirits of Mercury . . . are thus conjoined together into a globe in order that . . . the Knowledges of each may be communicated to all, and the Knowledges of all to each.

6977². Lest he should have communication with any Society of Heaven, everything true and good is taken away from him . . .

7136. 'The directors of the Sons of Israel' (Ex. v. 14)= those who have proximately received and communicated the infestations.

7137. 'The directors'=those who proximately receive and communicate, and who are simple upright Spirits . . . These are injected by the infesters into the Society with which they are preparing a communication for themselves . . . Thus do the Hells have communication on their side, and they who are being infested have communication on theirs.

7250. The Hells (of the planet Venus) do not communicate with those of our earth, because they are of an entirely different genius . . .

7270. The reception of the Divine influx and communication. Sig.

7291. Influx and communication. Sig. . . 'To say'=influx and communication. . . This influx and communication can only be expressed in the historicals of the Word by 'to say' and 'to speak.'

7306. 'To go' or enter 'to Pharaoh'=communication, here, the communication of things which confirm that . . .

7332. The reason they are permitted to falsify truths, is lest through truths which are of faith they should have communication with those who are in Heaven, and through evils which are of life they should have communication with those who are in Hell . . .

7363. Many of them (in Mars) have manifest communication with Angels who are in Heaven.

7502³. The reason they who have been of the Church, and have lived a life of evil, are thus by degrees devastated before they are cast down into Hell, is that they have known the truths of faith, and through them have had communication with Heaven. The heavenly Societies with which they have had communication, and also still have it in the other life, can only be separated from them by degrees . . . 7545³, Ex.

7545. That the communication with those things which are of Heaven might thus be taken away. Sig. and Ex.

7548. That the communication might still remain. Sig.

7560. Through these (remains) there is communication with Heaven; and in proportion as man has communication with Heaven, in the same proportion is he man. There is indeed a communication of the evil, even of those who are in Hell, with Heaven, but not any conjunction through what is good and true, for the moment that good and truth flow down from Heaven . . . they are turned into evil and falsity . . . Such is the communication.

7573. The recession and separation of the communication with those who are in good and truth. Sig.

— It has been said that (such evil men of the Church) have communication with Heaven . . . It is this communication which is taken away when they are being devastated; and when this communication has been taken away, the truths and goods together with the Knowledges thereof are taken away; for whatever Spirits and even Angels know, flows in through Heaven from the Lord, thus through communications. Refs.

8063. The sphere of extension in the Spiritual World is to the Societies which are round about; wherever the sphere extends itself, up to that point there is communication. Refs.

8146². With the state of casting down into Hell, the case is this . . . all the falsities with them are gathered together into one, which is effected through the opening of all the Hells with which they have had communication . . .

8155. Communication around the region of Hell where there are falsities from evils. Sig. 'To pursue'= communication, for in the spiritual sense, to pursue or come into contact with, is influx, through which there is communication; here, of the falsities from evil of those who are signified by the Egyptians with those who are signified by Israel. That there is communication there, is evident from the temptation which for the first time they underwent there. All temptation takes place through influx from the Hells, thus through communication.

8198. 'The latter came not near the former' (Ex. xiv. 20)=no communication. 'To come near'=influx and communication.

8367². When temptation is finished, communication with Heaven is opened, which before had been partially closed. Hence come enlightenment and affection, thus what is pleasant and delightful; for then the Angels, with whom the communication is given, flow in through truth and good. Sig.

8470. Communication with those in the Society, and thence general good. Sig.

—². In a Society in Heaven everyone communicates his own good to all who are in the Society, and all there communicate to each one; hence comes forth the good of all in general, that is, the general good. This good is communicated with the general good of other Societies, and hence comes forth a still more general good, and at last the most general of all. Such is the communication in Heaven, and hence it is that they are one; just as the organs, etc. in man . . . present a one through such communications. Such a communication of goods exists only through love . . .

8593³. This signifies that evil Genii should not communicate at all with those who are of the Spiritual Church, for they communicate with those who are not in truths, but who favour falsities from evil affection.

[A.]879³. Sometimes the communication with some Societies has been taken away. The consequence.

—^e. In the other life everyone comes among those with whom he had communicated during the bodily life . . .

887^o. As to their externals, which are apparently good, (hypocrites) would in some way communicate with Heaven, namely, with those who are in the circuits there . . . and through their internals they would communicate with the Hells . . .

887². Internal things have been revealed to the man of the Christian Church, and therefore communication with Heaven is effected through internal things . . .

89⁸. 'A door'=introduction, and also communication, for one chamber communicates with another through the door.

— . The internal sense is, that those who are solely in truths, and not in the corresponding good, and yet are in the delight of the recollection of spiritual goods, should have some communication and conjunction with spiritual good.

—⁸. To these the door is said to be 'shut,' because they do not communicate with Heaven, that is, through Heaven with the Lord; the communication with Heaven and through Heaven, takes place through the good of charity and of love, but not through truths without good in them. Sig.

9213⁴. 'To lend'=the communication of truth.

—⁵. In the other life, they who enter the house of another, and speak together in one chamber, so communicate their thoughts to all who are there that they have not the least idea but that they have thought them from themselves . . .

927⁶. Such is the communication of Heaven with man, that is, such is the communication of the Lord through Heaven with him . . .

927⁸. The external man communicates with the world, and the internal with Heaven.

9344. No communication with evils and falsities. Sig. 'To make a covenant'=to be conjoined, thus also to be communicated, for those who communicate together are conjoined.

9424². Such communicate with Heaven, thus with the Lord . . .

9604. The constant communication of truth with good, and of good with truth. Sig.

— . The communications must be reciprocal, in order that there may be a marriage conjunction of truth and good. 9621.

9622. The communication of all things of that Heaven with the outermost things there. Sig. . . For by the curtains and their extension was represented Heaven as to communication and influx.

10023. 'To lay the hands on'=to communicate that which is one's own to another. Ex.

10076. What is communicative and receptive (in the Heavens, of the Lord's Divine power). Sig.

10079. What is communicative of the good of love from the Lord. Sig.

10130. 'To touch'=communication, etc.

10287. Through the acknowledgment of the truths of the Church and of the Lord, communication with the Heavens is effected. . .

10409⁶. Their interiors are closed, and thus they have no communication with Heaven; and only their exteriors are open, through which they have communication only with the Hells.

10436². Through the interior things of worship, the man of the Church communicates with the Heavens . . .

—^e. The end of all worship is communication with Heaven, and thereby the conjunction of the Lord with man.

10490. A closing up as to the influx of good and truth . . . lest there be any reception and communication. Sig.

10493. What is communicative and receptive of Divine truth in the Heavens. Sig.

10629. The Church cannot be instituted with any people, unless their interiors are open, through which there is communication with Heaven.

10698. The communication of man with Heaven and the Lord is through what is internal; when this does not exist, that is, when it is closed up, there is communication with Hell. Although the Sons of Israel were such that there could be no communication with Heaven with them through what is internal, still they could represent the things of the Church . . .

10704. Communication with those who are in externals without what is internal. Sig.

— . 'To go out and speak'=communication; for what Moses heard from Jehovah, he communicated to the Sons of Israel when he went out.

H. 2. In Heaven there is a communication of all thoughts . . .

30. Therefore man communicates with the Heavens as to his interiors . . .

49. All the Societies of Heaven communicate with each other, not by open intercourse . . . but they all communicate by an extension of the sphere . . . Hence there is a communication of all things of Heaven with each, and of each with all. (e), Refs. 85^e. 199.

200. On the form of Heaven, according to which there are consociations and communications there. Gen.art.

203³. There was a certain Spirit who believed that he thought from himself, thus without any extension outside of himself, and thence communication with the Societies which were outside of him. In order that he might know he was in falsity, the communication with the nearest Societies was taken away from him, whereby he was not only deprived of thought, but fell down as if dead . . . After a while the communication was restored, and . . . as it was restored he returned into the state of his own thought . . . Other Spirits . . . then confessed that all thought and affection flow in according to the communication . . . thus everything of life does so. P.289.

204. Intelligence and wisdom with everyone are varied according to the communication. Ex. (See SOCIETY at this ref.)

206. Such is the form in each Heaven, according to which the Angels have communication and extension of thoughts and affections . . . But the communication of one Heaven with another is different . . . However, the communication between the Heavens should not be called communication, but influx. 207, Ex.

207. A Society of a higher Heaven has no communication with a Society of a lower one except through correspondences, and communication through correspondences is what is called influx. W. 186. 202².

260². Hence all communication of the intelligence and wisdom of the Angels proceeds according to the form of Heaven.

272^e. Love is spiritual conjunction, therefore it communicates what is its own . . .

294. The nature of the communication of Heaven with good Spirits, and the nature of the communication of Hell with evil Spirits. Ex.

369². For there is a communication of thoughts and affections in the Heavens, and still more of one married partner there with another, because they mutually love each other.

380. The love of dominion in marriage destroys this. . . . Hence there is nothing mutual, consequently no communication of any love and its delight from one to the other; yet this communication and thence conjunction is the interior delight itself which is called bliss in marriage.

399. How great the delight of Heaven is may be evident from this, that it is a delight to all there to communicate their own delights to others . . . For in Heaven there is a communication of all with each, and of each with all. Such a communication flows forth from the two loves of Heaven . . . these loves are communicative of their delights. The reason love to the Lord is such, is that the Lord's love is the love of the communication of all things which are His own with all . . . Similar love is in each of those who love Him . . . Hence there is a mutual communication of the delights of the Angels . . . Whereas if evil loves are communicative it is for the sake of themselves . . . Relatively to others they are not communicative, but destructive . . .

506. For these have communication with the Angels . . .

511. The separation of the good from the evil is effected . . . by their being led about to those Societies with which there had been communication . . . in the first state after death.

552². For in the Spiritual World there is a universal communication of affections and thence of thoughts . . . But it is to be known that communication with others in the Spiritual World takes place according to the turning of the face . . .

588². There are Hells beneath Hells; there are communications of some of them through passages; and there are communications of many through exhalations . . .

601. A whole Society can have communication with another Society, and also with another individual, wherever he is, through a Spirit sent forth . . .

N. 196. These assaults (during spiritual temptation) are effected by . . . an apparent closing up of the interiors of the mind, and thus of communication with Heaven . . .

J. 9⁷. In a word . . . there are communication and conjunction with those there who are in like affections (in both Heaven and Hell).

70. For in the Spiritual World there is a communication of all, and thence a conjunction with those who are like.

C. J. 11. Before the Last Judgment upon them, much of the communication between Heaven and the world, thus between the Lord and the Church, had been intercepted. Gen. art.

28. The Lord does not bring destruction on anyone, but only . . . withdraws His own from communication with the evil . . .

S. 64. When I have read the Word in the sense of its letter, communication has been effected with the Heavens, now with this Society, now with that.

—². There are Spirits below the Heavens who abuse this communication . . .

96^e. Hence it is evident that a false internal or truth falsified takes away the communication with Heaven . . .

W. 13. Therefore, unless there is a just idea of God, there cannot be any communication with the Heavens.

90². In the World man lives so separated that there is not any communication by continuity, that is, as between purer and grosser, but as between prior and posterior, between which no communication is possible except through correspondences.

220². To touch with the hand = to communicate.

295^e. From this it was plain that the Natural and the Spiritual differ according to degrees of altitude, and that they do not communicate with each other except by correspondences. P. 41.

P. 224³. In the Spiritual World there is a communication of affections and thence of thoughts, which is the reason no one can speak otherwise than as he thinks . . .

R. 611. For there is an ineffable delight in the heat and light of Heaven, which is communicated.

—^e. There is a communication of affections in the Spiritual World . . .

842. Those meant by the dragon were withdrawn . . . that for a while there might be no communication with them. Sig. 843.

M. 266³. This love receives its bliss from communication through uses with others . . . But in proportion as we retain uses in ourselves, and do not communicate them, the bliss perishes.

267. This is from the reciprocal communication of affections . . .

294². Bosom delights . . . which you can communicate to your husbands . . .

352. Hence all communication between the Christian and Mohammedan Heavens has been taken away; in like manner between the Heavens of the Gentiles. If there were communication . . .

—^e. This communication exists, but not one of the Heavens in themselves.

[M.] 396³. Communications of love and its delights between married partners are effected through the sense of touch; the reason communications of the mind are thereby effected is that the hands are man's ultimates . . .

T. 209⁴. Hence it was evident to me that there is no communication with Heaven through the Word with those who are in falsities of doctrine . . .

D. 159. On the general force of Spirits communicative with men in general.

359. That in the harmony of many the delights and happiness of all are communicated to each.

395. In the other life the delights of one can be communicated to others not only by speech . . . but delights can affect others by a real transmission into them . . . Hence the delights of earthly marriages, and hence the communications between married partners.

428. These heavenly delights are communicable, and that without any diminution with those who communicate.

969 (Index). They who constitute the province of the renal capsules in fetuses are communications between men and Angels.

983 (Index). On stationary and communicatory Spirits.

984^o. In this way communications are set up with those who are very distant, even in another universe.

987. On the communication of man's ideas with Spirits.

1050. The communication of thoughts among Spirits. Des. 1051.

2376. They often sent their Spirits to me for the sake of communication, otherwise the communication would have been taken away . . . Evil Spirits have their emissaries like centres of communications round about, like spiders in their webs; thus they form for themselves communications.

2379. Not being in order, man cannot be without Spirits adjoined to him, and, through them, without communications with such Societies as agree with his life.

2390. Hence it is evident that unless the Lord had come into the world at that time . . . the communication of Heaven with men would have been broken, and therefore mankind must have perished.

3031. The communication of dispositions . . . in the other life is wonderful, and is instantly recognized. . . The communication and acknowledgment, and consequent association, are situated as are relationships on earth . . . The communications are so exquisite that they cannot be described.

3050. The true speech of Spirits . . . is thought, and indeed communicative . . . In a word, it is a communication of ideas . . . 3082. 3083.

3051. Among themselves, Spirits do not know that . . . they communicate their ideas by such speech.

3083. The communication is effected by the Lord, Who wills that all things good and true should be communicable.

4014^o. Thus is the interior idea of others communicated . . . 4015.

4509. On impediments to communication there.

5534. He who has no spiritual life has no communication with Heaven . . . nor can he be restrained by Heaven, because he is without communication.

5538. They who perceive delight in adulteries have not the slightest communication with Heaven.

5540^o. Hence they are let down into the lower parts towards the north, where there is but little communication with Heaven, but yet there is some communication.

5783. There is a communication of all things in Heaven, as there is a communication in all things there, for when the will acts a communication is effected with each and all things there; in the inmost things by willing, in the outermost by acting . . .

D. Min. 4776. On communication through the thoughts.

—. With Spirits there is a communication of all thoughts; the magic art consists especially in this, that they communicate to others their own wicked and filthy things through the thoughts . . .

E. 195². Through such thought and faith man communicates with the Angels of Heaven, and through communication with Heaven his internal spiritual man is opened.

—³. They who lead a moral life from a merely natural origin have no communication with Heaven.

—⁴. When man has Knowledges from the Word, and applies them to life, he then communicates with Heaven through them, and through the communication becomes spiritual . . .

674³. In the Spiritual World there is a communication of all affections, and sometimes of thoughts, and within each Society there is a general communication, extending from its midst to the boundaries in every direction . . .

675². The truths of doctrine then no longer remain with the evil, because the communication with the good is taken away . . . For in the Spiritual World there is a communication of affections and thence of thoughts, and from this communication, one is held by another . . .

730⁴³. The laying of Aaron's hands on the head of the scape-goat . . . represented communication . . .

D. Love. xii². As there are communication and extension of all thoughts and affections in the Spiritual World, and a communication and extension of the affections of use according to their quality in Heaven . . .

Communion. Communio.

A. 4680³. He is cast out from their communion . . .

4835³. 'To be childless' signified . . . that they were out of the communion.

5859^o. Such is the communion (of wisdom in the heavenly Societies).

7396^o. This communion, or Church, is the Lord's Kingdom on earth conjoined with His Kingdom in the Heavens.

9877^o. Hence all thoughts of faith diffuse themselves into the angelic Societies according to that form, and make a communion.

10723. In the Heavens there is a communion of all goods; the peace, intelligence, wisdom, and happiness of all are communicated to everyone there, and those of each are communicated to all. N.236.

10765. They who are outside the Church, yet acknowledge one God, and live according to their religion in a kind of charity towards the neighbour, are in communion with those who are of the Church. N.244.

H. 73. The reason is that Heaven is a communion, for it communicates all things of its own to each, and each receives all things of his own from that communion.

268. In the Heavens there is a communication of all things; the intelligence and wisdom of one are communicated to another; Heaven is a communion of all goods. Why.

W. 25. It would be the same in the Church scattered all over the world, which is called a communion, because it is as one body under one head. Ex.

431. In Heaven, all who do uses from the affection of use, from the communion in which they are, derive this, that they are wiser and happier than others.

P. 114. Before man approaches the Holy Communion...

— The address before the Holy Communion...
— 127.

325². As many Christians believe that the Church is general, which is also called a communion, it follows that there are most general things of the Church which enter into all religions, and make this communion. These are, the acknowledgment of God, and the good of life.

R. 5. There is such a conjunction of each with all in Heaven, that everyone speaks from the communion, although an Angel is not conscious of it...

8. The communion of those with the Angels of Heaven who live according to the doctrine of the New Jerusalem. Sig.

M. 191². With the latter, the ardour of the body... forcibly draws into communion with it the lower things of the mind; whereas with the former, the mind... gently draws the body into communion with it.

241. Nor can he accost his wife in a communion of breathings.

277². There is a certain communion between married partners which is implanted in both from the first covenant of marriage... as a communion of possessions, in many things a communion of uses, of various necessities of the house, and thence also of thoughts, and sometimes of secrets; there is also a communion of bed, and a communion of the love of little children.

380. They sometimes join in the general confession...

T. 14². Thus is he excluded from communion with the Angels of Heaven... and enters into communion with the satans of Hell...

15. He who in faith acknowledges and in heart worships one God, is in the communion of saints on earth, and in the communion of Angels in the Heavens; they are called communions, and are so, because they are in one God, and one God is in them.

307. In the celestial sense... 'mother'=the communion of saints, by which is meant the Lord's Church scattered through the whole world.

347². Wherefore when man learns truths from the Word, he comes into communion and consociation with the Angels.

416. By the Lord's Kingdom is meant the Church in the whole world, which is called a communion...

530³. As often as a man prepares himself for the communion of the Holy Supper...

607. A regenerate man is in communion with the Angels of Heaven, and an unregenerate one is in communion with the Spirits of Hell. Gen.art.

— The reason every man is in communion, that is, in consociation with Angels of Heaven or Spirits of Hell...

—³. As man continually lives in communion with the natives of the Spiritual World...

608. Man is in communion with Angels from the three Heavens according to his regeneration.

717. They who approach the Holy Communion worthily become His redeemed ones.

D. 1976. On a wicked communion.

2867. On those who hold to the communion of all things, even of wives. 3440. 3450. De Conj. 96.

3766. (The Quakers) have an abominable communion of wives. Des. 3794.

Community. Communitas. See under GENERAL.

Compact. Pactus. A.6804¹⁰. 8767. M.307. T.285.

Companion. Socius.

A. 1322. 'Not to hear the lip of a companion' (Gen. xi.7)=that they are all discordant, or one against another; for it is not to acknowledge what another is saying, and in the internal sense, it is not to acknowledge what another is teaching, or his doctrine.

— As soon as this common tie (among evil Spirits) is dissolved, one rushes on another, and then their delight consists in a companion torturing his companions.

1506. Being forsaken by his companions, the Spirit fell into another state...

2360². When they were called 'companions,' it was not from the good of love, but from the truth of faith. Ill.

—⁵. Hence it is evident that the Jews and Israelites called each other brethren, but their allies companions.

4199. 'Because we shall lie hid a man from his companion' (Gen.xxxi.49)=separation relatively to those things which are of the Church... 'A man from his companion'=those who are within the Church, and those who are without it.

4854. 'He and his companion Hiram the Adullamite' (Gen.xxxviii.12)=that he was still in falsity... When he is called 'his companion,' it is signified that it was adjoined to him.

[D.] 5705.^c 'The men were amazed, everyone to his companion' (Gen. xliii. 33) = a change of everyone's state among themselves.

5717. They said that they live in dark forests, where they dare not do any violence to their companions, for then their companions are allowed to treat them savagely . . .

5764. It was a custom that when one sinned, all his companions were held to be guilty . . . But such a law is derived from Hell, for there all companions conspire together for evil . . .

6765. 'Wherefore smitest thou thy companion?' (Ex. ii. 13) = chiding, because one wanted to destroy the faith of another. . . 'A companion' = one who is in the truth of faith. He is called 'a companion,' and not 'a brother,' although they were both Hebrews, because they were enemies.

8694. 'He comes to me, and I judge between a man and his companion' (Ex. xviii. 16) = that they are then arranged by revealed truth. . . 'To judge between a man and his companion' = arrangement among truths.

8849. He had taken something from his companion . . .

9090. 'When a man's ox shall strike the ox of his companion' (Ex. xxi. 35) = two truths of which the affections are different, and that of one shall injure that of the other. . . 'A man' and 'a companion' = two truths.

9149. 'When a man shall give to his companion silver or vessels to keep' (Ex. xxii. 7) = truths from good and corresponding scientifics in the memory. . . Two truths, as truth and the corresponding scientific, are in man 'a man' and 'a companion.'

10490. 'Slay ye a man his brother, and a man his companion, and a man his neighbour' (Ex. xxxii. 27) = a closing up as to the influx of good and truth, and of things related to them. . . 'Brother' = the good of love and of charity; 'companion' = the truth of that good; and 'neighbour' = that which is conjoined with them, thus what is related.

H. 278². With companions they never act from an evil end . . .

S. 84. 'Companion' is predicated of truth.

R. 32. 'I John who am your brother and companion-consocius' (Rev. i. 9) = those who are in the good of charity, and thence in the truths of faith. Ill. E. 47, Ex. —^c. As charity is that from which faith is derived, the Lord calls none 'companions,' but 'brethren,' or 'the neighbour.'

M. 524⁴. An evil Spirit chooses companions with whom he lives in his own delight.

555⁶. 'A female companion-socia' (Jer. ix. 20) = those who are in the goods of the Church.

746⁶. 'They shall fight a man against his brother, and a man against his companion' (Is. xix. 2). . . By 'brother,' and 'companion' are signified the good from which is truth, and the truth from good; but in the opposite sense, the evil from which is falsity, and the falsity from evil. Ill.

Companion. Sodalis.

Companionship. Sodalitium.

R. 153¹⁰. You see your companions; they all labour . . .

M. 23. After this festive companionship . . .

134⁴. We agree with our companions from the west . . .

T. 110⁷. I asked, whether he, like the others, his companions . . .

137³. At these words, his companions on the left side . . .

380². He brings himself into companionship with the Arians and Socinians . . .

665³. We have heard from some of our brotherhood . . .

797³. Melancthon . . . could not be kept from being alternately let down to his captive companions . . .

Company. See ACCOMPANY, COHORT, also under CONVERSE, and CONGREGATE.

Company. Cætus.

A. 392⁸². If he does not perceive in himself something of affection . . . for what is true and good in company and in life, he may know that he is in the same delight as the infernals . . .

3963². They are outside the Church, although they are within the congregation . . . —^c.

4295. 'God stood in the congregation of God' (Ps. lxxxii. 1).

4574. 'A nation and a company of nations shall be from thee' (Gen. xxxv. 11) = good, and the Divine forms of good. . . 'A company of nations' = the truths which are from good, or what is the same, the forms of good.

—^c. The reason 'a company of nations' = the forms of good, is that 'nations' = goods, and therefore a company or congregation of them is a collection of them, which is nothing else but a form . . . Moreover, in the Word, 'company,' 'congregation,' and 'multitude' are predicated of truths.

6113⁹. A company of such men make the Church in general.

6232. 'I will give thee for a company of peoples' (Gen. xlviii. 4) = indefinite increase. 'A company of peoples' = truths from good to an indefinite number; for 'company' = abundance.

7830. 'Speak to all the congregation of Israel' (Ex. xii. 3) = influx with information of all things which are of the Spiritual Church. . . 'The congregation of Israel' = all truths and goods in the complex; for by 'the congregation of Israel' are meant all the tribes . . . 8006. 8193. 8398. 8403. 8438. 8557.

7483. 'The congregation of the company' (Ex. xii. 6) = the truths of good which are with those of the Spiritual Church; for 'congregation' is predicated of truth, and 'company' of good.

10792. There must be governors who will keep the assemblages of men in order . . .

W. 24. Every man . . . thinks of a company of men as a man . . .

P. 338⁴. No one there can sit anywhere except in his own place . . . It is the same in companies.

M. 267². This is why as soon as he comes into companies he inverts his spirit . . .

461². There are three companies of them . . . These three companies receive enlightenment from the Angels who are directly over them.

665. The Angels arranged them all in four companies . . .

666^e. The four companies formed themselves all into one, but after conversing together about what the Angel had said, they were divided into four different companies . . .

E. 313⁷. 'The congregation of God' (Ps.lxxxii.1)= Heaven.

439⁸. Divine truth from Divine good is signified by, 'the princes of Judah their company' (Ps.lxviii.27).

639³. 'The congregation of God'=the Angels, by whom in the spiritual sense are signified Divine truths.

650⁷. The inheritance of God, by which is meant the Church, is called 'thy wild beast, thy congregation shall dwell therein' (Ps.lxviii.10).

721¹⁰. That the Church is to be established from them is signified by, 'I am bringing them, I will gather them, and a great company shall return thither' (Jer.xxxi.8).

Coro. 8. The company of these men is what is called the Church. In this company or Church are they who live according to the order described above.

Company. Consortium.

A. 315. He then wants to be away from the company of the Angels . . .

784². Man is constantly in the company of Spirits . . . 5036. 5861.

1119. For they breathed with the Angels in whose company they were.

1635. When I have spoken with Spirits in the midst of a company of men . . . 5862^e.

1808. Societies of Angels; companies of evil Spirits.

2303. They perceive bliss from the company of little children . . .

2896. The Most Ancient Church . . . lived in company with the Angels.

3900⁴. They are kept by the Lord in the company of Angels . . .

4657^e. Such cannot be admitted into the company of good Spirits.

5861. If he desires it, he is shown the society of Spirits in whose company he had been (while in this world).

5863^e. Hence it is evident how dangerous it is for man to be in living company with Spirits, unless he is in the good of faith.

8002². Conscience is the plane into which the Angels flow, and through which there is given consort with them.

8694². Their internal man is in company with the Angels.

10420². The man who is in these loves is in company with those who are in Hell. R.937³.

H. 46. When I have been withdrawn from the body, and thus in company with the Angels . . .

115. In the golden age the Angels dwelt with men, and had consort with them as friends with friends.

143². Whenever I have been in company with the Angels . . . 174. 234. 255. 312².

468. Moral truths relate to those things which are of the life of every man in relation to associations and intercourse.

479⁴. That a man's spirit is his own reigning love is manifested in every company in the other life . . .

495. They are led round . . . into various companies . . .

504. The state of the exteriors is such as the man was as to his spirit when in company. ———².

512². In the world there are . . . fellowships . . .

548. After some consort with others, he is associated with those who are in like evil.

W. 404³. Man is in manifest thought when his spirit is thinking in the body, which takes place especially when he is in company with others.

415. It is evident from the double state of the lungs in respiration, that man is able to think in one way . . . in company with others; and to think differently . . . when not in company. . . In companies where he is afraid of losing his character, he can speak . . . like a spiritual, moral, and civil man.

R. 829. As every man is in company with Spirits as to his affections and thence his thoughts; an evil man with Spirits from Hell, and a good man with Angels from Heaven . . .

884². As there are companies there as in the natural world . . .

M. 3². Heavenly joy supposed to consist in glad gatherings with Angels. 5.

5⁴. There are in Heaven most joyous gatherings . . .

44³. These cause the meetings between the sexes . . . to be heavenly sweetness itself.

49^e. Have sought from the Lord a lawful and lovely companionship with one of the sex . . .

51. Married partners there enjoy similar intercourse with each other . . .

227^e. Likenesses and unlikenesses (of character) originate through . . . the company that is kept, etc.

290^e. That such a friendship may exist between old married partners, experience testifies from their . . . intercourse, tranquil, secure, lovely, and full of courtesy.

306. They then put on the state and name of married partners and bed-fellows.

T. 120². That intercourse with the evil there has this effect . . .

280. I once saw . . . so many companies conversing . . .

433. The diversions of charity are dinners, suppers, and social gatherings. Gen.art.

[T.]434. As to social gatherings in the primitive Church, they were among such as called themselves brethren in Christ; they were therefore assemblies of charity, because there was spiritual brotherhood.

449°. No one can explore the interiors of the mind of those with whom he is in company and intercourse. But this is not necessary . . .

475. Man's spirit is constantly in company with its like in the Spiritual World.

476°. As the spirit changes its state . . . it is transferred to places in this or that quarter, and comes into company with those who dwell there.

590. Then he steals away from their company . . .

607°. He then comes into the company of those who are like himself as to the affections of his will . . .

D. 482. Spirits know from various things whether a soul is of such a character as to accord with their company.

484. I have been continually led from one company into another.

1255. That even the evil and unbelieving speak and even believe truths when they are in company with good Spirits.

1256. I was once in the company of the Angels, and I then had their firm faith, which I could not have had when out of the company of the Angels.

1259. He supposed that because he could be in the company of the upright in the world, he could do the same in the other life . . . He was therefore permitted to enter into the company of the good Spirits who are above the forehead . . .

1277. Otherwise he would have been without company . . .

Compare. Aequiparare. J.27.

Compare. Comparare.

Comparison. Comparatio.

Comparative. Comparativus.

See under BRING TOGETHER, and COLLATION.

A. 21. Compared to day . . . Compared to night.

34°. Compared to winter, etc. 37. 39. 108.

195. The most ancients did not compare all things in man to beasts and birds, but they so called them.

1053°. To speak comparatively . . .

1551. The most ancients compared the goods and truths with man to metals . . .

3579°. That which signifies serves also for a comparison.

3901. All the comparisons in the Word are made by means of significatives. 3941°. 4231. 4599°. 5115. 7571. 10445°. E.69.

4366°. Some do not allow any comparison between them . . .

4424. In this passage the Lord did not speak by representatives, but by comparatives.

4434°. (These things are not comparatives, but real correspondences.) 8989°. 10669°.

5201°. This is done comparatively, not significantly as in the Word.

8326°. Man can never arrive at such perfection that he can be compared to the Divine.

H. 119. Hence the Lord as to love is compared to the 'sun.'

W. 205°. May be compared to a column . . .

P. 332°. Make a parallelism, or comparison . . .

333°. This may be illustrated by this comparison . . .

R. 334. The reason it is said that they signify, when yet it is a comparison, is that all the comparisons in the Word are also correspondences. E.376°. 401°. 411°. 539°. 644°.

T. 60. Illustrated by comparisons. 71°. 122. 123°, etc.

131. These comparisons are made for the sake of the simple, who see better by comparisons than by deductions formed analytically from the Word and at the same time from reason.

367°. (These comparisons coincide with correspondences.)

Compass. Ambire, Ambitus.

See EXCOMPASS.

A. 538. Some solicited to get into Heaven who did not know what Heaven is . . .

9276°. Such constitute as it were the circumference, and close the Church.

9730. 'Thou shalt put it under the compass of the altar beneath' (Ex.xxvii.5)=this in ultimates . . . 'The compass,' when predicated of the Sensual,=what is ultimate.

10184. 'Thou shalt make a battlement for thy roof' (Deut.xxii.8). Ex.

H. 263°. When in quest of honour and glory . . . 364. 555. 563. 564. W.396. M.266°.

W. 175. The natural atmospheres . . . are environed by the spiritual ones . . .

256°. The natural degree, which envelopes and surrounds . . .

291°. The sphere of affections and thoughts which encompasses every Angel . . .

299°. This containant we call the atmosphere, which encompasses the Sun . . .

302°. Held in connexion by the environing atmospheres . . .

M. 297. The man ought to solicit the woman to marry him . . .

T. 33°. Then through that Sun He perfected the other circuits . . .

365°. That Sun is the nearest circle encompassing the Lord . . .

405. Such seek dominion in order to be of use . . .

Compass. Cystus nautica. T.620°.

Compass. Pyxis. T.165°. 568°.

Compassion. Miseratio, Commiseratio.

See under MERCY.

A. 904². The Lord has compassion on all . . . He, therefore, who is not in such love as to have compassion upon others . . . cannot be conjoined with the Lord . . .
1093. There is no anger with the Lord, but compassion.

1102^o. When he feels that he pities him who is in distress, and still more him who is in error . . . he may know that he dwells in the tents of Shem . . .

1769⁵. Speaking then from a kind of compassion . . .

1803⁴. Love itself, or mercy itself, and the Lord's compassion towards mankind, are what are signified by 'bowels.'

1949². He who is in truth alone . . . is not compassionate . . .

2129^o. The Lord pities all, especially those who have been in spiritual miseries and temptations.

2235³. 'In mercy and in compassions' (Hos.ii.19).

2250^o. The Lord does not intercede, but He has compassion . . .

2338^o. Man then seems to urge the Lord . . . to have compassion . . .

5008³. If they are in natural good they benefit everyone who excites pity, without distinction, and for the most part the evil rather than the good, because the former from their wickedness know how to excite pity.

5585. 'Ye shall not see my faces'=no compassion.

5691. 'His compassions were moved' (Gen.xliii.30)=mercy from love. . . In the Original Language, 'compassions' are expressed by a word which means the inmost and tenderest love.

6737. 'She had compassion upon him' (Ex.ii.6)=admonition from the Divine. 'To have compassion'=the influx of charity from the Lord; for when from charity one sees another in misery, there arises compassion, and as this is from the Lord, it is an admonition: moreover they who are in perception know that when they feel compassion they are admonished by the Lord to render aid.

6862. 'The cry of the Sons of Israel has come to Me'=compassion for those who are of the Spiritual Church.

8875³. 'The agitation of the bowels' (Is.lxiii.15) is predicated of good; and 'compassions,' of truth.

9182². The Lord's 'mercy' is predicated of those who are in deficiency and yet in desire for good; and His 'compassions,' of those who are in ignorance and yet in desire for truth.

9849. By these expressions are signified compassions, and no compassions.

T. 459⁴. He said, My opinion is that piety inspired with compassion is charity.

E. 365¹². Protection from falsities is meant by, 'Have compassion upon thee' (Num.vi.25).

734¹⁹. 'To have compassion and save them by Jehovah their God' (Hos.i.7)=salvation by the Lord.

Compatible. Consociabilis. T.446.

Compel. Adigere.

A. 1763³. They are compelled to speak by others.

4281^o. They were compelled by external means . . .

Compel. Cogere.

Compulsion. Coactio.

A. 1937. It ought to compel itself to be under its authority. Sig. 'To afflict'=to compel one's self. . . That man ought to compel himself to do what is good, to obey those things which have been commanded by the Lord, and to speak what is true, which is to humble himself beneath the Lord's hands, or to submit himself to the authority of Divine good and truth, involves many arcana . . .

—². There are certain Spirits, who . . . because they had heard that all good is from the Lord . . . had held as a principle that they would not compel themselves . . . and therefore awaited an immediate influx into the endeavour of their will, and did not compel themselves to do anything good . . . But these are as it were without proprium, so as to be of no determination, wherefore they are among the less useful ones, for they suffer themselves to be led equally by the evil and the good, and suffer much from the evil.

—³. But they who have compelled themselves against evil and falsity, although at first they supposed that this was from self or their Own power, but were afterwards enlightened . . . in the other life cannot be led by evil Spirits, but are among the happy. Hence it is evident, that man ought to compel himself to do what is good, and to speak what is true.

— The heavenly proprium of man is formed in the endeavour of his thought, and if he does not obtain it by compelling himself, as it appears, he never can by not compelling himself.

—⁴. In all compulsion to good there is a certain freedom, which is not perceived as such while one is in compulsion, but still is in it. Examp.

—⁵. This is most especially the case in temptations, in which, when a man compels himself against the evil and falsity which is infused and suggested by evil Spirits, there is more freedom than there ever is in any state out of temptations . . .

—⁶. In this freedom, when a man compels himself against evil and falsity, and to do what is good, there is heavenly love . . .

— This proprium, which he thus receives through apparent compulsion in the bodily life, is filled by the Lord in the other life with indefinite delights and happinesses. They are also enlightened by degrees . . . that they had not compelled themselves one whit from themselves, but that every atom of the endeavour of their will had been from the Lord . . .

—⁷. But they who despise and reject all good and truth, and who will believe nothing that is repugnant to their cupidities and reasonings, cannot compel themselves, and thus cannot receive this proprium of conscience, or new Voluntary.

— From the above it is evident, that to compel one's self is not to be compelled, for from being compelled there never comes anything good, as is the case when a man is compelled by another man to do what is good. But the compelling of self is from a certain freedom which is unknown to the man, for there is never any compulsion from the Lord.

1947. In compelling one's self there is freedom, that is, what is spontaneous and voluntary ; by which compelling one's self is distinguished from being compelled.

[A. 1947.] The Lord never compels anyone ; he who is compelled to think what is true, and to do what is good, is not reformed, but then still more thinks what is false, and wills what is evil ; all compulsion is attended with this . . .

—². When a man is being regenerated, he compels himself from the freedom with which he is gifted by the Lord . . .

—⁴. All true internal worship takes place not from compulsion but from freedom . . . Sig.

2842⁹. The internal man is such that he loves to speak and act from freedom, not from compulsion ; for the internal with them compels the external, not contrariwise . . .

2875. Whatever is done under compulsion is not conjoined. Ex.

2880^e. To worship the Lord from compulsion is not to worship Him from one's self, but from an outside force . . . Thus worship from compulsion is no worship.

2881. If man could be reformed by compulsion, there would not be a man in the universe who would not be saved, for nothing would be more easy to the Lord than to compel man to fear Him, to worship Him, and even as it were to love Him . . . But that which takes place under compulsion is not conjoined, thus is not appropriated, therefore it is as far as it can be from the Lord to compel anyone. While man is in combats . . . it appears as if the Lord compelled him . . .

4029^e. There is no conjunction of good and truth in compulsion. Refs. 4031².

4031. Things compulsory. Sig.

—³. All these are compulsory means, through which man cannot be reformed ; for whatever compels a man does not implant in him any affection, and if it is such that it does implant it, it binds itself to an affection of evil . . .

—⁴. That to which a man is compelled is not his, but belongs to him who compels him . . . It sometimes appears as if man were compelled to good, as in temptations and spiritual combats . . . It also appears as if man were compelled to good when he compels himself to it, but it is one thing to compel one's self and another to be compelled ; he who compels himself, does so from the freedom which is within, but to be compelled is not from freedom.

—^e. It is freedom through which the Lord operates, and not at all through compulsion, because compulsion in holy things, unless it is received from freedom, is perilous.

4033. Things compulsory left behind. Sig. . . By things compulsory are here meant those which have not been conjoined, nor could be conjoined.

4208⁴. Therefore (the Israelites) were so often compelled through punishments, etc. to worship, when yet no one is compelled to internal worship by the Lord. Refs. 5508⁴.

4352^e. If that confidence or trust, which appears in compulsion, would save man, all mortals would be saved, for everyone could easily be reduced to it . . .

5508³. Hence no miracles take place now, for these, like all visible and comprehensible things, compel man to believe, and the things which compel, take away freedom . . .

—⁴. Such could be compelled without danger of the profanation of what is holy.

5854². Wherefore it is an inviolable Divine law . . . that good and truth should be implanted in man's freedom, never under compulsion ; for that which is received in a state of compulsion does not remain, but is dissipated ; for to compel man is not to insinuate into his will, for it is the will of another from which he acts, wherefore, when he returns to his own will, that is, to his own freedom, it is extirpated.

6472². The Lord does not compel man to receive what flows in from Himself . . .

6977^e. He at last abstains, not from freedom, but from compulsion, the cupidity of doing what is evil still remaining, which cupidity is held in check through fears, which are external means of amendment, and which compel. This is the state of the evil in the other life.

7007². Compulsion does not reform, because it inroots nothing ; for compulsion is not the man's will . . .

7218². When it is the state of evening and night with Spirits, their thought is in a state of compulsion ; they are then compelled to think about the falsities which are injected, and from this compulsion they cannot by any means free themselves.

7290². With those who are in internal worship . . . miracles do not take place, for they are hurtful to them, because they compel to belief, and what is compelled does not remain, but is dissipated . . . The things which are implanted under compulsion, remain outside the internal man in the external man . . .

7914. That they should compel themselves. Sig. . . For the good of innocence, which is the good of love to the Lord, is not received by the man of the Spiritual Church, unless he compels himself . . .

8392. The repentance which takes place in a state of compulsion does not avail. A state of compulsion is a state of disease, a state of dejection of mind through misfortune, a state of imminent death, in a word, every state of fear, which takes away the use of sound reason. An evil man, who promises repentance in a state of compulsion, and who also does what is good, returns into his former life of evil when he comes into a free state. N. 168.

8690². This good which he does is truth, because it is only by command, thus as yet from compulsion . . .

8700². It is according to order, that faith and charity should be implanted in freedom and not under compulsion ; and that the faith and charity which are implanted in freedom should remain, but not what are implanted under compulsion. Ex.

— . Hence it is evident, that it is impossible to compel man to salvation.

9588. That which is inseminated under compulsion, does not remain, because what is compulsory is not from the will of the man . . . Hence it is, that worship from compulsion is not pleasing to the Lord. N. 143.

10751^e. (Speaking with Spirits) rarely takes place now, lest men should be compelled to believe; for compelled faith, such as enters by means of miracles, does not inhere, and also would be hurtful to those with whom faith could be implanted through the Word in a state not compulsory.

10777. No one can be compelled to good, because all that is compelled does not inhere . . . H.293².

10798. Priests . . . are to compel no one, as no one can be compelled to believe contrary to that which he has thought from his heart to be true . . .

N. 148⁴. References to passages on the subject of compulsion.

271. If man were forced to that which he does not will, he would always incline to that which he does will . . .

P. 43^e. The Lord never compels anyone, because everything to which anyone is compelled does not appear to him as his own . . .

129. It is a law of the Divine Providence that man should not be compelled by external means to think and will, thus to believe and love the things of religion, but that man should bring himself to it, and sometimes compel himself. Chap.

— . It is not from freedom according to reason for one to be compelled . . . Everyone knows that no one can be compelled to think what he is not willing to think, nor to will what his thought forbids his willing . . . The mind is in this freedom by influx from the Spiritual World, which does not compel . . . Man may be compelled to speak in favour of religion, and to do according to it; but he cannot be compelled to think in its favour from any faith, or to will in its favour from any love. Moreover, in kingdoms where justice and judgment are guarded, one is compelled not to speak against religion, and not to do anything against it; but still no one can be compelled to think and will in its favour. . . From these things it is evident that the external cannot compel the internal.

130. No one is reformed through miracles and signs, because they compel. Gen.art. T.501.

133. The evil may indeed be driven-adigi-and compelled to faith through miracles . . . but only for a little while . . .

134. No one is reformed through visions and speech with the dead, because they compel. Gen.art.

136. No one is reformed through threats and penalties, because they compel. Gen.art.

— . It is known that the external cannot compel the internal, but that the internal can compel the external; also that the internal is so averse to being compelled by the external that it turns itself away . . . It may also be known that there is a forced internal and a free internal.

—². That the external cannot compel the internal, but the internal can compel the external. Gen.art.

— . Who can be compelled to believe and to love? No one can be compelled to believe any more than think that a thing is so when he thinks that it is not so; and no one can be compelled to love any more than to will what he does not will . . . But the internal can be com- pelled through the external not to speak ill of the laws of the kingdom, the moralities of life, and the sanctities of the Church; thus far the internal can be compelled through threats and penalties, and it also is compelled, and ought to be compelled. This internal, however, is not the internal which is properly human, but is an internal which man has in common with beasts, and they too can be compelled . . . It is the human internal which is here meant, which cannot be compelled.

—³. The internal is so averse to being compelled by the external that it turns itself away. Gen.art.

— . Wherefore, when freedom feels itself compelled, it withdraws as it were within itself, and turns itself away, and regards compulsion as an enemy . . .

—⁴. Hence it is evident that it is hurtful to compel men to Divine worship through threats and penalties. But there are some who suffer themselves to be forced to religion, and some who do not: they who suffer themselves to be forced to religion are many of the Papists . . . They who do not suffer themselves to be forced to religion are many of the English nation . . . Moreover, forced worship shuts in evils, which then lie hidden like fire in wood under the ashes, which is continually kindling and spreading, till it breaks out in flames; while worship not forced, but spontaneous, does not shut evils in, which therefore are like fires that at once blaze up and are gone.

— . The reason the internal can compel the external, is that the internal is as a lord, and the external as a servant.

—⁹. There are a forced internal, and a free internal. Gen.art.

— . There is a forced internal with those who are in external worship only, and in no internal worship; for their internal is to think and will that to which their external is forced . . . But with those who are in the internal of worship there is a forced internal, either from fear, or from love. A forced internal from fear exists with those who are in worship from the fear of hell-fire and torment; but this internal is not the internal of thought before treated of, but is the external of thought, which is here called internal because it belongs to thought. The internal of thought before treated of cannot be forced by any fear; but it can be compelled by love, and the fear of the loss of it . . . To be compelled by love and the fear of the loss of it, is to compel one's self, and to compel one's self is not contrary to freedom and rationality. 145, Gen.art.

140. The reason no one is reformed in a state of misfortune, if that is the only time he thinks of God and implores His aid, is that it is a forced state . . .

145³. As man is man from the internal of his thought . . . it is evident that man compels himself when he compels the external of his thought to consent . . .

146. Therefore the delight of the external man does not recede unless it is compelled, nor can it be compelled except through combat . . .

147^e. It follows that the internal man then fights against the external, from freedom, and that it compels the external to obedience. This, therefore, is to compel one's self.

148. All those compel themselves who serve of their own accord for the sake of freedom; and when they compel themselves, they act from freedom according to reason, but from an interior freedom.

[P.] 278. Man can afterwards act against evil, if not freely, still he can through combat coerce it . . .

M. 208². The wives said, We follow by permitting and bearing, and only by bending when it is possible, but never compelling.

—³. Love changes its essence, and becomes not that love, if it is forced.

257. The second of the accidental causes of marriage cold is that living with a married partner . . . seems compulsory, and not free. Gen.art.

294². She is well aware that love cannot be forced . . .

T. 344⁶. Free faith, and forced faith (are states of the faith of the New Church).

501. Everything compulsory in spiritual things betakes itself into the natural man, and shuts up the spiritual as with a door . . .

797⁴. When anyone there commits anything to paper from the external man only . . . thus from compulsion and not from freedom, it is obliterated of itself.

D. 2601. No one is driven by force, or compulsorily-coacte—to serve the Lord. Gen.art.

4659. In order that I might know that man's life exists in freedom . . . I was once brought into compulsion, that is, I acted not from freedom but from compulsion . . . Then the Angels said that I had no life . . .

E. 1150³. The third law of the Divine Providence is, that the understanding and will should be not at all forced, for everything which is forced by another takes away freedom; but that man should compel himself, for to compel one's self is from freedom. Gen.art.

—⁴. There are fears which force the externals, but not the internals; the reason is that the externals are to be reformed through the internals . . . As the spirit of man is to be reformed it is not forced. There are also fears which force the internals, or the spirit of man, but these are only fears which flow in from the Spiritual World . . .

1151². Man cannot come from infernal freedom into heavenly freedom unless he compels himself; to compel one's self is to resist evil and fight against it as from one's self, yet still to implore the Lord for aid . . . It appears to him while he is in combat, that it is not freedom from which he fights, but compulsion . . . The interior freedom from which he fights, and which appears as compulsion, is afterwards felt as freedom . . . When man has compelled himself against infernal freedom, he sees and perceives that infernal freedom is slavery. The explanation is that in proportion as a man compels himself by the resisting of evils, he is removed from those infernal Societies with which he had acted as one, and is introduced by the Lord into heavenly Societies with which he acts as one. On the other hand, if a man does not compel himself to resist evils, he remains in them. But evil does not recede through being compelled, as is done through penalties, and afterwards through the fear of them.

1152³. It has been said, that it is a law of the Divine

Providence, that man himself should compel himself, and by this is meant that he should compel himself from evil, but it is not meant that he should compel himself to good; for it is granted to compel one's self from evil, but not to good which is really good. For if man compels himself to good, not having compelled himself from evil, he does not do good from the Lord, but from himself, for he compels himself to it either for the sake of self, or of the world, reward, or fear . . . Examps.

—³. But when man compels himself from evils, he purifies his internal man, and when this is purified, he does what is good from freedom, and does not compel himself to do it; for in proportion as man compels himself from evil, he comes into heavenly freedom . . . It appears as if compelling one's self from evil and compelling one's self to good cohere together, but they do not. I know from experience that many have compelled themselves to goods, but not from evils, and when they were examined, it was found that evils inhered in their goods from within . . . Nevertheless, before the world, man may compel himself to goods, even if he does not compel himself from evils, for there he is rewarded on that account . . .

Compendium. Compendium. H.78. P.279. M.380³. Coro. 42.

Complain. Conqueri.

A. 407³. Spirits complain greatly that man does not know this . . .

H. 152. Spirits complain that the quarters are thus confounded.

P. 305. I heard a number of new-comers from the world complaining . . .

T. 619⁵. The Angels complain of these spheres . . .

Complaint. Querimonium.

A. 7164. Complaint from the Divine law. Sig.

8351. 'To murmur'=complaint such as there is in temptations. 8403.

8352². Hence come grievings and complaints.

8428. That the complaints will cease. Sig.

8435. Hereafter they should beware of such complaints in temptations. Sig.

Complement. Complementum. A. 9824². N.214. 221². Ad. 652.

Complete. Complere.

A. 2625⁴. When the days were completed for the putting off of the human . . .

—^e. These are the days completed for the putting off of the old man . . .

2788. 'In the third day'=what is complete, and the beginning of sanctification.

2906⁴. 'Three'=what is complete, and a beginning . . . 'Seven,' and 'seventy,' have a similar signification.

4119. 'The third day'=what is complete, thus the end.

4495. 'The third day'=what is complete from beginning to end. —^e. (See further references under THREE.)

J. 65. The Word would not be complete . . .

R. 329. 'Until their fellow-servants should be fulfilled' (Rev. vi. 11) = till those should be collected from all quarters . . .

T. 210. In every complete thing there is a trine . . .
Coro. 17^e.

Complex. Complexus.

A. 575^e. 'Twelve' = all things of faith in one complex.
577.

768. Whatever is of the Church, and of the Churches thence derived, in one complex. Sig.

841. Both living and dead in one complex . . .

1040. All the regenerate things with man in one complex. Sig.

1068. A genus is the complex of the things thence derived.

1159³. Nations meant all the families together in one complex.

1667. 'Chedorlaomer' here stands for all mentioned in verse 2, in the complex.

1949. It does not signify the Rational in its complex, but only rational truth.

2915. Honesty is the complex of all the moral virtues.

3006^e. Everything in one complex through which the Lord is worshipped. Sig.

9396. 'A book' = the Word in the whole complex.

H. 59. The universal Heaven in one complex relates to one man. Gen.art.

269. The words are varied in infinite ways according to the series of the things which are in a complex in the thought.

311². Hell in the whole complex is what is called the devil and satan . . .

S. 6. The Natural is from both, and is their complex in the ultimate.

W. 73³. Hence 'hours,' 'days,' etc., = states, and their progressions in series and in the complex.

140^e. The Spiritual World is the World of Spirits, Heaven, and Hell, in the complex.

209. The ultimate degree is the complex, containant, and basis of the prior degrees. Gen.art.

212. The effect is the complex, etc., of the causes and the ends . . .

—^e. As the ultimate is the complex, it follows that it is also the containant and the basis. 215. 216.

219. The whole body, which is their complex, makes the third degree.

221. The sense of the letter is not only the complex . . .

225. The universe in its whole complex; the natural world in its complex; the Spiritual World in its; each empire and kingdom in its complex; everything civil, moral, and spiritual of them in its complex; the whole animal, vegetable, and mineral kingdoms, each in its own complex . . . Man in his complex; every animal, tree, stone, and metal in its own complex.

P. 64^e. The greatest Society, which is Heaven in the whole complex . . .

201². Like a complex containing nothing.

R. 29². 'The Alpha and the Omega' = all things in the complex.

73. 'The seven Churches' = the Church in the whole complex.

M. 68^e. The use of marriage love is the complex of all other uses.

T. 13². The world is a complex of uses in successive order . . .

38. Wherefore love is the complex of all goodnesses, and wisdom is the complex of all truths.

65^e. Heaven in the complex is the image of God.

283. As the ten commandments . . . were in a brief summary the complex of all things of religion . . . 286.

290. Hence the decalogue . . . is a brief complex of the whole Word.

298. All these together are the name of God in the complex.

347². Wherefore faith is nothing but the complex of truths shining in the mind of man. 349. 379.

392. Charity is the complex of all things of good which a man does to the neighbour; and faith is the complex of all things of truth which a man thinks about God and Divine things.

Comply. Obsequi.

Compliance. Obsequium.

A. 857^e. The external man yielding compliance to the internal; the compliance of the external man consists solely in this . . . 911. 933⁴. 971. 977³. 3913⁴.

3928. The celestial Angels cannot be with man in his corporeal and worldly delight until it is reduced to compliance, that is, that it is no longer as the end, but is for the use of serving heavenly delight.

7161. Hence all those who are in falsities have such aversion to our compliance. Sig.

— . As these things are grateful, compliance is most grateful, for compliance is the very good itself of faith and charity; hence it is that by 'odour' is here signified compliance.

9312. Compliance from faith and love. Sig. and Ex.

W. 263. The natural mind is then disposed for compliance to the spiritual mind . . . —³.

D. 4038. The filthy and false things of the corporeal memory . . . are subdued through vastations and punishments, and become as it were dead, and yield compliance.

Composer. Conceptor. T. 110³.

Compound, Compose. Componere.

Composite. Compositus.

Composition. Compositio.

A. 761^e. So that the man is a mere congeries and composition of evils and falsities.

1505². There are as many spheres as there are affections, and compositions of affections.

[A.] 1639^o. The idea of many things, which may be collected into one compound idea . . .

1648^o. They cease in unities . . . When in composites, they glide on by an accent . . .

1910^o. There is nothing which, however simple it may appear, is not composite, and which does not come forth from what is prior to itself.

2588⁷. Exteriors cannot enter into interiors, as composites into simples, thus not the things of the body into those of the spirit ; but contrariwise. D.2301^o.

3405². For lower things are nothing but compounds of higher ones, as may be inferred from the memories . . .

3562. They who are in inmost perception are in perception of all things which are beneath, for the things which are beneath are nothing but derivations and compounds therefrom ; for what is inmost is all in all of the lower things . . .

3741². Hence it is that the forms and material substances with man are of the same character, but in a lower degree, because they are grosser and more composite.

4154². Interior things are component, and those which are exterior are composite.

5114⁴. The derivations in the lower degrees are only compositions, or rather conformations of the singulars and particulars of the higher degrees in succession, with such things added from purer nature, and then from grosser, as may serve for containing vessels . . .

5622. In themselves, exterior things are grosser than interior ones, for they are generals compounded of a host of interior things.

10298³. So that the understanding is nothing but a compound of such things as relate to truths, and the will is nothing but an affection of such things as are called goods.

H. 38². In each and all things in the whole world . . . there are such degrees of production and of composition, namely, that from one thing there is a second, and from the second a third, and so on.

266. The interiors of the Angels are compounded to the heavenly form.

392. Each general use is compounded of innumerable things which may be called mediate, administerial, and subservient uses.

458. Hypocrites . . . have contracted a habit of composing their interiors to an imitation of good affections.

477. All a man's loves relate to his reigning love, and make one with it, or together compose it. 486^o.

531. He composes his face to devotion.

W. 184^o. These degrees . . . are as simples, as congregates of these, and again as congregates of these, which taken together are called a composite.

190. All things in the world which are of trinal dimension, or which are called composites, consist of discrete degrees. For example . . . every muscle consists of least fibres, and these compounded fascicularly present the larger fibres which are called motor fibres, and from bundles of these there exists the composite which is called a muscle.

—^c. The second discrete degree is from the first, and the third from the second ; the third being called the composite.

192. Woody filaments from the leasts to their composite are homogeneous.

205^o. In the extremes . . . are the parts compounded of these . . .

207. The outermost is compounded of these . . .

—^c. The inmosts, middles, and outermosts of the parts are in these degrees, for they are successive compositions, or confasciations and conglobations, from simples, which are their first substances or matters.

229. It is asserted by some that there is a substance so simple that it is not a form from lesser forms, and that from this substance substantiate or composite things arise by coacervation . . .

273³. The Hells in the composite are called the devil and satan.

P. 199. Thoughts are nothing but affections compounded into forms by the life's love, so as to appear in light.

201. Through His Divine Providence, the Lord composes affections into one form, which is the human. Gen.art.

M. 175³. From the elegance and neatness of the composition of the words . . .

197. Affections . . . form the will, and make and compose it.

266⁴. Suppose a society composed of mere devils, and a society composed of mere Angels . . .

283. That order may exist in a compound society . . .

289. Alternate quarrellings and adjustments of differences . . .

313. By influx is meant all that which precedes, and composes what follows. Examps.

—². In minds, all things which precede form series, and the series gather themselves together, one next another, and one after another, and these together compose the ultimate.

328. You are in beginnings and thus in singulars, but we are in derivatives and composites ; you are in particulars, but we are in generals . . .

361. In man there are all affections of love, and thence all perceptions of wisdom compounded in the most perfect order . . . Since the human form is compounded of these . . .

I. 16². Discrete degrees are generations and compositions of the one from the other ; as for example, of a nerve from its fibres, and of a fibre from its fibrils ; or of a piece of wood, stone, or metal from its parts, and of a part from its particles.

T. 412. Man in the composite . . . is the neighbour. Gen.art.

— Those who enter into a society compose as it were one body.

775. The man of the Church in the compound—concreto, or composite . . . is the Church among many . . .

Ad. 654. Nothing can exist in the composite or in the general, unless it be from its simples or parts . . .

662. The lower things of life are more obscure in proportion as they are more composite; from their very composition and form they derive the fact that the life is such as it appears.

D. 987. This whole composite idea . . . 4037.

4011. (A kind of composite animal described.)

D. Love xi². Every composition in nature has been effected through these degrees; for if you unroll anything composite you will see that therein one thing is from another, to the outermost . . .

Comprehend. Comprehendere.

Comprehension. Comprehensio.

Comprehensible. Comprehensibilis.

See APPREHEND.

A. 2208^e. Rational truth not able to comprehend. Sig.

2275. The Spiritual consists in comprehending things abstractedly from the letter . . .

2533². It involves more than the universal Heaven is capable of comprehending . . .

2553. This is not comprehended . . .

2719. Without appearances, the Spiritual Church would not comprehend doctrine . . .

3358. Divine good and truth cannot be comprehended . . . unless they are in appearances. Tr.

3404². The finite is not capable of comprehending the infinite or the eternal . . . wherefore they are presented before the Angels in finite appearances, which, however, are far above man's comprehension.

3819. Without a general idea of a thing, man comprehends nothing singular . . .

3938. Without an idea from finite things, principally from the things of space and time, man can comprehend nothing concerning Divine things, still less concerning the infinite.

3982. What is historical ought to be as nothing for the things not historical to be comprehended in their series.

4592². They see indefinite things which man can never comprehend.

—³. These things can never be comprehended by one who is not in the light of Heaven . . .

4692². They could not comprehend how the Human could be Divine . . . For whatever they did not comprehend by some idea received through the external sensuous things of the body, they supposed to be of no account.

5094³. The rational natural man comprehends that there are a Heaven and a Hell . . . He comprehends that there are Spirits and Angels who are invisible . . . But the sensuous man does not comprehend . . . —⁴.

5168². He can have no faith, for there is no comprehension . . .

6104^e. This can scarcely be comprehended . . . H.265. 379².

8037. They do not at all comprehend . . . H.380².

9094. These are such things as can be comprehended by Angels . . .

H. 130². At last I perceived such things as I could not even comprehend by thought from natural light.

239. The ideas of their thought comprehend such things as man cannot apprehend—capit.

240². Hence every (angelic) word comprehends in it so many things.

268. Cannot be comprehended in thought . . .

268^e. They then understood such things as they could not comprehend before. 455.

308^e. This arcanum is comprehensible only to those who are in spiritual light . . .

354. They who had at heart denied the Divine . . . had become so stupid that they could scarcely comprehend any civil truth, still less any spiritual truth.

364^e. They said they had not comprehended . . . this . . .

379^e. This cannot be comprehended with the understanding by any such . . .

395. It could not have been comprehended, because it would have fallen into an unknown idea . . .

519. Spiritual ideas, which comprehend a number of things together . . .

J. 24². They who think from wisdom cannot believe unless they in some way comprehend . . .

F. 2. If he does not comprehend that it is true, he says, I do not know whether it is true, therefore I do not as yet believe; I do not comprehend how I am to believe . . .

3. It is a common saying that no one can comprehend spiritual or theological things, because they are supernatural; but spiritual truths can be comprehended equally as natural truths . . .

W. 7. This cannot be comprehended by a merely natural idea, but it can by a spiritual idea: the reason it cannot be comprehended by a natural idea is that there is space in that idea . . . S. III.

—². Still, man is able to comprehend this by natural thought, provided he admits into it something of spiritual light.

8. The reason man is able to comprehend, is that it is not his body that thinks . . .

115. This cannot be comprehended, unless . . .

228. Abstract things, being universals, are usually better comprehended than applied ones.

279. Unless these things be demonstrated, they may indeed be acknowledged, but not comprehended, and what is not comprehended is like a wheel turned by the hand.

834. 'The beast was taken' (Rev.xix.20).

843. It is said that the dragon was 'laid hold of' (Rev.xx.2) . . . by which is signified that those who are meant by him were collected together and withheld.

T. 296. They then cannot interiorly comprehend any Divine truth.

336. They who thus comprehended this matter . . .

343. Thus may be more clearly comprehended . . .

[T.] 349. In order that this may be rightly compre- hended . . .

403². Who does not comprehend that . . . 412. 445.

711. From these things when understood may be comprehended . . .

759^e. Every man is such that he can see and com- prehend truth when he hears it ; but he who is confirmed in falsities cannot bring it into the understanding so that it will stay there . . .

E. 294¹⁶. That those who are in falsities of evil do not so perceive or receive it, is meant by 'the darkness comprehended it not' (John i.5).

Compress. Comprimere.

Compression. Compressio.

A. 4433. 'To compress her' (Gen.xxxiv.2)=to be conjoined, but not in the lawful way of betrothal.

4444³. He who lay with a virgin was to give a dowry and marry her (Ex.xxii.16).

5146². What is purer and grosser may exist in the same degree, both according to extension and com- pression, and according to determinations.

7217. In the external sense, 'straitness of spirit' is a compression of the breast . . . That a state of com- pression of the breathing corresponds to anxiety on account of the deprivation of truth and good . . .

W. 302. As the atmospheres decrease in their progression downwards, it follows that they continually become more compressed and inert, and at last in ultimates so compressed and inert that they are no longer atmospheres, but substances of rest . . .

P. 319. The heart and lungs, where there are alternate expansions and compressions . . .

—². The expansions and compressions, or reciproca-tions (of the organic forms of the mind), are relative . . .

E. 863⁴. 'The women in Zion are ravished' (Lam.
v.11).

Compute. Computare.

Computation. Computus.

A. 487². This was a computation of the states of the Church. 575. 2252². 5265². 6175. H.263(y).

10217⁸. 'To compute the number of the beast' (Rev. xiii.18)=to examine and know these falsified truths of the Church. R.608.

E. 845. 'To compute' (Rev.xiii.18)=to inquire. Ex.

Conatus. See ENDEAVOUR.

Concatenated. Concatenatus. W.392^e. T.644.

Conceal. Celare.

See under HIDE.

A. 2225. 'Shall I hide from Abraham what I am doing?' (Gen.xviii.17)=that nothing ought to be con- cealed before the Lord.

2343⁸. For in the other life no one can conceal what he is thinking.

3857⁶. However he may have concealed his thoughts before men . . .

5695. The Angels do not at all want to conceal what they are thinking . . .

6132. 'We will not hide it from the lord' (Gen.xlvii.
18)=that it is known to the internal . . . The Natural has all that belongs to it from the internal, so that nothing can be concealed from it.

H. 492. From his infancy man is accustomed . . . to conceal the real thoughts of his will . . .

T. 123². Are concealed under figures . . .

E. 315¹⁸. These things are said of the day of visitation or judgment, when the iniquities of all shall be disclosed ; which is meant by, 'The earth shall reveal her bloods, and shall no longer hide her slain' (Is.xxvi.21).

Concede. Concedere.

A. 139^e. He who desires is already in evil, and it is conceded to him.

997^e. Hence it is evident that all pleasures are con- ceded to man, but for the sake of use . . .

1772. It has been granted to me . . . H. 455³.

8533². When the Lord grants this . . .

H. 410. It was granted them to perceive it . . .

Conceit. See PRIDE—fastus.

Conceive. Concipere.

Conception. Conceptio, Conceptus *.

A. 20. When man is conceived anew . . . 21.

261. 'Conception' * (Gen.iii.16)=all thought.

264. 'Conception' * in the Word=the thought and the production of the heart.

946. Man has no other conception * of his life after death . . .

978. They have no other conception * of the internal man . . .

1053^e. These things are incredible to those who have no other conception * of life . . .

1387. They could not conceive what perception was . . .

1414. The Lord was conceived from Jehovah . . .
1793. 1815. 1893. 1904³. 3704⁷. 4065^e. 4641. 5005.
5041. 6716². 6866². 7058³. 10052².

1533. They could have no other conception *.

1895^e. This is the conception of the rational man with everyone.

1910. 'She conceived' (Gen.xvi.4)=the first life of the Rational. 'Conception'=the first life. 1911.

1921. The Rational was conceived from the internal man, who was Jehovah, as a father . . .

—³. He who is conceived from Jehovah, has no other internal, that is, has no other soul, than Jehovah.
Jehovah, or the Divine essence, cannot be divided, like the soul of a man's father, from which offspring are conceived.

1996. The Lord's internal man was Jehovah, because conceived from Him. 1999⁵.

2018. Jehovah was in Him, because He was one with Him from the first conception and birth, for He was conceived from Jehovah, and hence His internal was Jehovah.

202⁴. The Lord's soul was life itself, or the being itself which is Jehovah, for He was conceived from Jehovah . . .

2083. The Rational, being conceived by the influx of the internal man into the affection of knowledges of the external . . .

2093. How the Lord's Rational was first conceived and born . . . (Signified by the conception and birth of Ishmael.)

—³. (Afterwards) the Lord's Divine Rational was conceived and born from the influx of good into truth, thus through truth. (Signified by the conception and birth of Isaac.) 2094.

2508. From the heavenly marriage are conceived with man the Intellectual, the Rational, and the Scientific, for without conception from the heavenly marriage, man can never be imbued with understanding, reason, or knowledge.

2584. In the internal sense of the Word nothing but spiritual and celestial things are signified wherever there are mentioned 'conception,' or 'to conceive,' etc. III.

2586. All the conception of doctrine is from good as a father, and its birth is through truth as a mother.

2592². He was born as a man, but conceived from God.

2621. 'She conceived, and brought forth (Isaac)' (Gen. xxi.2)=that it was, and was manifested.

— . Everyone and everything has its being from conception, and its manifesting from birth, thus, as conception is prior to birth, so is being prior to manifesting.

—². Nothing ever exists, which has not its conception in order to be, and its birth in order to be manifested.

2628². The Lord's Divine Human was not only conceived from Jehovah, but was also born . . . 2649².

2629. Birth, or manifesting, is from the Divine Spiritual; and conception, or being, from the Divine Celestial . . .

2649². The Divine being of life, or Jehovah, was in the Lord from conception. 4571.

3288. 'Rebekah his woman conceived' (Gen.xxv.21)=from Divine truth as a mother . . . 'To conceive'=the first origin of the Divine Natural as from a mother . . .

3293². 'In the womb,' in the internal sense,=conception. 3299.

3298. The case with good and truth is the same as it is with offspring; they are conceived, etc. . . After conception, the efficient, or conceived seed, begins to produce the effect . . . 3308.

3736. The Divine itself, in which the Lord was from the very conception . . .

3860. 'Leah conceived and bare a son' (Gen.xxix.32)=spiritual conception and birth from the external to the internal . . . 'To conceive and bear'=to be regenerated; for the man who is being regenerated, is conceived and born anew . . .

3919. 'Bilhah conceived, and bare Jacob a son' (Gen. xxx.5)=reception and acknowledgment. 'To conceive'

=reception . . . For in the spiritual sense, conceptions and births are receptions of truth from good, and thence acknowledgments. 3925. 3955. 3959. 3968. 4879.

4735. His proprium from conception was what He had from Jehovah His Father, and was Jehovah Himself . . .

—². The Lord's Human, after being glorified . . . cannot be conceived of as human, but as the Divine love in a human form.

4821. '(Shuah) conceived and bare a son' (Gen. xxxviii.3)=that thence came falsity of the Church. 'To conceive, and bear'=to acknowledge in faith and in act.

4823. 'She conceived again, and bare a son' (ver.4)=evil.

4904. Seed=the truth of faith, and the conception of it, reception.

4918². 'Bearing in the belly' (Rev.xii.2)=the truth of the Church conceived.

5157². The Voluntary in the Lord . . . from conception was Divine.

6718. 'The woman conceived' (Ex.ii.2)=the first origin of the Divine law in the Lord's Human. 'To conceive'=the first origin.

8552. Unless a man, as to the spiritual life, is conceived anew . . . from the Lord, he is damned . . .

8878. The Lord, from conception, was the Divine love, which therefore was the inmost being of His life . . .

9146. The truth and good of faith in conception. Sig.

10264⁵. The very Divine good of the Divine love which was in the Lord from conception. Sig.

10265. From the influx and operation of the Divine itself which was in the Lord from conception. Sig.

10738³. The being of His life was the Divine itself, for He was conceived from Jehovah, and the being of everyone's life is from him from whom he is conceived.

10825. That the Lord was conceived from Jehovah the Father, and was thus God from conception, is known in the Church.

H. 395. They had conceived so gross an idea . . .

N. 298. The Divine was in the Lord from conception itself. Refs.

L. 3². The Lord came into the world in order to . . . unite the Human to the Divine which was in Him from conception.

20. His being sent by the Father into the world means that He was conceived from Jehovah the Father.

— . Except by a Human conceived from Jehovah . . .

327. 'The Father,' wherever mentioned, means the Divine which was in the Lord from conception. III. B. 32².

W. 6. Since man is . . . a recipient of life, it follows that the conception of a man from his father is not a conception of life, but only a conception of the first and purest form receptive of life . . . D. Love ii.

432. The nature of the initiant of man from conception. Gen.art.

R. 193². When He went out of the world, He fully united the Divine truth to the Divine good which was in Him from conception.

M. 172. Lest the man should leave his wife after conception . . .

219. Women have a state of preparation for reception, and thus for conception.

245^e. Between the disjoined souls of two married partners, conjunction is effected in an intermediate love, otherwise there would be no conceptions with human beings.

393^e. To which there is adjoined the love of conceiving, from the delight of which a wife is prepared for reception.

403. Wives have one state of love before conception, and another after it up to the birth. Gen.art.

T. 75^e. From these Relations an idea of the creation of the universe by God may be conceived, and from conception some birth representing it may be produced.

583. Regeneration is effected in a manner analogous to that in which man is conceived, carried in the womb, born, and educated. Gen.art.

584. Man's seed is conceived interiorly in the understanding, and is formed in the will . . .

Ad. 913. 'Thus conceived the flock near the rods' . . . This is taken from what exists in the conception of human fetuses; for it is known that women, while they are conceiving, and after conception . . .

E. 434⁷. 'Leah conceived and bare a son'=spiritual conception and birth. 444¹¹.

710². 'The womb'=the inmost of marriage love, because there the fetus is conceived . . .

721¹⁴. 'From the birth . . . and from conception' (Hos.ix.11)=from ultimates to primes.

—²⁷. 'I will multiply thy sorrow and thy conception' . . . 'Conception'=the reception of the truth which is from good.

D. Wis. iii. 1. The Lord conjoins Himself with man in the womb of the mother from the first conception, and forms him. Gen.art.

Concentrate. Concentrare.

A. 1871. When they are concentrated in the cylinder . . .

2057³. They concentrate all delight in themselves . . .

5985. A subject is one in whom the thoughts and speech of a number are concentrated . . .

6388². They concentrate the influx of happiness from Heaven in themselves . . .

H. 2^a. They who have not made that idea one, and concentrated it in the Lord . . .

253³. Thus they concentrate their thoughts, which the Spirit utters.

W. 23. All things of human reason . . . as it were concentrate in this . . .

M. 161^e. When the wife only is loved, the love is concentrated.

T. 29². Concentrated on the point of a hair . . .

67. Everything of order has been . . . concentrated in man.

Concern. Concernere.

H. 212. As to what concerns the form of Heaven . . . 297. 324.

W. 104. Therefore as concerns . . .

249. As regards the first kind . . .

P. 251⁴. All spiritual things concern the Church.

Concert. Concentus.

A. 4197⁷. As a single tone does not produce any concert, still less harmony . . .

7191². In all angelic discourse there is a harmony like that of songs . . .

H. 56². All beauty, pleasantness, and delight . . . come forth and flow from the concert and harmony of many concordant and consentaneous things, whether they co-exist in order, or follow each other in order.

242. In angelic speech there is a certain harmony which cannot be described. This harmony is from this; that the thoughts and affections, from which is speech, pour forth and diffuse themselves according to the form of Heaven . . .

W. 26. Since the universal Heaven and all things of Heaven have relation to one God, angelic speech is such, that by a certain harmony which flows from the harmony of Heaven, it ceases in one.

T. 344². The harmony of truths (a part of the manifestation of the faith of the New Church).

353². The exaltation of faith by an abundance of truths, may be illustrated by comparison with the exaltation of sound and melody which are simultaneously produced by a number of musical instruments in concert.

Conclude. Concludere.

Conclusion. Conclusio.

A. 203. Spiritual Angels . . . never draw conclusions about matters of faith from intellectual, rational, and scientific things.

1769. As I could infer from the fact . . . 4329².

1899. 'Jehovah hath restrained me from bearing' (Gen.xvi.2).

1902. As may be inferred from the fact . . .

2552^e. The conclusion of the thought, or the answer, comes from perception or conscience . . .

2562. All things which he would afterwards conclude concerning rational truth. Sig.

— The state of conclusion concerning rational truth is here treated of.

3923². When he consults scientifics, and forms conclusions from them. Sig.

4329². They looked into everything with me which was [a matter serviceable for forming] a conclusion, from which they formed a conclusion so dexterously concerning the interiors of my thoughts and affections, that I began to be afraid of thinking anything more, for they disclosed things I did not know I had, but which I could not but acknowledge from the conclusions which they made.

4424². When they form conclusions about the truths of faith from their own fallacies . . .

4570². The internal of the Natural is formed by those things which are analytically and analogically inferred . . .

5094². He who thinks and forms conclusions from the interior Natural, is rational in proportion as he imbibes through the Rational; but he who thinks and forms conclusions through the exterior Natural, is sensuous in proportion as he imbibes from sensuous things.

—e. By sensuous things being rejected . . . is meant that the conclusions concerning interior things thence derived are to be rejected. Sig.

5119. Those things which are in the interior Natural are called forth by the Rational, and through these those which are in the exterior Natural; not that the very things which are there are called forth, but those which are inferred or as it were drawn out of them . . .

5124. What is provided, and thence concluded. Sig.
—e. 'To lift up the head' = to conclude, and in the supreme sense, to provide; for the Divine conclusion and the execution of the thing concluded is Providence. 5155. 5162.

5456. 'He shut them up in custody' (Gen.xlii.17) = separation from himself. 'To give or shut up in custody' = rejection, thus separation.

5580^e. Intellectual and sensuous things arise by a method of extraction; for intellectual things are inferences, which, when made, are separated, and advance to what is more lofty . . .

6383. Through [the representation of] Zebulon it here treats of those in the Church who form conclusions about spiritual things from scientifics, and thus strengthen them in themselves . . .

6384. 'He shall dwell at the haven of the seas' = the life in which there is the conclusion of truth from scientifics.

8134. 'The wilderness hath shut them in' (Ex.xiv.3) = that darkness has taken possession of them.

8861². Natural truths, which are conclusions from the objects of the external senses, especially sight . . .

10061². By this was represented that to act and teach from good is to conclude innumerable things which are of truth, but not contrariwise.

10602. A conclusion concerning the Israelitish nation. Sig.

10624^e. It is the evil of falsity when man has confirmed evil in himself, and has concluded that it is not evil, and therefore does it . . .

H. 335. From which it may be concluded as to the rest.

355. It may be concluded from this alone . . . 376. 390. 395^e. 415. 416^e. 435.

W. 239. It follows that there are three degrees of will and understanding and of conclusion therefrom; for the will is the receptacle of love, the understanding of wisdom, and the thing concluded is the use from these.

274². When they are opened towards Hell, the reigning love which is of the will gains the highest or inmost place; the thought of falsity which is of the understanding from that love gains the second or middle place; and the conclusion of the love through the thought, or of the will through the understanding, gains the lowest place.

275². The things concluded from their two degrees, which are either laid up in the memory as knowledges, or determined into acts in the body, make the ultimate degree in the Heavens.

280. These three things are in every word, because a word is something concluded, having in it sound, articulation, and meaning.

363². There are a number of things which belong to both love and wisdom; as consent, conclusion, and determination to act . . .

413. By this faculty, which is the faculty of interiorly understanding things, and forming conclusions as to what is just and fair, and good and true, man is distinguished from beasts . . .

R. 843. The dragon 'shut up' (Rev.xx.3) = that they are altogether removed.

M. 132^r. They said, Form a conclusion from these things . . . 134^e. 135^e. 233^r.

T. 37^e. They conclude eggs in which are birds of night . . .

42^e. There are some who do not perceive truth, but conclude it from confirmations through appearances . . .

132^e. From one established principle theorems of the same sort are deduced . . .

459¹⁷. From which comes the conclusion . . .

503⁵. The notion that . . . God the Father included all mankind under a sentence of damnation.

577^e. What is there considered, concluded upon, and determined into act . . .

603^e. In a moment man can think and conclude what he cannot express in an hour.

641⁵. The same may be clearly inferred from this . . .

658⁴. The will enters the understanding by the intention, and prompts it to occupy itself with and consider means, and to conclude on such as tend to effects.

E. 391¹⁵. That falsities and evils had entered into all things of the Church, is signified by 'He hath shut up into the hand of the enemy the walls of her palaces' (Lam.ii.7).

503⁴. 'He shut up their beast to the hail' (Ps.lxxviii.48).

569²³. Reasonings from the spiritual man, which are rather to be called conclusions from reasons and from truths . . .

654⁴⁸. 'I will shut up Egypt in the hand of a hard lord' (Is.xix.4) = that there will reign the evil of falsity.

675¹⁴. 'To shut up the city and its fulness' (Amos vi.8) = to condemn the doctrine because it is full of the falsities of evil, and obsessed by them.

Concord. See AGREE—Concordare.

Concrete. Concretus.

R. 421. Like the concreted foam of the sea . . .

M. 14². New wines solidified . . .

T. 775. It is the same with the man of the Church in the compound or in the composite . . . Man in the compound or composite is the Church among many . . .

Concubine. Concubina.

Concubinage. Concubinatus.

A. 2868. 'He had a concubine, and her name was Reumah' (Gen.xxii.24)=the Gentiles who are in idolatrous worship and in good.

—². The handmaids given to the husband by the wife . . . were called 'concubines.'

—³. The reason their procreation of children by handmaids or concubines was at that time tolerated, was that thus were represented those who are outside the Church, also those who are in a lower degree within the Church. 899⁵.

3246. 'To the sons of the concubines which Abraham had, Abraham gave presents' (Gen.xxv.5)=the spiritual adopted by the Lord's Divine Human, that they had shares in the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom.

—³. Hence it is that the spiritual are here called 'the sons of the concubines' . . .

—³. In order that both the celestial and the spiritual might be represented in their marriages, it was granted to have a concubine besides a wife; that concubine was given to the husband by the wife, and was then called his woman . . .

—⁴. That these ancients had concubines besides a wife . . . was of permission, and for the sake of the representation, namely, of the Celestial Church by the wife, and of the Spiritual Church by the concubine. It was of permission, because they were such as to have no marriage love . . .

4601. 'Reuben went, and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine' (Gen.xxxv.22)=the profanation of good by faith separated. E.434¹⁶.

898³. This was a mere coupling like that of a concubine . . .

900². In order that the conjunctions and subordinations of such affections under one spiritual truth might be represented, it was permitted the Israelitish and Jewish nation to have a number of concubines.

H. 380 (q). The reason the Israelitish nation was permitted . . . to join concubines to their wives, but not Christians, is that that nation was in externals without internals, but Christians can be in internals. Refs.

P. 245. Solomon permitted and instituted the worship of many other nations, by which were represented the varieties of religion in the world. Similar was the signification of his wives who were seven hundred in number, and his concubines who numbered three hundred (1 Kings xi.3); for a wife in the Word=the Church, and a concubine a religion.

M. 216³. The wife said, I am no longer a wife, but a concubine . . .

462. On concubinage. Chap.

—¹. By concubinage is here meant the conjunction of a married man . . . with a woman . . .

463. There are two kinds of concubinage, which are very different from each other, one conjointly with a wife, and the other apart from a wife. Gen.art.

464. Concubinage conjointly with a wife is unlawful for Christians, and detestable. Gen.art. 465. 466.

466². In proportion as love towards a married partner is transcribed into love towards a concubine, it is rent, exhausted, and emptied.

—³. A Christian cannot love a concubine and a wife equally, like a Mohammedan polygamist; but in proportion as he loves a concubine, or grows warm towards her, he does not love a wife, that is, he grows cold to her; and what is still more detestable, in the same proportion he at heart acknowledges the Lord as only a natural man, and as the son of Mary, and not at the same time as the Son of God; and in the same proportion also he undervalues religion. But it is to be well remembered that this takes place with those who add a concubine to a wife, and conjoin themselves actually with both; but not at all with those who, from causes lawful, just, and truly weighty, separate themselves . . . as to actual love, from the wife . . .

467. Concubinage apart from a wife, when it takes place from causes lawful, just, and truly weighty, is not unlawful. Gen.art.

468. The lawful causes of this concubinage are the lawful causes of divorce, the wife being nevertheless retained at home. Gen.art.

470. The just causes of this concubinage are the just causes of separation from the bed. Gen.art.

471. The weighty causes of this concubinage are real and not real. Gen.art.

475. They who from causes lawful, just, and really weighty are in this concubinage, can be at the same time in marriage love. Gen.art.

—³. This concubinage is only a veiling round of marriage love, because the love of concubinage is natural, and the love of marriage is spiritual . . .

476. So long as this concubinage is going on, actual conjunction with the wife is not allowable. Gen.art.

D. 6110²¹. The delight of having a concubine before marriage . . .

Concupiscence. Concupiscentia, Concupiscere.

A. 999. His will is nothing but evil, wherefore 'flesh' . . . =all cupidity, or all concupiscence . . . Such therefore was the representation of the flesh which they lusted for in the wilderness . . . 'The mixed multitude lusted a lust, saying, Who shall give us flesh to eat?' (Num.xi.4) . . . 'And they called the name of that place, The graves of lust, because there they buried the people that lusted' (ver.34).

1798³. To covet what belongs to the neighbour is also contrary to the disposition of those who are in the life of charity . . .

3301⁷. That concupiscences had destroyed it, is signified by its being 'burnt with fire.'

3470³. Until its concupiscences grow languid . . .

3474³. By which man is like animals as to concupiscences and phantasies . . .

3928. The external man lusts for nothing but corporeal and worldly things . . .

4063³. As man is brought from the state of the old man into that of the new, the concupiscences of the world must be put off, and the affections of Heaven must be put on . . . For his concupiscences are to be extirpated, and heavenly affections insinuated . . .

4174². When the external man with its concupiscences is removed . . .

4225. All who are in the love of self and the love of the world, and thence in concupiscences . . .

5071. 'Eternal fire' . . . is the concupiscence of evil; for the concupiscences with man are the spiritual fires which in the life of the body consume him, and in the other life torture him . . .

—². The reason it is concupiscence, is that all fiery vitality is from the loves with man . . .

5647². The natural man is to be subjugated, that is, all his concupiscences, together with those things which confirm them, are to be extirpated . . .

5660^e. He who is endowed with a heavenly proprium . . . knows that concupiscences do not infest him.

5979. With the man who is in the concupiscences and delights of the love of self and of the world . . .

7236². The fallacies which are of the external senses adjoin themselves, and also the falsities which are of concupiscences.

7272². In the concupiscence of depriving others of their goods . . .

7374. They who are in this love envy others their goods, and covet them.

7643. Thence comes the concupiscence of domineering over all, and of possessing all things which belong to others.

8364². The diseases which affect the spiritual life are evils, and are called cupidities and concupiscences.

8408. 'To sit at the flesh-pot' = life according to one's pleasure, and as one lusts, for this life is the life of the proprium.

8409. 'Flesh' = man's proprium, thus the evil of self-love, and thence the cupidities or concupiscences of that love. —⁴.

8452². By a seabird and its flesh is signified natural delight, and in the opposite sense the delight of concupiscence . . .

—³. It is called the delight of concupiscence when the delight of any corporeal or worldly love is dominant and takes possession of the whole man, so as to extinguish the good and truth of faith with him . . .

8487. 'When the sun waxed hot, it melted' = that it vanished according to the degree of the growing concupiscence . . . In the opposite sense, 'the sun' = the love of self and of the world, and the heat from the sun in that sense = concupiscence.

—². How it is that the good of truth vanishes according to the degree of the growing concupiscence. Ex.

—³. But the concupiscences into which those who are in Heaven are remitted when it is evening with them, are not the concupiscences which are opposite to celestial good, but are concupiscences which in some measure agree with that good, for they are the delights of doing good in some abundance, and thence of some glory, in which however there are benevolence and the endeavour to be of service; they are also the delights of having magnificent houses, garments, etc. Such are the things which do not destroy the good of celestial love, but which yet hide it, and at last, according to the degree in which the man is being regenerated, become the ultimate planes of celestial good; and then they are no longer to be called concupiscences, but delights.

8910. 'Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, and his servant and his handmaid, and his ox and his ass, and everything which is thy neighbour's' = that we are to beware of the love of self and of the world, and thus lest the evils which are contained in the preceding commandments become of the will, and thus go forth. 8912.

—¹. 'To covet' = to will from an evil love. The reason 'to covet' has this signification, is that all concupiscence is of some love, for nothing is lusted for unless it is loved, and therefore concupiscence is what is continuous of love, here, of the love of self or of the world, and is as it were its life of respiration; for that which an evil love breathes is called concupiscence, but that which a good love breathes is called longing. Love itself belongs to the second part of the mind, which is called the will . . . whereas concupiscence belongs to both . . . but is properly of the will in the understanding.

—⁴. That concupiscence is of the will, thus of the heart, is evident from . . . 'He who shall look on a strange woman so as to lust for her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart' (Matt.v.28). 'To lust for' here means to will, and unless the fears which are external bonds prevent, to do . . . M.153.

—⁵. The concupiscence of evil is also meant by 'the right eye offending;' and the concupiscence of falsity by 'the right hand offending.'

—⁶. The affection of evil, or its concupiscence . . .

—⁷. 'Gehenna' = the Hell of concupiscences.

8966. Through temptations also the concupiscences which are of the loves of self and of the world are mastered.

9055³. Concupiscence is also signified by 'burning' (Is.iii.24).

9088². Purifications from these loves can only be effected through the truths of faith, because these teach that all concupiscences are from these loves.

9144⁴. If the affection of evil breaks forth into anger, and betakes itself to the falsities of concupiscences. Sig.

—⁵. 'Thorns' = the falsities of concupiscences. Ill.

—⁶. 'The prickly brier' = the falsity of the concupiscences of self-love; 'thorn,' the falsity of the concupiscences of the love of the world.

—⁷. The falsities of concupiscences, which are signified by 'thorns,' are falsities which confirm those things which are of the world and its pleasures, for these falsities are pre-eminent for taking fire and blazing up, because they are from concupiscences in the body which are felt . . .

[A.] 9425^e. They call that truth which favours the fallacies of the senses; and that good which favours concupiscences.

9589. Infernal freedom is to be led by the devil, and this freedom is the love of evil and falsity, properly concupiscence.

10283¹². Whether you say voluntary evil, or concupiscence, is all the same, for voluntary evil is concupiscence, since man's proprium desires nothing but its own . . .

10676. 'Neither shall anyone desire thy land' (Ex. xxxiv. 24) = aversion for such things as are of the Church with those who are in evils and falsities of evil.

10732. From these loves comes all concupiscence.

Life 62. Murders, adulteries, thefts, false witnesses of every kind, together with the concupiscence for them, are the evils which are to be shunned as sins. Gen. art.

63². On account of this thought (that no one can fulfil the law), man is in concupiscence for all these evils, and only abstains from doing them for the world's sake; wherefore after death, although he has not committed them, he yet lusts to do them, and also does them when the external which he had in the world is taken away. All concupiscence remains in man after death; hence it is that such act as one with Hell, and cannot but have their lot with those who are in Hell. Very different is the lot of those who do not will (to commit these evils) because to do so is against God; these, after some combat against them do not will them, thus do not lust to do them . . .

66². As he had not fought against concupiscences . . . the Lord said . . . that he should 'take up his cross' (Mark x. 21), by which is meant that he should fight against concupiscences.

—^e. No one can shun evils as sins . . . unless he fights against evils, and thus removes concupiscences.

86⁴. So long as man does not shun evils as sins, the concupiscences of evil block up the interiors of the natural mind on the part of the will, which are there like a thick veil, and like a black cloud beneath the spiritual mind, and prevent its being opened . . .

—⁵. So long as the concupiscences of evils block up the interiors of the natural mind, man is in Hell; but as soon as these concupiscences are dispersed by the Lord, man is in Heaven. Further, so long as the concupiscences of evils block up the interiors of the natural mind, man is natural; but as soon as these concupiscences are dispersed by the Lord, man is spiritual. Further, so long as the concupiscences of evils block up the interiors of the natural mind, man is animal . . . but as soon as these concupiscences are dispersed by the Lord, man is man, because he thinks what is true in the understanding from what is good in the will. And further, so long as the concupiscences of evils block up the interiors of the natural mind, man is like a garden in winter-time; but as soon as these concupiscences are dispersed by the Lord, he is like a garden in summer-time.

90. 'The seed in the midst of thorns' exists with those who are in concupiscences of evil.

—^e. Hence it is evident, that the truth of the Word cannot be rooted in those . . . who are in concupiscences of evil, but in those with whom the concupiscences of evil have been dispersed by the Lord: with these the truth is rooted in their spiritual mind.

91. Can any murderer, adulterer, thief, or false witness have faith so long as he is in the concupiscence of these evils; and can the concupiscence of these evils be otherwise dispersed than by willing not to do them because they are sins, that is, because they are infernal and diabolical?

92. From inborn concupiscence man loves evils and is carried into them . . .

94. He who combats acts from within and against the concupiscence itself which constitutes the root of the evil; for he who fights against anything does not will it, and to lust is to will.

97. This combat is not grievous, except with those who have loosened all the reins to their concupiscences, and have indulged them of set purpose . . .

110. The concupiscences of evil, which constitute the interiors of man from birth, are not removed except by the Lord alone. For the Lord flows in from the Spiritual into the Natural; but man of himself from the Natural into the Spiritual, and this influx is contrary to order, and does not operate into concupiscences and remove them, but shuts them in more and more closely in proportion as it confirms itself . . .

112. In each of these evils there are innumerable concupiscences, which man does not see except as a single one . . .

W. 246. For so long as man is in evils, he is also in the love of them, for he is in concupiscence to them, and the love of evil and concupiscence are in a love opposite to spiritual love and affection; and this love or concupiscence cannot be removed except through shunning evils as sins . . .

273². The reigning love with its concupiscences, which is the universal state of the natural mind, is as the devil is in Hell . . .

P. 33². It follows that the Lord cannot conjoin Himself more closely than as the love of evil with its affections, which are concupiscences, is removed . . . Anyone can see from reason that concupiscences with their delights block up and shut the doors against the Lord, and that they cannot be cast out by the Lord, so long as the man himself is keeping the doors shut . . .

—³. So the influx of Hell is into the love of evil and its affections, which are concupiscences, and through these into the perceptions and thoughts . . .

35^e. A man has the love of wisdom in proportion as he feels aversion for the diabolical crew, which are the concupiscences of evil and falsity.

38. No man who is in the delights of the concupiscences of evil can know anything about the delights of the affections of good . . . Every love has its own delights; even the love of evil with those who are in concupiscences . . . These delights are from the concupiscences which beset the interiors of the mind

... Thence from the delight of the mind according to concupiscences there arises the delight of the body.

39². These happinesses enter as man removes the concupiscences of the love of what is evil and false as if of himself but still from the Lord, for these happinesses are the happinesses of the affections of good and truth, and these are opposite to the concupiscences of the love of what is evil and false.

40. The delights of the concupiscences of evil, and the delights of the affections of good, cannot be compared... (except that) the delights of the concupiscences of evil may be compared to the lascivious delights of frogs in ponds, and of serpents in stenchies...

83⁴. The delights of evils are from the concupiscence of them, which continually breathes them, and also produces them, when no fear restrains. So long as evils remain in the concupiscences and thence in the delights of their love, there is not any faith, charity, piety, worship, except solely in externals...

106². The derivations of infernal love are affections of evil and falsity, properly concupiscences... The affections of infernal love, which are properly concupiscences, are as many as there are evils.

107. Infernal love with its affections of evil and falsity, which are concupiscences, together with the delights of these concupiscences and the thoughts thence derived, may be compared to a spider and the web about it; the love itself is the spider, the concupiscences of evil and falsity with their interior cunning are the retiform threads nearest the spider's seat, and the delights of these concupiscences with deceitful machinations are the more remote threads, where the flies are caught, bound, and devoured.

109. The life's love sets a deputy below itself which is called the love of the means, and enjoins on it to take heed that nothing from its concupiscences appears...

111. The internal cannot be purified from the concupiscences of evil so long as the evils in the external man are not removed, because they obstruct. Gen. art.

— Now as concupiscences together with cunning constitute the internal of thought with the evil, and the delights of the concupiscences together with machinations constitute the external of thought with them, and as the latter are conjoined with the former as into one, it follows that the internal cannot be purified from concupiscences so long as the evils in the external man are not removed. It is to be known that it is the internal will of man which is in concupiscences, and that it is his internal understanding which is in cunning; and that it is the external will which is in the delights of concupiscences, and the external understanding which is in machinations from cunning. Everyone can see that concupiscences and their delights make one, and that cunning and machinations make one, and that these four are in one series... from which it again follows, that the internal, which consists of concupiscences, cannot be cast out except by the removal of the external, which consists of evils. Through their own delights, concupiscences produce evils...

112. Hence it may be evident, that for man to be purified from the concupiscences of evil, evils are by all means to be removed by the external man, for before this there is no outlet for concupiscences, and if there is no outlet, the concupiscences remain within, and breathe forth delights, and thus drive man to consent, and so to the deed. Concupiscences enter the body through the external of thought, wherefore, when there is consent in the external of thought they are at once in the body...

—² Concupiscences with their delights may be compared to fire, which the more it is fomented the more it blazes... The concupiscences of evil are also compared in the Word to 'fire,' and the evils thence to a conflagration; for in the Spiritual World the concupiscences of evil with their delights appear as fires; infernal fire is nothing else. They may also be compared to floods and inundations... to gangrene and ulcers...

—³ By examples it clearly appears, that if the evils in the external man are not removed, concupiscences with their delights grow and abound. A thief, in proportion as he steals lusts to steal, until at last he cannot desist...

113. Man cannot perceive the concupiscences of his own evil; he does indeed perceive their delights, but reflects little about them... In proportion as he confirms evils as allowable, he enlarges the court of the reigning love... which is constituted of concupiscences, for these are as it were its ministers and attendants, through which it governs the more exterior things which constitute its kingdom.

—^e Can such a state of man be changed otherwise than by the removal of the evils in the external man? for so also are removed the concupiscences which cohere with those evils. Otherwise, there is no outlet open for the concupiscences, for they are shut in, like a besieged city, and like a closed ulcer.

117. If they do not shun evils from a principle of religion, because they are sins, and against God, the concupiscences of evil with their delights remain with them, like impure waters shut in and stagnant: let them examine their thoughts and intentions, and they will find them, provided they know what sin is. Such are many who have confirmed themselves in faith separated from charity... Such also are natural moralists... Such also are they who studiously affect the name and reputation of honesty and sincerity for the sake of honours or gain. They who are of this character, and have at the same time despised religion, after death become Spirits of concupiscences, who appear to themselves as if they were men, but to others at a distance as priapuses; and they see in the dark, and not at all in the light, like owls.

119. The Lord then purifies man from the concupiscences in the internal man, and from the evils themselves in the external. Gen. art.

— The Lord cannot purify man before, for evils are in the external man, and the concupiscences of evil in the internal, and they cohere together as roots do with the trunk; wherefore, unless evils are removed, there exists no opening, for they block up and shut the door, which cannot be opened by the Lord except by means of the man; but when the man as of himself opens the door, the Lord at the same time extirpates the concupiscences. So long, therefore, as the ultimates are kept closed by the man himself, no purification can be effected by the Lord, but only an operation in the interiors such as is that of the Lord in Hell, in the form of which is the man who is in concupiscences and at the same time in evils . . .

[P.] 120. The operation (of the Lord into all things of the mind) is continual, but still the Lord cannot purify man from any concupiscence of evil in his spirit or internal man, so long as man keeps the external closed . . .

126. When a heavenly life's love has been implanted by the Lord in place of the infernal life's love, then in the place of the concupiscences of evil and falsity are implanted affections of good and truth, and in the place of the delights of the concupiscences of evil and falsity are implanted delights of the affections of good . . .

139⁷. As the loves of self and of the world are infernal loves, and the fountain-heads of all evils, it is evident what is the real quality of the internal of thought with those with whom these loves are the life's loves . . . namely, that it is full of the concupiscences of evil of every kind.

145². When man desists from evils, the door is opened, and then the concupiscences of evil which had occupied the internal of thought are cast out by the Lord, and in their place are implanted affections of good; this in the internal of thought; but as the delights of the concupiscences of evil, which occupy the external of thought, cannot be cast out at the same time, a combat takes place between the internal and external of thought . . .

147. It shall be briefly stated how the Lord casts out the concupiscences of evil which occupy the internal man from birth, and in their place implants affections of good, when man as of himself removes evils as sins. Fully ex.

152. In the spirit . . . are evils in their origin and in their root, that is, in their concupiscences and in their delights, and unless they are seen and acknowledged the man is still in evils, however little he may have committed them in externals . . .

206². As self-love wills to be the sole lord of the world . . . the concupiscences of evil, which are its derivations, have life in them from it; in like manner the perceptions of the concupiscences, which are craftinesses; in like manner also the delights of concupiscences, which are evils, and their thoughts, which are falsities . . .

207. The love of self is the devil, and concupiscences and their delights are the evils of his kingdom, which is Hell. This being removed, the Lord enters with the affections of the love of the neighbour . . .

227². The reverse takes place with those who are inwardly good, but who, like other men, have outwardly . . . favoured some concupiscences; with these, good and evil are not mixed together . . .

279⁵. They do not know that evil is the delight of the concupiscences of acting and thinking contrary to Divine order . . . and that there are myriads of concupiscences which enter into and compose each evil . . . and that these myriads are in such an order and connection in the interiors of man, that one cannot be changed unless they are all changed at the same time.

296. The spirit (of an evil man) is itself an evil, which appears to himself as one, but as many as are the innumerable things in that spirit, so many are the concupiscences of that evil, for every man is his own evil or his own good from head to foot: since, therefore, an evil man is such, it is evident that he is one evil which is composed of various innumerable things, which are distinct evils, and are called the concupiscences of evil . . .

—². Every concupiscence of evil appears in Hell, when represented, as a hurtful animal . . . In like manner appear the concupiscences of evil with an evil man, when they are looked at by the Angels. All these forms of concupiscences have to be individually converted; the man himself . . . is to be converted . . . and each concupiscence of evil is to be converted, so as to appear as a lamb, sheep, or dove . . .

—⁹. They are the evils of the concupiscences of his life's love . . .

—¹⁰. The delights of concupiscences, of which man knows nothing, are emitted in companies and in bundles into the interior thoughts, which are of man's spirit, and thence into his exterior thoughts, in which they appear under some sense of pleasure . . . and are there commingled with his natural and sensuous delights . . . These delights, being of his love in the external man, are the means of the separation, purification, excretion, and withdrawal of the delights of the concupiscences of evil of the external man. Examp.

—¹². If anyone were to see the delights of the concupiscences of evil together in some form, or were distinctly to perceive them with some sensation, he would see and perceive them in such a number that they could not be defined; for the whole Hell is nothing but a form of the concupiscences of evil, and there no concupiscence of evil is exactly like another, nor can there be to eternity; and of these innumerable concupiscences man knows scarcely anything, still less how they are connected together. The Lord, however, by His Divine Providence, is continually permitting them to come forth, to the end that they may be withdrawn, which is effected in the most perfect order and series . . .

300. All who are in Hell are nothing but concupiscences of evil and thence imaginations of falsity, which are so arranged that they are exactly opposite to the affections of good and thoughts of truth which are in Heaven . . . They who are in Hell make the concupiscences of evil the head, and the affections of good the feet, but they who are in Heaven make the affections of good the head, and the concupiscences of evil the soles of the feet.

—^e. Everyone is his own affection or concupiscence; an Angel is his own affection, and a Spirit of Hell his own concupiscence.

302. The arrangement of affections in Heaven, and of concupiscences in Hell, is marvellous, and known to the Lord alone. Both are distinguished into genera and species, and are so conjoined together as to act as one ; and as they are distinguished into genera and species, they are distinguished into societies greater or less ; and as they are conjoined together so as to act as one, they are conjoined together as are all things with man . . .

326¹². 'The lowing of the kine in the way' = the difficult conversion of the concupiscences of evil of the natural man into good affections.

R. 153³. Until they come into a Society which corresponds to the concupiscences of their own love . . .

323. (The destruction of all the good of the Church) through concupiscences, etc. Sig.

—. 'The beasts of the earth' = the concupiscences from that love.

382. That henceforth they shall have no concupiscence to evil, nor to the falsity of evil. Sig.

—. The understanding loves falsity, and burns from the concupiscence of confirming it.

422. The falsities of the concupiscences of the natural man which spring from the evils of their loves. Sig.

452. That in their thoughts and discourse, viewed inwardly, there is nothing, and from them there comes forth nothing, but the love of self and of the world, which is the proprium of the will ; the conceit of their Own intelligence, which is the proprium of the understanding ; and the concupiscence of evil and falsity, which is the common proprium that flows forth from the two former ones. Sig.

—. 'Brimstone' = the concupiscence of evil and falsity, which is the common proprium that flows forth from the two former ones.

458. That thus they are in the evils of their concupiscences, and make one with their like in Hell. Sig.

—. 'Demons' = the concupiscences of evils which originate from the love of the world. Ex. and Ill.

—². 'Ziim,' 'Ijim,' 'Ochim,' and 'the daughters of the owl' = various concupiscences.

678². All concupiscences of evil are in simultaneous order within the evil which man perceives in himself ; wherefore, when man rejects evil, he at the same time rejects its concupiscences, not from himself but from the Lord ; man can indeed reject evil of himself, but not its concupiscences ; wherefore, when he wants to reject evil, by fighting against it, he must look to the Lord, for the Lord operates from inmosts to ultimates . . .

863. They perished by the concupiscences of infernal love. Sig.

875³. Faith without charity is merely natural faith . . . and conjoins itself with merely natural affection, which is nothing but concupiscence.

952². By 'dogs' in general are signified those who are in concupiscences of every kind, and who indulge them.

M. 267. I there walked meditating about those who are in the concupiscence and thence the phantasy of possessing the things of the world . . . I then saw two Angels . . . They said they were conversing about phantasy, concupiscence, and intelligence . . . They said that everyone is inwardly in concupiscence from birth, but is outwardly in intelligence from education ; and no one is inwardly in intelligence, still less in wisdom . . . except from the Lord ; for everyone is withheld from the concupiscence of evil, and is held in intelligence according to his aspect towards the Lord, and at the same time according to his conjunction with Him ; without this, man is nothing but concupiscence : but still he is in intelligence from education in his externals, because he lusts for honours and wealth, and he cannot attain them unless he appears to be moral and spiritual, and so intelligent and wise . . . which is the reason why as soon as he goes into company he inverts his spirit, and removes it from concupiscence . . . and takes the greatest possible care lest anything of the mad concupiscence in which his spirit is should come forth . . . When such persons become Spirits, and thus emancipated, they become the madneses of their own concupiscences . . . wherefore, to prevent such from becoming mere concupiscences, and thus not men, it is permitted them in the Spiritual World to think from the fear of the loss of their reputation, etc. . . and also to apply their minds to some study or work . . . I asked, whether all who are in concupiscence are also in its phantasy. They replied, that those are in the phantasy of their own concupiscence who think inwardly, and indulge their imagination too much, talking to themselves . . .

269. The Angels related a number of memorable things concerning the concupiscence which is not visionary or fantastic in which is every man from his birth ; while they are in it they are like fools, and yet seem to themselves to be most eminently wise ; from this folly they are by turns remitted into the Rational which they have in externals, and in that state they see, acknowledge, and confess their insanity ; but still they are very desirous to get out of their rational into their insane state . . . Thus it is concupiscence, not intelligence, which inwardly pleases them.

293⁴. To put off all concupiscence for other women . . .

305. In the lowest region of the mind, which is called natural, reside all concupiscences of evil . . . In the higher region, which is called spiritual, there are not any concupiscences of evil . . .

455⁶. Whatever a man does at the beginning is from concupiscence, because from the natural man ; and who does not know that that concupiscence is not imputed to him, while, from natural, he is becoming spiritual ?

529. If he does evil from inexperience or from some prevalent concupiscence of the body, it is not imputed to him, because he has not deliberately purposed it, nor does he confirm himself in it. T. 523.

T. 302. By 'the six days of labour' (in the commandment) are signified combat against the flesh and its concupiscences . . .

313. That merely to feel concupiscence is 'to commit adultery,' is evident from these words of the Lord. 'Whosoever shall look at a strange woman, so as to lust after her, has already committed adultery with her in his heart.' The reason is, that concupiscence becomes as deed while it is in the will, for into the understanding there only enters allurements, but into the will intention, and the intention of concupiscence is deed.

[T.] 316. There are various causes which make a man appear chaste, not only to others, but even to himself, while he is wholly unchaste; for he does not know that when concupiscence is in the will it is deed, and that it cannot be removed except by the Lord after repentance; abstinence from doing does not constitute chastity, but abstinence from willing when he is able to do, because it is a sin, does constitute it. Ex.

325. (The two commandments commencing, 'Thou shalt not covet,' explained in their natural, spiritual, and celestial senses.)

326. These two commandments relate to all the preceding ones, and teach and enjoin that evils are not to be done, and also that they are not to be lusted after, consequently, that they are not only of the external man, but also of the internal; for he who does not commit evils, and yet lusts to do them, still does them; for the Lord says, 'If anyone shall lust for the wife of another, he hath already committed adultery with her in his heart;' and the external man does not become internal, or does not act as one with the internal, until concupiscences have been removed. This also the Lord teaches, saying . . . 'Cleanse first the inside of the cup and of the platter' . . . The internal things which are Pharisaic are the concupiscences for those things which are commanded not to be done in the first, second, fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth commandments.

— The internal things of the Church are not to lust after evils; and the Lord taught thus in order that the internal and external man may make one. This is being born 'born again,' of which the Lord spoke to Nicodemus . . .

328. The concupiscences of the flesh, of the eyes, and of the rest of the senses, when separated from the concupiscences, that is, the affections, desires, and delights of the spirit, are exactly like the concupiscences of beasts . . . Wherefore, in proportion as anyone indulges the concupiscences of the flesh, he is a beast, and a wild beast . . . The concupiscences of the flesh may be compared to scorched and withered grapes . . . also to stables in which there are asses, he-goats, and swine . . .

—^e. Concupiscence and deed cohere together like blood and flesh, like flame and oil; for concupiscence is in deed, as air from the lungs is in the breathing and in the speech . . . and as the wind is in the sail . . . and as the water is on the water-wheel . . .

382. Man's proprium is the concupiscence of his flesh . . .

455a. Every man who has not openly connected himself with evildoers . . . but has led a civil moral life . . . and yet has not bridled the concupiscences which reside in the internal man, may believe that his friendship is not (like a viper hidden in bread, etc.); but still that it is so in varied degree with them all . . .

539². There are innumerable concupiscences inherent, as in a ball, in every evil, which cannot be removed in a moment, but successively, as the man suffers himself to be reformed and regenerated.

568³. Have you ever examined your internal man, and perceived any concupiscences . . . For if these concupiscences remain in the internal man, thus in the will, and thence in the thought . . . then with you evil is above good, and good is below evil . . .

574. Hence it necessarily follows, that the natural man with its concupiscences must be mastered, subjugated, and inverted . . .

— A natural man differs from beasts as to the understanding; this can be elevated above the concupiscences of the will, and not only see, but govern them . . .

596. The flesh with its concupiscences must be mastered, before the spirit can act, and the man become new.

597. When the external man is subjugated, concupiscences are dispersed, and in their place are implanted affections of good and truth . . .

611. The things of the flesh . . . construct the first house of the mind, in which concupiscences dwell, like wild beasts in their dens; they first dwell in the outer courts, and by turns steal as it were into the underground rooms of that house, and afterwards they make their way up by ladders, and form chambers for themselves; and this is done by successive stages . . . Who does not see that this house . . . in which concupiscences dance with joined hands . . . cannot be destroyed in a moment, and a new house built in its place? Must not the concupiscences which hold each other by the hands, and so sport, be first removed, and new desires which are of good and truth be introduced in the place of the cupidities which are of evil and falsity? That these things cannot be done in a moment, every wise man sees from this alone, —that every evil is composed of innumerable concupiscences . . . Wherefore, unless one evil is brought forth after another, and this until their connection is broken up, man cannot be made new.

612. From birth man inclines to evils of every kind, and from inclination lusts after them . . .

674². Circumcision also signified the rejection of the concupiscences of the flesh, and thus purification from evils.

D. 2024^e. Thus was he taught that nothing is to be coveted except from use . . .

E. 982. Evil loves in their continuity are called cupidities, and also concupiscences.

1021². On the commandment, 'Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house.'

— There are two loves from which all concupiscences spring and perennially flow, like streams from their fountain-heads, the love of the world and the love of self; concupiscence is love continually willing, for what a man loves he continually desires; but concupiscences are of evil love . . . It follows, therefore, that the ninth commandment forbids the concupiscences which flow forth from the love of the world, and the tenth, the concupiscences which flow forth from the love of self. By not coveting the neighbour's house, is meant not to covet his goods, which in general are possessions and wealth, and to appropriate them by evil arts; this concupiscence is of the love of the world.

1022^e. On the tenth commandment, 'Thou shalt not covet or long for the wife of thy companion, his manservant, or his maid-servant, his ox or his ass.' These concupiscences are for a man's own proper things . . . But as to covet and long for these affections is to will and desire to subject the man to one's own authority, or to make ourselves the master of him, it follows that by concupiscences for these things are meant the concupiscences of self-love, that is, of the love of exercising command.

C. 206^e. The Lord then operates into him through the inmosts even to the outermosts, and removes the concupiscences, which are the roots of evil; this man cannot do from himself . . .

Conv. with Angels 1. One evil contains within it infinite concupiscences, interior and exterior, of which man knows nothing. All these are removed by the Lord when man looks to Him, and shuns evils as of himself. Inv. 8.

Concur. Concurrere.

A. 2768^e. (In what sense God concurs with temptations.)

5081. These things inwardly concur in man . . .

9394⁵. All the muscles and the moving fibres . . . are so arranged, as to concur in every action . . .

D. 1252. On the multitude of Spirits who concur to one single action of man.

Concurrent. Adjutrix. W. 382.

Concussion. See SHAKE—Concutere.

Condemn. Condemnare.

Condemnation. Condemnatio.

A. 741. Evil Spirits excite all the wrong deeds of a man . . . and condemn him; than which nothing is more delightful to them . . .

1011. 'Shall his blood be shed'=his condemnation.

— The internal sense is, that he who bears hatred against his neighbour, is thereby condemned to Hell.

— When charity is extinguished, man is left to his own proprium . . . and when external bonds are loosed, as takes place in the other life, he rushes into the most cruel and filthy things, thus into self-condemnation.

1079^e. When they who are in no charity come into the other life . . . they are constantly animated with a disposition to condemn, punish, and torment.

1088^e. Evil Spirits never excite anything but man's evils and falsities, and condemn him.

1363. It is the internal idolatrous worships which condemn man; the external ones not so much; the more interior and idolatrous worship is, the more it condemns; but the more exterior it is, the less.

1728^e. Truths condemn everyone to Hell . . .

1850⁵. With the man who is judged to death, each and all things condemn him . . .

3934⁷. Hence it is evident that works are what save man, and what condemn man; namely, good works save him, and evil ones condemn him.

3994². Wherefore, he despises others in comparison with himself, nay, he even condemns them . . .

7272^e. These evils condemn, but not to such a degree as evils from an evil origin . . .

8700². It is according to order, that those will be saved who have lived well, and those condemned who have lived evilly.

9160. 'The word of them both shall come even to God, whom God shall condemn' (Ex.xxii.9)=inquiry and judging between them by truth. . . 'To condemn' =to judge between them, and award the penalty to him who has done wrong.

10766. Everyone with whom the Church is, is saved, and everyone with whom the Church is not, is condemned.

R. 495. That he who condemns (these two essentials of the New Church), shall be in like manner condemned. Sig.

874. That those who have not lived according to the Lord's precepts in the Word, and have not believed in the Lord, are condemned. Sig.

M. 489^e. (In this case) those would be condemned who are condemned—damnantur—in the world.

D. 3169. On those who condemn others within themselves, and utter different things with the mouth.

4753. On the devastation and condemnation of the evil; that they are effected by themselves.

E. 629¹⁴. That we are not to think evilly about good and truth, is meant by, 'Judge not, that ye be not judged; condemn not, that ye be not condemned' (Luke vi. 37).

655¹⁰. 'To condemn Him, and to deliver Him to the gentiles' (Matt.xx.18,19)=to adjudge the Divine truth and the Divine good to Hell, and to deliver over to the evils and falsities thence.

Condemn. Damnare.

Condemnation. Damnatio.

A. 243. Made corporeal, and thus condemned. Sig.

249^e. 'Dust'=what is condemned and infernal. 275. 2327.

270^e. Dead men, if subjected to temptation . . . would precipitate themselves into a still deeper infernal condemnation.

279. Condemnation thence. Sig.

301. In the other life he is so condemned that there is no hope of his salvation.

561^e. If man had no remains, he could never but be in eternal condemnation.

751². When man is being tempted as to intellectual things . . . the evil Spirits excite, accuse, and condemn. 761.

1103. Such . . . condemn those who do not observe the externals of the Church.

1327³. The profanation of what is holy is attended with eternal condemnation.

[A.] 1798^e. Such condemn all who do not say that they believe, as they call it, as they do.

1838². Condemnation is predicated of the Lord . . . when yet it is of the man of the Church, who condemns himself; for it appears to man as if the Lord condemned him.

1986². Purification must precede, otherwise there is no conjunction, but condemnation. Sig.

2015¹⁰. Government from truths alone condemns everyone to Hell.

2051^e. Hence the danger of condemnation is greater to those who are within the Church. 2056^e.

2220. Their damnation is described by the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah.

2258. Divine truth condemns all to Hell; wherefore unless the Lord's mercy was eternal, which is of good, all men whatever would be damned. 2447². 2769^e.

—³. The reason the wicked are condemned to Hell, is not that the Divine good is separated from Divine truth, but it is because the man separates himself from the Divine good . . .

2335². To be judged from truth is to be condemned, because they have rejected good . . . When they are judged according to the acts of their life, and according to their thoughts and ends, they cannot but be condemned.

—³. Mercy itself, and good itself (which the Lord is), can never condemn anyone; but it is man, because he rejects good, who condemns himself. Sig. 2447².

2338². In this combat, the man seems to urge the Lord . . . to deliver from damnation . . .

2395. The states of evil in which they were, would condemn them. Sig.

2426. It could not be otherwise than that he would be in evil (and good) at once, and thus be condemned. Sig. . . If man is in evil and good at the same time, he cannot but be damned to eternity.

2444. 'To rain'=to be damned. 2445, Ex.

3398². Therefore those with whom this (profanation) takes place, have continually in themselves that which condemns them, thus their own Hell.

3402. The danger of eternal condemnation, if Divine truth and Divine good be profaned. Sig.

4031². When he reasons concerning . . . the damnation of many . . .

4190². Christians think . . . that all who are outside the Church will be damned.

4468. Then he who is of one doctrine condemns another, sometimes to Hell . . . But he who is in goodness of life, does not condemn another who has different sentiments . . . for he says in his heart, that ignorance can condemn no one . . .

4728². 'Hell'=where the damned are; their damnation is compared to . . .

—⁵. 'The excisions of the mountains' (Jon.ii.6)=where the most utterly damned are.

4779³. 'Dust on the head'=what is condemned on account of evil; 'to roll in ashes'=what is condemned on account of falsity.

4818². Damnation from falsified truth from evil. Sig.

5044¹¹. Hanging represented the damnation of profanation.

5156. 'He shall hang thee upon wood'=rejection and damnation . . . for hanging upon wood was a curse, and a curse is rejection by the Divine, consequently, damnation.

5432⁴. They seek nothing but blemishes, in order to accuse and condemn . . . They laugh at and condemn the veriest truths.

—^e. Such never condemn others . . .

5508². Thus are truth and falsity conjoined together in the interior man, and the truth is profaned, which has eternal damnation in it.

5605. 'Not to die'=to be no longer damned, or to be out of a state of damnation; for in the internal sense no other death is meant than spiritual death, which is damnation. 5759.

5759. That he is damned who does such a thing. Sig.

— Those who are outside of Heaven are damned.

— But this law is from judgment from truth; but when judgment is effected from good at the same time, they who do what is true and good, and through ignorance or simplicity attribute it to themselves, are not condemned, but in the other life are delivered through a method of vastation . . .

5899. Deliverance from damnation. Sig.

6097. All temptations appear evil, because they are interior anxieties and pains, and as it were damnations.

6119. Hence there arises from the shade an image of spiritual death, that is, of damnation. That 'death'=spiritual death, or damnation. Ill. 7021^e.

6140. No longer any fear of damnation. Sig. 'To die,' here,=the fear of damnation, because, in a state of desolation, while man is being regenerated, there is not damnation, but the fear of damnation.

6144. Through despair it is effectively and sensibly acknowledged that there is nothing of what is good and true from themselves, and that of themselves they are damned, but that they are delivered from damnation by the Lord . . . For when they come out of that state, they are like those who are delivered from prison after having been condemned to death.

6148⁶. Divine truth separated from Divine good condemns everyone, but Divine truth united to Divine good saves; by truth Divine man is condemned to Hell, but by Divine good he is taken out thence and raised into Heaven; salvation is of mercy, thus from Divine good; but there is condemnation when a man repels mercy, and thus rejects the Divine good from himself; thus he is left to the judgment of truth.

6358. Grievous aversion to good, and consequent damnation. Sig.

— 'To be cursed'=damnation, for he who is cursed is damned.

6534⁴. The pale horse, and he that sat upon him=damnation thence.

6588^e. 'Visitation'=recompense, thus damnation.

7039^e. Their afterwards perishing in the Red Sea represented the subsequent state of damnation, or of spiritual death of such . . .

7102. The avoidance of the damnation of evil and falsity. Sig.

—³. 'Pestilence'=the damnation of evil ; 'sword'=the vastation of truth, also the punishment of falsity, thus also damnation ; for the punishment of falsity, when truth has been devastated, is damnation.

—². As 'pestilence'=punishment, it also=damnation, for this is the punishment of those who persevere in evil.

—³. 'To die in the wastes by the sword'=to be in the vastation of truth, and thence in the damnation of falsity ; 'he who is upon the faces of the field to be given to the wild beast to be devoured'=the damnation of those who are in evil from falsity ; 'they who are in forts and caves to die by the pestilence'=the damnation of the evil which fortifies itself by falsity. Further Ill.

7155. A state near damnation. Sig. and Ex.

7206°. By these 'judgments' are condemned those who are in falsities from evil, and are saved those who are in truths from good ; not that the truths which proceed from the Lord condemn anyone, for all the truths which proceed from the Lord are from His Divine good, thus are nothing but mercies ; but as they do not receive the Lord's mercy, they expose themselves to condemnation, because they are then in evils, and evils condemn.

7264. It treats (in Ex.vii. et seq.) concerning the vastation, and at last the damnation of those who are in falsities and evils.

7272°. They believe evil not to be evil, or not to be condemnatory-damnabile.

7273. The damnation of those who are in evils, when they come into the other life, does not take place in a moment ; but after they have first been visited, that is, examined. The examinations take place in order that they themselves may perceive that they cannot but be damned . . . The order of truth Divine which exists with those who are being damned, differs from that which exists with those who are being saved ; the difference is, that the order which exists with those who are being damned, is that of truth Divine separated from Divine good, thus from mercy, because they have not received Divine good, and thus have rejected mercy . . . By degrees, as the evil are examined according to order, so are they judged and damned.

7320°. If falsities are a little removed, together with faith in them, truths condemn.

7418. 'Smite the dust of the earth'=that he should remove those things which are damned in the Natural. See Dusr.

—³. Humiliation, when genuine, is such as to acknowledge and perceive itself to be damned, but to be recovered from damnation by the Lord. Sig.

7474°. They who are in temptations are held in a state of damnation, hence their anguish and pain.

7522. The damnation of these falsities in the natural mind. Sig.

7763. It treats in this chap. (Ex.xi.) of the damna-

3 B

tion of those who are in faith separated from charity, which is signified by the death of the first-born in Egypt.

7766. The end of vastation, which is damnation. Sig.

—². After vastations they are in damnation ; the damnation is perceived by the stench which exhales from them, more than from those with whom such things had not been matters of faith.

7784. With those who are of the Spiritual Church there will be not the least of damnation and lamentation. Sig. and Ex.

7790. When those who have infested the upright are damned, all truth Divine departs from them, for they are then in the state of their own evil . . . Previous to their damnation, they did indeed know the truths of faith . . .

7795. The reason why the evil undergo so many states (of vastation, before they are condemned and sent into Hell.)

—². Justice reigns there ; no one is condemned until he himself knows, and is inwardly convinced, that he is in evil, and that he is utterly incapable of being in Heaven . . .

— (An evil man there) is deprived of the power of doing evil by means of falsifications of truth and simulations of good, which is effected successively from one degree to another, and at last condemnation follows, and sending down into Hell : this takes place when he comes into the evil of his own life.

7822. It treats in this chapter (Ex.xii.) of the deliverance of those who are of the spiritual Church, and of the damnation of those who are in faith separated from charity : the damnation of the latter and the deliverance of the former are represented by the passover.

7823. In the supreme sense, by the passover is represented the damnation of the unfaithful, and the deliverance of the faithful by the Lord, when He was glorified.

7851. 'In that night'=when the damnation of the evil took place. 'Night'=a state of devastation of truth and good, thus damnation ; for when there is no longer any truth and good, but only falsity and evil, there is damnation ; here, the damnation of those who have infested those of the Spiritual Church.

7871. 'I will smite all the first-born in the land of Egypt'=the damnation of those who are in faith separated from charity. 'To smite'=damnation, for to smite is to kill or put to death, and by death in the spiritual sense is signified damnation.

7877. 'I shall see the blood'=the apperception of that truth by those who bring damnation . . . that is, by the infernals. —³,Ex.

7878. 'I will pass by you'=that it will flee thence, namely, the damnation which is from the Hells . . . The sphere of damnation, which flows forth from the Hells, flees past those who are in truth and good from the Lord ; for damnation flows in with those who are in evil and falsity, because they are in a state of reception, but not with those who are in truth and good . . .

7879. That the damnation from Hell shall not flow in. Sig.

[A.7879.] With regard to Hell bringing damnation, the case is this : the devastation of the evil in the other life, also damnation, and also casting down into Hell, do not come immediately from the Spirit who is in evil, but from the Hells. Ex.

7889. 'Even that soul shall be cut off from Israel'=that he shall be separated from those who are of the Spiritual Church, and that he shall be damned.

—^e. When they are to be delivered from those who have infested them, damnation flows in from every side, and they who are in genuine good, or in good without falsity, will pass unharmed through the midst of damnation.

7909. If falsity is appropriated, that is, firmly believed, there is no reception of the good of innocence, consequently, no deliverance from condemnation.

7926. 'To inflict a plague upon Egypt'=whence comes damnation to those who are in faith separated from charity.

— In the other life, such are devastated as to all things of faith . . . and are at last condemned, which condemnation is meant in the internal sense by the death of the first-born in Egypt.

—². As it is said that 'Jehovah will pass through to inflict a plague upon Egypt,' and as by this is signified the presence of the Divine, whence comes the condemnation of those who are in faith separated from charity, it shall be explained how this is. The Lord does not present Himself before those who are in Hell in order to inflict damnation on them, but still it is His presence which does it. The Hells are continually in the desire of infesting the good . . . When the infernals let themselves in where the Lord is present . . . they cast themselves into the evils of vastation, and at last into damnation . . .

7952. That all the damned, when let into mere falsity from evil, perceive aversion and fear for those of the Spiritual Church. Sig.

— Whether you say a state of mere falsity from evil, or damnation, it is the same thing, for they who are in that state are damned.

7955. 'To call,' here,=afflux, because it is said of those who are in a state of damnation, that is, who are in a state of mere falsity from evil . . .

7969^e. They who were in damnation were completely devastated of such things. Sig.

8018. 'Jehovah brought forth the Sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt'=that the Lord delivered from damnation those who were in the good of truth and the truth of good.

8039. To this end the Spiritual Church were first safely conveyed through the midst of damnation, and then they underwent temptations, the Lord being constantly present. The passage through the midst of damnation is signified by the passage of the Sea Suph.

8099. 'The Sea Suph'=damnation, which they first passed through. . . As the Sea Suph=Hell, it also=damnation. 8333.

— (The passage of the spiritual through damnation. Ex.)

8132. The thought of those who are in condemnation. Sig.

— 'Pharaoh'=those who infest through falsities, here, those who are in condemnation, that is, in mere falsities from evil, for they who are merely in these are in condemnation.

8146². In the preceding chapters it treated of vastation . . . and at last of reduction to a state in which they were in mere falsities from evil, thus in condemnation; in this chapter it treats of their being cast down into Hell, for casting down into Hell follows condemnation.

8165. If there is condemnation, it is all the same whether it comes through the falsities of those who infest, or from a state of temptations in which they would yield. Sig.

—^e. For they who yield in temptations come into a state of condemnation. Ex.

8169. Condemnation through the violence of falsity in a state of infestations, was to be preferred to the condemnation which comes through yielding in a state of temptations. Sig.

—^e. The greatest and most direful condemnation of all is condemnation from profanation.

8237. 'Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the sea-shore'=the aspect of the damned scattered here and there. Ex.

8265^e. Condemnation from the mere presence of the Lord. Sig. 8306.

8311. With these, falsities do not condemn, unless they are such falsities as are against good, and as destroy the very life of good.

8333. It is said that they came into the sea, and afterwards that Jehovah brought back upon them the waters of the sea, by which is signified that they sank down into Hell; for they come into condemnation before they come into Hell.

8388. To confess sins is to know evils . . . and to condemn ourselves on their account.

8478². These cares are not only forbidden, but condemned. . . That they are condemned is signified by what was left of the manna breeding worms, and becoming putrid.

8552. Unless man is . . . created anew, he is damned . . .

8620. By the Divine forgetfulness or oblivion, is signified damnation.

9008. 'Dying he shall die' (Ex.xxi.12)=damnation. 'The reason death'=damnation, is that with those who are damned, the truths of faith and the goods of love are extinguished . . . and then in their place there succeed falsities and evils . . . which are of spiritual death, which is damnation, Hell, and eternal unhappiness. 9020.

9014. 'Thou shalt take him from Mine altar, that he may die' (ver.14)=damnation although he flee to the worship of the Lord, supplicate for forgiveness, and promise repentance. Ex.

9020. The reason they are damned who apply the truths of faith to evil . . . is that they had first acknowledged them . . .

9069. Evil from the Voluntary, and not at the same time from the Intellectual, does not condemn. Sig. and Ex.

9075. The damnation of the internal man. Sig.

9077. Deliverance from damnation is here treated of; and man can only be delivered from damnation by the removal of evil.

9093⁴. Belshazzar's being slain in that night, signified the deprivation of the life of truth and good, thus damnation.

9192². They who are in genuine truths are often damed.

9286. Permanent worship and thanksgiving of the Lord on account of deliverance from damnation. Sig.

—². The successive degrees of deliverance from damnation are circumstanced as are the successive degrees of regeneration . . .

9330. The flight and condemnation of falsities. Sig. and Ex.

9723^o. In the opposite sense, 'ashes'=what is condemned remaining after combustion by the fire of self-love.

9965². Condemnation because sins are not removed. Sig.

— . No one is condemned on account of the omission of external rites, but on account of evils of heart, thus on account of the omission of external rites from evil of heart. Sig.

10623. The rejection and condemnation of evils and thence of falsities in a long series. Sig.

— . 'To visit'=the casting out and condemnation of evils.

— . The casting out and condemnation of evils and thence of falsities, means the casting out and condemnation of those who are in evils and thence falsities . . .

—³. The reason 'visitation'=casting out and condemnation, is that it follows the consummation of evils, and precedes the condemnation itself which is meant by 'the Last Judgment.'

10624. The condemnation of falsities, and thence of evils. Sig.

S. 12². 'Death'=eternal condemnation.

92. Heresies themselves do not condemn men, but an evil life; also the confirmations from the Word of the falsities which are in the heresies, and by reasonings from the natural man. . . To live evilly, and to confirm falsities even to the destruction of genuine truth, condemns . . . T.254.

Life 65. All nations that do not live their precepts from religion are condemned.

P. 83². The first state of man, which is a state of condemnation. Des.

86^o. Hence it is evident, that evils do not condemn a regenerate man, and that goods do not save him.

313³. By the condemnation of the serpent is signified the condemnation of man's Own love and Own intelligence; by the condemnation of Eve, the condemnation of man's Own Voluntary; and by the condemnation of Adam, the condemnation of man's Own Intellectual.

340⁵. By this faith damnation is imputed to the Lord. Ex.

R. 321. The extinction of spiritual life, and thence damnation. Sig. E.383.

634³. All that which enters only into the thought and understanding does not condemn, but that condemns which enters into the will, for this enters the life and becomes permanent . . .

676⁴. Wherefore, they reject the goods and truths of Heaven . . . and at last condemn them, because they have felt as it were infernal torment from them.

783. The state before damnation. Sig.

853. With these there is no damnation. Sig.

873. With these there is damnation itself. Sig.

I. 10⁴. Spiritual death is damnation, and there is damnation with those who believe life to be from nature . . .

T. 14. The man who does not acknowledge God, is excommunicated from the Church, and condemned. Gen.art.

—^e. Hence it is evident, that he who denies God, is already among the damed, and that after death he is gathered to his own people.

72. Say, therefore, from whom and in whom is the cause of the damnation of those who perish.

118. To redeem signifies to deliver from damnation . . .

341². As it is impossible for God to damn anyone who lives well, and believes rightly, so it is impossible for God to save anyone who lives evilly, and thence believes falsities . . .

403³. No man of sound reason can condemn wealth . . . nor can he condemn the honours which are attached to offices . . .

514^o. If they sink in damnable evils . . .

526^o. Otherwise the reception of the holy Communion does nothing else but increase your damnation.

582. (They believe that such) are not under the condemnation of the law . . .

D. 228. On the state of the damed in Hell. A.699.

2583. Man is condemned to eternal suffering, for he has deserved it; but of the Lord's mercy, damnation is at last taken away, but through vastations and sufferings . . .

E. 272³. Lamentation is here described by 'anger' and 'condemnation' (Ps.lxxxix.39).

Condensation. Condensatio. A.8197.

Condescend. Condescendere.

Condescension. Condescendia.

A. 4245. The condescension and humiliation of truth before good. Sig.

4368³. They are sad because they are deprived of deference.

4472. Condescension as to life. Sig.

—^e. Hamor condescended to the external things of the sons of Jacob.

4474. A desire to condescend to it, thus to accept it. Sig.

4755. 'His brethren hearkened'=deference.

[A.] 883⁵. To bend the wills of others by ideas variously formed to condescension.

Condition. Conditio.

A. 933³. Such is the condition of man . . . D.2629.

944. Women who from a sordid and low condition have become rich . . .

4145³. An equal condition on both sides, or a desired condition.

4870. What is reciprocal with a condition, Sig.

H. 358. Man is permitted to dwell magnificently according to his condition. 359.

M. 287. Marriages of a dissimilar state and condition . . .

320⁶. Limited to their equals in state and condition . . .

D. 1167. On the difference of the condition of men and Spirits, as to societies. 2406.

1221a. According to the condition of each . . . 2513.

1260⁶. He had been a man of small condition . . .

Conduce. Conducere.

A. 2477. Whether it is advantageous for Spirits to use the exterior memory . . .

2479. Whatever conduces to the use of eternal life, H.465.

3951. 'Because in hiring I have hired thee in my son's mandrakes' (Gen.xxx.16) = that thus it was stipulated.

5224². What profit is there in knowing this . . .

5293. All that which conduces to use . . .

8966. Temptations conduce to confirm the truths of faith . . .

H. 278³. They know that they receive as much as is profitable for them; few things, they for whom little is profitable, and many things, they for whom much is profitable; and they do not know what is profitable for them, but the Lord alone . . .

400³. If it conduces [to any good purpose].

479⁵. It imbibes such liquids as conduce to its vegetation.

W. 420³. The blood nourishes itself with profitable things—conducibilibus—from the air . . .

M. 296. To choose what is profitable—conducibile . . .

T. 362². Whatever conduces to his temporal and his eternal life . . .

376. Charity and faith do not profit a man while . . .

Cone. Conus.

A. 958. (The punishment of the cone.)

5389. Their method of operating is . . . sharp-pointed in the form of a cone; the evil Spirits who are cast within that cone, especially at the upper part, are miserably tormented by reciprocal turnings in different ways. D.870.

Confasciculation. Confasciculatio.

W. 195. By confasciculations, or conglobations . . . See 207.

P. 180². There is a perpetual confasciculation of all things . . . —4.

T. 351³. The perpetual confasciculations of the fibrils . . .

Confederacy. Liga. H.229. T.611⁶.

Confederate. Confoederatus. M.358². Coro.47.

Conference. Colloquutio.

A. 1791. Internal conference with Jehovah . . .

2802. The conference of the Lord with His Father . . .

6752⁹. Conference with the Lord is through the Word.

Confess. Confiteri, Fateri.

Confession. Confessio.

Confessor. Confessor.

A. 226⁶. In order that man may acknowledge and confess.

383. A kind of confession that he is in evil, from a certain internal pain. Sig.

427. Confession, Sig.

983⁶. Affections of truth are signified by 'confession, and the voice of them that play' (Jer.xxx.19).

2329. Interior acknowledgment and confession of the Lord's Divine Human and holy proceeding. Sig.

— Interior confession is of the heart, and comes forth in humiliation, and at the same time in the affection of good; but exterior confession is of the mouth, and can come forth in mock humiliation, and in a mock affection of good; as with those who confess the Lord for the sake of self-honour and gain . . .

2694⁴. When they are reduced to such a state that they perceive Hell in themselves . . . they can be brought into a true confession of faith . . .

3120. These are words of acknowledgment and confession, and all acknowledgment and confession are from the perception of influx.

3861⁶. The confessing from which Judah was named.

3868⁶. In the confession which is called the Apostles' Creed . . .

3880. 'This time will I confess Jehovah' (Gen.xxix.35) in the supreme sense, = the Lord; in the internal sense, the Word; in the external sense, doctrine thence derived; here, the Divine of love and His Celestial Kingdom. That 'to confess,' in the external sense, = doctrine from the Word, is manifest; for confession is nothing else, even in common discourse, than a declaration of one's faith before the Lord; thus it comprehends in it those things which a man believes, and thus those which to him are doctrine. That 'to confess,' in the internal sense, = the Word, follows therefrom; for all the doctrine of faith and of charity must be from the Word . . . That 'to confess,' in the supreme sense, = the Lord, is because the Lord is the Word . . . Hence it is, that 'to confess Jehovah' = the Divine of love, and His Celestial Kingdom; for the Lord is Divine love itself, and the influx of this makes His Kingdom, and this through the Word which is from Him. 'Judah,' who was named from the confessing of Jehovah, = the Divine of love, and the Lord's Celestial Kingdom.

—². But what 'to confess,' and 'confession' are, is evident from the places in the Word where they are mentioned. Ill.

—⁴. 'Confession,' and 'to confess,' (are celestial expressions).

— Hence it is evident that 'confession' involves the Celestial of love; and that genuine confession, or that which is from the heart, is solely from good. Ill.

—⁷. The very confession of the heart, being from celestial love, is confession in the genuine sense. The man who is in this confession acknowledges that all good is from the Lord, and all evil from himself. . . When confession takes place from this state, it is then from celestial love.

—⁸. The sacrifices of confession which there were in the Jewish Church, were thanksgivings, and in a universal sense, were called eucharistic and retributory sacrifices, which were of two kinds, namely, of confession, and votive. That the sacrifices of confession involved the Celestial of love, is evident from their institution (Lev. vii. 11-15). All the things here mentioned = the celestial things of love and faith, and confessions thence, and that they must take place in humiliation.

399¹⁰. After confession, has been told by his confessor that he is cleansed . . .

4221. One who had confessed God with the mouth, yet had not acknowledged Him with the heart.

4295². This the Angels openly confess . . . —.

4779⁸. Humiliation is effected through the confession of the heart that he is such . . .

5323³. 'Crying' is an act which corresponds to living confession, or acknowledgment from faith. Ill.

5470⁶. With those who are in anxiety, there is an internal acknowledgment of evil, which, when it is recalled by the Lord, becomes confession, and at last repentance.

5747³. It is one thing to confess from doctrine, and quite a different thing to confess from faith; many can confess from doctrine, even they who are not in good . . . but none can confess from faith except those who are in spiritual good . . .

5785. Confession. Sig.

6563. The confession that they had sinned. 6565.

7272². Confesses the Lord's mediation.

7293⁵. For the sake of commanding and profiting, they confess the truths and goods of faith with the mouth.

7857⁶. The glorification of the Lord . . . proceeds from the affection of the truth which is of faith, as also does all confession.

8387. He who wants to be saved must confess his sins, and do repentance. N. 159.

8388. To confess sins is to know evils, to see them in ourselves, to acknowledge them, to make ourselves guilty of them, and to condemn ourselves on account of them; when this is done before God, it is to confess sins. N. 160.

8390. He who only universally acknowledges that he is a sinner, and makes himself guilty of all evils, and does not examine himself, that is, see his sins; makes confession, but not the confession of repentance, for he lives afterwards as he did before. N. 162.

9391⁴. Confession and thanksgiving from a good heart. Sig.

9475. Those things of worship which are perceived as grateful; as confessions, adorations, prayers, and the like. Sig.

9670⁶. By the confession of sins upon the living goat, which was sent forth into the wilderness, is signified the separation and casting out of evil by good in every possible way.

10023⁵. By the laying on of their hands upon the burnt-offering and upon the sacrifice, was signified the whole of the worship of him who was making the offering, namely, the acknowledgment of sins, confession, thence purification, the implantation of good and truth, thus conjunction with the Lord . . .

10219³. In order to be delivered from evils, this acknowledgment must not be a confession of the month only, but a confession of the very heart.

H. 482. They afterwards confessed that . . .

L. 55³. The life of all Heaven, and the wisdom of all the Angels, are founded upon the acknowledgment and the consequent confession of one God . . .

Life 49. They themselves confessed that they had no faith.

P. 278a. On those who confess themselves guilty of all sins, and do not investigate anything in themselves.

— He believes that after confessions he is clean and washed, when yet he is unclean and unwashed from head to foot; for a confession of all things is a lulling of all things, and at last a blinding; and is like a universal without any singulars, which is not anything.

R. Pref. IV. (The doctrine of the Roman Catholics concerning confession, stated.)

112. As by Antipas the martyr is signified a confessor of the truth . . .

170. 'I will confess his name before the Father, and before His Angels' (Rev. iii. 5) = that those are to be received who are in Divine good and Divine truths from the Lord . . . 'To confess the name' of anyone, is to recognize his quality. E. 200.

224⁶. To do repentance is . . . once or twice a year to examine one's self, to see one's evils, to confess them before the Lord . . .

253. The confession that to the Lord belong . . . Sig.

276. The confession of the Lord's Divine Human from spiritual truths. Sig.

—². (The term confess ill. from the Word.)

277. The confession of the Lord's Divine Human from spiritual goods. Sig.

— Whether you say worship, or confession, is all the same, for all worship is confession.

286. The confession and glorification of the Lord by the Angels of the lower Heavens. Sig.

288. Confession from the heart that to the Lord as to the Divine Human belong . . . Sig.

367. Confession from Divine truths. Sig.

522. A confession and glorification by the Angels of Heaven . . . Sig.

[R.] 616. A confession of the Lord from gladness of heart by the spiritual Angels in the lower Heavens. Sig.

662. A confession from charity, etc., concerning the Divinity of the Lord's Human. Sig.

803. Thanksgiving, confession, and celebration of the Lord by the Angels of the lower Heavens on account of the removal of the Babylonians. Sig.

923. They who enter bring with them confession, acknowledgment, and faith that . . . Sig.

T. 1107. I asked . . . whether he confessed that God is one. He replied that he confessed it. I said, But I fear that the confession of your heart is that there is no God . . . The confession of the mouth that God is one expels the thought that there are three, and the thought of the mind expels from the mouth the confession that He is one . . .

172. The idea of a trinity of gods cannot be abolished by the oral confession of one God. Gen.art. 173.

342². The Lord said that His Church should be built on the truth and confession that He is the Son of God.

516. The mere oral confession that one is a sinner is not repentance. Gen.art. 529.

519^e. This general confession precedes and follows reformation and regeneration.

538. Confession ought to be made before the Lord God the Saviour, and afterwards supplication for aid and power to resist evils. Gen.art.

539. There are two obligations incumbent on man after examination ; supplication and confession . . . The confession must be, that he sees, knows, and acknowledges his evils, and finds himself to be a miserable sinner. There is no need to enumerate sins before the Lord, or to beg for their forgiveness . . . because the man has searched them out and seen them in himself, and therefore they are present with the Lord because they are present with the man. Moreover, the Lord led him in the examination . . .

—^c. But still it does no harm for one who is burdened in conscience to enumerate his sins before a minister of the Church, for the sake of absolution ; because he is thus introduced into the habit of self-examination . . . But this confession is natural ; whereas that described above is spiritual.

562². I asked some who were attached to the Roman Catholic religion about their actual confession before their ministers, whether it was made with resistance ; and they replied that after they were initiated into it, they did not fear to recount their trespasses to a confessor who was not severe, and that they gathered their trespasses together with a kind of pleasure, telling the lighter ones cheerfully, but the more serious ones somewhat timidly . . . Some of the same Church, but who lived in countries where there were the Reformed ; and who . . . did not make a special confession, like their brethren elsewhere, but only a general confession . . . said that they were quite unable to search themselves . . .

D. 1261. He had not dared to confess it to a priest . . .

2660. (The confession of filthy sins corresponds to the manuring of the soil.)

E. 3237. Confession from spiritual good and from spiritual truth is here expressed by, 'Answer ye to Jehovah by confession, and play to our God on the harp' (Ps.cxlvii.7).

326³. 'To sing,' and 'to sing a song'=acknowledgment and confession from joy of heart. Ill.

391¹². 'To make the voice of confession to be heard' (Ps.xxvi.7)=worship from truths.

392³. On the man's part the confession of the Lord, and the acknowledgment of His Divine in His Human. Sig.

431⁸. Worship thence is signified by 'confessing the name of Jehovah.'

C. 206. The confession of one's sins before the Lord effects conjunction with Him, and the reception of influx from Him . . .

Confidence. Confidentia.

Confide, Trust. Confidere.

Confidently. Confidenter.

See TRUST.

A. 1076². Some suppose faith to be confidence.

1679^e. Self-justification, and confidence, are the evils thence derived.

1788. Relatively to man, 'a shield'=confidence in the Lord's protection. —², Ill.

—³. 'O Israel, trust thou in Jehovah . . . O house of Aaron, trust in Jehovah . . . Ye that fear Jehovah, trust in Jehovah' (Ps.cxv.9-11).

—'. 'My God, in Him will I trust . . . Under his wings shalt thou trust' (Ps.xci.2,4).

1812. From inmost confidence and continual faith, that as He was combating for the salvation of the universal human race, from pure love, He could not but overcome. Sig.

3938⁶. He believes that if at the last hour he has the confidence of faith . . . he can come into Heaven.

4007^e. There are two things which all who enter Heaven put off, proprium and thence confidence, and self-merit.

4352². As there is never anything of faith, except with those who are in the good of love, so neither is there any confidence or trust. The trust or confidence, which is called faith, with others than those who are in love and charity, is either spurious, or is such as may exist with diabolical Spirits, when in a state of fear or suffering, or in a state of persuasion from the love of self and of the world. But as at this day they have made faith without the goods of charity saving, and yet they see from afar, that the truths of faith cannot save, because they exist also with the evil, they therefore acknowledge confidence and trust, and call it faith, not knowing what it is, and that it too is possible with the evil, and that there is no spiritual confidence, except that which flows in through the good of love and of charity ; not when a man is in fear and suffering, or in persuasion from the love of self and of the world, but when he is in a free state ; nor with any others than those with whom good is conjoined with truths, and is inrooted by the preceding course of life ; thus not in diseases misfortunes, danger to life, or at the point of death. If that confidence, or trust, which makes its appearance under compulsion, would save man, all mortals would be saved, for every-one could easily be reduced to it . . .

4500. 'Confidently' (Gen. xxxiv. 25) = from trust; here, from the trust of falsity and evil.

4683². They place the saving power of faith in confidence . . . not knowing that all confidence derives its being from the end of life, and that genuine confidence is not possible except in good; and as they still further separate faith from charity, they also persuade that the mere confidence of a single moment . . . saves.

4690³. But they who think that the doctrinal things of faith, or the knowledge of them, cannot save anyone, and that few are in the life of faith, call faith confidence; but these are more learned than others.

5286³. All the law and the prophets are founded in love to God and the neighbour . . . thus not in faith alone, consequently neither in confidence, for this is not possible without charity towards the neighbour. If it should appear with the evil during danger to life, or when death is at the door, that confidence is either spurious or false, for in the other life not a whit of that confidence appears with them, however much, when death was near, they had with apparent ardour made profession of it. That faith, whether you call it confidence, or trust, effects nothing with the evil, the Lord Himself teaches in John i. 12, 13. Ex.

5963⁸. Without such faith or confidence in the Lord, no one can ever come to the tranquillity of peace.

6272². Life makes the Church with man, but not doctrine without life, thus neither does confidence, which is eminent faith, for genuine confidence is possible only with those who are in charity, and the life of confidence is thence derived.

7272². If only before expiring, from apparent confidence, he confesses the Lord's mediation . . .

7762. The confidence, or trust, which is said to be of faith, and is called faith, is not spiritual confidence, or trust, but natural. Spiritual confidence or trust has its essence and life from the good of love, but not from the truth of faith separated therefrom. The confidence of separated faith is dead; wherefore true confidence is not possible with those who have led an evil life. The very confidence that there is salvation through the Lord's merit, whatever the life has been, is not even from truth.

8455. Peace has in it confidence in the Lord . . . A state of peace takes away all evil, especially self-confidence.

8764⁸. 'To trust under His wings' (Ps. xvii. 8) = the confidence which is of faith.

8798. Those who through any self-confidence infuse themselves. Sig.

8987³. The learned believe that faith is the confidence or trust that they are saved through the Lord's having suffered for them . . . and they who have this confidence they call saved . . . But they do not consider that the confidence of faith cannot exist except with those who live the life of charity. N. 115.

9188⁶. 'Sorcerers' = those who are learned from themselves, and confide in themselves alone.

9241. As to the trust and confidence, which is called faith itself, the case is this; they who are in the love of self and of the world, that is, who are in evils and thence in falsities, cannot have that faith, for their heart is not towards God, but towards themselves and the world. But they who are in charity towards the neighbour, and in love to the Lord, can have such faith, for their heart is towards the Lord. This the Lord teaches in John i. 12, 13. N. 115.

9242. The confidence, which in an eminent sense is called faith, appears as if it were spiritual confidence with the evil also, when they are in danger to life, and when they are ill; but these, because they are then thinking about the state of their life after death, either from fear of Hell, or from self-love in respect to Heaven, have not the confidence of faith. Ex.

—^e. Hence it is evident, that the faith which is called confidence, is possible only with those who are in charity towards the neighbour, and in love to the Lord.

9243. Hence it is evident again, that neither is there the confidence of faith with those (who are in evils from the love of self and of the world).

9244. All who are in heavenly love, have confidence that they will be saved by the Lord . . .

10283⁵. 'To trust in man, and make flesh his arm' (Jer. xvii. 5) = to trust in himself, and in his own proprium.

H. 526³. (No one who has led an evil life is received into Heaven) however much he has spoken in the world from that trust—fiducia—or confidence which is meant by faith in an eminent sense.

M. 155a³. Wives are as it were ardent zeals for the preservation of marriage friendship and confidence . . .

162. The love of the spirit, and that of the body from the spirit, is insinuated into the souls and minds of married partners together with friendship and confidence; when these two conjoin themselves with the first love of marriage, there is effected marriage love . . .

167². Marriage love would then be banished to such a degree, that there would no longer remain any hope of friendship, confidence, and the bliss of dwelling together . . .

180. That the states of marriage love are . . . full confidence, etc.

333. Except with one wife, marriage love is not possible, consequently neither are true marriage friendship, confidence . . . Gen. art.

334. As true marriage love conjoins the souls and hearts of two, it is united with friendship, and through this with confidence, and makes them both conjugal, which are so pre-eminent to other friendships and confidences, that as that love is the love of loves, so is that friendship the friendship of friendships, and in like manner that confidence.

T. 137⁵. The Lord causes faith to become, in such as believe in Him, conviction, trust, and confidence; thus natural faith becomes spiritual . . .

344. The being of the faith of the New Church is, first, confidence in the Lord God the Saviour Jesus Christ; second, trust that . . .

D. 1386^e. This signified such confidence, with pride . . .

E. 163^d. 'They who trust in the mountains of Samaria' (Amos vi. 1)=those who trust in themselves, and hatch doctrines from their Own intelligence.

283^e. 'To trust under the deep' (Ps. xci. 4)=scientific truth, which is the Divine Spiritual Natural.

316¹⁰. 'The fortress and the rock in which he will trust' (Ps. xviii. 2)=protection.

326³. Occurs. 654^{5d}. 746⁶. 815^d. 911¹⁴.

355³⁶. As they trust in themselves . . .

365⁷. Therefore the Lord says, 'Be of good courage, I have overcome the world.' 806⁵.

406⁶. 'The isles shall hope in Me, and upon Mine arm shall they trust' (Is. li. 5)=the accession of those to the Church who are remote from the truths of the Church, and their trust in the Lord Who has all power. 724²².

555²⁰. 'Ye careless sons' (Is. xxxii. 9)=falsities with those who trust in their Own intelligence. See 919³.

556. The sensuous man is in self-confidence and in faith that he is wiser than everybody else . . . and when he has persuaded himself of this, in all things he says there are this confidence and faith; hence his speech, being resonant with these things, fascinates and infatuates the minds of others, for the sound of confidence and faith produces such an effect, as especially manifests itself in the Spiritual World, where man speaks from his spirit; for the affection of self-confidence and thence of the faith that it is so, is in the spirit of man, and the spirit of man speaks from affection; it is otherwise in the natural world . . .

627¹². Their confidence is signified by, 'the staff of a reed.'

650². 'To dwell confidently in the wilderness, and to sleep in the woods' (Ezek. xxxiv. 25)=that they will be safe from infestation by these things, although they are in them and among them. 701¹⁸.

684¹³. 'Blessed are all they that put their trust in Him' (Ps. ii. 12)=salvation through love and faith in the Lord. 850³.

799⁸. 'I will trust in the covert of Thy wings' (Ps. lxi. 4)=in Divine truths.

Confine. Coarctare, Coarctatio.

A. 6610. With such the ideas of thought are exceedingly confined.

7810. There was a painful contraction around the middle of the belly . . .

10492². The abdomen contracts itself, together with the respiration . . .

H. 169. The thoughts are finited and confined in proportion as they derive from time, space, and matter. 266².

P. 319. The stretching and closing together of the lobules of the lungs.

Confine. Compingere. A. 6620. T. 184.

Confines. See BORDER.

Confirm. Confirmare.

Confirmation. Confirmatio.

Confirmer. Confirmator.

A. 11. The fifth state is that in which he speaks from faith, and thence confirms himself in what is true and good.

63. Through combats, the Lord confirms him in what is true and good.

128⁶. He confirms himself through rational, scientific, sensuous, and natural things; and the things which are not confirmatory, he separates. D. 2604.

129. Thus is he confirmed in falsities.

—^e. One ought to believe the Word, and confirm spiritual and celestial truths by means of natural truths . . .

208. They would not believe things revealed, unless they saw them confirmed by sensuous and scientific things.

589. It is one thing to confirm false principles from the Word, and another to believe simply what is in the Word. He who confirms false principles, first assumes a principle . . . 845².

794. Who is there that adopts a principle of falsity who does not confirm it by much of the knowledge he has, and even by the Word? Is there any heresy which does not lay hold of things confirmatory?

845². The case is worse with those who have confirmed themselves in falsities from cupidities . . .

984^e. Every regenerate man may know the nature of this multiplication (of truths), for things confirmatory are always coming forward, from the Word, the Rational of man, and from scientifics, and he thus confirms himself more and more.

1106. (The duration of the vastations) is according to the principles which they have confirmed with themselves . . .

1109. They who have completely confirmed themselves in false principles, are reduced into total ignorance, and then there prevails with them what is dim and confused, to such a degree, that when they merely think about those things in which they have confirmed themselves, they feel inward pain. After a lapse of time, they are as it were created anew, and imbued with the truths of faith.

1110. They who have placed righteousness and merit in good works . . . and have confirmed themselves therein in thought and life . . . seem to themselves to be cutting wood . . .

1295. The falsities thence derived do not do much harm, provided he has not confirmed himself by many things . . .

—². But falsity is of cupidities when the origin of the falsity is cupidity . . . as when anyone seizes on a certain doctrinal thing . . . and confirms it both by reasonings from scientifics, and from the literal sense of the Word.

1366. They who are born in any heresy, and have confirmed themselves in its falsities so that they have completely persuaded themselves, can with difficulty, if ever, be brought to receive truths which are contrary to their falsities.

1668. Evils, or evil Spirits, rebel in proportion as the man who wants to be in goods and truths confirms with himself any evils and falsities . . .

1679². The very life of man is what desires . . . When he confirms with himself this life, cupidity, or love, all things confirmatory are falsities, and are implanted in his life.

1695². When evil Spirits have been conquered . . . they at once perceive that what is good and true has been confirmed with the man . . . From the very sphere of a man who is confirmed in what is true and good, they know at once how the case is . . .

1712². It is otherwise if this is done from ignorance not confirmed, for then these evils and falsities are easily dispersed; but if they confirm themselves in the idea that they can do good and resist evil of their own strength . . . this remains adjoined to them . . .

1740². The reason evils and falsities are conquered through combats . . . is that they are thus dissipated, and then goods and truths succeed them, which are afterwards more and more confirmed, and so they are strengthened.

1802⁴. (General truths confirmed by particulars.)

2094³. The spiritual (Angels) are also confirmed by such things as are contained in the internal sense . . .

2165³. Thus in their external worship they are confirmed in the goods which are signified by 'bread.'

2220³. That they have no mercy, is described by 'their not strengthening the hand of the poor and needy' (Ezek. xvi. 49).

2261². The worst men . . . can seize on truths of faith, and confirm them by many things . . .

2272. Temptations take place, not only that man may be confirmed in truths . . . 2334.

2284². Good and truth are received variously, according to the life of evil, and according to the principles of falsity in which the man has confirmed himself.

2333. Confirmation in good and truth. Sig. 2340; Sig. 2343.

2338. In temptation . . . the good Spirits and Angels . . . at last confirm the affirmative.

2348. Falsities and evils, recent and confirmed. Sig. —. 'Old men' = confirmed truths; 'old women,' confirmed goods.

2385³. Any principle . . . once taken up, can be confirmed by innumerable things . . . Hence come heresies, from which, when once confirmed, one never recedes. 2477.

—. When a false principle is confirmed by truths, they become truths falsified.

—⁴. It is quite otherwise if the truth itself is accepted as a principle, and this is confirmed . . .

2538². It is one thing to believe from the Rational . . . and another to confirm and corroborate that which is believed, by rational, scientific, and sensuous things.

2540. Clear perception, and the light of confirmation from celestial good. Sig.

2542. Exhortation to things confirmatory thence. Sig. —. The Rational only acknowledges from things confirmatory, hence it is that when rational things are being reduced to obedience, exhortation to things confirmatory takes place.

2567². The celestial and spiritual things of the Word and of doctrine . . . made to serve for confirming falsities and evils. Sig.

2568². To regard rational things from the doctrine of faith, is first to believe the Word, or doctrine thence, and afterwards confirm the same by rational things . . . —³.

2588³. They can then enter into whatever rational, scientific, and sensuous things they like, and the more they enter, the more they are confirmed, for universal nature is full of confirmation. But they who deny this first and chief thing of doctrine, and want first to be convinced that it is so by rational and scientific things, are never convinced . . . and the same at last so blind themselves by confirmations of their principle . . .

—¹⁵. Hence it is evident what the quality of man's Rational and Scientific is, when they are subordinated to Divine truths, and serve for confirming them.

2689³. With those who are able to become spiritual men, this affirmative is confirmed by scientifics and Knowledge . . .

2715⁶. The spiritual man . . . still debates whether it is so, unless he is confirmed by much experience: which the celestial never do . . .

2718². They who are in the affection of truth . . . debate whether it is so, and when they are confirmed that it is so, they . . . debate what it is.

2760, Pref. Everyone confirms his own dogma from the literal sense of the Word. 6222².

2857. Every temptation in which man conquers elevates his mind, for it confirms goods and truths . . . 4586^e.

2935². Everything which asserts and confirms love and charity is truth.

3175. Even an instructed man . . . confirms by many things that (these evils) are to be done.

—⁴. This truth is to be confirmed and illustrated by many things, before it can be elevated from the natural man into the rational.

3203². When (truth) becomes of life, it is able to command scientifics, and to take thence innumerable things which confirm.

3310⁴. Before man has arrived at adult age . . . he cannot be regenerated, for he can only be confirmed in the truths of doctrinal things by ideas from scientific and sensuous things . . .

3388. With these, the first confirmation of truth, is that it is called Divine, for then they at once have the idea of what is holy, which gives a universal confirmation to everything that is said, and this although they do not apprehend it . . . For it is not enough that a man should know that it is; he also wants to know what it is, and what its quality is, in order that thus some confirmation may be added to the intellectual part, and, contrariwise, by it; otherwise, it may indeed be induced on the memory, but remains there merely as a dead thing; and unless some things confirmatory have fixed it there . . . it is dissipated . . .

[A.] 3463². They are not in any perception of good, but in a species of persuasion that what their doctrinal things dictate is true; and when they are confirmed in these things, they may just as likely be in falsity as in truth, for nothing confirms a man as to truth, except good . . .

3465. The conjunction of confirmed truth thereby. Sig. —. 'Shebah,' in the Original Language, is 'oath,' which = confirmation.

— . It is said the conjunction of confirmed truth, when interior truths conjoin themselves with exterior truths, which are doctrinal things from the literal sense of the Word.

3466. 'Beersheba' means 'the well of the oath,' thus = the doctrine of confirmed truth.

3900¹⁰. 'Wherever the carcass is, thither will the eagles be gathered together' = that confirmations of falsity through reasonings will be multiplied in the devastated Church.

3923. But a regenerate man . . . is in spiritual good itself, and thence regards as last that it is so, for the holy things of faith and the goods of life are confirmed with him.

3928². Before regeneration, man is possessed as to his natural man by infernal Genii and Spirits, however . . . he may believe himself to be confirmed in the truths and goods of faith.

4096⁶. In proportion as affection prevails, he is led to the affirmative, and is then at the same time confirmed in truths by these doubts.

410². Evil Spirits . . . are adjoined, in order to induce the negative things which are to be dispersed; in order that the man may be better confirmed in truths and goods; and when the man begins to be confirmed in them, they perceive what is undelightful.

4156². With those who are in a life of evil, scientifics are the means of being insane, for by scientifics they confirm not only the life of evil, but also principles of falsity . . .

—³. The same light also illuminates scientifics, so that they confirm . . .

4172. Evil of guilt, or the evil which man has contracted through actual life, and has also confirmed in thought, even to faith and persuasion, cannot be amended, but remains to eternity. But evil not of guilt, which man has not confirmed in thought . . . does indeed remain, but adheres only in externals.

4174. They who suffer themselves to be regenerated, do not confirm this in thought . . .

—². But if, when a man comes to adult age, he confirms this in thought, and entirely persuades himself that he has merit . . . this evil remains inrooted, and cannot be amended . . .

4197. 'A witness' = the confirmation of good by truth, and of truth by good. —³, III.

—⁴. The good in which is truth, and the truth which is from good, both confirmed in hearts. Sig.

—⁷. This is founded in the Divine law, that one truth does not confirm good, but a number of truths; for one truth without connexion with others is not confirmatory. Sig.

4201. Confirmation, here, by the Divine. Sig.

4214². Many believe that those are enlightened men, who can . . . confirm scientifics by many things . . .

4274². They who yield in temptation, come into the confirmation of evil, and into the persuasion of falsity . . .

4364. The special things which are here signified, are nothing but things confirmatory that truths are truths, and goods are goods.

—³. Unless (truth) be confirmed by special things, it is not accepted. Examp.

—^e. He can confirm this truth by many experiences, if he is once in the faith that it is so.

4368². Most remain in their own dogma, which they merely strive to confirm by their reading of the Word.

4416. They who have known truths, and have also confirmed them with themselves, and yet have lived a life of evil, appear in a cold snow-white light . . .

4599⁶. The falsities from which they combat, and by which they confirm their religion, are expressed by 'towers.'

4658². To confirm whatever they will . . .

4677^c. Without the internal sense, anyone can confirm from the Word whatever dogma he likes.

4729. Things confirmatory then corroborate it.

—². Whatever a man wills, he thinks, wherefore when he wills evil from cupidity, he thinks and confirms it; things confirmatory of evil by thought are what are called falsities from the life of cupidities . . . and when he has confirmed these falsities with himself, truths appear to him as falsities . . . But if he has not confirmed these falsities with himself, the truths which his understanding had before imbued stand in the way, and do not permit them to be confirmed.

4741³. They believe that those are wiser than all others, who, having once received a dogma, whatever it be, are able to confirm it by various things . . .

— . A rational man can see as from above, whether what is confirmed is true or false; and as he sees this, he accounts as nothing the things which are confirmatory of what is false . . .

—^c. In a word, nothing is further from being the part of a wise man, or from what is rational, than to be able to confirm falsities; for it is the part of a wise man, and it is rational, to see first whether a thing is true, and afterwards to confirm it.

4747². They who are within the Church, and have confirmed themselves against Divine truths, especially against these, that the Lord's Human is Divine, and that works of charity contribute to salvation, if they have confirmed themselves against them, not only in doctrine, but also in life, have reduced themselves as to their interiors into such a state, that they can never afterwards be brought to receive them; for the things which are once confirmed in both doctrine and life at the same time, remain to eternity. They who do not know the interior state of man, may suppose, that anything whatever, however one may have confirmed one's self against it, may afterwards be easily received, provided one is convinced; but that this is impossible, it has been given to know by much experience with such in the other life; for that which is confirmed in doctrine imbues what is intellectual, and that which is confirmed in life imbues what is voluntary, and that which is inrooted in both these lives of man . . . cannot be rooted out . . . But they who are outside the Church . . . have not confirmed themselves against these truths . . . wherefore those of them who have lived in mutual charity, easily receive Divine truths. 9256. —³.

—³. 'Joseph's' 'brethren' represented those within the Church who have confirmed themselves against these Divine truths . . .

4760. When those who are in the affirmative . . . consult scientifics, they confirm truth by them.

— . If those who have no interior intuition consult scientifics, they do not see the confirmation of truth in them . . . But those who have an interior intuition, see the confirmations. Examp.

4768. The confirmation of falsity against Divine truths. Tr.

— . The confirmations of falsity by interpretations from the sense of the letter of the Word, are all appearances . . .

4952. Some have said that they did not know what to believe, because the lot remains with everyone according to the life, and also according to the thoughts from confirmed principles . . .

4988³. This also reason confirms in many things, with those who are truly rational.

5008³. All Divine truths can be confirmed from the literal sense of the Word, and also by rational or intellectual things with those who are enlightened . . . But a natural man believes simply, that everything is true which can be confirmed from the Word, and most of all that which he has himself confirmed thence. In this therefore they are agreed, that all Divine truth can be confirmed; but this general truth is regarded differently by them. The merely natural man believes as Divine truth whatever he has himself confirmed with himself, or what he has heard confirmed by others, not knowing that falsity can just as well be confirmed as truth, and that falsity confirmed appears exactly like truth, and even more true than truth does, because the fallacies of the senses come forward . . .

—⁶. Further, a natural man calls all things falsities, by which a spiritual man confirms ultimate truth; for he cannot see whether what he confirms is so . . .

5033. Confirmation. Sig.

— . It is known that falsities can be confirmed so as to appear just like truths . . . The falsities in every heresy, by confirmations with those who are in the heresy, appear as truths. . . They who are of no religion completely confirm themselves against the things of the Church . . .

—⁹. They who are in merely natural good, more easily suffer themselves to be persuaded and confirmed than others . . .

5038. Temptation is the vastation of falsity, and at the same time the confirmation of truth.

5077². It is then all over with the man; for then internal sensuous things are regarded merely as drudges, which serve to confirm those things which external sensuous things command.

5096. They who have confirmed themselves in falsity, are no longer in any freedom to choose and accept truth; and they who have much confirmed themselves, are not even in freedom to see it . . . This has been made evident to me from much experience in the other life with those who, through confirmations with themselves, have been in the persuasion of what is false; they are of such a nature as never to admit truths . . .

—². But those who are not in confirmed falsity, that is, in the persuasion of what is false, easily admit truths . . .

5128³. To the simple, such sometimes appear to be rational, for by means of that snow-white wintry light, they can, by reasonings, dexterously confirm falsities, even so that they appear like truths. The learned above all others are in such a persuasion, for they have confirmed falsities with themselves by syllogistic and philosophical things, and finally by many scientifics.

5135². When a man begins . . . to think for himself, he as it were ruminates over those things which he had previously learned and believed, and either confirms them, or entertains doubts about them, or denies them. If he confirms them, it is a sign that he is in good . . . Examp.

—⁴. This evil . . . takes away the goods and truths which were there before, and applies them to confirm evils and falsities . . . If evil steals the goods and truths there, and applies them to confirm evils and falsities, especially if it does this from deceit, it consumes these remains . . .

5276⁶. Knowledges do not become truths with man, until they are acknowledged in the understanding, which takes place when they are confirmed by him . . .

5317. What is confirmative of power. Sig.

— . 'A ring' = what is confirmative. III.

5356². Temptations confirm goods and truths. Ex. 6574². Ex.

5378. I perceived from their conversation that they were such as to want to know all things, and to desire to explain all things, and so to confirm themselves that it is so.

5432². The reason he seems to himself to believe these things to be true, is that he puts faith in others, and the things which are of others he confirms with himself; to confirm the things which are from others, whether they are true or false, is very easy, being the work of mere ingenuity.

—⁴. When once they have confirmed with themselves the doctrinal things of their own Church, are they anything but 'spies'? . . . When such read the Word, they search it with the sole end of confirming doctrinal scientifics, for the sake of gain.

[A.] 5991. By these things they have completely confirmed themselves against the Divine . . .

6047². The leaders have said so, and the followers confirm it.

—³. Afterwards, when he is confirmed, and thus in the affirmative from the Word that these things are truths of faith, it is then allowable for him to confirm these things by all the scientifics that are with him . . .

6125³. Scientifics from the Intellectual . . . are scientifics which confirm those things which the man intellectually apprehends and perceives, whether they are evil or good. Ex.

6222⁵. It is believed that those have what is intellectual in the things of the Church, who know how to confirm the doctrinal things of their own Church by many things . . . But this is not what is intellectual of the Church; for to confirm dogma is not of what is intellectual, but of ingenuity in what is sensuous, and is sometimes characteristic of the worst men; those can do it who believe nothing at all, and those also who are in downright falsities; to all of these, nothing is more easy than to confirm whatever they like . . . But what is intellectual of the Church consists in perceiving and seeing, before any dogma is confirmed, whether it is true or not, and then confirming it. This is the Intellectual which is represented by 'Ephraim.'

6225. 'Israel strengthened himself' (Gen. xlviii. 2) = new forces through spiritual good. 'To strengthen himself' = to receive new forces . . . The truth of the Natural which is of faith there, is strengthened by spiritual good . . . The external of the Church is strengthened, and receives forces, from no other source, than from its internal.

6317. They had confirmed themselves by scientific and philosophical things against the life of the spirit after death . . . If after they had confirmed themselves against those things which are of the life after death, the greatest truths had been told them, they would have behaved towards them as blind men . . . The unlearned, who have been in the good of faith, are not like these, for they have not confirmed themselves by any scientific and philosophical things against the things of the Church . . .

6318. There are also men who are worse than sensuous, being corporeal; these are they who have completely confirmed themselves against the Divine . . .

6359. Aversion to truth, that it was confirmed. Sig.

—, 'Hard' = what is confirmed; for the falsity which is confirmed even to persuasion, is hard. . . With Spirits and Angels . . . falsity from evil is presented as hard, and harder in proportion as it is more confirmed; when through confirmation by many things it has become a matter of persuasion, that hardness appears there like the hardness of bone . . .

6500. The man of the Spiritual Church . . . reasons about truths, or confirms those things which doctrine says, and this without perception whether what he confirms is true or not true, and when he has confirmed it with himself, he altogether believes it to be true, although it might be false; for there is nothing which cannot be confirmed, for this is the work of ingenuity, not of intelligence, still less of wisdom; and falsity is better able to be confirmed than truth, because it favours cupidities, and agrees with the fallacies of the senses.

6580^e. With such, the scientifics which are confirmatory of truth and good are rejected to the sides . . .

6589³. 'To swear' = to confirm from the Divine. Refs.

6635. The implantation and confirmation of truth from good thence. Tr.

6663². He who defends his opinion against others who attack it, confirms himself more and more in his opinion, and also then finds many things confirmatory of his opinion which had not before occurred to him . . .

6791. 'To eat bread' = confirmation in good. Ex.

—, Feasts were held among the ancients within the Church, for the sake of conjunction, and of confirmation in good. Refs.

6865³. These believe themselves enlightened, when they have confirmed with themselves the doctrinal things of the Church; but it is sensuous lumen . . . which then deceives them; for doctrinal things can be confirmed, of whatever sort they are . . . and when they are confirmed, they appear to them in sensuous lumen as truths themselves. But they who are in the light of Heaven, are in enlightenment from the Lord, and before confirmation perceive, by looking into the scientifics which are below and are there arranged in order, whether the truth is confirmable, or not.

6870. 'A sign' = the confirmation of the truth, and thence the Knowledge that it is so. 7273.

6959². If a man has faith in the doctrine of the Church from the Word, from himself, that is, through confirmations with himself; if then he afterwards recedes from it, and denies with himself what he had before believed, especially if he lives contrary to the truth which he had confirmed with himself, and either explains it in his own favour, or rejects it altogether, he profanes truth. Ex.

7012. 'With which thou shalt do signs' (Ex. iv. 17) = enlightenment thence, and the confirmation of truths. 'A sign' = the confirmation of truths. The reason it also = enlightenment, is that the confirmation of truths is effected through enlightenment by the Lord when man studies the Word with the end of knowing truths.

—, They who are in externals without an internal . . . cannot be enlightened, thus not confirmed in truths. But they who are in externals and at the same time in internals, when they read the Word, are enlightened, and in the enlightenment see truths, in which they are afterwards more and more confirmed . . . Hence also it is, that those who are in no affection of truth for the sake of truth . . . are not at all enlightened when they read the Word, but are only confirmed in doctrinal things, of whatever sort they may be . . .

7019. Enlightenment and confirmation from the Divine in the . . . state of the truth of simple good. Sig.

7055². They who think and teach according to the doctrine of their Church confirmed with themselves, and do not know that they are truths from any other source than from the fact that they are the doctrine of the Church . . . with these there can be truth proceeding immediately from the Divine ; but still this is not conjoined with the truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine ; for if it were conjoined with it, they would have the affection of knowing truth for the sake of truth, and especially for the sake of life, and then they would be gifted with a perception whether the doctrinal things of their Church are true before they confirm them with themselves, and would see in every particular whether the things confirmatory agreed with the truth itself.

7064. Confirmation to the apprehension. Sig.

7127. They know things confirmatory of faith alone . . . but these confirmatory things are nothing but reasonings . . . for everything can be confirmed by reasonings, and also by the arts of speaking and forming conclusions . . .

7192. Confirmation by the Divine, which is irrevocable. Sig.

— . Jehovah cannot confirm anything, except by Himself . . . In order that there may be Divine confirmation, which is eternal and irrevocable, it must be by the Divine itself. Such confirmation, namely, 'I am Jehovah,' often occurs. Ill. 7242.

7290. 'Give a prodigy' = that they want to be confirmed.

—². If the internal man afterwards denies that which miracles have confirmed . . .

7298². It is according to the laws of order, that no one ought to be persuaded about truth in a moment, that is, that truth should be so confirmed in a moment that there is no doubt left. Ex.

7306. Elevation to things more confirmatory. Sig.

7318². There does not exist a single truth which cannot be falsified, and the falsification confirmed by reasonings from fallacies.

7437². What a man loves he confirms and defends ; and evils cannot be confirmed and defended, except through falsities. Sig.

7668. They should be left who are in confirmed truths, to worship the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

7680². Infernals can indeed confirm their evils, and also their falsities ; but this is not perception . . . It is phantasy which causes the appearance of perception, and by which such know how to confirm falsities and evils by such things as are obvious to the senses, and favourable to concupiscences.

7778². When the scientifics of the truth and good of faith are applied by them to confirm falsities and evils, they are no longer the truths and goods of faith with them . . .

7950². He who believes that those who are in evil of life can be also in enlightenment as to the truths of faith, is most greatly deceived. They can be in a state of confirmation, that is, they can confirm the doctrinal things of their own Church, sometimes skilfully and ingeniously ; but they cannot see whether the things which they confirm are true or not.

8013². The latter see truths and confirm them from enlightenment ; but the former do not see truths and confirm them from enlightenment, but from a persuasion about the doctrinal things of their Church that they are true ; and as they do not see them from enlightenment, they can equally confirm falsities and truths, and after they are confirmed, they see them altogether as truths.

8078¹. Spiritual faith is that which is insinuated through an internal way, and at the same time through an external way ; insinuation through an internal way causes it to be believed, and then that which is insinuated through an external way causes it to be confirmed.

8098. Under the Divine auspices, they were led to confirm the truths and goods of faith by temptations. Sig.

8148². (Such as are in persuasive faith) confirm doctrinal things, of whatever sort they are ; and when they have confirmed them, they persuade themselves that they are truths, not thinking that truths and falsities can equally be confirmed. Refs.

8179². He who conquers in temptations is confirmed in that truth. 8557.

8313¹. They see only the things confirmative of their own principles.

8349². There are indeed those who live evilly, and yet want to be instructed in truths ; but there is no affection of truth with them, but only the affection of confirming the doctrinal things of the Church, for the sake of their own glory . . .

8521². (The man of the Spiritual Kingdom) has no perception whether truth is truth, except that he may seem to himself to have it from the fact that he has confirmed it with himself, partly from the sense of the letter of the Word, and partly from the fallacies of the ideas which are favourable to the opinion he has taken up ; not thinking that there is nothing which cannot be confirmed, even until it appears as truth, even falsity itself. Refs.

8628². As there reigns the love of self and of the world . . . knowledges are with them a means of being insane, namely, of confirming for nature against the Divine, and for the world against Heaven.

8643². When he acts from truth, he is tempted, in order that the truths with him may be confirmed ; and when they have been confirmed, they are reduced by the Lord into order . . .

8694². They who are not in good cannot be taught from the Word, but can only be confirmed in such things as they have been instructed about from infancy, whether they are true or false.

8702. What good wills, truth confirms ; (as) what the will wills and loves, the understanding thinks and confirms.

8725. The truths with which good can be conjoined are confirmed truths.

8780³. They who are in the affection of truth from evil . . . do not see truths, but only see things confirmatory of the doctrinal things of their own Church, whether they are true or false. Examps.

8902¹⁶. Truth not yet confirmed. Sig.

8904. 'Thou shalt not commit adultery' = . . . that the Word is not to be applied to confirm falsities and evils.

[A.] 8908. 'The witness of a lie'=the confirmation of what is false. 'A witness'=confirmation.

8924. All spiritual temptation teaches and confirms such things with man . . . When a man overcomes evils and falsities, he is confirmed. Ex. 8966.

8975. A state of labour and of some combat, and thence of the confirmation of truth. Sig.

—. The reason it also=the confirmation of truth, is that spiritual truth, which is called the truth of faith, is confirmed through labour and combat.

8976. A state of confirmed truth without his works. Sig. and Ex.

8993³. Such stick fast merely in confirming the doctrinal things of their own Church in which they were born, whether they are true, or whether they are not true.

9009. Evils of will and foresight are much worse than those which are not of foresight ; for the man sees that they are evils, and therefore could desist from them, but will not, and he thereby confirms them with himself, and confirmed evils imbue a nature, and afterwards can scarcely be extirpated. Ex.

—³. The evils which proceed only from the will . . . are not imputed to the man, unless he has confirmed them in his intellectual part ; but when they have been confirmed in this part, they are inscribed on the man, become his Own, and are imputed to him. But these evils can only be confirmed with a man in his intellectual part during adult age . . .

9043. If (good) be still confirmed in the Natural. Sig.

—. 'Births'=goods from truths scientifically and perceptibly acknowledged, and thus confirmed.

9166. 'An oath'=confirmation through truths.

—². The confirmation of truth, when it falls into the external man separate from the internal man, is effected through an oath.

—. The celestial Angels . . . do not confirm truths even by reasons. Ex.

—³. Truths Divine are to be confirmed by the Lord, and not by man ; which takes place when they are internal men, and not external ; for external men confirm them by oaths, but internal men by reasons ; and they who are still more interior men do not confirm them, but only say that it is so, or that it is not so. Sig.

—⁵. They who perceive and see truth from the Lord do not otherwise confirm it. Sig. 10124².

9213⁶. We are not to bind or incite another to confirm our own truths. Sig. and Ex.

9256². They who have confirmed themselves against the truths and goods of faith, as do all those who live evilly, close their internal man above, and open it below.

9300⁵. They who are in truth and good which are not genuine, and also they who are in falsities and evils, can indeed confirm the truths of the Church, but cannot see and perceive from within whether they are true. Hence it is that most men remain in the doctrinal things of their own Church, in which they were born, and only confirm them ; and they would have confirmed themselves in the greatest heresies, as for instance, in Socinianism, or Judaism, if they had been born of such parents.

9330². The good which comes out of this (combat), is that those who are in truths from good are thereby confirmed in truths against falsities ; and those who are in falsities from evil are confirmed in falsities, and thus devastate themselves.

9340⁶. Those who are in the Knowledges of good and truth, which they apply to confirm evils and falsities. Sig. —.

9394². Hence it is evident that scientifics and Knowledges . . . serve those who are in these (evil) loves, as means for confirming falsities against truths, and evils against goods . . .

9688⁵. To confirm falsities. Sig.

9982. To confirm themselves in this idea when they become adults is hurtful.

10124³. To reason about truths whether it is so, is not from good, for then truth is not perceived, but is only believed from authority and thence confirmation with one's self . . . That which is only believed from confirmation thence, after confirmation appears as truth, although it might be falsity.

10227³. By the capacity of being wise is not meant the capacity of reasoning about truths and goods from knowledges, thus not the capacity of confirming whatever one likes . . .

—. As such are unable to look into truths themselves, they stand outside, and confirm whatever they accept, whether true or false . . . The more they attribute all things to themselves, the more insane they are, for they confirm falsities in preference to truths, and evils in preference to goods . . .

10422². That is called truth which confirms what is loved.

10443. Confirmation by the Divine. Sig.

10551³. Such do not perceive whether a thing is true, except from others through confirmations . . .

10624². Falsities are what confirm evils . . .

—. There is the evil of falsity when a man confirms evil with himself. Examp.

10640². A man appropriates (falsity) to himself when he confirms it with himself . . .

H. 3. Those within the Church . . . who have confirmed themselves in such a faith are out of Heaven.

204^c. The extension (into the Societies of Hell) is according to the amount of the confirmation.

352. Spurious intelligence and wisdom . . . is merely to believe that to be true and good, and that to be false and evil, which are said to be so by others, and then to confirm it . . . Whatever is confirmed puts on the appearance of truth, and there is nothing which cannot be confirmed. The interiors of these persons are open only from below, but their exteriors are open in proportion as they have confirmed themselves. . . In natural light, falsities can shine like truths ; indeed, when they are confirmed, they can be resplendent, but not in the light of Heaven. Of this class, those are less intelligent and wise who have confirmed themselves much, and those are more intelligent and wise who have confirmed themselves little . . . But they are not of this class . . . who see the truth before they confirm it.

—^e. The Spirits who had confirmed themselves in faith alone . . . could not understand it, because the light of confirmed falsity with them had bedimmed the light of truth.

455^e. As the state of men is such that they can understand truths provided they are willing to do so, it has been granted me to confirm the spiritual truths which are of Heaven and the Church, even by rational things . . . for to confirm spiritual truths by rational things is allowed to all who are in truths.

513^e. (Sufferings in the Lower Earth) of those who have confirmed themselves in falsities, and yet have led a good life.

N. 357. Understanding is to see and perceive whether it is truth before it is confirmed ; not to be able to confirm anything.

— . The light of confirmation without previous perception of the truth is natural light, and is possible with those who are not wise . . . but are evil. 257⁴.

— . To see and perceive whether it is truth before it is confirmed, is possible only with those who are affected with truth for the sake of truth, thus who are in spiritual light.

— . All dogmas even when false can be confirmed, even until they appear as truths. Refs.

257⁸. Doctrine made by one who is enlightened may afterwards be confirmed by rational things, and is thus more fully understood, and is fortified. Refs.

—⁴. To confirm dogma is not the part of one who is wise, but to see whether it is true before it is confirmed, and this is done by those who are in enlightenment. Refs.

J. 61⁴. Some of the Babylonians had as it were a millstone round their left arm, which was a representative that they had confirmed their wicked dogmas from the Word.

C. J. 46². He could not recede from that dogma, because it was confirmed.

—^e. I heard him say that all are insane from the conceit of their Own intelligence who confirm themselves in this heresy.

S. 50. The doctrine of the Church is to be drawn from the sense of the letter of the Word, and to be confirmed thereby. Gen.art. 53.

52. I have seen such examined by the Angels, and they were found to be able to confirm from the Word whatever they would . . .

54^e. If doctrine is not confirmed from the sense of the letter of the Word, the truth of doctrine appears as if only the intelligence of man were in it . . .

60. Nothing blinds man but his proprium, and the confirmation of what is false . . . The confirmation of what is false is thick darkness counterfeiting light . . .

91. Heresies may be taken from the sense of the letter of the Word, but to confirm them is hurtful. Gen. art. 96, Ex.

— . Appearances of truth . . . may be taken for naked truths ; which when confirmed become falsities . . . To be wise is to see whether it is truth before it is confirmed, but not to confirm whatever one likes ; this do they who are clever at confirming . . .

92. Heresies themselves do not condemn men, but an evil life with confirmations of falsities from the Word . . .

—^e. Confirmed falsity remains, and cannot be extirpated ; for falsity after confirmation is as if the man had sworn to it . . .

93. I spoke with some . . . who lived many ages ago, and had confirmed themselves in the falsities of their religion, and I found that they still remained constant to them. I have also spoken with some of the same religion . . . but who had not confirmed its falsities with themselves, and I found that on being instructed by the Angels they had rejected the falsities . . . After death everyone is instructed by the Angels . . . and they see truths who have not confirmed themselves in falsities ; but they who have confirmed themselves do not want to see truths . . .

F. 11. The faith of what is unknown is only knowledge . . . which if confirmed becomes persuasion . . . They think it is true because it has been confirmed ; and yet falsity can be confirmed equally with truth, and sometimes more strongly. To think it is true because it has been confirmed, means to think that what another says is true, and then not first to examine it, but only to confirm it.

W. 262. He then confirms all these [falsities] by his Rational ; and after the confirmations he either perverts, suffocates, or rebuts the goods and truths of Heaven and the Church . . . When a man is such, he successively shuts up the spiritual mind closer and closer ; confirmations of evil by falsities especially shut it up. Hence it is that confirmed evil and falsity cannot be extirpated after death ; they are extirpated only in the world through repentance.

267. An evil man abuses these faculties to confirm evils and falsities, and a good man uses them to confirm goods and truths. Gen.art.

— . From . . . rationality and . . . freedom man derives the ability to confirm whatever he will . . . P.286.

—². That the natural man can confirm whatever he will, is very plain from the multitude of heresies in the Christian world, each of which is confirmed by its adherents. Who does not know that evils and falsities of every kind can be confirmed ? It can be confirmed, and indeed is confirmed by the wicked to themselves, that there is no God, that nature is everything, and that it has created itself ; that religion is only a means whereby simple minds are to be kept in bonds ; that human prudence does all things, and the Divine Providence nothing, except sustaining the universe in the order in which it was created ; also that murders, adulteries, thefts, frauds, and revenges are allowable ; according to Machiavel and his followers. These, and many similar things the natural man can confirm, and fill books with the proofs of them ; and when they are confirmed, these falsities appear in their fatuous light, and truths in such shadow that they are not visible at all except as phantoms of the night. In a word, take the falsest thing, and put it into a proposition, and say to a clever person, Confirm, and he will confirm to the complete extinction of the light of truth ; but set aside the confirmations, come back and view the proposition itself from your rationality, and you will see its falsehood in its deformity . . . P.286.

[W.] 268. Confirmed evils and falsities are permanent in the man, and come to be of his love and life. Gen.art.

—¹. Confirmations of evil and falsity are nothing else than removings of good and truth, and if they increase they are rejections . . . Hence also confirmations of evil and falsity are closings of Heaven . . . It has been given me to speak with some who ages ago confirmed themselves in the falsities of their religion, and I saw that they persist in the same . . . The reason is, that all the things in which a man confirms himself come to be of his love and life . . . Hence it is evident that a man who has confirmed himself in evils and falsities, is such from head to foot, and when the whole of him is such, by no inversion or retortion can he be constrained to the opposite state, and thus be drawn out of Hell.

350². They were fearful of confirming themselves in an opinion, lest they should ascribe evil things to God . . .

—³. But they who have made atheists of themselves through confirmations in favour of nature, are not to be excused, because they might have confirmed themselves in favour of the Divine. Ignorance indeed excuses, but does not take away confirmed falsity, for this falsity coheres with evil, and therefore with Hell. For this reason these same persons who have confirmed themselves in favour of nature . . . regard nothing as sin . . . M.422^e.

351. (How men may confirm themselves from nature in favour of the Divine.) 353. 354. 355. M.418. T.12.

429². But they who have not confirmed themselves in the faith of what is unknown . . . are instructed by the Angels . . .

P. 17. If his life has been one of the love of good, all the falsity which he had gathered in the world . . . but which he had not confirmed in himself, is removed . . .

87^e. An evil man can from freedom will only evil, and do it according to the thought which he makes as of reason through confirmations; for evil can be confirmed equally with good; but evil is confirmed through fallacies and appearances, which when confirmed become falsities; and when evil has been confirmed, it appears as if it were of reason.

98⁵. Freedom itself and rationality itself can hardly exist with those who have confirmed themselves much in falsities of religion, for a confirmer of falsity is a denier of the truth; but they can with those who have not confirmed themselves, in whatever religion they may be.

130^e. Such blindness and deafness are induced on the human mind by miracles. It is the same with everything confirmed, which is not viewed with some rationality before it is confirmed.

136. There are many things which when heard, because they are true, are at once perceived to be so, and are therefore affirmed; but if they are not at the same time confirmed by reasons, by arguments from fallacies they may be made doubtful, and at last denied.

142. In a state (of imminent death) no one can be reformed; but he may be confirmed, if he was reformed before he fell sick.

168. Interior enlightenment from man is from confirmation alone. Ex.

—³. Exterior enlightenment (from the Lord) is an enlightenment of the thought from interior enlightenment from Him; and the thought is in this enlightenment in proportion as it remains in the perception which it has from the interior enlightenment, and in proportion as at the same time it has the Knowledges of truth and good; for from this it draws reasons, by which it confirms. Thought from this exterior enlightenment sees a thing on both sides; on the one it sees the reasons which confirm, on the other the appearances which weaken; the latter it disperses, the former it gathers together. But interior enlightenment from man is entirely different. By it, man sees a thing on one side and not on the other; and when he has confirmed it, he sees it in a light apparently like the light spoken of above, but it is a wintry light. Examp.

—⁵. These are blind reasoners; for they have their sight from the falsities which they confirm . . . Such see no truth from the light of truth . . . but only from the light of confirmation, which is a delusive light . . .

—^e. Exterior enlightenment from man exists with those who think and talk from mere knowledge impressed on the memory; these can scarcely confirm anything from themselves.

187². Those who have become natural from the confirmation of appearances with themselves.

220^e. The Lord conjoins Himself with uses through correspondences, and thus through appearances according to the confirmations of them by man. Ex.

231². The third kind of profanation is committed by those who apply the sense of the letter of the Word to confirm evil loves and false principles. Ex.

—¹. This is because the confirmation of falsity is the denial of truth, and the confirmation of evil is the rejection of good . . . The sense of the letter can be turned to the confirmation of many kinds of heresies; but he who confirms evil loves, does violence to Divine goods, and he who confirms false principles, does violence to Divine truths . . .

—⁴. Hypocrisies are lighter or more grievous according to the confirmations against God . . .

233¹². As self-love excels in the ingenuity of confirming whatever it pleases . . .

317. Everything persuaded and confirmed is permanent with man as his Own. Gen.art.

—¹. Many believe that no truth can be seen except from confirmations, but this is a falsity. Ex.

318. How man's state is changed by confirmations and thence persuasions, shall now be told, but in this order . . .

—². There is nothing which cannot be confirmed, and falsity more than truth. Ex.

—³. In order that it may be known that every falsity and every evil can be confirmed even so that falsity appears as truth and evil as good, let it be confirmed, for example, that light is darkness, and darkness light . . .

—⁴. As another example, let it be confirmed that a raven is white . . .

—⁵. When falsity has been confirmed, truth does not appear, but from confirmed truth falsity appears. Ex.

—⁸. To be able to confirm whatever one pleases is not intelligence, but only ingenuity, which is possible with the worst men. Ex.

—⁹. There is confirmation which is intellectual and not at the same time voluntary ; but all voluntary confirmation is also intellectual. Ex.

— . They who confirm falsity of doctrine and yet do not live according to it, are they who are in intellectual confirmation and not at the same time in voluntary. But they who confirm falsity of doctrine, and live according to it, are they who are in both voluntary and intellectual confirmation . . .

—¹⁰. The confirmation of evil which is both voluntary and intellectual, causes man to believe that his own prudence is everything, and the Divine Providence nothing ; but not intellectual confirmation alone. Ex.

— . There are many who confirm with themselves their Own prudence, from appearances in the world, yet do not deny the Divine Providence ; with them there is only intellectual confirmation ; while with those who at the same time deny the Divine Providence, there is also voluntary confirmation . . .

—¹¹. Everything confirmed by both the will and the understanding remains to eternity ; but not that which has been confirmed by the understanding only. Ex. 319.

R. 23. 'Amen'=Divine confirmation from the truth, thus from the Lord Himself. 28. 292. E.34. 469.

99². They are not all infested alike, but more severely according as they have confirmed themselves in falsities . . .

153. Relation respecting the condition after death of those who have confirmed themselves, in both doctrine and life, in faith alone unto justification. T.281.

159. 'Strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die' (Rev.iii.2)=that the things of their worship may receive life, and not be extinguished. E.188.

224³. You have confirmed yourselves in falsities . . .

—¹². The voice was found to come from those who had confirmed themselves in falsities of faith . . . They reason and reason, and confirm and confirm, without ever seeing whether it is so. But human ingenuity can confirm whatever it will, even until it appears as if it were so . . .

339. Confirmations of evil through falsity, and of falsity by evil, even until they did not acknowledge anything Divine of the Lord. Sig.

—². The Lord's Divine sphere fills all things, which they cannot remove from themselves, except through confirmations of evil through falsity, and of falsity by evil ; the delights of evils effect this.

—^e. They who confirm themselves in their evils through falsities, suffer less . . .

411. This takes place only with those who confirm falsities through the Word, but not with those who do not confirm.

3 C

421. They who confirm this faith even to its interiors, close the higher things of their understanding, till at last they can no longer see any spiritual truth in light ; the reason is, that the confirmation of falsity is the denial of truth ; therefore when they hear any spiritual truth . . . they keep the mind in the falsities they have confirmed . . .

549. All those who have confirmed falsities with themselves in the world, do not receive (the truths of Heaven), wherefore they . . . sink down into Hell . . .

598^e. Every heretic who has confirmed himself in falsities, after confirmation attests that his falsities are truths ; for he then no longer sees truths, since the confirmation of falsity is the denial of truth, and a truth denied loses its light ; and in proportion as falsities shine from the light of confirmation, which is a fatuous light, the light of truth is turned into thick darkness.

634. The second degree (of faith alone) is to confirm it with one's self . . . To confirm it is of the understanding.

715. In consequence of having confirmed themselves in such falsities, they have denied truths to such a degree as not to be able to acknowledge them . . . Sig.

— . The reason is that . . . the confirmation of falsity is the denial of truth.

799². By ordinations of ministers, and by confirmations . . .

M. 147. Everyone sees this . . . before confirmations ; but as all have not common perception, it is important that it should be illustrated through confirmations ; the confirmations are . . .

233. Such with us are called confirmers. Examps. T.334.

—⁷. To be able to confirm whatever one pleases is not the part of an intelligent man, but to be able to see that truth is truth and falsity falsity, and to confirm it.

—^e. The confirmations of falsities until they appear as truths are represented there under the forms of birds of night, whose eyes are inwardly illuminated by a fatuous light, whereby they can see objects in the dark . . . There is such a fatuous light with those who confirm falsities even until they seem to be truths . . . All such are in posterior vision . . .

300. Presents are confirmations, because they are pledges of consents . . .

490. Adulteries of the third degree are those of reason, which take place with those who confirm by the understanding that they are not evils of sin. Gen.art.

491. The adulteries effected by these are grievous according to confirmations. Gen.art.

— . The understanding alone confirms, and when it confirms, it engages the will . . . and thus drives it to obedience : confirmations are effected through reasonings, which the mind takes from either its higher or lower region ; if from the higher region, which communicates with Heaven, it confirms marriages and condemns adulteries ; but if from the lower region, which communicates with the world, it confirms adulteries and makes light of marriages. Everyone can confirm evil equally as good, in like manner falsity and truth, and the confirmation of evil is perceived as more delectable than the confirmation of good, and the confirmation of falsity appears more lucid than the confirmation of truth; the reason is, that the confirmation of evil and falsity derives its reasonings from the delights, pleasures, appearances, and fallacies of the bodily senses, but the confirmation of good and truth derives its reasons from the regions above the sensuous things of the body. Now as evils and falsities can be confirmed equally with goods and truths, and as the confirming understanding draws the will to its own side, and the will together with the understanding forms the mind, it follows that the form of the human mind is according to confirmations; being turned towards Heaven if its confirmations are in favour of marriages, and towards Hell if they are in favour of adulteries. 495.

[M.] 527². All things which are effected by the understanding, are effected by what has been confirmed, for the understanding confirms.

528. He who of set purpose or confirmation acts against one commandment, acts against all the rest . . . T. 523.

B. 55. (From the natural light which flows into the understanding below the memory) man can confirm whatever he pleases, falsities equally with truths, and after confirmation see falsities entirely as truths.

T. 80^e. Those are called satans who have confirmed falsities with themselves even to faith, and those devils who have confirmed evils with themselves through life.

110². After death, no one can believe anything except what he has impressed on himself through confirmation; this remains infixed, and cannot be got rid of, especially that which anyone has confirmed with himself concerning God . . .

255. The reason is, that confirmation enters the will, and the will is the man himself . . .

258^e. This is the reason why to confirm any false heresy is hurtful.

320. They who confirm falsities of religion by fallacies . . . may be compared to impostors . . .

345^e. Seventh, a visionary and absurd faith, which is the appearance of falsity as truth by ingenious confirmation.

352. It sees below it troops of confirmations of itself in the nature of the world.

354³. This may be confirmed by this experience . . .

457. They who from confirmation deny the Lord's Divinity . . .

508². In the New Church it is allowable to . . . confirm these things by the Word . . .

518. In like hypocritical worship are they who have confirmed with themselves the modern faith . . .

565. The learned who have deeply confirmed themselves in falsities, and still more they who have confirmed themselves against the truths of the Word, are more sensuous than all others.

591². With those who have confirmed themselves in this faith, there is no internal man except that natural man . . .

639^e. It is the same with all things that are fixed by persuasion and confirmation . . .

758². That the Christian Church is so . . . devastated, cannot be seen by those on earth who have confirmed themselves in its falsities; the reason is that the confirmation of falsity is the denial of truth. Add to this, that the natural Rational can confirm whatever it pleases, thus falsity equally with truth; and when it is confirmed, both appear in a similar light . . .

759^e. A man confirmed in falsity cannot bring truth into the understanding so as to remain . . .

799. They who have confirmed themselves in falsities of religion, and also they who have led an evil life, do not suffer themselves to be instructed there . . .

D. 2999. On the confirmation of heavenly truths through human scientifics. 2301. 2384. 2702. 3611.

3602. The Angels love only those things which confirm the Knowledges of faith, and reject objections.

3977. On things which confirm the Knowledges of faith. 3904.

— (The Knowledges of faith have first to be confirmed by sensuous and natural truths, for man cannot believe without confirming things; but afterwards, when they have been confirmed, the Lord endows him with conscience, so that he believes them without confirming things, and he then rejects all reasonings. This sphere is angelic, and evil Spirits cannot be in it; but they could be present before.)

4195. (How hosts of confirming things are excited from the memory). 4114¹. 4202. 4203.

4758. They who have faith from revelation may confirm it by natural truths . . .

5700. On those there who can confirm anything whatever. 5793. 5704.

5703. But the simple good who have not confirmed themselves, have openness interiorly . . .

5708. I spoke with Spirits about the light from confirmation . . .

5848. On confirmation. 5849. 5850.

5959. (Few confirm themselves in the doctrine of three Divine Persons.)

D. Min. 4752. On the understanding of those who only confirm principles which they have received. 4803.

E. 298¹⁰. 'To strengthen thy right hand' (Is. xli. 13) = the power and wisdom which man has therefrom.

340²⁴. 'An oath' = confirmation with one's self, and conviction that it is so, and this is effected by good through truths; from no other source than good are truths confirmed and made matters of conviction with man.

348^e. It is according to Divine order, that the Lord confirms the truths which an Angel or man speaks as of himself . . . But He confirms them in his heart through an affirmative which does not manifestly rise into his thought; but through a full acquiescence of the disposition which proceeds from the internal affection . . . This is the confirmation (from the Lord through the inmost Heaven) which is here signified.

388²⁶. 'The labouring inheritance which God will confirm' (Ps.lxviii.9)=the Church which is in Divine truth as to doctrine and as to life.

417¹⁰. 'Fortified cities'=the false doctrinal things which they have confirmed.

469. When anyone speaks Divine truth from the heart, the Lord confirms it; from no other source can confirmation come; this is signified by 'Amen,' at the end of prayer.

540⁸. 'Strengthen thy strongholds' (Nah.iii.14)=to fortify them by such things as appear to be truths.

653¹⁰. To confirm evils, and their consequent power over goods, is signified by, 'to strengthen the hands of the evil' (Jer.xxiii.14).

684⁴⁰. 'He shall confirm the covenant for one week' (Dan.ix.27)=the time of the Reformation . . .

740¹². 'When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren' (Luke xxii.32). 746¹⁴.

746⁶. 'Be strong' (Is.xli.6).

815⁹. 'Confirming the word with signs following' (Mark xvi.20).

824. 'Great signs'=confirmations from the Word in favour of faith separated from good works.

1109. When in thought he confirms evils, they become destructive . . .

D. Wis. xi. 2 (2nd series). They who are in the love of truth are actually in the light of Heaven . . . All others are only in the confirmation of their own principles, without knowing whether they are true or false. When those who are in the love of truth read the Word, and think from it, they keep the sight of their understanding constantly in the principle itself, and thus inquire whether it is true, before it is confirmed; all others assume a principle from the knowledge of the memory . . . and then confirm it by the Word and by reason . . . Everything can be thus confirmed . . .

Conflagration. Incendium.

H. 571. An appearance as of fire with smoke, such as is seen in conflagrations . . .

—, Like the heat from burnt ruins after a conflagration . . .

585. Such as appears in the air from conflagrations . . .

586². In some Hells there is an appearance as of the ruins of houses and cities after conflagrations.

P. 112². In the Word, concupiscences are compared to 'fire,' and the evils thence to 'a conflagration.' E.504².

Conflict. Conflictio, Conflictus.

A. 835². Hence comes a conflict of delights . . .

P. 284. There then takes conflict and combat, which, if grievous, is called temptation . . .

T. 604. A conflict would take place . . .

647. (If these two faiths were to be together) there would take place such a collision and conflict . . .

D. 1316. On a tumult in the Heaven of Spirits from the conflict of opinions about truths.

E. 702. Conflicts and tumults of thoughts and reasonings in the lower parts. Sig.

Conform. Conformare.

Conformation. Conformatio.

Conformable. Conformis.

Conformity. Conformitas.

A. 1381^e. The position which is conformable to their general state . . .

2181. The Rational and the Natural to be conformed so as to make a one.

5114¹. The derivations in the lower degrees are only compositions, or more properly, conformations successively of the singulars and particulars of the higher degrees . . .

6574^e. In order that truth and good may be conformed and strengthened with those who are in temptation . . .

H. 425^e. Falsities are given agreeable and conformable to their evil.

459. The more interior the affection is, the more conformable it is to Heaven.

M. 298. The judgment (of parents) clearly sees the conformities and the disagreements.

T. 115². The Hells are to be subjugated before a new angelic Heaven can be formed, and this is to be formed before a New Church on earth can be instituted . . .

351⁴. The universal cause is, that Divine truths are so conformed . . .

Confound, Confuse. Confundere.

Confusion. Confusio.

A. 24². Thus from distinct things, he makes one confused obscurity . . .

842². They are first reduced into a confused something, as it were a chaos . . .

1321. 'Let us confound their lip' (Gen.xi.7)=to confound those things which are of doctrine . . . 'To confound'=not only to darken, but also to obliterate and dissipate, so that there is not any truth.

1327. 'Jehovah confounded the lip of the whole earth' (ver.9)=the state of this Ancient Church, that internal worship began to perish.

1382. They confound the Divine infinite with the infinite of space . . .

1385^e. They who in the life of the body had confused truth and good through scientific and philosophical things . . .

5858^e. There would be the greatest confusion if Spirits were to flow in from their own memory.

6338. Then instead of order there would be confusion of all things . . .

6484^e. Because he saw so many confused things . . .

6621. When such were with me, all things thought and written became confused . . .

8133. 'They are entangled in the land'=that they were in confusion as to the things of the Church.

10736. They confuse the ideas of their thought . . .
10786.

H. 66^e. Thus they confuse themselves concerning Heaven.

[H.] 152. When any evil Spirit comes among the good ones, the quarters are wont to be so confounded, that . . .

223. If anyone stands behind the pulpit, the preacher is confused; the case is the same if anyone in the congregation dissents . . .

W. 199^e. These two kinds of degrees . . . must by no means be confounded.

P. 4^l. That which is indistinct is confused, from which all imperfection of form results.

T. 121. They thus not only confused the ultimate Heaven . . .

519^e. But these are not to be confounded with those who . . .

605^e. This confusion has been brought about . . .

D. 155^l. Hence confusion or disturbance such as that of the Babylonians . . .

1006. A method of wicked confusion . . . 4327.

1316. There was a confusion of all things.

—^e. I thought with the Spirits, that all things would then be confounded; for it is like a confusion of lips . . .

1317. The sound of the confused murmurs was three-fold. Des.

2476. When some said that so many revelations would confuse the mind, it was given to reply, that if they were innumerable, they would not confuse, but illuminate . . . These so confuse themselves with many things, that everything appears to them confused . . .

4051. He is reduced . . . into such confusion, that while he thinks of these things, he is so confused as almost to be tortured . . . It was also shown how confused they become . . .

E. 697^e. 'The habitable earth shall mourn, it shall be confounded; the world shall languish, it shall be confounded' (Is.xxiv.4). 741²⁰, Ex.

Congeval. See FREEZE.

Conglomerate. Conglomerare.

Conglomeration. Conglomeratio.

M. 440^e. Conglomerated concupiscences . . .

B. 56. This heap, or conglomeration . . .

T. 29. By the earth's being conglomerated into a globe . . .

D. 2274. Clouds conglomerated into various forms . . .

—^e. 2765^e. 3924.

Conglutinate. Conglutinare.

A. 960. (Such are punished) by being conglutinated . . . 1271. D.3588.

2492. With such this callosity appears conglutinated . . . H.466. D.2763.

R. 421. Conceit conglutinates falsities . . .

T. 639^e. A wall cemented together with crumbling stones . . .

Congregation. Congregatio.

Gather together. Congregare.

See under COMPANY-coetus.

A. 2009^{ll}. Where they 'are gathered together in the Lord's name' (Matt.xviii.20)=those who are in the doctrine of faith concerning love and charity, thus who are in love and charity.

2468¹³. 'The congregation of Jehovah' (Lev.xxiii.2)= Heaven.

4292. The congregation in general, which is commonly called the Church . . .

5293. 'Let them gather all the food' (Gen.xli.35)= all things which are of use. 'To gather'=to bring together and preserve.

5340. 'He gathered all the food of the seven years' (ver.48)=the preservation of truth adjoined to good . . .

6272. One congregation (of the Church) says it is true, another says it is false . . .

6338. Gather yourselves together' (Gen.xlix.2)=that they should arrange themselves in order. 'To be gathered together'=to be ordered; for in the spiritual sense 'to be gathered together' is nothing else, because truths and goods cannot be gathered together unless they are also ordered . . . As soon as Angels or Spirits are gathered together they are at once disposed into order as of themselves, and thus constitute a heavenly Society . . .

6355. 'Into their congregation, my glory, be not thou united' (ver.6)=not to want to be conjoined with the falsities of their thought . . . The falsities of thought are signified by 'congregation;' for 'congregation,' like 'multitude,' is predicated of truths, and in the opposite sense, of falsities. E.443^e.

6524². 'The congregation of the people' (Ps.cvii.32) =those who are in the truths which are of intelligence; for 'congregation' is predicated of truths.

7325. 'The gathering of the waters' (Ex.vii.19)= where falsities are together.

7556. 'To gather' (Ex.ix.19)=to collect.

7843. 'The whole assembly of the congregation of Israel' (Ex.xii.6)=by all in general who are of the Spiritual Church. By 'the assembly of the congregation' are signified the truths of good which are with those of that Church; for 'congregation' is predicated of truth, and 'assembly,' of good. 8413.

8624³. 'Standard'=gathering together.

10397. 'To be gathered together' (Ex.xxxii.9)=to bring themselves together.

10727. 'To gather together that assembly' (Ex. xxxv.1)=the enumeration of all.

W. 190. The combinations, confasciculations, and groupings from which the organs and viscera arise . . .

195. The first degree, by confasciculations or conglutations, in a word, by congregations, produces the second . . . 184^e.

310. Their congregates are held together by the circumpressure of the atmospheres . . .

313. The second forms are congregates of these . . .

R. 831. 'Come, and gather yourselves together to the supper of the great God' (Rev.xix.17)=a calling and convocation to the New Church and to conjunction with the Lord.

858². 'To gather them together to war' (Rev.xx.8)=to excite them against those who worship the Lord and live according to His commandments. E.1003. 1010.

T. 74⁴. He disposes both into Societies and congregations according to all the varieties of their love... In like manner the congregations in Hell...

412. To love a number of men in a congregation, is to love the neighbour more than to love one person of the congregation.

678. All of the same religion are arranged into Societies... In Hell into congregations...

E. 205⁴. 'In the congregation of the saints' (Ps. lxxxix.5).

328¹⁷. 'I will gather them, because I will redeem them' (Zech.x.8)=the dissipation of falsities, and reformation through truths...

340⁴. 'Congregations' in the Word have a similar signification to 'people,' namely, those who are in spiritual truths; and abstractedly, those truths themselves.

357¹⁶. 'The congregation of great nations from the land of the north' (Jer.l.9)=direful evils rising up from Hell.

376¹². Occurs. 388¹³. —³⁰. 411¹⁶. 433⁵. 439⁵. 513¹³. 540⁶. 573¹⁰. 617²⁴. 627¹³. 630¹³. 633². 650²³. 654⁵⁶. 695²⁴. 696¹¹. 710¹¹. 721¹⁰. 734¹⁵. 783³. 799¹⁴. 811⁷. —²⁵. 849. 1100¹¹. —¹².

417¹¹. 'The congregation of the people of God' (Judg.xx.2)=consultation about the things of the Church.

418⁵. 'To gather together the elect from the four winds' (Matt.xxiv.31)=the establishment of a new Church.

426³. That the good are to be preserved, is meant by 'the gathering of the wheat into the barn' (Matt. xiii.30). 911³.

427³. 'To gather all nations and tongues' (Is.lvi.18) has a similar signification to 'the gathering of the elect from the four winds.' 'To gather'=to receive to Himself those who are His.

453⁶. 'The kingdoms of the nations gathered together' (Is.xiii.4)=the falsities of evil which they have made in order to cohere.

538¹⁰. 'The congregation' (Ezek.xxvii.27) = false doctrinal things.

654⁵². 'Thou shalt not be brought together, nor gathered' (Ezek.xxix.5)=a religion without any coherence and restoration.

714²². 'To stand in the congregation, and cry' (Job xxx.28)=among truths, and yet in falsities.

724¹⁷. 'The congregation' (Jer.xxx.20)=their conjunction and orderly arrangement in forms, such as there are with the man of the Church in the understanding.

5 M. (The state of those who are merely natural, when they are in company.)

Congress. Congressus. D.6110⁴⁴. De Conj.27.

Conjecture. Conjectura.

See AUGUR.

A. 2576. Many historical conjectures...

W. 379. Speak of it from conjecture...

R. Pref. Expositors have formed various conjectures...

I. 2. A hypothetical truth is not the truth itself, but a conjecture of the truth.

T. 183³. A curiosity for conjecturing...

Conjoin. Conjungere.

Conjunction. Conjunctio.

See COVENANT; and under GOOD, HEAVENLY MARRIAGE, RECIPROCAL, and SABBATH.

A. 50. Man's life entirely depends upon this conjunction (with the World of Spirits and with Heaven, through Spirits and Angels.) 687.

55. As the most ancients called the conjunction of the understanding and will, or of faith and love, a marriage...

—³. As faith is being conjoined with love he becomes a vegetable; and at last, when it is conjoined, he becomes a tree.

379. Charity alone, or love and mercy, are what conjoin... man with the Lord... 389. 1038. 1039.

665. There can be no other covenant between God and man than conjunction through love and faith; thus 'a covenant'=conjunction.

687. No Angel, Spirit, or Society, can ever have any life... unless there is conjunction through a number of their own Society with Heaven, and with the World of Spirits. Ex.

904². Wherever there is conjunction, there must be a conjoining medium, which is solely love and charity. Ex. 1013³, Sig.

1055. Nothing exists in nature, where there is any union and conjunction, which does not derive its origin from love...

1121. Thus is man conjoined with the Angels through their veriest life, which consists in such love.

1361⁵. This representative Church was instituted... that there might be some conjunction of Heaven with earth, or of the Lord through Heaven with man; and this after conjunction through the internal things of worship had perished.

1402. That the Lord's Human essence might be conjoined with the Divine one. Tr.

1432. Everything exists and subsists... by the conjunction of both (the Human and the Divine essences) with His Kingdom in the Heavens and on earth.

1440⁶. As the Lord conjoined the Human essence with the Divine one when He arrived at the celestial things of love...

1468. 'Wife'=truth conjoined with good; for the conjunction of truth with good is exactly as a marriage.

[A.] 1469^e. The Lord conjoined the Divine essence with the Human one in order that His Human essence might also become Divine.

1502³. How the Lord's Human essence was conjoined with His Divine one, or, what is the same thing, how the Lord became Jehovah as to His Human essence also. Sig.

1535. The external man with the Lord, which was to be conjoined with His internal. Tr. 1540. 1659².

1557³. As the Lord was to conjoin human things with Divine ones, He advanced according to order . . . at last into the celestial state of infancy, in which He fully conjoined the Human essence with the Divine one.

1587^e. The Lord came into the world in order to conjoin and unite the external man with the internal, that is, the Human essence with the Divine one.

1589². The Rational is that through which the internal man is conjoined with the external ; such as is the Rational such is the conjunction.

1608². Love and thence faith are what conjoin.

1616². As those things which are of the external man are conjoined with the celestial things of the internal man, perception grows, and becomes more interior ; conjunction with celestial things alone gives perception . . .

—³. His external man, or Human essence, was conjoined with the Divine essence by degrees, according to the multiplication and fructification of Knowledges ; for no one can ever be conjoined with Jehovah or the Lord, except through Knowledges ; for through Knowledges man becomes man.

1708. How after the combats of temptations, apparent goods become genuine goods, and that they can then be conjoined with the interior or middle man, and through this with the internal. Sig.

1731. These things announce and foretell the conjunction of the Lord's essence with His Divine one.

1733. The conjunction of the internal man, or Jehovah, with the interior and exterior. Sig.

—^e. Before plenary conjunction or union took place . . .

1737. The conjunction of the Human essence with the Divine one was effected by the Lord through continual combats of temptations and victories, and this from His Own power ; he who apprehends the method of conjunction and union otherwise, is much deceived . . . The conjunction or union was effected with the Celestial of love, that is, with love itself, which is Jehovah. The conjunction of men with the Lord is also effected through temptations, and through the implantation of faith in love . . . This alone is 'to follow Him,' namely, to be so conjoined with the Lord, as the Lord as to the Human essence was with Jehovah.

1745³. This may be illustrated by the conjunction of the Lord with the Angels . . . But with the Lord there was effected a plenary conjunction or eternal union with Jehovah . . .

1775. Revelation or the Word is a general vessel recipient of spiritual and celestial things, thus conjoining Heaven and earth . . .

1864. The conjunction of the Lord's interior man with the internal. Sig.

— . The Lord advanced more and more to conjunction and union with Jehovah His Father, until He became one . . .

1953^e. The Lord's interior man . . . was he who was conjoined with the internal, who was Jehovah. 1957.

1985. The conjunction of the Lord through the Human essence with the human race. Tr. 1986.

1986. Thus there would be conjunction with both those within and those without the Church. Sig.

— . Purification must precede, otherwise there is no conjunction, but damnation ; and yet conjunction can only take place in what is impure of man. Sig.

2004². With man also there is reciprocal conjunction . . . This is the conjunction of the Lord with man, without which man could never think, still less be rational. Ex.

—³. There was union of the Lord with Jehovah, but there is no union of man with the Lord, but conjunction . . . So that the Lord conjoins Himself with man.

2021. In order that a more distinct idea may be had about the union of the Lord's Divine essence with the Human one, and about the conjunction of the Lord with the human race through the faith of charity, it is allowable, here and in what follows, to call the former, union, but the latter, conjunction ; for there was union of the Lord's Divine essence with the Human one, but there is conjunction of the Lord with the human race through the faith of charity . . . When life flows into a recipient of life, there is conjunction . . . Man does not live from himself, but the Lord from mercy adjoins him to Himself, and thus causes him to live to eternity ; and as they are thus distinct, it is said conjunction.

2034. From Him there is conjunction of all who have faith in Him. Sig.

— . It now here treats concerning the conjunction of the Lord with those who believe in Him.

—². From these words it is evident that the Lord in His union with His Father would have regard to His conjunction with the human race. —³. 2077.

— . All conjunction is effected through love ; love is conjunction itself.

—⁵. That conjunction with the human race was effected of the infinite or supreme Divine through the Lord's Human made Divine, and that this conjunction was the cause of the Lord's advent into the world, is an arcanum . . .

—⁷. From the time of the first promise, the faith of love to the Lord about to come, conjoined.

— . That all such might be conjoined and saved . . .

2049⁴. They who are in the life of love and of charity are in the Lord's life ; no one can be conjoined with Him through any other.

2053. The conjunction of the Lord with man in his impurity. Sig. and Ex.

2063³. When man is being regenerated, that is, when he is to be conjoined with the Lord, he advances to conjunction through the truth of faith ; for no one can be regenerated, except through the Knowledges of faith, which are the truths through which he advances to conjunction.

—^c. Thus is man conjoined with the Lord . . .

2075. Truth conjoined with good would do this. Sig.

—². The number 'nine'=conjunction, and still more the number 'ninety.' . . For 'ten' = remains, through which there is conjunction. 2269.

—³. These words=conjunction through remains.

—⁴. There is no longer conjunction through those things which are of faith and charity. Sig.

2083. The Rational . . . was from the Divine thus conjoined with the Human.

2093. Divine truth conjoined with Divine good. Sig.

—². It treats concerning this Rational, that it was made Divine by the Lord, through the conjunction, as through the marriage, of Divine good with Divine truth.

—³. The second or Divine Rational, was not so conceived and born; but through the conjunction of the truth of the internal man with the good of the same . . .

2102. It treats in this whole chapter . . . concerning the conjunction of the Lord with man through His Human essence made Divine . . .

—^c. The conjunction of the Divine with man cannot take place, unless man is purified from these loves; but as soon as he is purified from them, the Divine Human of the Lord flows in, and so conjoins the man with itself.

2112. When the Lord conjoined His Human Essence with the Divine one, He also conjoined with Himself all others who become rational from truth. Sig.

2177⁵. That Aaron and his sons should eat what was left, represented the reciprocal of man, and appropriation, thus conjunction through love and charity.

2183. All these things thus conjoined. Sig.

—². Before the Rational and the Natural are conjoined, man cannot be a whole man, nor in the tranquillity of peace . . .

—^c. Wherefore there is nothing that can make man blessed and happy, than that the Natural should be conformable to the Rational, and both be conjoined, which is effected only through charity.

2193. The conjunction of the Divine with the Human. Sig. 2213.

2209². Thus it is the Word which conjoins Heaven with earth . . .

2249. Why so much is here said of the state of the conjunction of the Human with the Divine of the Lord.

—². A likeness of the Lord's conjunction with Heaven . . .

2261^e. Such as is the conjunction, and thence the capacity, that these things may be perfected in the other life, such is the state of blessedness and happiness after death.

2269. It should not perish if they could be conjoined. Sig.

—^c. 'Forty-five'=conjunction.

—³. As to the conjunction of good with truth, it is an arcanum . . . and we shall only say a few words about it . . . Their conjunction is effected according to their correspondence with each other. Ex.

—^c. In the deceitful and in hypocrites, good and evil are not far from being conjoined; but still the Lord takes care that they are not conjoined . . .

2272. Temptations take place to the end . . . that truths may be more closely conjoined with goods. Ex.

—^c. As the conjunction of good with truth is effected through temptations, and in a former verse it is said that those should be saved with whom goods can be conjoined with truths, therefore this follows; and indeed so, that they can be conjoined through temptations . . .

2342³. As the conjunction of the Lord with the human race is effected through love and charity, and thence faith . . .

2349². No one can be conjoined with the Lord except through love and charity; love is spiritual conjunction itself . . . 2360. 2718^e.

2444^e. Evil and falsity are so conjoined that . . .

2465². 'We will lie with him' = that thus they would be conjoined. —³.

—^c. That falsities might appear as truths, and thus be conjoined. Sig.

2554. That thus the celestial things of faith would also perish, if they thought that only spiritual truth could be conjoined with celestial good. Sig.

—^c. Although Divine good is thus united only with Divine truth, still it inflows into lower truths, and conjoins itself with them, but not as in a marriage; for it inflows into rational truths, which are only appearances of truth, and conjoins itself with them; yea, also into scientific and sensuous truths, which are hardly anything but fallacies, and conjoins itself with them . . . In order that Divine good might be able to conjoin itself with the former and the latter . . . the Lord came into the world; for without the Human of the Lord made Divine there is no conjunction, but through it there is conjunction.

2689⁴. The affection of evil and the thought of truth never conjoin themselves; where they appear to conjoin themselves, still they do not conjoin themselves . . .

—^c. This truth . . . is indeed born to evil, but does not conjoin itself with evil, wherefore it is extirpated in the other life.

2714². The spiritual are signified by . . . 'those who are conjoined with His feet' (Deut.xxxiii.3).

2795. 'We will come back to you' (Gen.xxii.5)=conjunction afterwards. 2856.

2853^e. That there might be conjunction of Heaven with the human race through the Church . . .

2875. Conjunction again with the former Rational. Sig.

—^c. After temptations, He again conjoined Himself with that Rational.

2863³. These and many more are truths with the gentiles, and conjoin themselves with the good which they have from the Lord; from the conjunction of which they are in a state to receive still more truths . . . The falsities with them do not conjoin themselves with good, but only apply themselves in such a way that they can be separated from it. The things which are conjoined remain, but those which are applied are separated . . .

[A.] 2875. In its own time and order, truth is called forth from the memory by the Lord, and conjoined with the affection of good . . .

— . Whatever takes place in freedom is conjoined ; but what takes place under compulsion is not conjoined ; as may be evident from the fact, that nothing can ever be conjoined, except that with which one is affected . . .

—^e. The affection of truth and of good is the only thing which receives the truth of faith ; for they agree together ; and because they agree together, they conjoin themselves.

2877. Then the truth of faith conjoins itself with the good of charity. 2979².

2879. The Lord flows in with good through the inmost of man, and there conjoins truth . . .

2881. That which takes place under compulsion is not conjoined, thus is not appropriated.

2979. That they should receive truth conjoined with good from the Lord. Sig.

— . Man is regenerated when he has received from the Lord truth conjoined with good. Ex.

3012. There is here described the whole process of the conjunction of truth with good in the Lord's Divine Rational ; in this chapter, the process of initiation which precedes the conjunction. 3048².

3024. The Divine Rational was not to be conjoined with any affection which disagrees with truth. Sig.

— . 'To take a woman'=to be conjoined through the covenant of marriage.

— . All the conjunction of truth with good is effected through affection ; for no truth ever enters man's Rational, and is conjoined there, except through affection ; for in affection there is the good of love, which alone conjoins.

—⁷. Good and falsity, and evil and truth, are not to be conjoined ; for thence there would be profanation. Sig.

3068^e. The affection which is of love is that which conjoins in order that they may be in order ; for love is spiritual conjunction.

3091. Without the submission of those things which are in a lower place, there is no conjunction.

3095. Real truth is never conjoined with good except through its own affection ; for in affection is the life through which is the conjunction.

3108². Before truth is initiated and rightly conjoined with good, it is indeed with man, but has not become his . . .

— . The case is the same with the falsity which is being conjoined with evil . . .

3110². Truth is to be explored . . . before it is conjoined with good. Sig.

— . About the initiation and conjunction of truth with good with every man there is the most exquisite investigation . . . Nothing is ever admitted to the veriest good except the veriest truth ; when anything not so true comes, it does not conjoin itself with good itself, but with some good which in itself is not good, but which appears as good ; if falsity comes, good betakes itself inwardly, and outwardly the falsity conjoins itself with some evil, which he believes to be good . . .

—^e. Evil and truth can no more be conjoined, than Hell and Heaven.

3123. In a state of the conjunction of truth with good in the Rational. Sig.

3125. It has treated of the investigation of the truth which was to be conjoined with good in the Rational . . .

— . He Himself explored the truth which He conjoined with good ; but with men truth is never conjoined with good from what is their Own, but by the Lord's power . . .

3161². When this takes place, truths are elevated out of the natural memory into the Rational, and are there conjoined with good ; and when they are conjoined, they are no longer of knowledge, but of life.

—³. Through the Rational as to good, the Lord begot the Natural as to truth, which He conjoined with good.

3167². Truth from the natural man is to be initiated and conjoined with good in the Rational . . .

3168. 'To eat'=to be communicated and conjoined, thus to be appropriated.

— . 'To drink,' also=to be communicated and conjoined, thus to be appropriated.

—^e. When truth is initiated to good, and still more when it is conjoined with it in the Rational, the good and truth of the spiritual man . . . are appropriated to the Natural.

3172. The affection of conjunction. Sig.

— . That the affection of truth, which is 'Rebekah,' might be conjoined. Sig.

3175². To this good, truth is to be initiated and conjoined, and this in the Rational ; for truth is initiated and conjoined with good when man loves the Lord and his neighbour . . .

3179². It never appears to man that there is any consent on the part of truth when this is being initiated and conjoined with good, that is, when man is being regenerated ; nor on the part of good that it knows its own truth, and initiates and conjoins this to itself . . .

3194. 'Isaac'=the Lord's Divine Rational, here, as to the Divine good therein, because there was not as yet conjoined with it the truth Divine called forth from the Natural which is represented by 'Rebekah.' In these things which now follow it treats of the conjunction.

—^e. Hence came the Lord's Divine good rational, with which He conjoined Divine truth from the Human.

3205. 'To meet us'=towards conjunction.

3211. 'He took Rebekah, and she was to him for a woman, and he loved her'=the conjunction of good and truth.

3308. 'The boys grew up'=the first state of the conjunction of good and truth. 3316². Ex.

3316². When good first desires doctrinal things, to the end that it may conjoin itself with them, it appears under the form of the affection of truth. Sig.

—³. Doctrinal things not yet conjoined with good, thus a mass without order. Sig.

3318. It treats concerning the conjunction of good with truth in the natural man.

— . Good cannot be conjoined with truth in the natural man without combats . . . 3321.

—⁴. Hence it is, that the good, at first in the rational man, afterwards in the natural, begins to be conjoined with truths there . . .

— . The use performed by temptation is that good from the Lord can not only flow in, but can also dispose the vessels to obedience, and thus conjoin itself with them . . .

3321. As to the conjunction of good with truth in the Natural, the case in general is this . . .

3322. 'Esau'=the good of the Natural, before the doctrinal things of truth have been so well conjoined with it.

—². It treats of the conjunction of good and truth in the Lord's Human, and of the combats of temptations through which He conjoined them. —,Sig.

3362. It treats of the Lord's conjunction with those who are in His Kingdom through truths, and in fact through the appearances of truth of a higher degree with the Angels, and of a lower degree with men; consequently through the Word . . . —. 3376.

3365. 'Isaac,' here, represents the Lord as to Divine truth conjoined with the Divine good of the Rational . . .

—^e. Hence is the Lord's conjunction with Angels and men.

3375^e. By the confirmation here, which is signified by 'an oath,' is meant the conjunction of the Lord with those who are in His Kingdom.

3451. The conjunction of the Lord's Kingdom on earth with His Kingdom in the Heavens, thus with the Lord, through the Word. Tr.

3459². With those who are in the good of truth the Lord conjoins Himself, but not so closely as with those who are in the good of charity; for love and charity are spiritual conjunction, but not faith, except through love and charity. —^e.

3465. The conjunction of confirmed truth thereby through doctrinal things. Sig.

— . It is said the conjunction of confirmed truth, when interior truths conjoin themselves with exterior truths . . . With such there is conjunction through the truths which are of faith, and not so much through the goods which are of charity.

3538². Good acts through truth united or conjoined with itself.

—^e. The state of the conjunction of good and truth, or the state before they are fully united or conjoined. Tr.

3542. 'The neck'=what conjoins. Ex. and Ill. (See NECK.)

— . If the will is of evil, good and truths disjoin, not conjoin; but if there is any will of good, they do not disjoin, but conjoin . . .

—². Hence it is that both influx and communication, thus conjunction, are signified by this intermediate.

— . To shut off and intercept the communication and thence the conjunction of higher and lower things. Sig. and Ex. —³.

—⁴. As by 'the neck' is signified this communication and conjunction . . .

3565. 'He blessed him'=conjunction thence. 3576. 3660.

— . 'To bless'=conjunction. Refs. (See BLESS-benedicere.)

— . But in this state conjunction was no other than that which is described above; there was inmost conjunction, but not mediate, with the truth represented by 'Jacob' . . . When the end exists, then first there is the conjunction of inmost with outermost things; mediate conjunction comes successively . . . For the Lord acts through ends, and through them disposes the intermediates into order successively; hence is the conjunction which is signified by Isaac blessing Jacob.

3573. 'To kiss'=union and conjunction from affection; the kissing which is the external is nothing but the affection of conjunction which is the internal, for they correspond. (See Kiss.)

— . It treats here of the conjunction of the Natural with the Rational; for the Natural is not regenerated until it is conjoined with the Rational; this conjunction is effected through the immediate and mediate influx of the Rational into the good and truth of the Natural . . . It treats of these conjunctions. Ex.

—³. When there is conjunction, as with those who are regenerate . . . Then the Rational as to good conjoins itself immediately with the good of the Natural, and through this, with its truths, and also mediately through the truth conjoined with itself in the Rational with the truth of the Natural, and through this with the good there; hence is effected indissoluble conjunction. 3576, Sig.

—^e. Hence is manifest what is the conjunction of the rational or internal man as to good and truth with his natural or external man.

3576^e. So long as truth is being conjoined with good, good takes a lower place as to the appearance . . . But that then there will be conjunction of the Rational with the good of the Natural, and through this, with truth . . . Thus then 'Esau' will represent the good itself of the Natural, and 'Jacob,' the truth itself of it, conjoined with the Rational. Sig. 3601.

3584. He who conjoins himself shall be conjoined. Sig.

3586. When the first conjunction has thus been effected, which is with truth. Sig.

3596. How the case is with the appropriation and conjunction of the truth represented by 'Jacob.'

—². With them, eating signified appropriation and conjunction, and their eating with anyone, or to eat of his bread, signified conjunction with him. Ex.

3597². Good also desired conjunction, although through it truth was conjoined. Sig. —⁵.

3601. 'To live upon the sword'=while truth is being conjoined with good, for conjunction is effected through combats, that is, through temptations, for without these truth is not at all conjoined.

[A.] 3603. There would then be conjunction through good. Sig.

3605. Natural good was averse to the inverted conjunction of truth. Sig.

3612. Goods and truths have a conjunction among themselves; as parents, brothers, etc., have in families.

3616. When the end comes, or conjunction . . .

3617. Otherwise no conjunction. Sig.

— For then truth could not be conjoined with good, thus good could not be united to truth in the Natural . . . For without the conjunction of truth with good, and the union of truth with good in the Natural, there is no regeneration. Sig.

3660². As to the conjunction which is signified by 'blessing' . . .

— Without corresponding goods and truths there is no conjunction . . .

3662. Only let it not be conjoined with the affections of falsity and of evil. Sig. 3683.

— 'To take a woman' = to be associated, or conjoined.

3667. The temptations of that truth and good through which there is conjunction. Sig.

3670. The conjunction of His Divine with the good and truth of the Natural. Sig.

3679⁶. The thought of natural good about conjunction through the good of truth, is thought in the Natural about the end, namely, how truth could be conjoined with it . . .

—⁷. In the beginning, the truth of good, which is 'Esau,' is not conjoined in the external form with the good of truth, which is 'Jacob' . . . Yet inmost, as to ends, they are conjoined . . . And as the end conjoins, they are conjoined.

3682. That there might be effected conjunction, reflection, and thence perception. Sig.

3734. To conjunction with Divine good. Sig.

3735. Conjunction with Divine truth. Sig.

— 'To put on' = to be appropriated and conjoined.

—². Hence the nature of the conjunction of Heaven and earth through the Word may be evident, namely, that it is such that he who reads the Word holily, through such correspondences is more closely conjoined with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord . . .

—³. In order that there might be such influx, and thence conjunction of man with the Lord, the Holy Supper has been instituted . . .

3808. Initiation to conjunction from affection; for initiation is what precedes conjunction. Sig.

3809. 'He brought him to his house' = to conjunction.

— There are here five things which constitute this process, namely, mutual acknowledgment, coming together, affection, initiation, and conjunction. Sig. 3810.

3812. Conjoined as to truths and as to goods. Sig.

— All spiritual conjunction is effected through truths and goods, and all natural conjunction has relation to them.

3824. Assiduity, and a consequent holy state, in order that it might be conjoined with internal truth. Sig.

— Internal truths are said to be conjoined with the Natural when they are learned, acknowledged, and believed . . . But they are not conjoined until the man is affected with them for the sake of the use of life . . . for then good is coupled with them, through which they are conjoined with the Rational . . .

3834. There was as yet conjunction only with the affection of external truth. Sig. and Ex.

— 'To bring her to him' = conjunction like that of marriage.

—². The Lord provides against celestial and spiritual truths being conjoined with other than genuine affections . . .

3848. Then the conjunction of good with the affection of interior truth. Sig.

— 'To give for a woman' = conjunction.

— As all the conjunction of truth with good at first apparently proceeds in order from exterior to interior things, and at last to inmost ones . . . The conjunction of good with the affection of internal truth first exists when the good of the Natural is conjoined with rational truth, and through this with rational good; this conjunction is represented by Jacob after the birth of his twelve sons, when he returned to the house of his mother and father.

3875. In the external sense, 'to cleave' = conjunction.

— Charity, or, what is the same, mutual love, is spiritual conjunction; for it is a conjunction of the affections which are of the will, and thence an agreement of the thoughts which are of the understanding; thus a conjunction of minds as to both parts.

—⁶. This word for 'cleave' = a still closer conjunction. Ill.

3902. The conjunction of natural truth, through mediums, with spiritual good. Tr.

3906. Internal truths are conjoined with spiritual affection . . .

—². These things are in external truth before internal truth is conjoined with it; which cannot conjoined until self-intuition begins to cease . . .

3911. 'The fruit of the belly' = the acknowledgment of truth and good in faith and act; and still more, namely, the conjunction of truth and good thence. That acknowledgment, and this conjunction, cannot come forth from the external man, but from the internal . . .

3913. This affection is the medium for conjoining interior truths with natural truths. Sig.

— 'The handmaids' given to Jacob . . . represented what serves, here, as a medium of conjunction, namely, of interior truth with external truth.

—². When man is being regenerated, the internal man is to be conjoined with the external, thus the goods and truths which are of the internal man with the goods and truths which are of the external . . . These cannot be conjoined without mediums. Ex. —⁴. —⁵.

3914. The capacity of conjunction with it. Sig.

— 'To come in unto her' = conjunction; here, the capacity of conjunction with the affirmative, for there must be the first of conjunction with the affirmative, that is, that it is so.

3915. The acknowledgment of interior truth with affection, from which comes conjunction. Sig.

— 'The knees,' or 'thighs'=those things which are of marriage love, thus which are of the conjunction of the truth which is of faith and of the good which is of love; for this conjunction is the marriage principle itself in the Lord's Kingdom.

— There must be affection in acknowledgment or affirmation, in order that conjunction may be effected, for all conjunction is effected through affection. Ex.

3925°. It here treats of the second general medium serving for the conjunction of the internal man with the external.

3928. Temptation is a medium for the conjunction of the internal man with the external . . .

3931. A conjoining affirmative medium. Sig.

— 'A handmaid'=an affirmative medium serving for the conjunction of the external man with the internal. 3937.

3939. This is the fourth general principle which conjoins the external man with the internal; for when man perceives in himself this corresponding delight, his external man begins to be conjoined with his internal man; there are delights which are of the affections of truth and good which conjoin, for without delights of affections nothing is conjoined . . .

— By the sons of the handmaids are signified general truths, which are the mediums serving for conjunction.

3941. By the four sons of Jacob from the handmaids, the mediums of the conjunction of the external man with the internal are treated of. It now treats of the conjunction of good and truth by the rest of the sons, first therefore of the mandrakes, by which is signified this conjunction, or marriage principle. 3942. —³. 3945.

3945. Marriage love is mutual and reciprocal conjunction.

3951. All conjunction of truth with good, and of good with truth, with man, is effected from what is foreseen, that is, from the Divine Providence. For it here treats of the conjunction of good with truth, and of truth with good . . . For good is not good with man until it is conjoined with truth . . . The Divine Providence is especially busied about this conjunction . . .

3952. 'He lay with her in that night'=conjunction.

— It treats of the conjunction of truth with good and of good with truth, which conjunction is the marriage principle understood in the spiritual sense.

— This conjunction is what makes the heavenly marriage. Ex.

3957. 'Reward'=the conjunction of good and truth.

3969°. The interior and the exterior man must be conjoined both ways, even so that they are not two, but as one man; this conjunction cannot take place until the natural man has been prepared . . . and until the good of the Natural man is conjoined with truths there; which conjunction is signified by the last son of Jacob from Leah . . . After this conjunction has been effected, the interior and the exterior man can enter into the heavenly marriage . . . For it is the good of the interior man which then conjoins itself with the good of the exterior, and, through this, with truth there; and also the good of the interior man through the affection of truth there, with the good of the exterior man, and also with truth there; thus immediately and mediately . . . Then, for the first time, the interior man is conjoined with the exterior, and before this conjunction has been effected the interior man is as it were nothing. Sig.

3972. Collateral good from a Divine origin, through which there is conjunction of the interiors. Sig.

3973. There was then a longing of the Natural represented by Jacob for a state of conjunction with the Divine Rational. Sig.

3986. To be gifted with Divine good through conjunction, here, with the good of the Natural. Sig.

—². Varieties come forth from the truths with which goods are conjoined . . .

—³. Where the Divine is present, all things are disposed into order, in order that they may be conjoined with genuine goods and genuine truths, which are in the Heavens . . .

— A one is constituted . . . of various things harmoniously conjoined; various things harmoniously conjoined present every one . . .

— Love and charity are spiritual conjunction.

3987. Neither is good fructified, nor truth multiplied, until conjunction has been effected of the external man with the internal . . . Unless doing good be conjoined with willing good, and teaching good with thinking good . . . that is, unless the external man be conjoined with the internal.

3993³. The conjunction of both the internal and the external man through regeneration by the Lord is here treated of.

—⁴. After . . . the conjunction of the external man with the interior, or of the natural with the spiritual man signified by 'Joseph,' has been treated of, now, according to order, it treats of the fructification of good and the multiplication of truth, which first take place when conjunction has been effected . . .

—¹². With cunning and deceit good cannot be at all conjoined . . .

—¹³. The evils with which goods are mingled, and the falsities with which truths are mingled . . . are not conjoined, still less united, but are adjoined and applied . . .

3995. Truth . . . is adopted by the good which is within, and is conjoined with it.

4018. The ardour of affection that they might be conjoined. Sig. 4082.

— For spiritual things are thus conjoined; and moreover all the implantation of truth and good, also all conjunction are effected through affection . . . The greater the affection, the stronger the conjunction.

—³. But truths cannot be implanted and conjoined with good, except through the affections of truth and good.

—^e. The conjunction of good and truth in the natural man is here treated of. 4027³. 4029.

4029. The derivation of this word in the Original Language is conjunction.

[A.] 4031². All conjunction of good and truth is effected in freedom, or spontaneously . . . No conjunction of good and truth, that is, appropriation, thus no regeneration, can be effected except in man's freedom. 4364², Refs.

—³. He then conjoins that holy thing with evils and falsities . . .

4061. In order that this good and truth might be conjoined with what is Divine from a direct Divine stock. Tr.

4094. Conjunction with the Divine good of truth. Sig.

4096⁵. When this takes place, good conjoins itself with truths, and truths apply themselves, in freedom.

4097. Whether there is any longer any conjunction. Sig.

4108. To conjoin with the Divine good of the Rational, in order to make the Human Divine. Sig.

—³. As to the conjunction of the Rational and the Natural with man . . . their conjunction makes the human, and the human is such as is the conjunction, and there is conjunction when they act as one . . .

4116. A state where there is conjunction. Sig.

—'. 'The river,' here, the Euphrates=conjunction, namely, with the Divine. —

4119. The end of conjunction. Sig.

—'. The end of a state of conjunction is the beginning of the following state, which is one of separation.

4121. They do not call themselves brothers, but they are brothers through conjunction.

4122. Continued ardour for conjunction. Sig.

4124. Somewhat of conjunction. Sig. 4127.

—'. 'To adjoin'=conjunction.

—'. 'Mount Gilead'='the good which is the first of conjunction.

4126. He who is such' is no longer conjoined with another, because it is thought and will that conjoin, not words; in this world words do indeed conjoin, but only when the other believes that one also thinks and wills what is good . . .

4129. A state of good in somewhat of that conjunction. Sig.

—'. 'Mount Gilead'='where there is the first and last of conjunction.

—^e. The conjunction and separation of the Societies with the man who is to be regenerated. Tr.

4189. The conjunction of the Divine Natural with the goods of works in which are the gentiles. Sig.

—³. Although separation had been effected, there still remained conjunction . . .

4191. All who are in good are conjoined with the Lord's Divine, and on account of the conjunction are called 'brethren' by the Lord.

—'. All conjunction is through love and charity . . . for spiritual conjunction is nothing but love and charity. That love to the Lord is conjunction with Him, is evident; and so also is charity towards the neighbour. Sig.

4197. A testification of the conjunction of the good here signified by 'Laban' with the Divine good of the Lord's Natural; thus the conjunction of the Lord through good with the gentiles. Sig. and Ex.

—³. Conjunction with the Lord has no existence except through good, and there is no good which conjoins except what has its quality from truth . . . The good here is conjunction with the Lord by their 'choosing Him to serve Him.'

—⁹. The commandments of the decalogue were called 'the testimony,' because they were of the covenant, thus of the conjunction between the Lord and man, which conjunction cannot take place unless man keeps these commandments not only in the external form, but also in the internal.

4205. Conjunction is effected through good, and good flows in according to reception . . .

—². That the things which have entered are reproduced . . . together with many other things with which they have associated or conjoined themselves . . . For things conjoined cohere together.

4211. Those who were now conjoined in friendship. Sig.

—'. Feasts among the ancients signified appropriation and conjunction through love and charity.

—'. The Holy Supper . . . has an internal in it, through which it conjoins the man who is in love and charity with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord.

—². The conjunction of man with the Lord is not with His supreme Divine itself, but with His Divine Human . . . for everyone is conjoined through the thought and affection of which he has some idea . . .

—³. Still the Lord conjoins Himself with those who are out of the Church through their good of charity and of obedience in their gross idea . . .

—'. The conjunction of the Lord with man is according to the state of his thought and affection thence derived; those who are in the most holy idea concerning the Lord, and are at the same time in the Knowledges and affections of good and truth . . . are conjoined with the Lord as to His Divine Rational; those who are not in such great holiness, nor in such an interior idea and affection, and yet are in the good of charity, are conjoined with the Lord as to His Divine Natural; those who have a still grosser holiness, are conjoined with the Lord as to His Divine Sensual; this conjunction is what is represented by 'the brazen serpent' . . . and in this conjunction are those among the gentiles who worship idols, yet live in charity according to their religion.

4213. They who are conjoined as to good and truth are in tranquillity, and in peace.

4215. Where there is conjunction through good and truth, there is the acknowledgment of them.

—^e. He who regards self as the end . . . and wants to be conjoined with another as to that end, is in evil.

4224^e. At last man knows . . . from experience itself, how the case is . . . with his conjunction with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord . . . and further, how man separates himself from that conjunction, and conjoins himself with Hell.

4234. What is successive of truth, in order that it might be conjoined with spiritual and celestial good. Sig.

—². This conjunction itself, namely, of truth Divine with good Divine of the Lord's Divine Natural, is now treated of in the supreme sense.

—³. When man is being regenerated, truth is conjoined with good, distinctly in the Natural, and distinctly in the Rational, and this by innumerable means.

4243². It now here treats of the process of conjunction, thus of the inversion of the state, in the order in which it is effected when truth is being subordinated to good.

4253. Conjunction with Divine good and truth. Sig.

4267^e. They are called 'brethren,' because when good and truth are conjoined, good is presented in truth as in an image, and because they afterwards act conjointly to produce the effect; before they are conjoined, good is called 'the lord,' and truth 'the servant.'

4275. Before the conjunction of the natural good signified by 'Jacob' with the Celestial Spiritual, or the Divine good of truth. Sig.

4277. When celestial spiritual good is conjoined with the natural good signified by 'Jacob.' Sig.

—'. 'The hollow of the thigh'=where there is conjunction.

4283. Temptation ceased when conjunction was at hand. Sig.

—'. 'The dawn'=the conjunction of the natural good signified by 'Jacob' with the Celestial Spiritual, or the Divine good of truth.

—². The times of the day, here,=the states of conjunction through temptations; for when there is effected the conjunction of the internal man with the external, it is 'dawn' . . .

4286². The celestial Angels are in love to the Lord, and thence are the most closely conjoined with Him. 4750.

4300. 'The sun arose'=the conjunction of goods; for 'the dawn going up'=when conjunction is at hand, or is beginning.

—^e. When celestial love manifests itself with man, that is, when it is perceived . . . the goods of that love are conjoined with him.

4301. The conjunction of good is here treated of.

—². They who have not celestial perception cannot even have an idea of the conjunction of truth with good . . . But they who have perception . . . are affected with the truths which are conjoined with good . . . wherefore these Angels perceive all the differences and all the varieties of the insinuation and conjunction of truth in good . . .

—³. The things which the eye sees from no affection . . . are not inserted into the memory, thus neither are they conjoined with him.

4334⁴. Their state as to the appropriation of evil and falsity, and thence as to conjunction with them. Sig.

—'. 'To marry'=conjunction with evil, and 'to give in marriage,' conjunction with falsity.

4341. The state of conjunction of Divine good with truth in the Natural. Sig.

—'. All the conjunction of good with truth is effected through temptations.

—². The good itself which is to be conjoined with truth is not tempted, but the truth.

—'. The rational truths which are conjoined with good when it inflows into the natural. Sig.

4347². He who is puffed up in mind . . . rejects the influx of good, and thence the conjunction of it with truths . . . Hence it is evident, that good cannot be conjoined with truths, thus man cannot be regenerated, unless he humbles and submits himself.

4351. The first conjunction. Sig.

—'. 'To embrace'=affection, and as affection is of love, and love regards conjunction, it is the conjunction of love which is here signified.

—'. The reason it is the first conjunction which is signified, is that it goes on to say that 'he fell on his neck,' and afterwards that 'he kissed him,' which = closer and more interior conjunctions from love.

4352. A second conjunction of all the things which are in that universal. Sig.

—'. 'To fall on the neck'=a closer conjunction, for it is a closer embracing . . .

—². The conjunction of good with truths in the Natural is here described. Ex.

—'. Good flows in through the internal man into the external, and there conjoins itself with the truths which are insinuated through the external man . . . It is the love itself which is in good and with good which conjoins; unless love were in it and were present, no conjunction could ever possibly exist, for love is nothing else than spiritual conjunction, because it is effected through it.

4353. More interior conjunction from love. Sig.

—'. It treats in this verse in general of the conjunction of the good of the Divine Natural, which is 'Esau,' with the truth there, which is 'Jacob;' and in what follows this conjunction is treated of in special. 4379.

—'. As to the conjunction itself, it is that which makes regeneration with man, for man is regenerated through this, that the truths with him are conjoined with good, that is, that those things which are of faith are conjoined with those which are of charity; this process is here fully described.

—². It is evident that the conjunction of good with truths, through which comes regeneration, advances more and more interiorly, that is, truths are successively more interiorly conjoined with good; for the end of regeneration is that the internal man may be conjoined with the external, thus the spiritual through the rational with the natural; without the conjunction of both there is no regeneration; nor can this conjunction be effected until good has first been conjoined with truths in the Natural . . . This is the reason, that when the Natural is being regenerated, a more interior conjunction of good with truths is successively effected; for the Spiritual first conjoins itself with those things which are inmost in the Natural, and afterwards, through these, with those which are more exterior; nor can the internal of man conjoin itself with his external, unless the truth in the latter become the good of truth . . . The good in the internal man can be conjoined with the good in the external man, but good cannot be conjoined with truth immediately. Hence it is evident, that the truth with man must first become truth in will and act, that is, the good of truth, before the conjunction of the Rational with the Natural, or of the internal man with the external, can take place. . . This conjunction successively becomes more interior as more interior truths are implanted in that good.

[A.] 4358. Divine good at once acknowledges the truths which it will conjoin with itself . . . (for good and truth) conjoin themselves of themselves; but such as is the good, such are the truths it conjoins with itself . . .

— The conjunction of good with truth is a marriage in the spiritual sense.

4364². The case is the same in spiritual things, or in the things of faith, when they are being conjoined with the good of charity.

—³. Man can be conjoined through affection with those things which he does not see and feel, thus with Heaven, nay, with the Lord Himself; and he who is able to be conjoined with the Divine can never die.

4368⁵. Hence it is evident, that the truths of faith can never be conjoined with anyone, unless he is in the good of genuine charity, thus with nothing but good . . .

4375. What is successive of the conjunction of good with truth. Sig.

4377^e. When he is a little child . . . there are only general truths . . . with which good is then conjoined; thus only exteriorly, and not interiorly; it is conjoined more interiorly successively, as he advances in age.

4380. With regeneration, which is effected through the conjunction of good with truths, the case is this . . . When good has applied itself to truths, and has conjoined itself a little with them, truth appears to react, but . . . it is the good conjoined or adjoined to it which reacts through truth.

4384. Until they can be conjoined, namely, the truth which is 'Jacob' with the good which is 'Esau'. Sig.

— 'Seir' = the conjunction of spiritual with celestial things in the Natural, that is, of the truth which is of faith with the good which is of charity. The good to which truth is conjoined in the Natural, and, in the supreme sense, the Divine Natural of the Lord as to good conjoined with truth there, is what is properly signified by 'Seir' in the following places. III.

4385. That something concerning the truth of good might be conjoined. Sig.

— 'To set with thee' = to conjoin.

4402². Man is made spiritual (as distinguished from celestial,) by this, that with him truths are conjoined with good, that is, those things which are of faith with those things which are of charity, and this in his Natural; exterior truths are first conjoined with good there, and afterwards interior truths; the conjunction of exterior truths in the Natural is treated of in this chapter, from verse 1 to verse 17, and the conjunction of interior truths with good, from verse 17 to the end. Interior truths are no otherwise conjoined with good than through enlightenment flowing in through the internal man into the external . . .

4433. (The truth of the Church from ancient times) could be conjoined only illegitimately with the affection of the truth signified by the sons of Jacob her brothers. Sig. and Ex. 4439. 4445.

— 'To take her, to lie with her, and to compress her' = to be conjoined, but not in the legitimate manner which is effected through betrothal. 4439. 4445.

4434. An inclination to conjunction. Sig. 4449.

— The things which are of marriage love involve spiritual conjunction, which is that of truth with good and of good with truth . . .

—². Betrothal and marriage here, (Rev.xxi)=the conjunction of the Lord with the Church.

4462². The genitals of both sexes = those things which are of the conjunction of good and truth, and they not only signify, but actually correspond to them.

4468. Conjunction also as to doctrine. Sig.

— There are two things which conjoin the men of the Church, namely, life and doctrine; when life conjoins, doctrine does not separate; but if only doctrine conjoins, they separate from one another . . .

4525^e. Man . . . has the power of thinking about God, and of being affected with what is Divine, and thus of being conjoined with Him . . . and those who are able thus to be conjoined with the Divine do not die, for when corporeal things . . . are separated, the interior ones remain conjoined.

4572. The reason that now there is comfort, is that the conjunction of good and truth in the Natural is effected through temptations; the conjunction itself causes comfort, because conjunction is the end of temptations . . .

—². All the conjunction of good with truth is effected through temptations. Why.

—^e. The joy and comfort are not on account of the victory, but on account of the conjunction of good and truth, for all conjunction of good and truth has joy in it, because this is the heavenly marriage, in which is the Divine.

4592⁶. Hence it is evident that Joseph and Benjamin were most closely conjoined, not because they had the same mother, but because by them is represented the spiritual conjunction which there is between good and truth; and as both are an intermediate between the celestial and the spiritual man, Joseph could not be conjoined with his brethren, or with his father, except through Benjamin, for without an intermediate there is no conjunction.

4601². With those who separate the things of faith from those which are of charity in the understanding and thence in the life, evil is conjoined with truth and falsity with good; it is this very conjunction which is called profanation. —³.

4606. 'Levi,' in the external sense, = conjunction.

4612. The Divine Natural conjoined with the Divine Rational. Sig.

— Conjunction is signified by 'he came to him.'

—². As to what concerns the conjunction of the Rational and of the Natural, which is treated of in what follows . . .

—⁴. Hence it is that the Natural must be regenerated before it can be conjoined with the Rational.

4647^e. The chief things from the conjunction of good and truth. Sig.

4675. The conjunction of the Divine Spiritual of the Rational with the Divine Spiritual of the Natural. Sig.

4683. They conjoin works thus, merely from doctrine, not from life.

4750°. When the loves of self and of the world had not mutually conjoined them . . .

4820. The tribe of Judah would conjoin itself with evils and the falsities of evil. Sig.

—, Marriages represent the conjunction of good and truth; and, in the opposite sense, the conjunction of evil and falsity.

—e. The conjunction of evil and falsity is nothing but whoredom.

4835°. 'A brother' = consanguineous good, with which was to be conjoined the truth represented by 'a widow'; for truth cannot be conjoined with any good except its own . . .

4859. The quality of truth does not appear until it is conjoined with its own good. Sig.

—, Wherefore Judah was conjoined with her as with a harlot, but not so Tamar with him. 4871°.

4871. A pledge of conjunction. Sig.

4874. These also are pledges of the conjunction of the external man.

—°. The conjunction of internal truth with external, or with the religion of the Jewish nation, is represented by the conjunction of Tamar with Judah . . . and the conjunction of the religion of the Jewish nation with the internal of the Church is represented by the conjunction of Judah with Tamar as with a harlot; these conjunctions also are precisely so circumstanced. —, Ex.

4912. No conjunction of the external with the internal, but of the internal with the external. Sig.

4914. No more any conjunction with the internal of the Church. Sig.

—, 'To know' = to be conjoined.

4928. Good . . . only flows into truth through affection according to the degree of the conjunction of truth with it; when therefore truth is conjoined with good, which is effected when man is regenerate, good manifests itself . . .

4963. Through man there is conjunction of Heaven with the world . . .

4989. (Natural truth not spiritual adjoined to the good of the Natural) desired conjunction. Sig.

—, 'To lie with me' = conjunction, namely, of the spiritual natural good, which now is 'Joseph,' with natural truth not spiritual, which is 'the wife of his lord;' but unlawful conjunction.

—, Unlawful conjunctions are described by harlotry.

—, The conjunction of these principles cannot exist in internals, but only in externals, in which it appears as if there were conjunction, but there is only affinity . . . For 'the garment' = what is external, through which there is as if it were conjunction.

4997. Disjunction, and no conjunction. Sig.

—, 'Evil,' and also 'sin' = disjunction, and no conjunction, namely, when natural spiritual good is conjoined with truth natural not spiritual.

—, Good is conjunction, because all good is of love to the Lord and of love towards the neighbour; the good of love to the Lord conjoins him to the Lord, and consequently, all the good which proceeds from the Lord; and the good of love towards the neighbour conjoins him with Heaven and with the Societies there; thus also, through this love, he is conjoined with the Lord . . .

5002. 'To be with anyone' = to be more closely conjoined, or united. The reason it is to be united, is that the very being of a thing is good, and all good is of love, which is spiritual conjunction, or union. Hence, in the supreme sense, the Lord is called being or Jehovah, because from Him is all the good which is of love, or of spiritual conjunction. . . Where, therefore, there is no conjunction, or union, there is no being . . .

—°. The being of a society (in which everyone is for himself) is also conjunction, or union, but only in externals . . .

—e. It is otherwise in Heaven, where there is internal conjunction through love to the Lord . . . When external bonds are relaxed there, they are more closely conjoined together.

5114°. With brute animals there is no reception, and no reciprocal appropriation of the Divine through any acknowledgment and affection, and thence conjunction . . .

5117. The conjunction of spiritual truth with celestial good. Sig.

—, 'To ripen' = the progress of regeneration even to the conjunction of truth with good, thus conjunction . . . Their conjunction in the Sensual is circumstanced as is the ripening of the clusters into grapes; for in regeneration all truth tends to conjunction with good.

5133. By communication with the interior Natural is meant conjunction by correspondence. Sig.

5161. Initiation and conjunction with the exterior Natural. Sig.

—, 'A feast' = initiation to conjunction; and also conjunction through love, and appropriation.

—, In old times feasts signified initiation into mutual love, and thus conjunction; they also took place on birthdays, which represented regeneration, which is the conjunction of the interiors with the exteriors through love, consequently, the conjunction of Heaven with the world in man, for what is worldly or natural with him is then conjoined with what is spiritual and celestial.

5169. Not as yet complete conjunction with the Celestial of the Natural. Sig.

5169. 'To recollect, or remember Joseph' = the reception of faith, consequently, also, conjunction, because conjunction is effected by means of faith.

5194. After the state of conjunction, namely, of the sensuous things which are of the exterior Natural with those which are of the interior Natural. Sig.

—, 'The days of two years' = a state of conjunction; for 'two' = conjunction. Ex.

[A.] 5212. The scientifics which are of the Natural conjoined. Sig.

—. 'On one stalk' = conjoined; for the things which are on one stalk are conjoined as to their origin.

5229. The reason 'to recollect' = conjunction, is that in the other life, the recollection of anyone conjoins . . .

5270². The truths which he has learned are to be initiated and conjoined with good; but they cannot be initiated and conjoined with good so long as the evils of the love of self and of the world remain in the natural man; these loves were the first introducers, with which truths could not be at all conjoined; wherefore, in order that conjunction may be effected, the truths before introduced and retained through these loves must be exterminated . . . In the degree in which these evils withdraw, truths are replaced, and are conjoined with good.

5320. A significative of the conjunction of interior truths with exterior ones. Sig.

—. 'A necklace of gold' = conjunction through good.

—. A sign of the conjunction of interior truth with exterior truth. Sig.

5340². Truth is conjoined with good, when a man perceives delight in benefiting the neighbour for the sake of what is true and good . . .

5365². When truth is in need of good, truth is conjoined with good, and when good is in need of truth, good is conjoined with truth; for the reciprocal conjunction of good and truth, namely, of truth with good and of good with truth, is the heavenly marriage. . . At the beginning of regeneration . . . truth has no good wherewith to be conjoined, therefore it is indrawn . . . and according to the influx of good into the Natural there is effected the conjunction of truth with good; but still from this conjunction there is no fructification. But when the man is regenerate . . . good procures for itself truth with which it may be conjoined; hence comes the conjunction of good with truth; and when this is effected, truth is fructified from good, and good from truth. . . They are conjoined according to the desire and its quality . . .

5420. There was not as yet correspondence, and through correspondence conjunction. 5511, Sig. and Ex.

5422. No conjunction, because without a medium. Sig.

—e. External truths, without conjunction through a medium, cannot regard internal truths otherwise than from the light of the world . . .

5440. That all things of faith are thus conjoined together. Sig.

—. 'Brethren' = conjunction through good; for when truths are conjoined through good, they put on as it were a brotherhood one among another. If, without good, they appear to be conjoined, still they are not conjoined . . . The first and the last must conjoin, for there to be conjunction. . . And further, in order that truths may be conjoined, good must reign universally; for it is that which reigns universally which conjoins.

5469². It treats of the conjunction of the internal of the Church with its external, in general and in particular.

5574. The subject is continued concerning the conjunction of the truths of the Church in the Natural, which are the ten sons of Jacob, with the Celestial of the Spiritual, or truth from the Divine, which is Joseph, through the medium, which is Benjamin. In this chapter it only treats of the general influx, which precedes the conjunction.

5596. They separated from themselves the truth of good, to conjoin it with the Spiritual from the internal. Sig.

—. 'To tell' = to communicate; hence also to conjoin, for when it passes into the will of another, conjunction is effected from what is communicated . . .

5643. They will be conjoined when they are with the medium. Sig.

5645². General conjunction, which is the first introduction. Sig.

—. But when the truth which flows in is perceived, there is a second conjunction. Sig.

5663². Consequently, they could not be conjoined with another Divine (than the Divine Human), for conjunction is effected through the thought which is of the understanding, and through the affection which is of the will, thus through faith and love. For when the Divine itself is thought of . . . no conjunction is effected. . . They knew also, that unless they were conjoined with the Divine, they could not be saved. 8705⁴.

5667. Initiation to conjunction with the internal. Sig.

5698. Perception of conjunction through the medium with truths in the Natural. Sig.

—. 'To set on bread' = conjunction through the medium with truths in the Natural . . . for eatings together and feasts = conjunction, specially, initiation to conjunction. . . As conjunction is through a medium, when he saw Benjamin, Joseph commanded that they should eat with him.

5807. The conjunction of new truth with spiritual good from the Natural. Sig.

—. With this new truth there cannot but be conjunction, because it is from that good. The conjunction between this truth and good is like the conjunction between a father and a son; it is also such a conjunction as exists between the willing and the understanding of the mind . . .

—. 'Love' = conjunction . . . for love is spiritual conjunction, because it is a conjunction of minds, or of the thought and will of two . . .

—³. The opposite loves, namely, the loves of self and of the world, are not conjunctions, but disjunctions; they indeed appear as conjunctions . . . but as soon as the one ceases to favour the other, there is disjunction.

5816. No mercy and conjunction with truths in the Natural (unless the truth represented by 'Benjamin,' be subjected to internal good). Sig. . . When there is no mercy, there is also no conjunction; for there is then no love, which is spiritual conjunction.

—³. Hence it is evident, that conjunction is effected through this truth with the truths which are beneath . . .

5869. All things now prepared for conjunction by the Celestial internal. Sig.

—e. In the preceding chapter, it treated of initiation to conjunction, in this chapter, it treats of conjunction itself.

5871. When conjunction is being effected of the truths which are in the external man with the good which is in the internal, that is, when the truths of faith are being conjoined with the good of charity, all those scientifics which do not agree . . . are rejected to the sides. Sig.

5880. When the internal is being conjoined with the external, or good with truth, there is first effected a communication on the part of the internal with the external, but not yet a reciprocal communication; when there is this, there is conjunction. Sig.

5882. Here is described the act of conjunction. . . When the conjunction of the internal with the external, or of good with truth, takes place, there is for the first time given a capacity of perception that man is affected with truth and thus with good . . .

5909. Sure conjunction. Sig.

—'. 'To come down,' or to come to me=conjunction.

5911. Perpetual conjunction. Sig.

5926. Inmost conjunction with the medium. Sig.

5928. As to the conjunction of good with truths, and the reciprocal of truths with good, it is to be known, that when good flows into truths, and conjoins them with itself, it infuses into them good from its own, and, by what is its own, devotes them to itself; hence is the conjunction.

5954. It treats of the conjunction of the natural man with the spiritual. . . When the conjunction is effected, truths are changed, and become new . . .

5975. A longing for conjunction previous to a new state. Sig.

—'. 'To go and see'=to be conjoined; the reason 'to see'=to be conjoined, is that interior sight in the Spiritual World conjoins; interior sight is thought; and in a Society there . . . what one thinks another thinks, thus thought conjoins; and also when anyone thinks of another, he is presented to view, thus also it conjoins.

5994. It treats in this chapter of the conjunction of the Celestial internal, which is 'Joseph,' with spiritual good from the Natural, which is 'Israel.' Then are enumerated in their order the truths and goods of the Church with which conjunction should afterwards be effected. 6033.

6034. The first, and also that which is continuous of conjunction, is mercy. Sig.

6091. An earnest wish for the conjunction of truth with what is scientific in the Natural, and thence fructification. Sig. 6117.

—'. Fructification follows from conjunction, for when conjunction has been effected, good increases and truth is multiplied . . .

6195. Hence it was evident how loves conjoin, and that thence is the conjunction of all in the other life . . . Whereas truths do not conjoin, but the affections of truth. Hence it was evident to me, how man is conjoined either with Heaven or with Hell, namely, through loves . . .

6260. Conjunction from the affection of truth. Sig.

6261. Conjunction from the affection of good. Sig.

6348. Faith separated from the good of charity has filthy conjunction. Sig.

—'. For if faith in doctrine or understanding, which is here represented by 'Reuben,' be not initiated into and conjoined with good, it is either dissipated, or is initiated into and conjoins with evil and falsity, which is the filthy conjunction here signified. Ex.

6370. They who are in love towards the neighbour are most closely conjoined with the Lord . . .

6375. 'To bind'=to be conjoined.

—'. Conjunction with the external Church through truth in the Natural. Sig.

6435. (The conjunction of the two Kingdoms.) Sig. and Ex. —².

6501. The first conjunction. Sig.

6717. The conjunction with good of the truth whose origin is from good. Sig. and Ex.

6765. Combat can be carried on from truth not genuine, provided it be such that it can in some way be conjoined with good, and it is conjoined with good through innocence, for innocence is the medium of conjunction.

6782. Conjunction with the good itself of that Church. Sig.

—'. 'To come to anyone'=to be conjoined.

—'. The conjunction here signified is that of the truths of the Church with its good.

6783. Conjunction now sure. Sig.

6789. How, without that truth, could they be conjoined with the good of the Church? Sig.

—². Unless external truth be from internal truth, it cannot be conjoined with good. Examps.

—'. Hence it is evident, that external truth is conjoined with internal truth when the man is in good, he knowing nothing about it.

6806. It is charity which conjoins the Lord with man.

—³. 'To Know' involves conjunction, and man is said to be known by the Lord in the proportion that he is conjoined with Him . . .

7054. That (the truth of doctrine) should be conjoined with the truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine. Sig.

7055. Conjunction where there was none before, that is, of the truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine with the truth which proceeds mediately. Sig. and Ex. 7056, Ex.

7056. Conjunction in the good of love there. Sig.

7179. The understanding and the will . . . conjoin themselves together with those who are in good and thence in truth; and they also conjoin themselves together with those who are in evil and thence in falsity . . .

7200. It is said that they were to be delivered and elevated into Heaven for the sake of conjunction; for conjunction with the Lord is effected through faith and love . . . those who receive these are conjoined with Him, and those who are conjoined with Him cannot but be elevated to Him.

7211. Wherefore, unless in Heaven they had an idea of a human shape in connexion with God . . . they could not be conjoined with the Divine, neither through faith, nor love . . . Hence it is that in the Heavens the Divine Human is the all in their regards, and thence the all in faith and love, whence comes conjunction, through which comes salvation.

[A.] 7290. For correspondences, representatives, and significatives conjoin the natural world with the Spiritual World.

—². There is then a conjunction of falsity and truth, thus profanation.

7319°. Profaned truth is falsity conjoined with truth ; and falsified truth is falsity not conjoined but adjoined to truth.

7507. Through charity they are conjoined with the Divine, and . . . what is conjoined with life itself and with what is eternal cannot die . . .

7757. The conjunction of the good of charity with the truth of faith is effected in the interiors of man . . . Without this conjunction charity is not charity . . .

7859². This represented that interior and exterior things must be conjoined, that is, act as one . . .

8367². The reason is that through temptations truths and goods are implanted, and are conjoined. 8557°. 8559.

8422°. After this arrangement there is conjunction, which is signified by 'the seventh day.' 8423. 8490°.

8423. 'To be double' = to be conjoined ; because 'two' = conjunction. Ex.

— . The conjunction of (the will and understanding) is called a marriage.

—^e. Hence it is evident that faith without love or charity cannot produce any fruit, but that fruit must be from both conjoined.

8490. Power for conjunction. Sig.

8495. The conjunction of good and truth to eternity. Sig.

— . As the conjunction of good and truth is effected by the Lord alone, and in a state of peace . . . 8517.

—³. The conjunction (of the Angels) with the Lord consists in this . . .

8496. Preparation for the conjunction of good . . . and for the conjunction of truth. Sig.

8497. The good and truth which flow in from the Lord are conjoined and as it were appropriated ; such is the conjunction of Heaven, that is, of those who are in Heaven, with the Lord.

—^e. The reason why life appears as man's own, is that the Lord from Divine love wills to give and conjoin with man all things which are His own, and so far as it can be effected, He does conjoin them.

8504. As good has been conjoined with truth by the Lord. Sig.

8506. The reception of truth before it is being conjoined with good. Sig.

— . After this state there is a state of the conjunction of good and truth, thus a state of rest . . . That there is then rest for the Lord also, is because when good has been conjoined with truth, the man is in the Lord, and is led by the Lord without labour and combat. 8510.

8516. In order that conjunction may be afterwards effected. Sig.

— . When man is in the conjunction of good and truth he acts from good, and no longer from truth.

—². Good chooses and conjoins with itself the truths which are in agreement with it.

8517. This was a representative of the state of peace, in which the conjunction of good and truth is effected by the Lord, for all the conjunction of good and truth is effected in that state.

—^e. If man were to lead himself, even by truth, he would dissipate the state of peace, consequently there would be no conjunction.

8540°. What is profane is evil conjoined with good.

8598. The conjunction of truth Divine with the good of charity, and thence influx. Sig.

— . 'To stand' = to be conjoined, and to flow in.

8644. In what follows, the conjunction of Divine good with Divine truth is treated of.

8648°. The truth which proceeds from the Lord is always conjoined with its own good ; but in the first state, which is before regeneration, good is not received, but truth . . . In the second state, however, which is after regeneration, good is received conjoined with truth.

8657. Conjunction in the state before regeneration, when there are temptations. Sig.

8662. Application precedes conjunction. Sig. 8664.

8691. When there are conjunction and union there is reciprocity . . .

8702. When good and truth are conjoined, there is consent in each and all things, namely, of good with truth, and of truth with good. Sig.

8705⁴. All conjunction requires an object, and the conjunction is effected according to the quality of the object.

8725. The choice of truths with which good could be conjoined with those who are of the Spiritual Church. Sig. and Ex.

— . There are truths with which good cannot be conjoined . . .

— . Good is not conjoined with truths until they are purified from the falsities which are from evil, and until they are connected with all the truths which are to be of faith with the man who is to be regenerated.

8734. Hence was evident to me what the conjunction of minds is, or spiritual conjunction, which is charity or mutual love . . .

8760. Truth from the Divine which is below Heaven conjoining itself with the Divine truth which is in Heaven. Sig.

— . 'To go up' = to conjoin, for he who goes up to the Divine conjoins himself with it ; as when it is said 'to go up into Heaven' the meaning is, to be conjoined with the Lord.

8761. 'To call to Him,' when said of the Divine, = conjunction, here union, because it is said of that of Divine good with Divine truth, which through conjunction become one.

8767. Life in good, and thence conjunction. Sig. and Ex.

8772². When therefore these truths are conjoined with good the man is regenerate . . .

8778. Correspondence and conjunction. Sig. and Ex.
—². All conjunction of natural with spiritual things, and in general of lower things with higher is effected through correspondence . . .

—^c. Conjunction with the Divine may be thus apprehended.

8787. The conjunction of truth from the Divine (with those of the Spiritual Church). Sig.

—'. 'Go to the people,' when said by Jehovah, = conjunction, because the truth from the Divine which is represented by Moses is a mediating of the Divine with those who are of the Church, for in order that the conjunction may be effected which is here represented, there must be mediation.

8828. Conjunction of truth from the Divine . . . with the Divine Celestial, that is, with the Divine of the inmost Heaven. Sig.

8841. Conjunction with internal and external truth from the Divine. Sig.

8877. (Falsities) in a long series, and conjunction. Sig.

—'. 'Four' = conjunction.

8882. Hence it is that when a man believes in one way and lives in another, truth and evil, or good and falsity, are conjoined . . . This conjunction cannot be loosened . . . except by tearing asunder . . .

8928. The conjunction still of the truth of spiritual good with truth Divine. Sig.

—'. 'To approach' = conjunction, for to approach the Divine is to be conjoined with it.

8981². Spiritual good cannot be conjoined with those who are in the externals of the Church from infancy, but is only adjoined while they are in combat. Ex.

—³. That which does not enter the will is not appropriated, thus is not conjoined; for the conjunction of good and truth with man is effected when truth enters the will . . .

8983^e. For regeneration is the conjunction of good and truth.

8989³. Whence it is that 'a door,' and 'a door-post' = communication and conjunction.

8995². The affection of truth from the delights of the love of self or of the world can be conjoined with spiritual truth, for . . . an internal affection which is of the spiritual man, is constantly conjoined with an external affection which is of the natural man, but so that the internal affection is dominant . . .

8996. (If the affection of truth from natural delight does not agree with spiritual truth) it cannot be conjoined. Sig.

—'. 'To be betrothed' = to be conjoined. Ex.

—'. In the Spiritual World, agreement conjoins, and disagreement disjoins.

8998. There is no conjunction between such (married partners) in the Spiritual World . . . and as there is no conjunction between such in the Spiritual World, there ought to be no conjunction on earth; for, regarded in themselves, marriages are conjunctions of dispositions and of minds.

9002. Conjunction with the affection of truth from another stock. Sig.

—'. The matrimony which is here meant by 'betrothing,' in the spiritual sense, is the conjunction of the life of one with that of the other; according to Divine order, there is a conjunction of the life from the truths of faith with the life from the good of charity; hence comes all spiritual conjunction; from which, as from its origin, comes forth natural conjunction.

9003. The non-deprivation of conjunction. Sig.

9034³. There the Lord conjoins truths with good: the truths which are thus conjoined in the internal man are called spiritual truths, and the good with which the truths are conjoined, spiritual good.

9139⁴. By these words is fully described the conjunction of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom with His Celestial Kingdom, that is, the conjunction of the second Heaven with the third; consequently, the conjunction of the good of faith in the Lord, which is of the Spiritual Kingdom, with the good of love to the Lord, which is of the Celestial Kingdom.

9152^e. Thence is the conjunction of Heaven with man; of which there would be none without the Word . . .

9163. In the Spiritual World all things are conjoined together according to the reception of truth Divine from the Lord; thus according to the reception of order . . .

9182. Good not conjoined with truth. Sig.

—'. The law of unlawful conjunction. Ex.

—'. In these two verses it treats of unlawful conjunction, which is afterwards either made lawful, or is dissolved. 9183.

—². Unlawful conjunction is that which is not made from conjugal affection, but from some other affection, as from the affection of beauty, etc. . . These conjunctions are unlawful at their beginning, because external things are the things which conjoin, and not at the same time internal things. Nevertheless, lawful conjunction can afterwards be effected from them as means, and it is effected when their minds are conjoined . . . Lawful conjunction, which is that of minds, is effected when both are in like good and truth . . . Hence it is evident, that lawful conjunction is effected when one of the married partners is in truth and the other is in the corresponding good . . .

—⁴. Betrothals before marriages . . . represented the first conjunction, which is of the internal man without the external; the marriages themselves then represented the second conjunction, which is of the internal man with the external. III.

9184. A token of consent on his part for lawful conjunction. Sig.

—'. In the spiritual sense, unlawful conjunction is the conjunction of truth with affection from the delight of gain, or from the delight of honours . . . But this conjunction does not injure those who are afterwards regenerated . . . In this manner is lawful conjunction effected from unlawful conjunction.

—². When the internal man has been opened through regeneration, good flows in from the Lord through it, which adopts and conjoins with itself the truths of faith which have entered through the external; and according to the conjunction, the order is inverted . . .

[A.] 9185. If interior good does not admit conjunction. Sig.

9186². In order that unlawful conjunction may become lawful, the good which flows in from the Lord through the internal man must conjoin with itself the truth which enters through the external, that is, through its hearing: if this truth does not agree with that good, then in its place there must be substituted other truth, which does agree or consent to conjunction. Sig.

9188. 'A witch' = those with whom something of the Church is conjoined with the falsities of the evil of self-love.

— . Falsity of faith and evil of self-love are conjoined with those who are in Hell, and make the infernal marriage; but (the truth of faith in the Lord and the good of love to Him) are conjoined with those who are in Heaven, and make the heavenly marriage: so far as possible, the Lord withholds man from the conjunction of truth and good with falsity and evil; because this conjunction is profanation; but a number of those who are in the Church cannot be withheld from it . . . These are they who have conjoined truths with falsities . . . This conjunction is what is signified by 'witchcraft' . . . In proportion as they have conjoined these falsities with truths, they have extinguished in themselves spiritual life. Sig.

9190. Conjunction with the evils of the cupidities of self-love. Sig.

9206². The longing itself, or the affection itself of truth for the sake of life, regarded in itself, is the affection of conjunction (of good and truth); as food or bread long for water or wine for the sake of conjunction, for when conjoined together they nourish; also as light . . . conjoined with heat produces all things on the earth, whereas if the conjunction is dissipated, what has been produced perishes . . . So it is with every delight, pleasantness, sweetness, accordance, and harmony, which do not exist from themselves, but from the things which are in them; the conjunction causing them to be what they are; and they being what they are according to the conjunction.

—^e. All things relate to good and truth; and everything produced by them relates to both together, thus to their conjunction.

9207. Something further about the conjunction of good and truth;—the truths which are conjoined with good have always in them a longing to do good, and of thereby at the same time conjoining themselves more closely with good . . .

—⁵. 'Salt' = a longing for conjunction.

9227². The good from the Lord meets the truths which have entered through an external way, and, through conjunction, causes the truths to become good . . .

9230. The falsified good of faith shall not be conjoined. Sig.

9275. Conjunction through the good of charity with those who are in few truths, yet long to be instructed. Sig.

9276. It treats of the conjunction of the Church with those who are in few truths; and here, with those who are in the delights of external truth.

—³. The conjunction of Heaven with mankind, that is, the conjunction of the Lord through Heaven with it, is effected through those who are in the good of charity. . . . Through this good the Lord conjoins Himself with those who are in the affection of truth . . . Through these again the Lord is with those who are in the delights of external truth . . . Such is the communication of the Lord through Heaven with man, thus such is the conjunction. Ex.

9278. A state of labour and combat, when in external delights which are to be conjoined with internal ones. Sig.

— . These things take place in order that external things may be conjoined with internal ones . . .

—³. He is then in the tranquillity of peace, in which also conjunction is effected.

9301. The good of innocence of a latter state ought not to be conjoined with the good of innocence of a former state. Sig.

9370. By the Word there is conjunction of the Lord with man. Tr.

9373. Conjunction with the Lord. Sig.

9378. The conjunction and presence of the Lord through the Word in general. Sig.

— . 'To approach' = to be conjoined through love, for they who mutually love each other are conjoined; for love is spiritual conjunction. It is universal in the other life that all are conjoined together according to the love of good and truth from the Lord; hence the whole Heaven is such conjunction. The case is the same with approach to or conjunction with the Lord; they who love Him are conjoined with Him . . . And all those love the Lord, thus are conjoined with Him through love, who are in the good of life from the truths of faith . . . Man of himself cannot approach the Lord and be conjoined with Him; but the Lord must approach man and be conjoined with him; and as the Lord draws man to Himself, it appears as if man of himself approached and conjoined himself . . .

—². The reason there are the conjunction and presence of the Lord through the Word, is that the Word is the union of man with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord; for the Word is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord; wherefore they who, as to doctrine and life . . . are in that truth, are in the Divine which proceeds from the Lord, thus are conjoined with Him. 9393^e.

9380. No conjunction of the external without the internal. Sig. and Ex.

9393^e. The Holy Supper was instituted by the Lord, in order that through it there might be conjunction of all things of Heaven, that is, of all things of the Lord, with the man of the Church.

9395^e. The conjunction of the Lord with the man of the Church is effected when Divine truth, which proceeds from the Lord, is received by man.

9400. The conjunction of the Lord as to the Divine Human with Heaven and with earth . . . through the Divine truth which proceeds from His Divine Human. Sig.

9401. Conjunction by the Lord through each and all things of the Word. Sig.

—². It is said conjunction by the Lord, because the Lord conjoins Himself with man . . .

9410⁴. They who are in the external sense of the Word separated from the internal have no conjunction with Heaven, thus none with the Lord. Ex.

9416². The reason there were two tables, was that there might be represented the conjunction of the Lord through the Word with the Church, and through the Church with the human race. Sig.

—, Hence 'two' in the Word = conjunction. Refs.

9438². Through faith in the Lord, thus through the truths of doctrine, and through love to Him, man is conjoined; and when he is conjoined with Him he is safe from the assault of the evil Spirits who are from Hell: with others the interiors cannot be opened at all, because they are not in the Lord.

9457⁶. Therefore a representative Church . . . was instituted with the Israelitish people, in order that through such things there might be the conjunction of Heaven, thus that of the Lord, with the human race; for without the conjunction of the Lord through Heaven man would perish; for man has his life from that conjunction. But those representatives were only external media of conjunction with which the Lord miraculously conjoined Heaven. And when conjunction through these things also perished, the Lord came into the world, and opened the internal things themselves which were represented . . . These now conjoin; nevertheless, the only medium of conjunction at this day is the Word . . .

9493. Divine truth conjoined with Divine good, which is everywhere round about. Sig.

—, 'Rings' = the conjunction of good and truth; in this case that of Divine truth with Divine good.

—, The reason there were four rings, was that this number = conjunction.

—^e. Good is that with which truth is conjoined . . .

9509. The reason there is no approach to the Lord except through the good of love, is that love is spiritual conjunction, and all good is of love; they therefore who are in the good of love to the Lord are brought in to Him in Heaven, because they are conjoined with Him.

9516. The conjunction of truth and good. Sig.

9522. 'I will speak to thee from above the propitiatory' = conjunction. 'To speak,' when by Jehovah, = influx; thus also conjunction; for where there is influx there is conjunction.

9529. Everything as to conjunction with good. Sig.

—, By conjunction with good is meant the conjunction of the receptacle, which is signified by the table, with the good of love, which is signified by the breads of faces upon the table.

9530. Something as to conjunction with truth. Sig.

9534. Conjunction (in the termination of the sphere of good) with truth from the Divine. Sig. and Ex.

—². The Divine sphere which encompasses and protects Heaven is a sphere of Divine truth conjoined with Divine good; but that which guards Hell, is a sphere of Divine truth separated from Divine good.

9562. The middle through which there is conjunction, and from which there are powers. Sig.

9605. Conjunction through the celestial love of truth. Sig.

—, 'Loops' = conjunction, because conjunction is effected by them.

9606. The conjunction of the one sphere with the other. Sig.

—, In Heaven, spheres conjoin . . . The Angels and angelic Societies are conjoined, and are also disjoined according to these spheres . . . In proportion as these spheres derive from the Lord, they conjoin; but in proportion as they derive from the proprium of an Angel, they disjoin; hence it is evident that the Lord alone conjoins.

9608. Plenary conjunction in the ultimates of the spheres. Sig.

9610. Conjunction on both sides in every way. Sig. and Ex.

9611. The plenary capacity of conjunction from good. Sig.

—, 'Small hooks' = the capacity of conjunction; for the capacity of conjunction is in them from their form.

9613. Laws relating to the conjunction of the angelic Societies into one. Enum.

9623. The plenary conjunction of the one sphere with the other. Sig.

9637. Truth from good conjoining as much as is sufficient. Sig.

9639. The consequent conjunction of the Lord with those who are in the second Heaven. Sig.

—, The Divine good proceeding from the Lord is what conjoins all who are in Heaven; for that which reigns universally in Divine truths is Divine good; and that which reigns universally, conjoins.

9645. 'Two bases under one board' = the conjunction of truth with good.

9653. Conjunction with Heaven where good is in obscurity. Sig.

9656. Conjunction from what is exterior and from what is interior. Sig.

9671. The goods of love and of faith conjoined in a uniting medium. Sig.

9674. The good of merit, which is of the Lord alone, conjoining and supporting. Sig.

9676. 'Hooks of gold' = the methods of conjunction through good.

9677. The power of conjunction through truth. Sig.

9678. The capacity and thence the actuality of conjunction. Sig.

[A.] 9680². They who are conjoined with the Lord through the good of love are with Him ; but they who are conjoined with the Lord through the good of faith are indeed with Him, but more remotely : in the middle Heaven there is conjunction with the Lord through faith implanted in the good of charity towards the neighbour.

9728. The sphere of good through which there is conjunction. Sig.

9749. 'Hooks of silver' = the methods of conjunction through truth.

9777. All things conjoining and securing each Heaven. Sig.

—'. 'Pegs' = things conjoining and securing.

—^c. 'Nails' and 'ropes' = things confirming and conjoining. 9854².

9786. All conjunction with Him is effected through influx.

9806. The conjunction of Divine truth with Divine good in the Lord's Divine Human. Sig.

9836. 'The two shoulders shall be conjoined with it at the two ends, and it shall be conjoined' (Ex.xxviii.7) = the preservation of good and truth on every side and for ever, with all work and power, through union in every respect. . . 'To be conjoined' = union in every respect.

9854. 'With cord work' = the method of conjunction.

9855. Conjunction with the good from which are truths, and thus the preservation of the Spiritual Kingdom. Sig.

9864. The conjunction of all truths from good. Sig.

—². All in the Heavens turn their faces to the Lord . . . hence it is that they are all conjoined as one.

9879. The conjunction of the whole Heaven in the extremes. Sig.

9882. The sphere of Divine good, through which there is conjunction on the higher part of Heaven. Sig.

—'. 'The two rings of gold' = the sphere of Divine good, through which there is conjunction. 9884.

9883^c. The conjunction of the sphere of Divine good in the extremes of Heaven. Sig.

9884. A method of the indissoluble conjunction of good with the Divine sphere. Sig.

—'. 'Cords' = indissoluble conjunction. 9886.

9886. The method of the conjunction with the supporting things in the extremes. Sig.

9891. The conjunction and preservation of the middle part of Heaven. Sig.

—'. It treats of the conjunction of all the goods and truths of Heaven with the ultimates there, and thence of the preservation of the whole and of all its parts. Ex. 9895.

9896. The conjunction and preservation of all things of Heaven through the sphere of Divine good in the externals of the Spiritual Kingdom. Sig.

—'. 'To tie' = conjunction and preservation.

9933. All conjunction in the Spiritual World, of whatever kind, is effected through influx.

10001. The conjunction of both (Divine good and Divine truth) in Heaven. Sig.

—². The place at the door of the tent represented the conjunction of good and truth, which conjunction is called the heavenly marriage.

—^c. The conjunction of good and truth is the heavenly marriage, and is Heaven. Refs.

10047. The conjunction (of Divine truth) with Divine good. Sig.

—³. In proportion as man desists from evils, the Lord conjoins good with truth . . .

10067². No one can be conjoined with the Divine itself through love and faith without the Divine Human . . .

—⁸. Reciprocal conjunction is thus described ; but still it is not meant that man conjoins himself with the Lord, but that the Lord conjoins with Himself the man who desists from evils ; for to desist from evils is left to man's decision ; and when he desists, there is effected the reciprocal conjunction of the truth which is of faith and of the good which is of love by the Lord, and not at all by man . . .

—⁹. This reciprocal conjunction may be illustrated by the conjunction of the understanding and will with man. Ex.

—¹¹. Those things which are of the civil and moral state conjoin themselves together in the external man ; but those which are of the spiritual state conjoin themselves together in the internal man ; and afterwards through the internal in the external . . .

10099⁵. The good of love is what immediately conjoins man with the Divine ; for love is spiritual conjunction.

10129⁹. The good of love to the Lord from the Lord is the holy of holies, because the Lord thereby conjoins Himself immediately ; but the good of charity towards the neighbour is the holy, because the Lord thereby conjoins Himself mediately ; and so far conjoins Himself as it has in it the good of love from the Lord.

10143³. The implantation of good and truth is to think and will good and truth, and to speak and do them ; and the conjunction of both is to live from them ; for when good and truth are conjoined with man, he has a new will and a new understanding ; thus new life.

10181. Degrees of good and truth, and their conjunction. Sig.

10188. The sphere of Divine good, through which there are conjunction and preservation. Sig.

10205. Acknowledgment, faith, and love to the Lord are the principal things of all the worship within the Church ; for acknowledgment, faith, and love conjoin ; acknowledgment and faith conjoin the Intellectual therein, and love the Voluntary ; he therefore, who, within the Church, does not acknowledge the Lord, has not any conjunction with the Divine . . . and when there is not any conjunction with the Divine, there is not any salvation . . .

10230. Conjunction with Heaven through the acknowledgment that all truths and goods are from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

10237a. The reason the laver was placed between the tent of the assembly and the altar . . . was that there might be represented the purification of the heart, and regeneration, which in its essence is the conjunction of truth and good ; for the conjunction of truth and good is Heaven itself with man . . . This conjunction is effected through the truths of faith . . . wherefore, when man lives according to the truths of faith, there is effected the conjunction of truth and good . . .

10244. Conjunction with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord, in the Church with that nation, was merely through representatives ; wherefore, as soon as they did not minister according to the prescribed rituals, the representative perished, and with it the conjunction with Heaven ; and when the conjunction with Heaven perished, there was no protection against Hell.

10262. The amount of the conjunction. Sig. —⁶.

—'. 'Oil'=the Lord's Divine celestial good, which is the conjunctive itself of all things in the Heavens. Ex.

10287. Conjunction with those who do not acknowledge the Lord ; thus who are in evils and the falsities of evil. Sig.

—'. The conjunction of Divine truth with those who do not acknowledge the Lord is profanation ; for profanation is the conjunction of Divine truth with falsities from evil . . . By their subsequent denial there is effected their conjunction with falsities from evil . . .

10300. The reason there ought to be a desire of truth for good, is that this desire is conjunctive of both ; for in proportion as truth desires good it is conjoined with it. The conjunction of truth and good is what is called the heavenly marriage, which is Heaven itself with man ; wherefore, when, in Divine worship . . . there is the desire for that conjunction, there is Heaven, thus the Lord, in everything therein : this is signified by the requirement that the incense should be salted. The reason 'salt' has this signification, is from its conjunctive nature ; for it conjoins all things, and hence gives them relish ; it even conjoins water and oil, which otherwise are not conjoined. —⁸.

—⁵. As the desire of truth for good conjoins, so the desire of falsity for evil disjoins . . .

10367². Hence it is evident, that man is conjoined with the Lord through good, and not at all through truth without good.

10371. Conjunction with the Lord to eternity. Sig.

10375. The conjunction of the Lord through the Word with man. Sig. 10452, Ex.

—'. The conjunction thereby with man is signified by there being two tables, and by their being conjoined for a resemblance of a covenant.

10452². Hence it follows, that if this medium of conjunction (that is, the Word) were not in the world, the conjunction with Heaven would perish, and with that conjunction, all the good of the will and the truth of the understanding with man . . .

10495. The reception of Divine truth from the Word, and thereby conjunction with the Lord. Sig.

10519. The Holy Supper was instituted by the Lord in order that through it there may be the conjunction of the Church with Heaven ; thus with the Lord. N.210.

10521. Eating=appropriation and conjunction.

10554. The Divine things in the Word conjoined. Sig. 10555.

—'. 'To speak face to face'=to be conjoined. Ex.

—². The nature of the conjunctions of celestial and spiritual things in the Word, may in some measure be presented to the idea by the conjunctions of the angelic Societies in the Heavens . . .

10555². Mutual conjunction. Ex.

10591. Man has been so created . . . that he can be conjoined with God in faith and love ; and to be conjoined with God is to live to eternity.

10632. The primary things whereby there is conjunction of the Lord with the human race through the Word. Sig. and Tr.

—³. The conjunction of the Lord with the human race through the Word. Ex. In the most ancient times there was no Word, but immediate revelation before the man of the Church, and thereby conjunction ; for when there is immediate revelation, there is conjunction of Heaven with man ; the conjunction of Heaven with man is the conjunction of the Lord with him, since the Divine of the Lord with the Angels makes Heaven . . . (The Ancient Church had conjunction with Heaven through representatives ; and afterwards the Word was given, which consists of pure correspondences) to the intent that through it there might be conjunction of the Lord with the human race ; for without conjunction through such a Word, Heaven would have altogether receded from man, and thus man would have perished. 10687, Sig. and Ex. H.306.

10642². Man is conjoined with him who is worshipped . . . If a man is worshipped as a god, some one from Hell is conjoined with the worshipper ; for faith and love conjoin ; the faith of truth and the love of good conjoin man with the Lord ; but the faith of falsity and the love of evil conjoin man with Hell . . .

10647. Conjunction with the evil of any religion. Sig.

10651. The conjunction of the affections of evil with truths. Sig.

10729². There are action and reaction in all things which are conjoined . . . In proportion as truth receives good, it reacts ; and in proportion as it reacts, it is conjoined with it : hence it follows, that before the Lord conjoins Himself with man, He moves him through truths to Himself ; and in proportion as man suffers himself to be brought, he is conjoined . . .

10730. The second state of the regeneration of man, when he has conjunction with the Lord. Sig.

—⁶. (The second of the two universals of the Church) is that man is to be conjoined with the Lord, which is effected through regeneration.

10736⁶. The idea of thought concerning God is the principal one of all, for through it, if it is genuine, conjunction is effected with Heaven ; for the Divine is what makes Heaven.

H. 14. The reason the Divine in Heaven, which makes it, is love, is that love is spiritual conjunction ; it conjoins the Angels with the Lord, and conjoins them one with another ; and so conjoins them, that in the Lord's sight all are as one.

112. How the conjunction of Heaven with the world is effected through correspondences. Ex.

[H.112]. Hence it is evident . . . that uses conjoin; and that the forms with which uses are clothed are so far correspondences, and so far conjunctions, as they are forms of uses.

—². In proportion as man lives according to Divine order . . . his acts are uses in form, and are correspondences, through which he is conjoined with Heaven.

— It is man by means of whom the natural world is conjoined with the Spiritual World; he is the medium of conjunction . . . Wherefore, in proportion as man is spiritual, he is a medium of conjunction; but in proportion as he is not spiritual, he is not a medium of conjunction.

114. In order that there may be conjunction of Heaven with man, the Word has been written by pure correspondences . . .

115. The most ancients . . . thought from correspondences themselves . . . and therefore were consoiated and spoke with Angels; and thus through them Heaven was conjoined with the world.

203(un). (Spirits and Angels) are conjoined and disjoined according to the reigning affections.

208. One Heaven is conjoined with another, or a Society of one Heaven with a Society of another, by the Lord alone through immediate and mediate influx . . .

246. When Angels speak with man, they turn themselves to him, and conjoin themselves with him; and the conjunction of an Angel with a man causes them both to be in like thought . . . When an Angel or Spirit . . . by turning to a man, is conjoined with him, he comes into everything of his memory . . . They said that they know that their conjunction with the man with whom they speak is with his spiritual thought . . . And this took place because it pleased the Lord that there should be such conjunction, and as it were insertion, of Heaven with man; but the state of man at this day is different, so that there is no longer such conjunction with the Angels, but with Spirits who are not in Heaven. 255.

247. Another reason why Angels and Spirits conjoin themselves so closely with man . . . is that there is such conjunction between the Spiritual and the natural world with man that they are as it were one . . .

254. Thus has the Lord conjoined Heaven and the world through the Word.

255². Hence it is evident, that all conjunction in the Spiritual World depends upon the degree in which they turn towards each other. 272^e.

258. Through the Word alone is there communication and conjunction of Heaven with the world; thus of the Lord with man.

289. As Divine peace comes forth from the conjunction of the Lord with Heaven, and in special with every Angel from the conjunction of good and truth, the Angels are in a state of peace when they are in a state of love, for then good is conjoined with truth with them. . . The case is the same with the man who is being regenerated; when the conjunction of good and truth comes into existence with him, which takes place especially after temptations, he comes into a state of delight from heavenly peace.

291. On the conjunction of Heaven with the human race. Gen.art.

— This could not be, unless man had conjunction with Heaven and conjunction with Hell; and unless these conjunctions were with his will and understanding . . .

294. Hence it is that as man is conjoined with Spirits, so is he conjoined with Heaven or with Hell, and indeed with that Society there in which he is as to his affection . . .

295². Good Spirits are also adjoined to those who cannot be regenerated; but their immediate conjunction is with evil Spirits who communicate with Hell.

—^e. Thus an evil man is conjoined with Hell, and a good man is conjoined with Heaven.

300. The conjunction of Heaven with man is not like the conjunction of a man with a man, but is a conjunction with the interiors which are of his mind, thus with his spiritual or internal man; with the natural or external man, however, there is a conjunction through correspondences.

303. On the conjunction of Heaven with man through the Word. Gen.art.

304. Man has been so created, that he has connexion and conjunction with the Lord; but with the Angels only consociation; the reason he has not conjunction, but only consociation, with the Angels, is that from creation man is like an Angel as to the interiors . . . When, therefore, it is said the conjunction of man with Heaven, there is meant his conjunction with the Lord, and his consociation with the Angels . . .

308. There is also the conjunction of Heaven through the Word with those who are outside the Church. Ex.

313(i). In man are conjoined the Spiritual World and the natural world.

367. Marriage in the Heavens is the conjunction of two into one mind. Ex. 369.

—^e. Hence it is evident that marriage love originates from the conjunction of two into one mind.

369. This conjunction is actual conjunction. Ex.

422. The state of Heaven with man is the conjunction of good and truth with him; and the state of Hell is the conjunction of evil and falsity with him: when with a man Spirit good is conjoined with truth, he comes into Heaven, because that conjunction is Heaven with him; but when with a man Spirit evil is conjoined with falsity, he comes into Hell, because this conjunction is Hell with him: this conjunction takes place in the World of Spirits . . . It is the same whether you say the conjunction of the understanding and the will, or the conjunction of truth and good.

435. Hence man . . . can thus be conjoined with God; and whatever can be conjoined with the Divine cannot be dissipated; but whatever cannot be conjoined with the Divine, is dissipated.

600. The conjunction of man with Heaven and with Hell, is not immediately with them, but mediately through Spirits who are in the World of Spirits . . . Through evil Spirits in the World of Spirits man is conjoined with Hell, and through good Spirits who are there, with Heaven.

N. 2. He who lives a life of faith and charity loves another as himself, and through love conjoins him with himself; and this mutually and reciprocally; for love is conjunction in the Spiritual World . . .

21⁴. How careful the Lord is to prevent truth from being conjoined with evil, and the falsity of evil with good. Refs.

23. When truth is conjoined with good, it is appropriated to man. Refs.

— In order that truth may be conjoined with good, there must be consent by the understanding and the will; when there is also consent by the will, there is conjunction. Refs.

—⁴. Good is in a perpetual effort and longing to conjoin truths with itself. Refs.

— There must be reciprocal conjunction, of good with truth, and of truth with good. Refs.

—³. The conjunction of truth with good is circumscribed as is the progression of man's life . . . Refs.

—⁶. The conjunction of good and truth takes place according to the increase of Knowledges.

—⁸. Good flows in through an internal way, truths through an external way . . . and they are conjoined in man's interiors by the Lord. Refs.

— The quantity and quality of the conjunction of truths with good is according to the quantity and quality of his being in good as to life. Refs.

27⁵. When truth is conjoined with good, it vanishes from the memory.

— Truths can only be conjoined with good in a free state.

296. The first and primary of the Church is to know and acknowledge its God; for without this acknowledgment there is not conjunction; thus none in the Church, without the acknowledgment of the Lord. Sig.

307⁶. The Lord is in a continual effort for conjunction with man; but the influx and conjunction are hindered by man's Own loves. Refs.

—². There is no conjunction with the Divine itself in Heaven; but with the Divine Human. Refs.

J. 9⁷. There is an extension of all affections of good and truth into Heaven, and communication and conjunction with those there who are in like affections; and there is an extension of all affections of evil and falsity into Hell, and communication and conjunction with those there who are in like affections . . .

12. In proportion to the increase in numbers (of the Angels) is the direction and consensus to a one, and thus a closer and more unanimous conjunction. Ex.

25. The Spiritual of every man is in conjunction with the Divine, for it can think of the Divine, and can also love it . . . thus be conjoined with the Divine in thought and will . . . That which can thus be conjoined with the Divine, can never die; for the Divine is with him, and conjoins him with itself. Ex.

C. J. 21. The Lord so conjoins the Societies (in the Spiritual World), that they all lead, as it were, one life of man; the Societies of the Heavens one life of celestial and spiritual love; the Societies of the Hells, one life of diabolical and infernal love: the Heavens and Hells He conjoins through oppositions.

S. 62. Through the sense of the letter of the Word there is conjunction with the Lord, and consociation with the Angels. Gen.art.

—^c. The conjunction does not appear to man, but it exists in the affection of truth and in the perception of it; thus in the love and faith of Divine truth with him.

67⁸. The conjunction itself through correspondences is such from creation.

78. The Lord is present with man through the reading of the Word, but is conjoined with him through the understanding of truth from the Word, and according to it.

Life 3. This (general perception) is from the conjunction of Heaven with man.

32⁹. Hence it is evident, that good conjoined with truth makes love and wisdom with an Angel and with a man . . . Also, that good conjoined with truth causes an Angel to be an Angel of Heaven, and a man a man of the Church.

W. 47. The very essence of love . . . is to love others, and be conjoined with them through love; it is also to be loved by others, for thus conjunction is effected; the essence of all love consists in conjunction.

48. To love self alone . . . is dissolution rather than conjunction: the conjunction of love is from what is reciprocal . . .

56. By contiguity, and not by continuity, conjectivity comes . . .

115. The conjunction is of the Lord with the Angel, and of the Angel with the Lord; therefore the conjunction is reciprocal . . . The Angel does not perceive otherwise than that he is in love and wisdom from himself . . . Unless he did so perceive, there would be no conjunction . . . Hence it is evident that there must be reciprocity in order that there may be conjunction. 116, Ex.

116⁸. The conjunction of the Lord with man, and of man with the Lord, is in those things which are the Lord's. Sig.

118. An Angel of Heaven and a man of the Church make one through conjunction.

162. Then because conjunction with Heaven is broken, conjunction with Hell takes place . . .

167. The end of creation comes into existence in ultimates, which end is, that all things may return to the Creator, and that there may be conjunction. Gen.art.

307². These are called uses . . . because they look to God the Creator from whom they originate, and thereby conjoin Him with His great work, and through the conjunction bring to pass that they subsist from Him . . . The meaning of this is, that God the Creator brings it to pass that they as it were look and conjoin themselves of themselves . . .

330. For man cannot be conjoined with the Lord unless he be spiritual, and he cannot be spiritual unless . . . his body be in a sound state . . . The body is like the foundation; the Rational is like the house built upon it; the Spiritual is like the things which are in the house; and conjunction with the Lord is like dwelling in it.

390. The conjunction of the spirit of man with the body is through the correspondence of his will and understanding with his heart and lungs ; and disjunction is through non-correspondence. Gen.art.

[W.] 410. The love or will conjoins itself with the wisdom or understanding, and causes that the wisdom or understanding is conjoined reciprocally. Gen.art.

—⁴. It appears as if the understanding conjoins itself with the love or will, but this is a fallacy . . . It is the same with the marriage of good and truth . . . Good conjoins itself with truth in so far as it agrees . . . Reciprocal conjunction, namely, of truth with good, there is absolutely none ; that it is conjoined reciprocally, is from the life of good. P.8o.

P. 3^e. Upon the conjunction of the Creator with man the connexion of all things depends, and . . . the preservation of all things.

26. These uses are provided by the Lord from the conjunction of evil and falsity which is with those who are in Hell.

28. Heaven is conjunction with the Lord. Gen.art.

— . But as conjunction with the Lord is various, and hence Heaven is not the same to one as to another, it follows that Heaven is according to conjunction with the Lord . . . The conjunction is closer and closer, and also more and more remote.

—². This conjunction is a conjunction of the Lord with the Angels, and of the Angels with the Lord ; thus it is reciprocal : the Lord flows into the life's love of the Angels, and the Angels receive Him in wisdom, and through this they in turn conjoin themselves with the Lord . . . It appears to the Angels as if they conjoin themselves with the Lord through wisdom, but still the Lord conjoins them with Himself through wisdom ; for their wisdom also is from the Lord. It is the same if it is said that the Lord conjoins Himself with the Angels through good, and that the Angels in turn conjoin themselves with the Lord through truth.

—³. Reciprocal conjunction. Ex. . . As perceptions and thoughts appear to the Angels as if they were theirs . . . there is the appearance that the Angels conjoin themselves reciprocally with the Lord ; when yet the Lord conjoins them with Himself . . . Hence it is manifest that the reciprocal conjunction of the Angels with the Lord is not from the Angels, but as from them. Such also is the conjunction of the Lord with the Church, and of the Church with the Lord, which is called the celestial and spiritual marriage.

29. All conjunction in the Spiritual World is effected through looking . . . By the affection of love, conjunction is effected ; by the affection of speaking with another, presence only . . . This has been said that it may be known how the Lord's conjunction with the Angels is effected, and the apparent reciprocal conjunction of the Angels with the Lord . . .

30. The reciprocal conjunction with the Lord which makes Heaven in man, is revealed by the Lord in these words, 'Abide in Me and I in you. He that abideth in Me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit ; for without Me ye can do nothing' (John xv.4,5). 92.

32. Man is such from creation that he can be more and more closely conjoined with the Lord. Gen.art.

33. How man is more and more closely conjoined with the Lord. Ex.

—². As the Lord flows into the life's love of everyone, and through its affections into the perceptions and thoughts ; and not the reverse ; it follows that He can conjoin Himself closely only in proportion as the love of evil with its affections . . . has been removed. . . Therefore, man ought as of himself to remove the evils of that love ; and then, so far as he removes them, the Lord draws nearer and conjoins Himself with him.

—³, Sig.

—⁴. How this conjunction appears closer and closer. Ex.

—⁵. The conjunction of the Lord with the man with whom evils have been removed, is meant by these words of the Lord. III.

34. The more closely a man is conjoined with the Lord, the wiser he becomes. Gen.art.

35. (Necessity of wisdom being conjoined with love.)

36. No one reaches the first step (of the palace of wisdom) except from the Lord through conjunction with Him ; and everyone ascends according to the conjunction . . . The twelve steps to the palace of wisdom mean goods conjoined with truths, and truths conjoined with goods.

37. The more closely a man is conjoined with the Lord, the happier he becomes. Gen.art.

42. The more closely a man is conjoined with the Lord, the more distinctly he seems to himself as if he were his own ; and the more clearly he recognizes that he is the Lord's. Gen.art.

—². It follows, that conjunction with the Lord makes a man seem to himself free, and therefore his own ; and the closer the conjunction with the Lord is, the more free he seems ; and hence, the more his own.

58^e. The angels recognize that the conjunction of the Divine with them is only what may be called adjunction.

91². In the Spiritual World, where spaces are only an appearance, wisdom makes presence, and love makes conjunction ; and vice versa.

92. The conjunction of the Lord with man, and the reciprocal conjunction of man with the Lord, is effected through these two faculties. Gen.art.

— . Conjunction with the Lord, and regeneration, are one ; for in proportion as anyone is conjoined with the Lord, he is regenerated ; wherefore, all that has been said about regeneration may be said of conjunction, and what is here said about conjunction may be said of regeneration.

—². Anyone may see from reason alone that there is no conjunction of minds unless it is also reciprocal, and that reciprocity conjoins. If one loves another . . . and is loved in return, then as the one approaches, the other approaches also, and conjunction takes place. . . . With those who are in Heaven there is mutual conjunction.

—^e. To think from some love of the will, because it is the truth, (that the good we do, and the truth we think are from the Lord,) makes conjunction ; for thus man looks to the Lord, and the Lord looks at man.

94. The conjunction of the Lord with man, and the reciprocal conjunction of man with the Lord, is effected through loving the neighbour as one's self, and by loving the Lord above all things.

—^e. Reciprocal conjunction then takes place; and when there is reciprocal conjunction, whatever a man does to the neighbour he does from the Lord; and whatever he does from the Lord is good.

95. As there is a conjunction of the Lord with man, and of man with the Lord, there are two tables of the Law; one for the Lord, and the other for man.

96³. Without these two faculties, man could not have been conjoined with the Lord. Ex.

—^e. Through these two faculties there is conjunction of the Lord with every man . . . therefore every man has immortality; but only that man has eternal life, that is, the life of Heaven, with whom there is reciprocal conjunction from inmosts to ultimates.

123. The Continuous of the Divine Providence of the Lord is to conjoin man with Himself, and Himself with man . . . Gen.art.

—^e. That man cannot be conjoined with the Lord . . . unless allowed to act from freedom according to reason . . . is according to His Divine wisdom . . .

194. (The conjunctions of affections with perceptions and thoughts. Ex.)

219⁵. The Lord conjoins man with Himself through appearances. Ex.

220. The conjunction with man of things temporary and eternal is the Divine Providence. Gen.art. —⁸.

—⁶. The Lord conjoins Himself with uses through correspondences, and thus through appearances according to the confirmations of them by man. Ex.

324. He who can receive the Divine, so as to see and perceive it in himself, cannot but be conjoined with the Lord, and through this conjunction live to eternity.

326. The acknowledgment of God effects the conjunction of God with man, and of man with God; and the denial of God effects disjunction. Gen.art.

—². As thought from some Knowledge of another effects presence, so love from some affection for another effects conjunction . . . So it is with all things in the human mind . . . they are consociated and conjoined according to the affections. . . This conjunction is spiritual conjunction . . . This spiritual conjunction originates from the conjunction of the Lord with the Spiritual World and with the natural world in general and in particular; from which it is manifest, that in proportion as anyone knows the Lord, and, from Knowledge, thinks about Him, the Lord is present; and that in proportion as anyone acknowledges Him from the affection of love, the Lord is conjoined with him; and, on the other hand, in proportion as anyone does not know the Lord, the Lord is absent; and in proportion as anyone denies Him, he is disjoined. The effect of conjunction is, that the Lord turns man's face to Himself and then leads him; and the effect of disjunction is, that Hell turns man's face to itself and leads him.

—⁶. Everyone acknowledges God, and is conjoined with Him, according to the good of his life. Ex.

R. 9. There are two essentials through which is effected conjunction with the Lord and thence salvation; the acknowledgment of one God, and repentance of the life.

55. The presence of the Lord with man is adjunction, thus conjunction through contiguity . . .

120. Wisdom, and then the appropriation of the good of celestial love in works, and thus the conjunction of the Lord with those who do them. Sig.

160. The interiors of their worship are not conjoined with the Lord. Sig.

—^e. Dead worship, or worship which is only external, effects the Lord's presence, but not conjunction; but external worship in which the interiors live, effects both presence and conjunction; for the conjunction of the Lord is with those things with man which are from the Lord; which are truths from good.

200². Through the Word there is conjunction of the Lord with man, and of man with the Lord; and through this conjunction there is life. There must be something from the Lord which can be received by man, through which there is conjunction and thence eternal life.

219. 'I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me'=that the Lord conjoins Himself with them, and them with Himself. 'To come in and sup with him'=to conjoin Himself with him; and as there must be reciprocity in order that conjunction may be effected, it is also said, 'and he with Me.' That to be conjoined is signified by entering in and supping, is evident from the Holy Supper instituted by the Lord; through which there is the Lord's presence with those who hear His voice, that is, who believe in the Word; but conjunction with those who live according to the Word.

220. 'To him that overcometh'=those who are in conjunction with the Lord through a life according to His precepts in the Word.

221. 'Will I give to sit with Me in My throne'=that their conjunction with the Lord will be in Heaven.

222². The union of the Lord with the Father . . . had for its end, that man could be conjoined with the Divine which is called the Father in the Lord; for it is impossible for man to be conjoined with the Divine of the Father immediately; but mediately, through His Divine Human, which is the Divine Natural. Sig. The conjunction of the Lord with man is through His Divine truth, and this in man is of the Lord, thus is the Lord . . . Man does indeed feel it as his own; but still it is not his, for it is not united, but adjoined to him.

490. Those who are conjoined with the Lord through a life according to the precepts of the decalogue. Sig.

—². The second essential of the New Church, which is conjunction with the Lord through a life according to the precepts of the decalogue. Sig.

—^e. There are two tables, on which these precepts are written; one for the Lord, the other for man; the first table commands that a plurality of gods are not to be worshipped, but one; the second table, that evils are not to be done: when, therefore, one God is worshipped, and man does not commit evils, conjunction is effected . . .

541². The one only thing from which man is man, and through which he is conjoined with the Lord, is that he can do good and believe truth as from himself . . . If this were taken away, there would at the same time be taken away all the conjunctivity of man with the Lord and of the Lord with man . . . They who are meant by 'the dragon' have broken this one only bond of conjunction, by asserting that the goods of charity, or good works, which proceed from man and his will and judgment, are only moral, civil, and political works, through which man has conjunction with the world, but none whatever with God and Heaven.

[R.] 552. (The dragonists cast) into the World of Spirits . . . from which there is immediate conjunction with the men of the Earth. Sig.

—e. The life of every man depends on this conjunction.

558. Their like are cast down into the World of Spirits, and are thence in conjunction with the men of the Earth. Sig.

—2. The reason every man is in conjunction with those who are in the World of Spirits, is that as to his affections and thoughts man is a spirit, wherefore as to these he is continually in conjunction with Spirits who are in similar affection and thoughts; it is such a conjunction, that if this bond were broken for a single moment, the man would fall down dead.

563². Those in the Church who hereafter confirm faith alone with themselves, will not be able to recede from it except by earnest repentance, because they conjoin themselves with the dragonists who are now in the World of Spirits . . .

571². For in the love of the neighbour the Lord conjoins Himself with man, and man conjoins himself with the Lord . . .

760. As conjunction is effected through acknowledgment and affection, this also is signified.

796². None can receive spiritual light, but those who are conjoined with the Lord; and conjunction with the Lord is effected solely through the acknowledgment and worship of Him, and at the same time through a life according to His precepts from the Word: the acknowledgment and worship of the Lord and the reading of the Word, effect the Lord's presence; but these two, together with a life according to His precepts, effect conjunction with Him.

797. It is therefore evident that there is not any conjunction of good and truth with those who are of the Roman Catholic religion from doctrine and thence life, because they have no conjunction with the Lord, but they have conjunction with men, living and dead; and this conjunction with those who are in the love of dominion from self-love . . . is like conjunction with the devil . . . 798.

818. 'To have the testimony of Jesus' = to be in conjunction with the Lord through the acknowledgment of the Divine in His Human, and through a life according to His precepts.

—e. Wherefore, there is not any conjunction of man with the Angels; but there is consociation with them: with the Lord alone there is conjunction.

875². Through this (power of willing and understanding as from himself) the Lord brings man into a state of conjunction with Himself, and in this state reforms, regenerates, and saves him.

883. Conjunction with the Lord, which is such, that they are in Him, and He in them. Sig.

—e. As 'to dwell with them' = conjunction, it = that they will be in the Lord, and the Lord in them; otherwise no conjunction is effected. Ill.

—2. The assumption of the Human, and its union with the Divine . . . had for its end conjunction with men; as is evident from John; 'For them I sanctify Myself, that they also may be sanctified in the truth: that they may be one as We are one; I in them, Thou in Me' (xvii.19,21,22,26); from which it is evident, that the conjunction is with the Lord's Divine Human, and that it is reciprocal; and that thus and no otherwise is there conjunction with the Divine which is called the Father.

—3. The Lord also teaches that conjunction is effected through the truths of the Word, and through a life according to them (John xiv.20-24; xv.7).

—4. 'Dwelling with them' = conjunction with them, because 'dwelling' = conjunction through love . . .

—e. Conjunction with the Lord is one thing, and His presence another; conjunction with the Lord is not given to any except those who approach Him immediately; His presence to others.

933². They who do not approach the Lord immediately cannot be conjoined with Him; thus not with the Father either, and, consequently, cannot be in the love which is from the Divine; for aspect conjoins; not intellectual aspect alone, but intellectual aspect from the affection of the will; and the affection of the will has no existence unless man does His precepts. Sig.

937. Those who are in truths from good through the Word from the Lord will be with Him, and will do His commandments, because conjoined with Him. Sig.

—2. As the Church at this day does not know that conjunction with the Lord makes Heaven, and that conjunction is effected through the acknowledgment that He is the God of Heaven and earth, and at the same time through a life according to His precepts; something shall be said about it. . . In the Spiritual World, Knowledge and acknowledgment effect all presence; and the affection which is of love effects all conjunction . . . The Lord is present with everyone according to faith, and is conjoined according to love. Faith, and the consequent presence of the Lord, exist through the Knowledges of truths from the Word . . . but love and the consequent conjunction, through a life according to His precepts. Sig. The Lord loves everyone, and wills to be conjoined with them, but cannot be conjoined so long as a man is in the delight of evil . . . The Lord does indeed love them, but cannot be conjoined with them, unless the delights of evils are removed . . . This man must do as of himself . . . because conjunction, in order to be conjunction, must be the reciprocal conjunction of man with the Lord, and of the Lord with man.

949. 'To give every man according to his work' = according to his conjunction with the Lord through faith in Him, and through a life according to His precepts . . . As charity and faith are from the Lord, and are according to conjunction with Him, it is evident that these are signified . . .

—². For the Lord is omnipresent with every man according to conjunction, and conjunction is according to reception, and reception is according to love and wisdom . . .

M. 32⁷. Wherefore, from creation there is implanted in both (the male and female) the love of conjunction into one.

33. Hence it is that the female is born into the love of conjoining herself with that affection in the male.

— In the male and female there is nothing alike, but still there is conjunctivity in every particular. 37.

37. As this conjunctivity is implanted from creation, and therefore is perpetually present, it follows that the one longs and yearns for conjunction with the other: regarded in itself, love is nothing else but a longing and striving after conjunction; and marriage love, into conjunction into one.

38. A natural man loves and longs only for external conjunctions . . . but a spiritual man for internal conjunction, and from it the happinesses of the spirit, and these he perceives to exist with one wife, with whom he can be perpetually more and more conjoined into one; and in proportion as he is thus conjoined, he perceives his happiness rising in the same degree, and this constantly, to eternity.

49. The reason separations take place after death, is that the conjunctions which take place on earth rarely take place from any internal perception of love, but from an external one which hides the internal.

— Internal conjunction, however, which is that of souls, makes real marriage; and this conjunction is not perceptible until man puts off the external and puts on the internal, which takes place after death. Hence it is that separations take place then, and afterwards new conjunctions with similar and homogeneous partners; unless these have been provided on earth, as takes place with those who from their young manhood have loved, wished for, and asked of the Lord a lawful and lovely fellowship with one of the sex, spurning and detesting wandering lust.

55⁷. But the love of a man and a woman is the love of the understanding and its affection, and this love enters inwardly and conjoins; and this conjunction is that (chaste love of the sex); but the conjunction of minds and not at the same time of bodies, or the endeavour after the former conjunction alone, is spiritual love, and therefore chaste love . . .

61. In every created thing there is a conjunction of good and truth, and conjunction has no existence unless it is reciprocal; for conjunction on one side, and not in turn on the other, is dissolved of itself.

72. There are two things which make the Church . . . with man; the truth of faith and the good of life; the truth of faith effects the Lord's presence, and the good of life according to the truths of faith effects conjunction with Him, and thus the Church and Heaven; the reason the truth of faith effects presence, is that it is of light . . . and the reason the good of life effects conjunction, is that it is of heat . . .

85. Hence comes the conjunction of the created universe with its Creator, and through conjunction perpetual preservation.

128. The Word is the medium of conjunction, because it is from the Lord, and thus is the Lord. Gen.art.

132⁵. The likeness or appearance that love and wisdom, or good and truth, are in man as his, causes man to be man, and that he can be conjoined with God, and thus live to eternity . . . How can conjunction with God through love and wisdom exist, unless there be given to man some reciprocity of conjunction? for without reciprocity no conjunction is possible; and the reciprocity of conjunction is that man should love God, and be wise in the things which are of God as of himself, and should yet believe that they are from God: and further, how can man live to eternity, unless he be conjoined with the eternal God?

134⁵. Thus the Lord conjoins man with Himself, and man conjoins himself with the Lord . . . 136.

—^e. Thus may man be conjoined with the Lord, and thereby become man, and live to eternity.

156a. On the conjunction of souls and minds through marriage, which is meant by the Lord's words, that they are no more two, but one flesh. Chap.

157. From creation there are implanted in both sexes the capacity and inclination that they may be able and willing to be conjoined as into one. Gen.art.

158². As the woman is from the man, and this conjunction is a species of reunion, it can be seen from reason, that it is not conjunction into one, but adjunction, close and near according to the love, and close even to contact with those who are in true marriage love.

—^e. From this it is evident, that marriage love conjoins two souls and minds into one.

159. The will of the wife conjoins itself with the understanding of the man, and thence the understanding of the man with the will of the wife. Gen.art.

— Hence it follows, that marriage conjunction is that of the will of the wife with the understanding of the man, and the reciprocal conjunction of the understanding of the man with the will of the wife: everyone sees that there is a very close conjunction of the understanding and the will; and that it is such, that the one faculty can enter into the other, and be delighted from and in the conjunction.

162. This conjunction is effected successively from the first days of marriage; and, with those who are in true marriage love, more and more inwardly to eternity. Gen.art.

—². The first heat of marriage does not conjoin.

163. The conjunction of the wife with the rational wisdom of the husband is effected from within, but with his moral wisdom from without. Gen.art.

166. For the sake of this conjunction as an end, there is given to the wife a perception of the affections of the husband, and also the utmost sagacity in moderating them. Gen.art.

[M.] 169. The wife is continually thinking about the man's inclination towards herself, with the purpose of conjoining him with herself. Gen.art.

170. The wife conjoins herself with the man through applications to the desires of his will. Gen.art.

171. The wife is conjoined with the man through the sphere of her life which goes forth from her love. Gen.art.

— All sympathy and antipathy originate from spheres, and also all conjunction and disjunction . . . for what is homogeneous and concordant effects conjunction and presence, and what is heterogeneous and discordant disjunction and absence.

—³. The spheres which go forth from every part of man, and are continued amply around him, not only conjoin and disjoin two married partners from without, but also from within . . .

172. The wife is conjoined with the husband through the appropriation of the powers of his virtue; but this is effected according to their mutual spiritual love. Gen.art.

— Hence there takes place effectively a union of souls, and a conjunction of minds.

174. The duties through which wives chiefly conjoin themselves with their husbands, are the education of the little children of both sexes, and of the girls until they are marriageable.

176. According to mutual aid, these duties also conjoin two into one. Gen.art.

179. Regarded in itself, true marriage love is a union of souls, a conjunction of minds, an endeavour towards conjunction in bosoms, and thence in the body. Gen.art.

189. Outside of plants there is only a simple conjunction of heat and light, but within them there is as it were a sport between them . . .

191. After marriage, the states of life are changed and succeed each other according to the conjunctions of their minds through marriage love. Gen.art.

195. This formation is effected by the wife through the conjunction of her will with the internal will of the man. Gen.art.

196. Whoever conjoins with himself the will of another, conjoins also with himself his understanding . . .

199². Some men said that conjunction with a woman before marriage is like conjunction with a wife after marriage . . .

204. Hence it is evident, that a superior facility of conjoining good with truth, and truth with good . . . is inherited by those who are born from such a marriage.

214. With those who are in true marriage love, the conjunction of minds increases, and therewith friendship; but with those who are not, they both decrease. Gen.art.

228. Various similitudes can be conjoined, but not with dissimilitudes. Gen.art.

— Through the things of the Church there is effected conjunction interiorly of similitudes which are apart; through all other things, only exteriorly. But no conjunction can take place with dissimilitudes . . .

244². There are many causes which conjoin dispositions, but still do not conjoin souls . . .

245^e. Between the disjoined souls of two persons, especially of two married partners, conjunction is effected in an intermediate love; otherwise there would be no conceptions with human beings.

267². Everyone is withheld from the concupiscence of evil, and is kept in intelligence, according to his aspect towards the Lord, and at the same time according to his conjunction with Him; without this, a man is nothing but concupiscence.

272. In the natural world almost all can be conjoined as to external affections, but not as to internal affections if these disagree and appear. Gen.art.

273. In the Spiritual World all are conjoined according to internal affections, and not according to external ones, unless they agree with the internal ones. Gen.art.

284^e. With spiritual men there is marriage conjunction through that love from judgment and justice . . .

293⁵. In all conjunction through love there must be action, reception, and reaction . . .

305. Within the time of betrothal it is not allowable to be conjoined corporeally. Gen.art.

320. The Natural separated from the Spiritual with two married partners does not effect any conjunction of minds, thus not of wills, but only a conjunction of some external affections which cohere with the senses of the body.

321. Spiritual conjunction (is an actual adjunction of the soul and mind of the one to those of the other, which is utterly indissoluble).

333. True marriage love can only exist with one wife . . . and such a conjunction of minds, that they may be one flesh. Gen.art.

341². Otherwise there is no conjunction (with the Lord), and without conjunction there is no reception. There are with man the presence of the Lord, and conjunction with Him; to approach Him effects presence, and to live according to His precepts effects conjunction; His presence alone is without reception; but His presence and at the same time conjunction is with reception. . . In the Spiritual World everyone is presented to view from thought about him; but no one is conjoined with another except from the affection of love; and the affection of love is insinuated through doing his sayings and good pleasure.

352. Not even those who are in heavenly light and heat could be saved if there were a conjunction of the Christian and Mohammedan Heavens, for all the Heavens would fall to decay from that conjunction . . . For from the communication and consequent conjunction, the Christian Angels would become natural, and thus adulterers; or, if they remained spiritual, they would constantly feel what is lascivious about them, which would intercept all the blessedness of their life . . .

—^e. This is why all the Heavens are entirely distinct, so that there is no conjunction between them, except through the influx of the light and heat from the Lord out of the Sun in the midst of which He is.

385. On the conjunction of marriage love with the love of little children. Chap.

396. Which makes reception, affection, and thence conjunction . . .

—². This conjunction is effected by means of the bodily senses . . .

398. As innocence recedes with little children, so are affection and conjunction remitted. Gen.art.

409. With the wife, however, there is some external conjunction with the man through the love of the children.

444⁵. Without this appearance, man would have no conjunction with God . . .

476. Actual conjunction with the wife is not then allowable.

532². The reason the knowledge of correspondences is now unfolded, is that there may be effected the conjunction of the man of the Church with the Lord, and consociation with the Angels . . .

I. 14⁴. This as of himself is the reciprocal of conjunction, for conjunction is not possible without what is reciprocal, as there is no conjunction of an active with a passive without a reactive . . .

20^o. See CHARITY at this ref.

T. 43³. Regarded in itself, love is nothing but a striving after conjunction; wherefore, in order that this essence of love might be obtained, God created man in His own image and likeness, with which conjunction can be effected. That the Divine love continually strives after conjunction, is evident from the Lord's words; that He wills them to be one, He in them, and they in Him; and that the love of God may be in them (John xvii).

74². In proportion as man does these two things from natural power, he makes himself a receptacle of the Divine omnipotence; and in the same proportion God conjoins Himself with him, and him with Himself.

89^e. In proportion as man approaches God, which he must do entirely as of himself, God approaches man, and conjoins Himself with him in the midst of him.

98. Through this union of man with God (in the Lord), is there alone given conjunction, and through conjunction salvation.

99. No union or conjunction between two is possible, unless they mutually approach each other: all conjunction in the universal Heaven, and in the universal world, and in the whole of man, is from no other source than the reciprocal approach of the one to the other . . . Such is the reciprocal conjunction of the soul and the body with every man; such is the conjunction of man's spirit with the sensory and motor organs of his body; such is the conjunction of the heart and the lungs; such is the conjunction of the will and the understanding; such is the conjunction of all the members and viscera in and among themselves, in man; such is the conjunction of minds among all who interiorly love each other, for this conjunction is inscribed on all love and friendship, for love wills to love and to be loved. There is a reciprocal conjunction of all things in the world which are wholly conjoined with each other; there is a like conjunction of the sun's heat with the heat of wood and of stone; of the vital heat with the heat of all the fibres in living creatures; a like one of a tree with its roots, through the root with the tree, and through the tree with the fruit; a like one of the magnet with iron; and so on. Unless conjunction be effected through the approach of the one to the other mutually and reciprocally, it is nothing but an external conjunction, and not an internal one . . . 100.

105. After this state comes the other, which is a state of conjunction with God . . .

110⁴. This order is, that as man through a life according to the laws of order . . . conjoins himself with God, so God conjoins Himself with man, and from natural makes him spiritual. —⁵. —⁶.

115^e. Men in the world are so conjoined with the Angels of Heaven and with the Spirits of Hell, that in the interiors of their minds they make one, on both sides.

126. Wherefore, when anyone overcomes in temptation, he is inmosty conjoined with God.

267. Conjunction with Heaven cannot exist, unless somewhere on earth there is a Church, where the Word is . . .

302. By the seventh day, is signified his conjunction with the Lord, and thereby regeneration.

303. In the celestial sense, by this commandment is meant conjunction with the Lord, and peace then, because protection from Hell.

369. Conjunction with God is that through which man has salvation and eternal life. Gen.art.

— . Man has been created in order that he may be conjoined with God . . . for the spiritual man can think about God, and perceive such things as are of God, and can also love God, and be affected by those things which are from God; from which it follows, that he can be conjoined with God.

—³. Moreover, what is faith, but conjunction with God through truths, which are of the understanding, and thence of the thought? and what is love but conjunction with God through the goods which are of the will and thence of the affection? The conjunction of God with man is spiritual conjunction in natural; and the conjunction of man with God is natural conjunction from spiritual. For the sake of this conjunction as an end, man has been created a native of Heaven, and at the same time of the world; as a native of Heaven he is spiritual, and as a native of the world he is natural; if therefore man becomes spiritual rational, and at the same time spiritual moral, he is conjoined with God, and through the conjunction has salvation and eternal life; but if man is only natural rational and also natural moral, there is indeed the conjunction of God with him, but not the conjunction of him with God . . .

370. Conjunction with God the Father is not possible; but with the Lord, and through Him with God the Father. Gen.art.

—³. For Jehovah descended, and became man, in order that He could approach man, and man Him, and thus conjunction be effected, and through the conjunc- tion with man salvation and eternal life . . . There are three things which follow in order ; accommodation, application, and conjunction ; there must be accommodation before there can be application, and accommodation and at the same time application before there can be conjunction ; there was accommodation on the part of God by His becoming Man ; application on the part of God is perpetual, in proportion as man applies himself in his turn ; and as this is effected, conjunction also is effected.

[T.] 371. Conjunction with the Lord is reciprocal, which is, that the Lord is in man, and man in the Lord. Gen.art.

— . Concerning His conjunction with His Father, the Lord teaches that it is reciprocal, for He said to Philip, 'Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me ; believe Me, that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me' (John xiv. 10, 11). Further Ill.

— . The Lord says the same of His conjunction with man, to wit, that it is reciprocal. Ill.

—². From these plain statements it is evident, that the conjunction of the Lord and of man is reciprocal ; and as it is reciprocal, it follows, that man ought to conjoin himself with the Lord, in order that the Lord may conjoin Himself with him ; and that otherwise conjunction is not effected, but recession and thence separation, not on the Lord's, but on man's part. In order that there may be this reciprocal conjunction, there has been given to man free choice . . . From this freedom which has been given to man there flows forth his reciprocity ; that he can conjoin himself with the Lord, and that he can conjoin himself with the devil.

—⁴. There are two reciprocations through which conjunction is effected ; one alternate, and the other mutual. The alternate reciprocation through which conjunction is effected, may be illustrated by the animations of the lungs . . . Such is the reciprocal conjunction of the air and the lungs . . .

—⁵. The reciprocal conjunction which is effected through alternates, may also be illustrated by the conjunction of the heart with the lungs, and of the lungs with the heart . . . Similar is the conjunction of the blood with the heart, and of the heart with the blood . . . A similar action and reaction, through which conjunction endures, is that between the embryo and the mother's womb.

—⁶. But there is not such a reciprocal conjunction as this between the Lord and man ; but there is a mutual conjunction, which is not effected through act and react, but through co-operations ; for the Lord acts, and man receives the action from the Lord, and operates as of himself, nay, from himself from the Lord . . . This reciprocal conjunction, which is mutual, may also be illustrated by various things in man and in the world ; such is the conjunction of the soul and the body with every man ; such is the conjunction of the will and of action ; and such of thought and speech ; and such of the two eyes with each other, and of the two ears with each other, and of the two nostrils with each other. That the conjunction of the two eyes with each other is in its own way reciprocal, is evident from the optic nerve, in which the fibres from both brains are folded together, and so extend to both the eyes . . . There is a like mutual reciprocal conjunction of light and the eye, of sound and the ear, of odour and the nostril, of taste and the tongue, and of touch and the body ; for the eye is in light and light is in the eye, sound is in the ear and the ear is in sound, and so on. This reciprocal conjunction may also be compared to the conjunction of a horse and a chariot, of an ox and a plough, of a wheel and a machine, of a sail and the wind, of a flute and the air ; in a word, there is such a reciprocal conjunction of the end and the cause, and such of the cause and the effect.

372. This reciprocal conjunction of the Lord and of man exists through charity and faith. Gen.art.

—². For conjunction with the Lord is spiritual conjunction, and spiritual conjunction only exists through charity and faith.

446^e. For friendship is natural conjunction, but love is spiritual conjunction.

456. On the conjunction of love to God, and of love towards the neighbour. Gen.art.

457. With both the former and the latter there is not conjunction with God . . .

—². How conjunction is effected shall be briefly explained . . .

—³. The reason conjunction is effected through charity is . . .

484². If you persevere in this course, reciprocal conjunction will be effected between you and the Lord, and that perpetual . . .

485. Without free will in spiritual things, there would not be anything of man through which he could in turn conjoin himself with the Lord, and therefore no imputation. Gen.art.

598. Wherefore, through the temptations with man there is conjunction of Heaven and the world . . .

607. With this conjunction (between man and Spirits) neither man, Angel, nor Spirit is acquainted . . . They are not conjoined as to thoughts, but as to affections . . . The conjunction through the affections of love between men and Angels and Spirits is so close, that if it were cut asunder . . . men would at once fall into a swoon, and if it were not repaired, and they conjoined together, the men would expire.

619⁴. The third sphere is that of the conjunction of faith and charity, which is so strong, that it cannot be resisted ; but at this day it is wicked, and infects like a pestilence whomsoever inhales it . . . This sphere I have felt, and then when I thought of the conjunction of faith and charity, it interposed itself between them, and violently endeavoured to separate them . . .

718. It follows that man has the capacity of conjoining himself with the Lord, and the Lord with himself, for ever ; but as man is finite, His Divine self cannot be conjoined with him, but only adjoined ; as, for instance, the light of the sun cannot be conjoined with the eye, nor the sound of the air be conjoined with the ear, but only adjoined to them . . .

725. They who approach the Holy Supper worthily are in the Lord, and the Lord in them ; consequently, through the Holy Supper there is effected conjunction with the Lord. Gen.art.

—c. What else is conjunction with the Lord but to be among those who are in His body . . .

726. That without conjunction with the Lord, eternal life and salvation are impossible, is because He is both.

—². Thus the Lord conjoins man with Himself, and man conjoins himself with the Lord, for unless conjunction be effected reciprocally, it has no existence.

727². Moreover, conjunction with the Lord through the Holy Supper may be illustrated by the conjunction of families from one head . . .

786. The Most Ancient Church worshipped an invisible God, with Whom no conjunction is possible; the Ancient Church did the same; so did the Israelitish Church . . .

787. The New Church will worship one visible God, in Whom is the invisible God, as the soul is in the body; for thus, and no otherwise, is the conjunction of God with man possible; the reason of which is that man is natural, and consequently thinks naturally, and the conjunction must be in the thought, and so in the affection of his love, and this is effected when man thinks of God as a Man. Conjunction with an invisible God is like the conjunction of the sight of the eye with the expanse of the universe, of which it sees no end . . . but conjunction with a visible God is like the sight of a man in the air . . . for all conjunction of God with man must also be the reciprocal conjunction of man with God, and this other reciprocity is not possible except with a visible God.

—³. That there is conjunction with the invisible God through Him Who is visible. III.

D. 1976. They who suppose the general conjunction of women and men to be . . . holy . . .

3642. For evil ends also conjoin . . .

E. 447. 'Of the tribe of Zebulon were sealed twelve thousand'=the conjunction of those who are in the third Heaven with the Lord. For Zebulon was so called from dwelling together, which in the spiritual sense means conjunction.

448. 'Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed twelve thousand'=the conjunction of those who are in the second Heaven with the Lord.

449. 'Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed twelve thousand'=the conjunction of those who are in the ultimate Heaven with the Lord.

462. The conjunction of the Lord with the universal Heaven. Sig.

—'. 'To stand round'=conjunction; for in the Spiritual World those appear present with whom there is conjunction, and those absent with whom there is not conjunction.

616². Action and reaction make all conjunction. Ex.

700³⁵. The conjunction of the Lord through the interiors of the Word, and not through the exteriors. Sig.

701. How the conjunction of the Lord with man, and of man with the Lord, is effected. Fully Ex. and III.

736. Hence it is that they conjoin the affections of 3 E

these loves with the things of their faith, which conjunction does not make the heavenly marriage, but adultery; for it is a conjunction of truth with the affection of evil . . . but the conjunction of truth with evil is provided against by the Lord by this; that they have no genuine truths, but truths falsified . . .

998^e. For, in the Spiritual World, the conjunction of truth and good is effected by aspect . . .

1145. All good conjoined with truth in the natural man. Sig.

D. Wis. iii. 1. The Lord conjoins Himself with man in the mother's womb from the first conception. 2.

x. There is a reciprocal conjunction of love and wisdom, or what is the same thing, of the will and the understanding, also of affection and thought, and in like manner of good and truth. Gen.art.

Conjugal. Conjugalis.

M. 98. The subject here treated of is love truly conjugal, and not the common love which also is called conjugal, and which with some is nothing but the limited love of the sex.

203. The marriage principle is changed . . . sometimes into the opposite, which is called the conjugal or connubial principle of evil and falsity.

Conjugal. See MARRIAGE.

Conjugal Love. See MARRIAGE LOVE.

Conjugal Love. Delitiae Sapientiae de Amore Conjugalii.

M. 534^e. The Angels said to me, Write about (love truly conjugal), and follow the revelation; and afterwards the Book written about it shall be let down by us from Heaven, and we shall see whether the things contained in it are received . . .

I. 2. (The Conjugal Love referred to.) 11^e. B. 55. T. 19^e. 313. 607. Can. Trinity iv. 5. Coro. 36, etc.

Connate. Connatus.

Born with. Connasci.

A. 1906². He supposes that . . . everything is connate with him . . .

2219⁵. A mere external pride is born with some.

3304². Good is born with man, but not truth.

4231. (No man is of the Church from connate good.)

4906^e. Hence their connate knowledges and affections, as with bees.

H. 368. As is evident from the inclination or connate nature of both husband and wife . . .

W. 262. By virtue of the reaction connate with man . . .

R. 97². The good of falsity is not good, but is either pharisaic, meritorious, or connate natural good.

M. 134². Connate knowledges and affections limit this progression; but connate capacity and inclination limit nothing . . .

227^e. Likenesses and unlikenesses originate from connate inclinations . . .

[M.] 292³. From connate timidity ; but I added, from connate modesty.

T. 335⁷. That man has no connate ideas is evident from . . . —.

478^e. He is then led away from concupiscences . . . and from the connate avidities for them.

574². Would they not from connate ferocity . . .

Connect. Compaginare. H.212. W.190. 432².
—³.

Connect. Connectere.

Connection. Nexus, Connexio.

A. 1919³. The order, connection, and influx are such . . .

2102. (Connection of all things in the internal sense.)

2161. From their connection with what precedes and follows . . .

2243⁶. (The Church is the connection between man and Heaven ; and this connection was quite broken when the Lord came.)

2556^e. If man were deprived of connection with others as to his spirit, he could not live for a moment. 2998.

2863³. There is a connection of truths . . .

2886. Evils and falsities have connection with the Hells . . . But goods and truths have connection with Heaven . . .

3627². That by which man is connected with the First . . .

3628². There are always two forces which hold everything together in its connection and in its form . . .

3739². Hence is the connection of ultimates with the First; without which connection, that which is ultimate in order could not subsist for a moment. 4523^e.

4044^e. This by the connection of correspondences . . .

4197⁷. One truth without connection with others is not confirmatory . . . One does not produce any form, thus not any quality ; but a number connected in a series.

4217². As there is a connection of man with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord (through the Holy Supper) . . .

4524. As there must be a continual connection with the Spiritual World in order that the things in the natural world may subsist . . .

5114⁴. As with man there is a connection with the Divine . . .

5373². This is evident . . . from the very connection of things in the internal sense . . .

5377. Without correspondence with the Spiritual World, nothing exists and subsists, because it has no connection with what is prior to itself . . . That anything subsists, is from its connection with and dependence upon that from which comes all existence.

5413^e. Everything that is without connection with what is prior to itself is without connection with the First . . .

5461. The connection with the Divine is then so slight . . .

5713. Heaven . . . holds all things together in connection . . . Hell sunders all things . . .

5881. The order of things in the memory . . . is according to the connection of the things which the man had taken up . . .

6044. Hence comes the connection of things . . .

7270⁴. Thus are successive things held together in their order and connection.

8725^e. Good is not conjoined with truths . . . until they have connection with all the truths which are to be of faith with the man who is to be regenerated ; the Angels clearly see the connection of the truths.

9163. Hence it is that the truths with man have connection with each other according to their reception in good. The truths which are so connected make one . . . For when they are in connection, one subsists from another . . .

9174. Good is what disposes truths in series, and connects them.

9256³. Falsities dispose themselves by series, and make a continuous connection with each other . . . Hence . . . if these persons are to have new life, the falsities must be successively extirpated, and in their place truths and goods implanted, which in like manner shall form a continuous connection with each other . . . 9334².

9280². Hence through the Word alone is there a connection of Heaven with man. 9481².

9334². The goods and truths with a good man have a similar connection with each other to that between the heavenly Societies of which he is a part.

9336². Every evil with its falsities has a rooted connection with all evils and their falsities ; and such evils and falsities are innumerable, and their connection is so manifold that it cannot be comprehended, except by the Lord alone . . .

9430^e. For the connection is continuous from the Lord through Heaven even to man through the Word.

9438^e. Through (Spirits and Angels) there is a connection of man with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord.

9828^e. 'A leathern girdle' = that which . . . holds interior things together in connection. —⁹.

9945^e. All things in the Spiritual World are held together in connection through Knowledges and affections thence.

9948. 'Belts' = a holding together in connection.

10044⁶. That all things are held together in connection . . . from the First through the ultimates. Sig.

10614². Hence the connection of all things, and the influx according to the connection . . .

H. 9. That which is not continually held in connection with the First through intermediates, is at once dissolved and entirely dissipated.

37. Thus He causes the three Heavens to be one, and all to be in connection . . .

297. He thus holds everything with man in connection . . .

302. Man believes that he lives . . . without connection with the first being of life, and does not know that he has connection through the Heavens; yet if that connection were broken, man would at once fall down dead.

303. There is a connection of all things through intermediates with the First, and whatever is not in connection is dissolved . . . The connection with that which is prior is like that of an effect with its cause.

—². The connection of everything with what is prior to itself, thus with the First . . . is various and diverse: in general there is a connection of the natural world with the Spiritual World . . . Also, there is a connection and thence a correspondence of all things of man with all things of Heaven.

304. Man is so created that he has connection and conjunction with the Lord, but with the Angels only consociation . . .

—^c. It follows that such is the connection and conjunction of Heaven with mankind that the one subsists from the other . . . J.9⁸.

305. As man has broken this connection with Heaven . . .

J. 9³. Such is the containing connection from primes to ultimates, that all things regarded together constitute a one . . .

W. 226. From the fact that the greatest and least things are forms of both kinds of degrees, there is a connection of them from primes to ultimates . . .

P. 3^o. Upon the conjunction of the Creator with man the connection of all things depends.

124. The reason the Lord never acts into any particular with man singly . . . is that all things with man are in such a connection, and through the connection in such a form, that they act not as many, but as one. Ex.

279⁵. These myriads (of concupiscences or affections) are in such order and connection in man's interiors, that one cannot be changed unless all are.

R. 916². The reason the acknowledgment and Knowledge of the Lord conjoin into one all the Knowledges of truth and good from the Word, is that there is a connection of all spiritual truths; in fact there is a connection of them like the connection of all the members, viscera, and organs of the body; wherefore, as the soul holds all things together in order and connection . . . so the Lord holds together all the spiritual truths with man.

T. 60. In man there are general and particular things . . . and they join themselves together by such a connection that one is of the other. Ex.

E. 349⁵. Everything must be in connection with the First in order to be anything, and it is something in proportion as it is in connection.

682². There is such a connection of higher and lower things in the Spiritual World . . .

744. When the ultimates of Heaven have connection with such as are conjoined with Hell . . .

1133^e. This order and this connection of affections is known to the Lord alone.

Connect. Conserere. R.349. T.353⁶.

Connected. Concatenatus. W.392.

Connubial. See MARRIAGE—connubium.

Conquer. Vincere.

Conqueror. Victor.

See VICTORY.

A. 1661^e. In order that He might conquer of His Own power . . .

1695². When evil Spirits are conquered . . .

1740². That evil and falsity were conquered. Sig. and Ex.

1820³. If conquered a thousand times, they would still press on . . .

1950². Although rational good never fights, it always conquers . . .

2159. Through the combats of temptations He conquered—ericit—the hereditary . . .

2183³. If the Rational conquers . . . But if the Natural conquers . . . (repeated many times).

2273². The temptations in which man conquers . . . When, therefore, after temptations, he comes into thoughts which are contrary to these, it is a sign that he has not conquered . . .

2338. The state of temptation when he conquers. Sig. —². He who conquers is indeed in doubt . . . but remains steadfast in the affirmative.

2708⁶. How man yields of himself, but conquers from the Lord. Sig.

2857. Every temptation in which man conquers elevates his mind, for it confirms goods and truths, and superadds new ones.

3696². Hence it is that he conquers . . .

3923³. It is truth which fights and conquers.

3927. Temptation in which he conquers. Sig.

—². The Lord conquered of His Own power, differently from every man . . . Refs.

3928. 'Naphtali' = the quality of the temptation in which he conquers.

4572². When the Spirits who are in evils and falsities are conquered by the Spirits who are in goods and truths . . .

5246⁴. If he conquers in temptation . . .

6494². I could not then win . . .

6571. The good ends conquer, because from the Divine.

6657². It sometimes appears to the Spirits from Hell that they are conquering, and then they rise up; sometimes that they are being conquered, and then they draw themselves back . . . When they are conquered they cannot come out of Hell any more.

6663³. All the spiritual combat in which the combatant is conqueror is attended with this . . .

2168². When the man conquers, the internal force and power always prevail . . .

8172^e. He conquers who believes that the Lord alone resists in temptations . . .

[A.] 8175. The reason the Lord alone sustains the combats of temptations, and conquers, is that the Lord alone can conquer the Hells . . .

8179³. He who conquers in temptations is also confirmed in that truth ; but he who does not conquer, as he is not heard, entertains doubt concerning the Divine aid and power . . .

8273³. He who once conquers the Hells, perpetually conquers them, for through victory he acquires power over them . . .

8464². 'Manna' = the good of truth, which is given to those who undergo temptations, and conquer.

8555. That they who are in the truth and good of faith conquer when they look upwards to the Lord, is represented by the Sons of Israel conquering when Moses held up his hands. 8605. 8606, Ex.

8607. 'Amalek prevailed' = that falsity conquered.

8961. If (in temptation) evil conquers, the natural man has dominion over the spiritual ; if good conquers, the spiritual man has dominion over the natural.

9338². 'To overcome' (Rev. xxi. 7) = to fight from good and truth, for evil is overcome through good, and falsity through truth.

9715². It is the Lord alone Who with man still conquers the Hells ; for He Who once conquers them, conquers them to eternity. 9937³.

10488. The truth which fights against evil and falsity, and conquers, must be from good. Ex.

L. 33². Hence it is that when in temptations man conquers from the Lord, he is drawn out of Hell, and is raised into Heaven.

R. 88. 'To him that overcometh' (Rev. ii. 7) = who fights against evils and falsities, and is being reformed. Ill. 105, etc. T. 610.

147. They shall conquer with themselves the evils which are from Hell. Sig.

190. 'He who overcometh' (Rev. iii. 12) = those who remain steadfast in truths and good from the Lord.

220. 'To him that overcometh' (ver. 21) = those who are in conjunction with the Lord through a life according to His commandments in the Word.

222. 'As I have overcome' (id) = that through temptations admitted into His Human, and through the last of them, which was the passion of the cross ; also through the fulfilling of all things of the Word, He conquered the Hells and glorified His Human . . .

301. 'He went forth conquering and to conquer' (Rev. vi. 2) = victory over falsities and evils to eternity. . . For he who conquers in the world, conquers to eternity, because the Hells cannot attack him who has conquered them.

432. They seemed to themselves as conquerors. Sig.

500. 'To overcome and kill them' (Rev. xi. 7) = to reject and extirpate them in themselves, and so far as they can, with others.

586. 'To make war with the saints, and to overcome them' (Rev. xiii. 7) = that they have assailed the Divine truths of the Word, and laid them prostrate.

890. 'He that overcometh shall inherit all things' (Rev. xxi. 7) = that those who overcome evils with themselves . . . and do not yield when they are tempted by the Babylonians and the dragonists, will come into Heaven.

T. 596^e. If the internal man conquers, he commands and subjugates all the evils of the external man, and then regeneration is continued ; but if the external man conquers, he commands, and dissipates all the goods of the [internal] man, and then regeneration perishes.

E. 109. 'To overcome' (Rev. ii. 7) = to receive in the heart. Ex.

128. 'To overcome' (ver. 11) = to remain in the genuine affection of truth even to the end of the life in the world. It is said 'he that overcometh,' because these are they who undergo spiritual temptation, which is from evils and falsities, and fight against them ; to resist which, and master and subdue them as enemies, is to overcome. But no one overcomes unless he remains in the spiritual affection of truth to the end of the life in the world. . . But no one can overcome except the Lord alone ; the man who believes that he overcomes of himself, and not the Lord with him, does not overcome, but yields ; for it is spiritual faith which overcomes . . . 197. 219. 253.

146. 'He that overcometh' (ver. 17) = those who overcome in temptations.

174. 'To overcome' (ver. 26) = to fight against the delights of the love of self and of the world, and to remove them.

254. 'As I have overcome' = as the Divine good is united to the Divine truth.

309. 'The lion hath overcome' (Rev. v. 5) = the Lord, Who of His Own power has subjugated the Hells, and has reduced all things there and in the Heavens into order.

359. 'He went forth conquering and to conquer' = the removal of evils and thence of falsities in the end of life, and afterwards to eternity. 'To conquer,' in the Word = to conquer spiritually, which is to subjugate evils and falsities ; but as these are no otherwise conquered than as they are removed by the Lord, by 'to conquer' is signified the removal of evils and falsities. Ill.

651. 'To overcome and kill' the two witnesses = the destruction of all the good and truth of the Church.

748. 'They overcame him through the blood of the Lamb' (Rev. xii. 11) = resistance and victory through the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord's Divine Human.

Conquest. See under SUBJUGATE.

Consanguinity. Consanguinitas.

Blood-relation. Consanguineus.

A. 685. See AFFINITY at these refs. 2508. 2556. 3703². 4121. 6756. H. 205. D. 3031.

1159². In the Heavens all things of mutual love are circumstanced as are consanguinities and relationships by marriage . . .

2524. Good and truth rational are not conjoined with each other as in a marriage, but in consanguinity as of a brother and sister.

2739². Hence it is that from marriages on earth is derived the origin of all consanguinities and relationships by marriage . . . But as there is no marriage love now, the consanguinities and marriage relationships are indeed taken account of, but they are not the consanguinities and marriage relationships of love, (as was the case in the Most Ancient Church). D. 3795.

3129. In the natural man as in the rational there are relationships by blood and marriage . . .

3665⁴. Knowledges . . . are like nations, families, and houses, and like the consanguinities and relationships by marriage therein . . .

3677². There are innumerable genera of good and truth, and still more innumerable species, and they are conjoined with each other by degrees as it were of relationship by blood and marriage.

3703². Each and all things in the Heavens are circumstanced according to the consanguinities of love and faith in the Lord, or what is the same thing, of good and truth. Refs.

3803². It is good which makes a blood-relation . . .

3815. Because they are blood-relations from good. Sig. . . 'Brother,' here, = a blood-relation, because it is said by Laban to Jacob, thus by good to good; for all blood-relationship originates from good, since good is of love. It is the nearest degree of love in the line of descent which is called a blood-relation, and is meant in the proper sense by 'brother.' That in the Spiritual World, or in Heaven, there are no other relationships by blood and marriage than those of love to the Lord and of love towards the neighbour, or, what is the same, of good, has been evident to me from the fact, that all the Societies which constitute Heaven, and which are innumerable, are distinguished from each other according to the degrees and differences of love and thence of faith . . .

4619⁹. All the heavenly Societies are in truths and goods; but as truths and goods there are circumstanced as are relationships by blood and marriage on earth; with every difference . . .

4832². Truth cannot be conjoined with any good except that which is its own and consanguineous . . .

5530. Those things which are in the midst are called consanguineous, for love makes a blood-relation . . .

5598. According to the varieties of good from truth and of truth from good in this birth are the brotherhoods, or relationships by blood and marriage in Heaven . . .

R. 32. They are all as it were blood-relations through charity, and relations by marriage through faith; for charity conjoins . . .

M. 484. Triplicate adultery is with blood-relations. Gen.art.

D. 4037. There are connections as of relationships by blood and marriage in every simple idea, and more so in every compound idea.

E. 166. The names of relationships by blood and marriage (Enum.) = spiritual things which relate to spiritual birth . . . and to the heavenly marriage . . .

Conscience. Conscientia.

Conscientious. Conscientiosus.

See under BIND.

A. 81². The bonds by which a spiritual man is acted upon are internal ones, and are called the bonds of conscience.

104. A spiritual man has no perception, but has conscience; a dead man has not even conscience; many do not know what conscience is, still less perception.

203. The perception of the spiritual Angels is a kind of conscience, which is vivified by the Lord, and appears like celestial perception, but is not celestial, but only spiritual perception.

206². If they were to be asked whether they know what conscience is, they would say that it is a mere imaginary thing, which may serve to keep the common people in a bond.

219. 'The voice of Jehovah' is taken for . . . conscience, or inward observation.

227. The source of perception, dictate, and conscience. . . It is this combat which is felt through perception, dictate, and conscience . . .

310². Since the Flood, men have no love, thus no will of good; but still faith can be given, or the understanding of truth, through which they can be brought to some charity; but by a different way; in fact, through conscience from Knowledges of truth and good which is insinuated by the Lord.

359. 'Jehovah said to Cain' = that conscience dictated.

371. After faith was separated from love, as in the postdiluvians, and charity was given through faith, conscience succeeded, which also dictates, but in a different way. When conscience dictates, it is in like manner said that 'Jehovah is speaking,' because conscience is formed from things revealed and from Knowledges from the Word; and when the Word speaks or dictates, it is the Lord Who speaks . . . 573.

393². Conscience, which is acquired through faith adjoined to charity, dictates, not what is the truth, but that it is truth, and this because the Lord has said so in the Word. Such, for the most part, became the Churches after the Flood; such was the primitive Church; and by this the spiritual Angels are distinguished from the celestial Angels.

537². Hence it is evident, with what stings of conscience, and with what anxiety, are those tormented, who are only admitted a little way into Heaven, when they are not qualified.

597. The state of the Ancient Church became such as to have a conscience of what is good and true: such as is the difference between having perception and having conscience, was the difference of state of the Most Ancient Church and of the Ancient Church. Perception is not conscience; the celestial have perception; the spiritual have conscience.

607. Instead of perception, the Ancient Church had a kind of dictate, which may be called conscience.

[A.] 608. This dictate may be called conscience, for it has been like conscience, although it was a kind of intermediate between perception and the conscience which is known at this day to some.

751. It is this combat which is felt and perceived with man, and which causes the stings and torment of conscience. T.596°.

762. Spiritual temptations exist only with those who have received a conscience of truth and good from the Lord; conscience itself is their plane, in which they operate.

765. A spiritual Church is such that the man is reborn through the doctrinal things of faith, which, being implanted, conscience is then insinuated into him, to prevent him from acting against the truth and good of faith; and thus he is gifted with charity, which rules his conscience, and from which he thus begins to act.

831. They have been devoid of conscience . . . In the other life, they do not know what conscience is, and deride those who mention conscience. 949.

847°. With those with whom there is love towards the neighbour, or charity, whatever assaults this love presents torment of conscience; this is spiritual temptation.

857°. What temptations, or internal pains, which are called the stings of conscience, effect . . .

863°. The Lord has distinguished the Intellectual from the Voluntary of man by a certain medium which is conscience, in which charity is implanted by the Lord.

873°. The ground itself with this man is prepared in his intellectual mind, which, being prepared, there is then insinuated by the Lord the good of charity; thence comes conscience, from which he then acts, that is, through which the Lord operates the good and truth of faith . . .

—⁴. All the good of charity which he does is of the Lord alone, not through the will, but through conscience. . . . So it is with the truth which the spiritual man thinks and speaks; unless it were from conscience, and thus from the good of the Lord that he thought and spoke, he could only think and speak truth as the diabolical crew do when they feign themselves Angels of light. . . . Hence it is evident, how the regeneration of the spiritual man is effected, and what is the nature of his regeneration, to wit, that it is a separation of his intellectual from his voluntary part, through conscience, which is formed by the Lord in his intellectual part, by virtue of which, whatever he does appears as if it were from his will, but it is from the Lord.

895°. They who have conscience, from conscience have a certain dictate, but no other than that a thing is true because they have so heard and learned; this forms their conscience, as is evident from those who have a conscience of what is false.

896°. They who have faith, know, acknowledge, and believe; these have charity; these have conscience . . . To have faith is of conscience, that is, of the Lord operating through conscience . . .

916°. Thus also they acquire a spurious conscience,—that they can live like devils . . . and still be saved.

918. The nature of the freedom of the spiritual man may be evident from this; that he is ruled through conscience by the Lord: he who is ruled through conscience, or who acts according to conscience, acts freely; nothing is more opposing than to act against conscience; to act against conscience is Hell to him, and to act according to conscience is Heaven; from which everyone can see that this is freedom. The Lord rules the spiritual man through a conscience of good and truth, which is formed in his intellectual part, and is thus separated from the man's voluntary things . . .

—^e. Hence it is evident, that the conscience conferred upon a spiritual man by the Lord, is as it were a new will . . . 927°.

965. Infernal torments are not, as some suppose, the stings of conscience, for they who are in Hell have no conscience, wherefore they cannot be tormented as to the conscience: they who have conscience are among the happy. D.4329.

977. With the regenerate man there is a conscience of good and truth; from conscience he does what is good, and from conscience he thinks what is true . . . With an unregenerate man there is no conscience, or if any, it is not a conscience of doing what is good from charity, and of thinking what is true from faith, but from some love which is for the sake of self or the world; wherefore it is a spurious or false conscience. With a regenerate man there is joy when he acts according to conscience, and there is anxiety when he is compelled to do anything or to think anything against conscience; but with an unregenerate man it is not so; most of them do not know what conscience is, still less do they do anything according to conscience, or against conscience, but according to those things which favour their loves . . .

—². With a regenerate man there is a new will and a new understanding; this new will and understanding are his conscience, that is, in his conscience, through which the Lord operates the good of charity and the truth of faith. 987°.

978. Conscience is implanted in the interior man by the Lord.

986. To act against conscience is horrible to him.

—². It is this fear and terror (felt by evil Spirits) which are perceived with man in relation to those things which are against conscience; wherefore, as soon as he does or says anything against conscience, he comes into temptation, and into the stings of conscience, that is, into a kind of infernal torment . . .

—³. For man is born again, and receives conscience, through the truths of faith.

—^e. With the regenerate man in like manner; for his conscience is formed from the truths of faith; hence his conscience is a conscience of what is right.

1002°. So far as man can do this from conscience, it is allowable, for his conscience is formed from all those things which he supposes to be true, thus which are allowable.

1023°. The Lord then formed a new will in man's intellectual proprium, which is conscience, and into conscience He insinuated charity . . .

—². In proportion as man's voluntary proprium becomes quiescent, the Lord can operate in charity through the conscience implanted in man's intellectual proprium.

1032³. The Lord endows the gentiles with a conscience of what is right and good according to their religion, and into this conscience He insinuates innocence and charity; and when innocence and charity are in conscience, they easily suffer themselves to be imbued with the truth of faith from good.

1033. Conscience, in general, is either true, spurious, or false. A true conscience is that which is formed by the Lord from the truths of faith, and when a man is endowed with it, he is afraid to act against the truths of faith, for thus he would act against conscience; no one can receive this conscience who is not in the truths of faith, wherefore not very many in the Christian world . . . Nevertheless, they who are being regenerated receive conscience together with charity, for charity is the fundamental of conscience.

—². A spurious conscience is that which is formed with the gentiles from their religious worship in which they have been born and educated, to act against which is to them to act against conscience; when their conscience is founded in charity and mercy, and in obedience, they are then such as can receive a true conscience in the other life . . .

—³. A false conscience is that which is formed not from internal but from external things, that is, not from charity, but from the love of self and of the world. There are some who seem to themselves to be acting against conscience when they are acting against the neighbour, and who also at such times seem to themselves to be inwardly tortured, but it is because they perceive in thought that their own life, honour, reputation, wealth, or gain, are endangered . . . Some receive hereditarily a kind of softness of heart, and others acquire it, but it is a false conscience.

1043². Everyone supposes his own dogma to be true; hence he receives a conscience; wherefore, after he has received a conscience, to act against those things which have been impressed on him as truths of faith, is to him to act against conscience . . .

—³. In this cloud conscience is formed by the Lord with the man who is within the Church. . . In this cloud conscience is formed by the Lord with the man who is outside the Church. . . All falsities also are clouds, which exist with those who have either a false conscience, or with those who have none.

—⁴. But with the celestial man the clouds are not so great, because he has love to the Lord, which is implanted in his voluntary part, and therefore also he does not receive from the Lord conscience as the spiritual man does, but the perception of good and thence of truth.

1076. The quality of those (of a corrupt Church) is evident from this, that they never can have any conscience; for conscience, which is conscience, can never exist except from charity; charity is that which makes conscience, that is, the Lord through charity . . . Thus conscience is of charity, never of faith separated from charity; if they have any conscience, it is a false conscience; and as they are devoid of conscience, they rush into every wickedness in proportion as external bonds are loosened.

1077. Conscience is formed through the truths of faith, for that which a man has heard, acknowledged, and believed, makes conscience with him, and to act afterwards against these things is to him to act against conscience . . . Hence it is, that unless they are truths of faith which he hears, acknowledges, and believes, he can never have a true conscience; for man is regenerated through the truths of faith, the Lord operating in charity; thus he receives conscience through them, and conscience is the new man himself . . .

1083¹. These, while they have charity, and thence conscience, have internal worship in external, for the Lord operates with them in charity, and in conscience. . . It is otherwise with those who have no charity and no conscience thence derived . . .

1098. The man of the internal Church believes that he acts against conscience if he does not worship the Lord from the internal; but the man of the external Church believes that he acts against conscience if he does not reverently observe external rites. There are more things in the conscience of the man of the internal Church, because he knows more of the internal sense of the Word; whereas there are fewer things in the conscience of the man of the external Church, because he knows fewer things of the internal sense of the Word.

1100^e. They who know little, and have conscience, are enlightened in the other life . . .

1101^e. The more he is instructed, the more is dispelled the cloud of his intellectual part, in which there are charity and conscience.

1103. Such, being in no charity and conscience . . .

1106. There are many who . . . have imbued falsities as to faith, and have had a certain kind of conscience according to the principles of their faith . . .

1112. But they who have been in the goods and truths of faith, and have thence acquired conscience and the life of charity, are raised into Heaven by the Lord immediately after death.

1197. The things of the memory are like dead things, unless man is such as to live according to them from conscience . . .

1308^e. Their dominion is greatest with those with whom there is something of conscience . . . but those who have no conscience they rule by many external bonds.

1442. They who become spiritual men, that is, who receive charity from the Lord, have what is analogous to perception, that is, a dictate of conscience, more or less clear in proportion as they are in the celestial things of charity.

1555². He then begins to act from charity, which is of conscience . . .

1668. Hence arise infestation and combat . . . with all who have conscience . . . With those who have con- science there thence arises a dull pain, but with those who have perception, a sharp one . . .

[A.] 1692. Temptations are the means by which . . . conscience is not only given, but is also strengthened.

1702^e. In this interior (or middle) man there is conscience with the spiritual man, and perception with the celestial.

1820⁴. In like manner they assault the affections of truth, which make conscience; as soon as they perceive anything of conscience whatever, they form to themselves an affection from the false and infirm things with the man, and through this they darken the light of truth . . . There are few things, and those only the most general ones, which can come to man's conscience, which they delight in destroying more than anything else.

1822. Every interior dictate, even conscience, is nothing but (a kind of internal speech).

1831. That which unites (the Lord and the Church) is conscience, in which are implanted love and charity, wherefore the middle space between the parts (Gen. xv. 10) signifies that with man which is called perception, internal dictate, and conscience; the things which are above perception, dictate, and conscience are the Lord's; those which are below are with man . . .

1832^e. Between spiritual things and the Lord there is no parallelism and correspondence, for they are such things as do not flow in through internal dictate and conscience, as do those which are of love and charity, but through instruction . . . But still they can be so adapted as to serve celestial things for vessels; these are the things which constitute the cloud of the intellectual part, into which the Lord insinuates charity, and thus makes conscience. Examp.

1835². The Lord is continually putting evils and falsities to flight, but this through conscience; which being relaxed there is no medium through which the Lord can flow in; for the Lord's influx with man is through charity into his conscience; but then a new medium succeeds and is formed, which is external, namely, through fear on account of the law, honours, wealth, and reputation thence derived; but these things are not of conscience . . .

1844. The Church exists with those who . . . have conscience . . .

1862. The intermediate space = that which is between the Lord and the Church . . . which is conscience, into which goods and truths have been implanted through charity: when in place of charity there succeed hatreds, and in place of goods and truths evils and falsities, there is no conscience of good and truth, but that intermediate space appears to be filled up as with a furnace of smoke and torches of fire. Sig.

1914². The interiors can perceive what comes forth in the exterior; even they who have conscience are able and are wont to do this, for when anything contrary to the truth of conscience flows into the thought, or into the endeavour of the will, they not only perceive it, but also blame it, nay, they suffer pain at being such . . . 2654^e.

—4. The Fathers of the Ancient Church, who had not perception but conscience, thought from the exterior or natural Rational; but all who are devoid of conscience never think from the Rational, for they have no Rational . . . but they think from the sensuous and corporeal Natural . . .

1919². To illustrate the difference between perception and thought, take conscience. Conscience is a kind of general dictate, thus an obscure one, of those things which flow in through the Heavens from the Lord; the things which flow in present themselves in the interior rational man, and there as in a cloud . . . But thought is distinct from conscience, but flows from conscience, for they who have conscience think and speak according to it, and their thought is scarcely anything but an unfolding of those things which are of conscience . . . Hence it is that those who have conscience are held by the Lord in thinking well about the neighbour, and are withheld from thinking evilly; wherefore conscience is never possible except with those who love the neighbour as themselves, and think well about the truths of faith. From this may be evident what the difference is between conscience and thought.

1935. Interior thought flows in through the internal man into the interior rational, from the Lord, with those who have conscience . . . But they who have no conscience cannot have interior thought, wherefore neither is there any combat with them . . .

1937⁵. This freedom is from the Lord, Who insinuates it into man's conscience . . . Without a proprium acquired through freedom, no man can ever be reformed, because he cannot receive a new will, which is conscience.

1947. Consciences do not suffer themselves to be compelled.

—3. They who have not conscience are utterly ignorant what this freedom is . . .

1983⁴. Sirens study nothing more than to destroy conscience, on the destruction of which they possess the interiors of men, nay, obsess them . . . They who have no conscience are thus obsessed . . .

1994. Charity makes conscience.

2046. Conscience itself is formed through the truths of faith, for conscience is of truth and right . . .

2053². The Lord conjoins Himself with man in these impure truths, for He animates and vivifies them with innocence and charity, and thus forms conscience. The truths of conscience are various, namely, according to everyone's religion . . . In every dogma there are those who are endowed with conscience, which, however, is better in proportion as its truths approach more nearly to the genuine truths of faith. As conscience is formed from truths of faith of this kind, it is evident that it is formed in man's intellectual part . . .

2063⁹. Thus man is conjoined with the Lord, and, through good, that is, through charity, is endowed with conscience, by which he afterwards thinks what is true, and does what is right . . .

2088³. Charity was implanted through truth, and thus (spiritual men) received conscience, according to which they acted, not from the affection of good, but from the affection of truth.

2115°. The gentiles are saved, if . . . they have received anything of conscience according to their religion. 2590.

2144°. In place of perception there succeeded conscience, which also is a kind of perception, for to act against conscience and according to conscience, is nothing else than to perceive thence whether it is so or is not so, and whether it is to be done or not; but the perception of conscience is not from the good which flows in, but from the truth which has been implanted in the Rational from infancy according to what is holy of their worship . . . Hence conscience is a kind of perception, but from such truth; and when charity and innocence are insinuated into it by the Lord, there comes forth the good of that conscience.

2183°. If the Rational then conquers, the Natural is subjugated, and thus man is endowed with conscience; but if the Natural conquers, he can then receive nothing of conscience.

2235. According to conscience . . .

2256°. These are they who have conscience . . .

2325. 'Lot saw'=conscience, namely, of those who are in the good of charity, but in external worship . . . the reason it here=conscience, is that those who have faith have conscience too; the former is inseparable from the latter, and in fact so inseparable, that whether you say faith or conscience is all the same. Ex.

2380°. All those are in the good of charity who have conscience, that is, who will depart nothing from what is just and fair, and from what is good and true, for their own sake, for this is from conscience . . .

—3. On the other hand, those who are in evil have no conscience . . .

2515. There are thoughts from perception, thoughts from conscience, and thoughts from no conscience . . . Thoughts from conscience are lower, and exist with the spiritual, that is, with those who are in the good of charity and of faith as to life and as to doctrine; it is impossible for them to think against conscience, for that would be to think against what is good and true which is dictated to them by the Lord through conscience. But thoughts from no conscience exist with those who inwardly do not suffer themselves to be ruled by good and truth, but by evil and falsity, that is, not by the Lord, but by themselves . . . 2552°.

—e. They who think from conscience think from the affections of good and truth, thus from Heaven.

2632°. When he is regenerate, the Lord flows in through an internal way, that is, through the good of conscience . . .

2708. The spiritual have the dictate of conscience. 2831°.

2754. They entered without conscience . . .

2759. Rustics . . . who had had conscience . . .

2776°. The light of Heaven . . . only reaches those who live in charity, or what is the same, have conscience.

2831°. Conscience is formed from the Knowledges of good and truth derived from parents and masters, and from their own study of the Word . . . Hence men of every doctrine can have conscience, even Gentiles can have what is not unlike conscience . . .

2842°. Internal men, that is, they who have conscience, do not need to confirm anything by an oath . . .

2915. These are the planes with man upon which conscience is founded by the Lord . . .

2928°. The conscience of the spiritual is founded in these truths of faith. Refs.

3175. Without any perception of conscience he would steal . . .

3187°. Then there is a conscience of good and truth therein . . .

3388. It treats of those who are in the doctrinal things of faith, and have no perception of truth from good, but only a conscience of truth from their having been told so by their parents and masters.

3471°. Truths at first gall the conscience . . .

3652°. All reasoning ceases . . . when man . . . thinks and acts from will, thus from conscience . . . 4243°.

3654°. 'The law written in the heart'=conscience of good and truth, and also=conscience.

3747°. There is a third degree of life . . . through which the Lord flows into the rational mind . . . whence man has conscience . . .

3843°. This is evident from conscience . . .

3863°. This internal sight . . . reveals itself with those who are regenerate, especially through conscience.

—e. It is this light which shines in the conscience of those who have faith in Him . . .

3957°. This plane is acquired through charity . . . and this plane is what is called conscience . . .

3993°. If anyone who loves himself above others . . . does what is just and fair from conscience . . .

4015°. This is evident from . . . conscience, which is the acknowledgment of truth from within.

4167. There are two planes with man on which celestial and spiritual things from the Lord are founded; one exterior, and other interior; the planes themselves are nothing else but conscience; without planes, that is, without conscience, nothing spiritual and celestial from the Lord can be fixed . . . wherefore they who are without such a plane, or without conscience, do not know what conscience is . . . The interior plane, or interior conscience, is where genuine good and truth are . . . but the exterior plane is the exterior conscience, and is where what is just and fair are . . . There is also an outermost plane, which also appears like conscience, but is not conscience, namely, to do what is just and fair for the sake of self and the world . . . Through the interior plane, or through the conscience of spiritual good and truth, the Lord rules those who are regenerate; through the exterior plane, or through the conscience of what is just and fair, that is, through the conscience of moral and civil good and truth, the Lord rules those who are not as yet regenerate, but can be regenerated, and also are being regenerated, if not in the life of the body, in the other life; but through the outermost plane which appears like conscience and yet is not conscience, the Lord rules all the rest . . . The first plane, or the conscience of spiritual good and truth, is in the rational man; but the second plane, or the conscience of moral and civil good and truth, that is, of what is just and fair, is in the natural man.

[A.] 4190. The gentiles have a kind of conscience in their obscurity, against which they will not act, in fact some cannot do so . . .

4225. They who have a conscience of what is just and fair are within the Grand Man . . .

4249. Spiritual temptation acts into the conscience, which is of the interior man . . .

4256^e. This is above the sphere of man's perception, as is everything that moves, harasses, and tortures the conscience.

4299. No one can undergo spiritual temptation but he who has conscience, for spiritual temptation is nothing but torture of conscience; consequently, none can be tempted but those who are in spiritual and celestial good, for these have conscience, and the rest have not, and indeed do not know what conscience is. Conscience is a new will and a new understanding from the Lord, thus it is the Lord's presence with man, and this is close to him in proportion as he is in the affection of good or of truth . . .

4317⁵. Hence no perception of good and truth now exists, but in its place conscience with the regenerate, which acknowledges as good and truth that which is learned from parents and masters.

4390. Conscience from the good of truth is called conscience of truth.

4459³. They who are devoid of conscience are all in mere externals, for the internal man manifests itself through conscience; and all those have no conscience who think and do what is true and good, not for their own sake, but for the sake of self . . .

4468^e. He leaves (doctrine) to his faith and conscience.

4627³. Those who were cast down related to the mucus of the nostrils, and were . . . devoid of conscience, thus entirely devoid of interior perception. . . They were entirely unaware what conscience is, and when I said that it is an interior perception of good and truth, and that if one acted against that perception there would be anxiety, they did not understand it.

4799². For acts performed by those who are in sincerity are in the conscience.

4818³. Evil from the falsity of evil is of such a nature as to close up all access to the internal man, so that nothing of conscience can be formed in it . . .

4988⁴. They who do what is good from (hereditary good) do not act from any conscience of what is just and fair, still less of spiritual truth and good; but they who act from (the doctrine of good and truth) act from conscience.

5060^e. They wondered that anyone should have conscience about adulteries . . . and when I spoke to them about conscience, they denied that anyone has con- science. I was told that such are for the most part from the Christian world . . .

5071. 'Everlasting fire' . . . is not the stings of conscience . . . because all who are in evil have no conscience, and they who have had none in the life of the body cannot have any in the other life.

5145⁴. With those who have conscience, as the Spiritual Angels, there are also terminations, but from the second degree, or from the third to the ultimate . . . It is said from the second degree, or the third, because conscience is twofold, interior and exterior; interior conscience is of spiritual good and truth, exterior conscience is of what is just and fair. Conscience itself is an interior plane in which is terminated the influx of Divine good; but they who have no conscience have no interior plane to receive the influx; with these good flows through to the exterior or sensuous Natural, and is there turned into filthy delights. A pain as of conscience sometimes appears to them, but it is not conscience; it is a pain arising from the privation of their delight . . .

—⁵. Consequently, all they who have had conscience are saved, but they who have had none cannot be saved.

5386. To these correspond . . . conscientious feelings in things not necessary . . . As these Spirits oppress the consciences of the simple, they are called the over conscientious: they do not know what true conscience is, for they place conscience in everything that arises . . . 5724.

5393. Without conscience . . . 5718². 8908². D.1282. 3447. 3449. 3600. 3615. 3699. 3700. 3736. 3999. 4083. 4543.

5432⁵. They examine the Word . . . Hence their faith and their conscience.

5476. Stings of conscience thence. Sig.

6207. The influx of the Angels is especially into man's conscience; there is the plane into which they operate; this plane is in man's interiors. Conscience is twofold, interior and exterior . . . The latter conscience exists at this day with many, but interior conscience with few; but still those who enjoy exterior conscience are saved in the other life, for they are such as are inwardly tortured if they act contrary to what is good and true, or to what is just and fair . . . But where these consciences do not exist, there is a very low something which sometimes counterfeits conscience . . . But this conscience is no conscience, because it is of the love of self and of the world . . . They who are in this false conscience do not even know what conscience is . . .

6208. There are many who enjoy natural good hereditarily . . . They cannot be endowed with any conscience, for this comes . . . from the doctrine of truth and good and a life according to it . . . Through these principles they receive conscience, which is the plane into which Heaven flows.

6647^e. But with the man of the Spiritual Church, such as the truth is such is the good, and thence such is the conscience, which to him is as the perception according to which he lives.

7090⁴. In the other life man can be firmly held in the bonds of conscience, but not so much so in the world . . .

7217². They think, what is conscience ?

7233². In place of that perception they have conscience, which is formed from the truth and good which they have acknowledged within their Church . . . 7935.

7280. They who are upright have an internal fear . . . lest they should do anything against conscience, that is, against the truth and good which are of conscience . . .

—². But fear with those who are evil is not any internal fear . . . and thence of conscience . . .

7474². Infestations are not temptations, for temptations are attended with anguish of conscience . . .

7490. In proportion as man is in the loves of self and of the world . . . he does not know what conscience is, and at last does not know that there is such a thing.

7935. The interior perception of truth which is of conscience. Sig.

—^e. This principle of life is called conscience, and is the life of the spiritual man, which is to be valued in proportion as the truths from which he thinks are genuine truths of faith, and as the goods from which he acts are genuine goods of charity.

8002². Through the good of the Church there is formed with man conscience, which is the plane into which the Angels flow, and through which man has consort with them.

So81. Perception from the truth which is of conscience. Sig.

— . It is said from the truth which is of conscience, because the conscience of those who are of the Spiritual Church is a conscience of truth, for it is acquired from the doctrinal things of the Church, which are believed to be truths whether they are truths or not ; but they become of conscience when they also become of life.

8159. Hence the conscience is wounded.

8162. When temptation assails, the conscience is smitten by falsities and evils, thus the internal man is, for conscience is of the internal man . . . Horror arises from the mere influx of falsity and evil with those who have conscience, for conscience is from the truth and good of faith, thus from those things which make the spiritual life.

8457. With the man of the Spiritual Church a new will is formed by good through truth, and it appears with him as conscience, which is a conscience of truth.

8625². This truth with them becomes good, and thence of conscience ; if malignant Genii were to flow into this obscurity, they would destroy conscience in a thousand ways . . .

8849. (The extreme tenderness of conscience with the inhabitants of Jupiter. Des.)

8908². These persons are also without conscience, and do not know that conscience consists in saying that that is just which is just, for no other reason than because it is just . . .

9112. What conscience is shall now be told. Conscience is formed with man from the religion in which he is, according to the reception thereof inwardly. N.130, et seq.

9113. Conscience with the man of the Church is formed through truths of faith from the Word, or from doctrine from the Word, according to the reception of them in the heart ; for when a man knows the truths of faith, apprehends them in his own way, and afterwards wills and does them, he receives conscience . . .

9114. Hence it is that those who have conscience speak what they do speak from the heart, and from the heart do what they do . . . Hence a more perfect conscience can exist with those who are more enlightened than others in the truths of faith, and who are in a clearer perception than others. T.666².

9115. Those have conscience who have received a new will from the Lord ; that very will itself is conscience ; wherefore, to act against conscience is to act against that will. As the good of charity makes the new will, it also makes conscience.

9116. As conscience is formed through the truths of faith (as are also the new will and charity), to act against the truths of faith is to act against conscience.

9117. As faith and charity . . . make the spiritual life . . . to act against conscience is to act against that life.

9118. As, therefore, to act against conscience is to act against the new will, against charity, and against the truths of faith, thus against the life which man has from the Lord, it is evident that man is in the tranquillity of peace, and in internal bliss, when he acts according to conscience ; and that he is in intranquillity and pain when he acts against it ; this pain is what is called the stings of conscience.

9119. Man has a conscience of what is good, and a conscience of what is just ; the conscience of what is good is the conscience of the internal man, and the conscience of what is just is the conscience of the external man ; the conscience of what is good is to do according to the precepts of faith from internal affection ; whereas the conscience of what is just is to do according to civil and moral laws from external affection. They who have a conscience of what is good have also a conscience of what is just ; whereas they who have only a conscience of what is just are in the capacity of receiving a conscience of what is good, and also do receive it when instructed.

9120. (Examples of those who have conscience, and of those who have no conscience.) 9121. T.666².

9122. They who have not received conscience in the world cannot receive conscience in the other life, thus cannot be saved, because they have no plane into which Heaven can flow and operate . . . For conscience is the plane and receptacle of the influx of Heaven.

10124. Charity constitutes his new Voluntary, and faith his new Intellectual, and both constitute conscience.

10296. With the spiritual this new Voluntary is conscience, which is a conscience of truth.

10787^e. They who receive truth first in the memory, then in the understanding, and then at last in the will, are they who are in faith, for they act from faith, which is then called conscience.

H. 299^e. Hence it was evident to me why it is that some who do not know what conscience is, because they have none, ascribe its pain to the stomach.

[H. 299] (a). Refs. to passages on the subject of conscience. N.139.

321. See GENTILE at this ref.

358^e. His thought and will are conscience.

506. All who . . . have acted from conscience . . .

—². But those who have had no conscience . . .

514². Gentiles . . . who have thus acquired a kind of conscience . . .

N. 130. On conscience. Gen.art.

133. Man's spiritual life itself is in true conscience . . . T.666³.

135. Conscience with those who are in charity is conscience of truth, because it is formed through the faith of truth; but with those who are in love to the Lord there is conscience of good, because it is formed through the love of truth; the conscience of the latter is a higher conscience, and is called the perception of truth from good. They who have conscience of truth are of the Spiritual Kingdom, but they who have the higher conscience which is called perception are of the Celestial Kingdom.

W. 361². Who does not know that such a man has conscience? . . . Then the man does not know what conscience is.

—^e. Ask him what conscience is, and he will tell you.

P. 141. No one is reformed in a state of disordered mind . . . Such disordered conditions are melancholy, spurious and false conscience . . .

M. 164. (Conscience one of the spiritual virtues.)

271. Some conscientious persons may be distressed at the idea . . .

I. 18². I am obliged by my conscience to communicate these things.

T. 539^e. Still it does no harm for one burdened in conscience to enumerate his sins in the presence of a minister . . .

665. (Relation concerning what is known on earth about conscience. Four companies, consisting severally of politicians, scholars, physicians, and clergymen, deliver their sentiments in order, from which it appears that not one person in the Christian world knows what conscience is.)

666. The Angel said . . . Regarded in itself, conscience is not a pain, but a spiritual willingness to act according to religion and faith. Hence they who enjoy conscience are in the tranquillity of peace and in internal bliss when they are acting according to conscience, and in a certain disquietude when they are acting against it. But the pain of mind which you have believed to be conscience is not conscience, but temptation . . . which, when spiritual, draws from the spring of conscience . . .

—³. Who does not know from common conversation what conscience is?

—^e. (Four kinds of persons in relation to conscience.)

D. 218. Unless these Spirits enjoyed freedom, the human race . . . would be in constant misery and torment of conscience . . .

544. Their Angels know what he has done from conscience . . .

899. From this lower way into the understanding . . . there is in many a conscience, but this conscience for the most part extends itself only to the actions . . . Thus it is not a true conscience . . . Whereas in the Angels it is so clear that they know . . . that there can be no life without such a conscience of things . . .

1240. These Spirits are such as excite scruples of conscience . . . and thus burden the conscience in things about which it should not be burdened . . . They are called the over conscientious . . . for they place conscience in everything that happens. Examps. 1241. 1242.

1261. (The assassin) confessed that . . . he had been tormented with stings of conscience. 1263, Des. 1266.

2715^e. Not ruled through internal bonds, which are called the bonds of conscience . . .

2801. But for external bonds, conscience would now have little or no effect.

2947^e. Conscience thus dictating, he acts according to faith.

3445. It was said that true conscience has no existence without the Knowledge of faith, but he would have it that mankind are born into a conscience of truth . . . But it was shown . . . that at first man is altogether destitute of conscience, which is born from those things which the man supposes to be true and good; wherefore there exist false consciences, and spurious ones. Examp. . . . Whereas conscience is true when . . .

3446. Thus it is granted by the Lord that man should not know what he has learned, but conscience is what dictates.

3496. As he could be moved by a certain tenderness of conscience . . .

3532. The conscience and perception of good (of the common people). Ex.

3615. This is not to be confounded with conscience.

3677. Otherwise, prayers, etc., merely quiet the conscience . . .

3693. That only is a true conscience which is from heavenly love . . .

3714^e. Everyone may know whether any law of conscience constrains him from this,—that he is unwilling to think this or that because it is evil . . .

3794. The primary bond of conscience is that of marriage . . . 3795.

3811. With such, the bond of conscience is completely loosed . . . —^e.

3847. As these deceitful Spirits . . . have no conscience . . . they wanted to induce on me as a matter of conscience what is indifferent . . . as that I should eat or buy in a certain place, because the people there were upright . . . Thence arise spurious consciences . . . It was given to say that they would be goaded by conscience if they could not perpetrate evil . . . 3937. 3938.

3848. The chief bond of conscience is what relates to the Lord, and thus what proceeds from Him, as marriage love . . .

—^e. Wherefore the bonds of conscience are situated just as are loves. 3937.

3850. With the angelical there are bonds of conscience, which conscience is from the Lord.

3910. That those who have conscience may be amended in the other life.

— They who are in phantasies, and in falsities, provided they have held marriage love sacred, and have had conscience . . . can be amended in the other life, even if they have been obstinate . . . But those who have not had conscience, especially they who have accounted adulteries as nothing . . . appear in the other life to be as it were without any bond, thus without any connection with Heaven. They who have had no conscience in regard to adulteries . . . cannot be amended so as to come among the celestials, except as those who are scarcely self-conscious . . .

3977. When these Knowledges are confirmed, the Lord endows him with conscience, so that he believes without confirmations . . .

3999^e. They thus take away the conscience of what is true and good . . .

4030. They who relate to the mucus of the nose are without conscience ; it was given to perceive something which holds the conscience, but they had nothing of the kind ; they wondered that anyone should have conscience.

4036. Conscience is all that internal sense which is felt when a man acts contrary to good and truth . . . It is also a perception which is given by the Lord ; when there is pain that he should act contrary to good and truth, and when he is touched with contrition so as to as it were shed tears, there is inmost conscience . . .

4038. They who in the life of the body have had no conscience, as adulterers and the cruel, become excrements, and sit like dead stocks, and afterwards serve for such subjects as have but little life. Conscience is not afterwards given them, but those things are taken away by vastations which hinder their being of use.

4039. But they who have acquired conscience in the life of the body . . . in the other life receive far more, yea, infinitely more . . .

4222. How conscience is formed.

4263. He who is in charity and true conscience does all the commandments of the decalogue as from himself, and knows them as from himself . . . Moreover, they who are in charity and conscience know all the Knowledges of faith as it were from themselves . . . All things are in charity ; it follows that so are they in true conscience.

4346. I spoke with one who in the life of the body had had no conscience . . . He said he did not know what conscience is . . . From this he might know what conscience is . . . Hence he perceived what conscience is.

4396^e. Truth natural, moral, and civil is a vessel recipient of the truth of faith, and in it there is a species of conscience.

4409^e. In true marriage love there is the inmost of conscience. De Conj. 41.

4544. They who are without conscience are in such a sleep, because their interiors cannot be more awakened. . . . But with those who have had conscience . . . when external things are taken away, they awake to full wakefulness.

5855. How few know what conscience is. The reason of this.

— Conscience is a pain because one has acted or thought contrary to the Divine commandments.

— He who has not life as an end can never know what conscience is . . .

D. Min. 4545. On order as to conscience.

— The first plane is the inmost of the Rational ; it is of perception, thus of love to the Lord, thus of good and of the truth of good. The second plane is the middle of the Rational, and is of the conscience of good and truth, thus of piety, and is of the Church and the Lord's Kingdom. The third plane is of the conscience of what is just and right, thus of one's employment in civil life, therefore of society and the common good, and is of the lower Rational. The fourth plane is of what is honourable and becoming, thus of conversation, therefore between friends and acquaintances, and is of the corporeal faculty. These planes may be conjoined . . .

4547. There is no conscience without charity . . .

E. 376. This new will which is formed in the understanding is the same as conscience, and conscience is the conscience of truth, because it is formed through truths of every kind which are from the doctrine of the Church and the sense of the letter of the Word.

Conscious. Conscius, Conscire.

A. 9069. Therefore he is not conscious of it . . .

9132. He is guilty . . . because it is done while he is conscious of it ; for what is done from consciousness proceeds from the will and at the same time from the understanding, thus from the whole man.

9140. If he does it from but little consciousness. Sig. . . The reason it = but little consciousness, is that while man is in the pleasure and appetite of the body, he but little consults reason, and thus has but little consciousness.

—^c. 'A beast of burden,' in the Original Language, is said from what is brutish and stupid, thus from what is but little conscious. III.

9165. Concerning which the mind is not conscious Sig.

P. 176². If man were led, with a living perception and sensation of being led, he would not be conscious of life . . .

M. 193². I have heard that this takes place from the wife's love itself, the man not being conscious, and the wife not being conscious.

D. 3910^e. They become . . . as it were hardly self-conscious, like bones. 3912^e.

Consecrate. Consecrare, Sacrare. A. 1664⁴.

M. 308. Marriage is to be consecrated by a priest. 21^e.

T. 503. Consecrated to the worship of all the gods . . .

Consent. Consentire, Consensus.

A. 1394. They are conjoined into Societies according to agreement, and are dissociated according to disagreement.

[A.] 3090. This is evident from the assent, or consent.

—². Hence also marriage, which is consent on both sides; this originates from the marriage of good and truth; there is will on the side of good, and consent on the side of truth; hence conjunction.

3157. The examination of their consent from each faculty, of the will and of the understanding. Sig.

—². Truth is learned, but is not acknowledged . . . unless there is consent from each faculty . . . consent is the acknowledgment itself; through this is effected reception . . .

3158². Consent from the understanding alone is not consent, but all consent is from the will . . .

3161. Consent inspired from the Lord. Sig.

3179. Consent of the affection of truth alone. Sig. and Ex.

—². The truth which is to be initiated to good, itself acknowledges its own good, because good acknowledges its own truth; hence comes consent; but it is consent inspired into truth by good. With man, it never appears that there is any consent on the part of truth when it is being initiated and conjoined with good . . .

3180. Full consent. Sig.

3948. Consent. Sig. 4004.

4453. To make one, thus to agree together. Sig.

4456. 'Dowry'=consent to be one, for the dowry given to a betrothed maiden was a token of consent on both sides. —^e, Ex. 9184.

4464. 'To consent' (Gen.xxxiv.15)=accession.

4484. 'To consent' (ver.22)=to agree.

4490. 'To consent' (ver.23)=to condescend.

4874. 'A signet'=a token of consent. Ex.

6047. All conjunction requires reciprocation, thus consent on both sides.

6203. When man first from consent, then from purpose, and at last from the delight of affection casts himself into evil, the Hell is opened which is in such evil . . .

6513. Solicitation that he would consent. Sig. . . 'The ears'=obedience, here consent, because the king is addressed; obedience is also consent, but is predicated of lower things, and consent of more eminent ones.

6741. Consent by that religiosity. Sig. 6743.

8694³. The revelation enjoyed by those who are in good . . . is a certain consent and approval from within that it is true . . .

8702. Consent from union. Sig. 'To hear the voice'=obedience, but here consent, because it is said by Jethro . . .

9184. A token of consent on his part for a lawful conjunction. Sig.

10416. Festivity of their interiors thence, and consent. Sig. . . The reason consent is also signified, is that all festivity inwardly has consent in it . . .

H. 516^e. Consentaneous-consentaneam—with the good dogmas of their religion . . .

W. 363². There are many things which belong to both love and wisdom, as consent, etc.

P. 81. The evils one believes allowable are appropriated . . . for there is consent.

108. Effects are in the mind's delights and their thoughts when the delights are of the will and the thoughts are of the understanding thence, thus when there is full consent there; for then the effects are of his spirit, and even if they do not come into the act of the body, they are as it were in act when there is consent.

111^e. That consent is deed. Sig.

112. If there is no outlet, concupiscences remain within, and breathe forth delights, and thus drive the man to consent, thus to deed: through the external of thought concupiscences enter the body, wherefore, when there is consent in the external of thought, they are at once in the body.

R. 375. 'Amen'=the consent of all.

M. 21^e. In Heaven, a priest administers betrothals, and hears, receives, confirms, and consecrates consent; consent is the essential of marriage . . .

298. The woman ought to consult her parents, or those who are in the place of parents, and then deliberate with herself, before she consents. Gen.art.

299^e. The reason she ought to deliberate with herself before she consents, is to prevent her from being coupled to an unloved man; for thus there would be no consent on her side, and yet this makes marriage, and initiates her spirit into that love; but unwilling or extorted consent does not initiate the spirit, although it may the body . . .

300. After a declaration of consent, pledges are to be given. Gen.art. . . The reason these gifts are confirmations, is that they are tokens of consent; wherefore, when anything is consented to on both sides, it is said, Give me a token.

—^e. If these presents are made before the act of betrothal . . . they are confirmations and testifications of consent to the betrothal, if after it, to the wedding.

301. Consent is to be established through solemn betrothal. Gen.art.

T. 646^e. The unanimous-consentienter—answer will be . . .

Ad. 634. Everything has been so created and formed by God, that there is an absolute agreement of interior with exterior, and of exterior with interior things . . . Order itself produces this agreement: wherefore perfect order consists in the agreement itself of all things which are in one body, or subject.

D. 158. The intermediate differences, from consent to dissent, are indefinite.

—^e. When there was consent, my mind was restored . . .

979. The least spheres, which, being in agreement . . .

980. They who are in agreement are conjoined into the sphere of a Society . . .

1710^e. In the body there is a consent of all things to uses . . .

3112. (On the agreement of Spirits.) 3494.

3702. The rising of the clouds signified consent . . .

E. 696³. 'If two of you shall agree in My name' (Matt. xviii. 19). 815¹².

Consequence. Consequens.

A. 3854³. Every least movement of man's life has a continuous series of consequences to eternity . . . 6490. D. 2483. 2629. 2714. 3403.

5122^e. What is prior . . . produces series of consequences to eternity . . .

5949. If the eye is in good as its end, the man is in the sight of consequences . . .

H. 205^e. Therefore they with whom truths and goods are conjoined according to the form of Heaven, see consequences in series . . .

Consequence, Of no. See LIGHT=levis.

Conserve. See PRESERVE.

Consider. Considerare.

Consideration. Consideratio.

See DEEM.

A. 1258². He considers them with himself . . .

1854². They only consider death as . . .

2727. How marriages are considered in the Heavens.

S. 2. He who so thinks does not consider that . . .

P. 83. These three things are to be considered . . .

D. 2514^e. Such a one may there be in much greater consideration than a prince . . .

3786. Consider him as nothing.

Consider. Expendere.

A. 1906. Is evident, if he considers . . . 7324^e. H. 14. 402. 432.

6717. The man does not then consider whether it is true . . .

7298². It is given them to think and consider whether it is so . . . —^e.

9730. He does not consider further . . .

T. 343^e. Taken up, examined, and considered . . .

363. To be considered in this order. 512^e.

577³. What is considered, concluded upon, and determined into act.

E. 453¹¹. 'The weigher' (Is. xxxiii. 18)=wisdom.

Consider. Pensitare.

A. 5613^e. When the mind is in doubt, it stops and considers.

8384. The Spirits of Jupiter consider what they will say.

M. 83^e. On hearing this, the man departed, and considered.

Consider. Versare. T. 393². 425. 535. 603. 658⁴. 839.

Consideration. Auctoramentum. A. 6057². W. 336^e. T. 16. 72². —^e. 185⁴. 815².

Consideration. Volutio. A. 9940^e.

Consist, Stand. Consistere.

Consistence. Consistentia.

A. 2418. 'Stay thou not in all the plain' (Gen. xix. 17) = that he should not delay in any of those doctrinal things.

6677. They cannot stay in the presence of the good.

7308. 'Stand to meet him near the bank of the river' (Ex. vii. 15)=influx according to the state. 'To stand to meet'=influx.

7436. 'Stand thou before Pharaoh' (Ex. viii. 20)=the appearance of the Divine to those who are in evils. . . 'To stand before anyone'=presence, here the appearance of the Divine, because Moses was to stand.

7527. 'And they stood before Pharaoh' (Ex. ix. 10)=in the presence of those who are infesting.

7538. 'Rise early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh' (Ex. ix. 13)=the elevation of the attention of those who are infesting through presence.

8172. 'Stand still and see the salvation of Jehovah' (Ex. xiv. 13)=salvation by the Lord alone, and none by them. . . 'To stand still and see'=to have faith.

8598. 'Tomorrow I will stand upon the head of the hill' (Ex. xvii. 9)=conjunction of truth Divine with the good of charity, and influx thence. . . 'To stand'=to be conjoined and to flow in. Ex.

8721. 'Thou mayest endure' (Ex. xviii. 23) = abode with them.

8818. 'And they stood in the lower parts of the mount' (Ex. xix. 17)=far from the good of celestial love.

9500. Consistence and subsistence. Sig.

9501. 'The staves must be in the rings of the ark'=that power is steadfast from the Divine sphere of good and truth.

9543. 'And the table shall be carried with them'=steadfastness thence. . . 'To be carried'=to exist and subsist, thus to consist or be steadfast.

9657. 'The boards shall be twinned below to one ring'=consistence, or steadfastness. 'A ring'=conjunction, here, steadfastness through conjunction.

10606. 'And thou shalt stand before Me there upon the head of the mount' (Ex. xxxiv. 2)=from the inmost Heaven where is the Divine love.

10614. 'And Jehovah descended in a cloud, and stood with him there' (Ex. xxxiv. 5)=the external of the Word in which is the Divine . . . 'To stand with Moses there, when said of Jehovah,=the Divine in it.

H. 41. Heaven consists of innumerable Societies. Gen. art.

169^e. Ideas which consist of such things.

367. The mind consists of two parts . . .

380. Marriage love and its delight consist in this . . .

390^e. In this consists love to the Lord . . .

403. They believed that heavenly happiness consists in an idle life . . . But no happiness ever consists in being quiescent . . .

[H.] 408°. Heaven consists in this . . .

477°. There is extension into heavenly Societies if the reigning love consists of the loves of Heaven, but into infernal Societies if it consists of the loves of Hell.

480°. The ultimate plane consists of . . .

W. 222. Consist of degrees discrete and continuous . . . 226°.

R. 340. 'Who shall be able to stand' (Rev. vi. 17) = that they would not be able to endure.

M. 73. This age would not stand, as iron stands. Sig.

T. 37°. The will and understanding; of these two the mind of everyone consists.

38. In the Church there are two essentials, charity and faith, from which each and all things of it consist.

42°. Perfection of life does not consist in thought . . .

47. The universe consists from perpetual uses . . .

470°. Every man does not actually consist except from such things as are in the earth.

482°. The life of man's spirit consists in his free-will in spiritual things. D. 4325.

510. The communion called the Church consists of as many men as have the Church in them.

679. The consistence or permanence of all things is dependent upon order.

D. 158. An intellectual idea exists and consists from many ideas. Ex.

J. (Post.) 314. Pressures, and thence consistences . . .

Consistent. See under COHERE.

Consistory. Consistorium.

J. 564. They have a kind of Council in place of the Council, or Consistory at Rome . . . D. 4957. 5229.

R. 734. A deliberation in the papal Consistory. Sig.

D. 3662. When the popes are sitting in the Consistory . . . 5841. 5844.

E. 1075. The doctrinal things from the papal Consistory in general. Sig. 1076. 1078. 1080.

C. 78. Various ecclesiastical societies, as Consistories . . .

Consociate. Consociare.

Consociation. Consociatio.

See SOCIETY.

A. 685. There are wonderful consociations in the other life . . .

842°. Those who had consociated themselves are dispersed . . .

1394. There is not the least difference which does not dissociate or consociate.

1398°. Hence it is evident how, in the other life, they are consociated, and how they are dissociated, according to perceptions.

2057°. Through mutual love all (in Heaven) are thus consociated by the Lord.

2228°. Heavenly consociations are according to lives, and never according to the thoughts which are not of the life.

2449°. All things there are most accurately consociated, in the Heavens according to all the differences of love to the Lord and of mutual love, and thence of faith; and in the Hells according to all the differences of cupidities, and thence of phantasies. 3642°.

3982°. Hence is the consociation of man with the Angels (through the Word).

4121. In the other life, all are consociated according to affections, and they who are consociated constitute a brotherhood.

5764. The Societies in Hell are so instituted, that they act all together as one against good, thus are they kept consociated . . . But in the world, the good are consociated with the evil . . .

5807°. The Natural of love is the delight of consociation and conjunction.

7085. Hence it follows, that in the other life all are consociated according to loves . . . They who are in love towards the neighbour and in love to God are consociated in Heaven, and they who are in the love of self and the love of the world are consociated in Hell.

7363. (In Mars) those who agree in disposition are consociated. . . They said that their consociations are delightful . . .

7996. In the statutes which follow, it is indicated who can be consociated, and who cannot. 8001°.

8003. The paschal supper represented the angelic consociations in Heaven . . .

—e. By its being eaten in one house are signified the consociations of concordant goods, so as to make together one good. To eat the passover = to be consociated.

8226. In the Hells there is consociation through evils, as in the Heavens through goods, but the consociation in the Hells is like that of thieves.

8630°. All the consociations in the other life take place according to spheres . . .

8665. Consociation as to the Divine celestial state. Sig.

8682°. The reason the flesh of the sacrifices was to be eaten, was in order that there might be represented . . . consociation through love . . .

87004. It is according to order, that in the other life all are consociated according to the life . . .

8701°. In the other life, all are consociated according to the life of the will, not according to the life of the understanding . . .

8725°. The truths with which good can be conjoined are such as are confirmed and as are also consociated with many others . . .

87644. The wings being erected the one to the other, represented the consociation of all things in the Divine.

9005°. Such is the case with consociations in the Spiritual World.

9079². The goods and truths with man mutually love each other, and according to loves acknowledge each other, and thus consociate together.

9251. No consociation with such. Sig. 9252.

9255. In the other life, all are consociated according to good and thence truth . . .

9438². No one is permitted to speak with Angels and Spirits as a Spirit and Angel, unless he is such that he can be consociated with them as to faith and love; nor can he be consociated unless the faith and love be directed to the Lord . . .

10130³. (In the Spiritual World) all are consociated according to loves; they who are in love to the Lord from the Lord, are consociated in the inmost Heaven; they who are in love towards the neighbour from the Lord, are consociated in the middle Heaven; they who are in the obedience of faith, that is, who do truth for the sake of truth, are consociated in the ultimate Heaven; but they who are in the love of self and of the world . . . are consociated in Hell. H.479. T.569.

10215². Such is the consociation of the Angels with man.

10312. Spirits are consociated and dissociated according to affections and thence thoughts.

H. 36. Those who are in the same Heaven can be consociated with any who are there; yet the delights of consociation are according to the affinities of the good in which they are.

45. Hence it is evident, that good consociates all in the Heavens . . . Yet it is not the Angels who thus consociate themselves together, but the Lord, from Whom is the good . . .

64². Similar are the consociations in the Heavens; they are conjoined there according to uses in a like form.

189. There are also Angels who do not live consociated . . . These are the best of the Angels.

200. On the form of Heaven, according to which are the consociations and communications there. Chap.

205. In Heaven all are consociated according to spiritual affinities, which are those of good and truth in their own order; it is so in a whole Heaven, in each Society, and in each house . . . Similarly consociated are the goods and truths which make wisdom and intelligence with every Angel . . .

304. Man was so created that he might have conjunction with the Lord, but only consociation with the Angels. Ex. R.818^e.

J. 69³. At first, Spirits can be consociated with those who are like them in externals.

S. 62. Through the sense of the letter of the Word there is conjunction with the Lord, and consociation with the Angels. Gen.art. R.851, Sig.

W. 202. They are consociated according to discrete degrees . . .

252. Man is consociated with Angels in Heaven, and at the same time he is consociated with men in the world.

R. 508. Consociation through love and friendship. Sig. 3 F

906². Every man who is in the goods and truths of the Church from the Word is consociated with the Angels of Heaven . . .

910^e. The Church which is a Church from the Word . . . is in consociation with Heaven, and in conjunction with the Lord.

943^e. These two states (of Spirits and men) are consociated solely through correspondences, and consociation through correspondences causes them indeed to be together in affections, but not in thoughts.

M. 50. All in the Heavens are consociated according to the affinities and propinquities of love.

T. 14¹. As to his spirit, every man is consociated with his like in the Spiritual World . . . See 561^e.

137⁸. This is the state of the consociation of Spirits and men. I said, I know that all here are consociated with their like in the natural world. Examps. . . This is the state of the consociation of Spirits and men.

238. This delight of the Angels (in the Word) is communicated to the man, and makes consociation . . . For the sake of this consociation with the Angels . . . the Holy Supper was instituted . . .

347². See COMMUNION at these refs. 607.

365⁴. Sympathies and antipathies are nothing but exhalations of affections . . . All conjunctions and consociations in the Spiritual World are effected according to them.

380³. With every man there is a consociate Spirit . . .

583. His soul then comes into the Spiritual World . . . and is consociated with his like.

597. Through victory over the external man he becomes spiritual, and is then consociated by the Lord with the Angels of Heaven.

D. 4484. On consociations according to affections and cupidities, also appearances and phantasies. D.Min.4732.

4485. After death, souls do not at once come into their own consociations. Ex.

E. 47. Truth is to be consociated with good, and when it is consociated it becomes 'a brother.'

Consolation. See COMFORT.

Consonant. Consonans.

A. 1759. The speech of celestial Spirits cannot easily flow into articulate sounds or words with man, for it cannot be adapted to any word in which there is any harsh sound, or in which there is a hard doubling of consonants . . .

H. 241². The speech of the celestial Angels is devoid of hard consonants, and rarely falls from a consonant to a consonant except through the interposition of a word that begins with a vowel . . .

261. Angelic language has nothing in common with human languages, for the Angels express affections by means of vowels, ideas of thought from affections by means of consonants, and the sense of a thing by the words from them. D.5964.

S. 90². In the third Heaven . . . they do not express any consonants harshly, but softly . . . T.278².

D. 1147. Certain consonants interrupt the flow.
Examp.

1645. That the celestial soften some consonants.

Consort. Consors.

See MARRIED PARTNER.

P. 96³. Understanding is the consort or mate of willing.

193². Each joins to itself its consort . . .

194. These subaltern affections join to themselves consorts, each its own ; the interior affections, consorts which are called perceptions, and the exterior affections, consorts which are called thoughts, and each dwells with its own consort.

206. As no love can exist without its own consort, and the consort of love or the will in man is called the understanding . . .

M. 52^e. As marriage love perfects an Angel, for it unites him with his own consort . . .

59². He then becomes a fuller man, because he is conjoined with his consort . . . They who then love only corporeal natural things . . . cannot be conjoined with their consort as into a one, except as to those externals . . .

71³. I have seen Genii . . . who approached an Angel who was in sweet delight with his consort, become like furies . . .

76⁴. While surveying the city, we saw here and there consorts, in pairs . . .

226^e. Regards his consort as a tiresome old woman.

Conspire. Conspirare.

Conspiracy. Conspiratio.

See PLOT.

A. 589^e. Conspiring with the foul love of self.

1983³. The interiors conspire with the exteriors . . .

5764. In Hell all companions combine together for evil. —.

H. 266². To such wisdom of the Angels, this also conspires . . .

D. 458. In the Heaven of Spirits a conspiracy was made to suffocate me. Gen.art.

2489. Everything therein conspires to evil.

2668. Occurs. 2765. 3072. 5211. 5212. 5426.

Constant. Constans.

Constantcy. Constantia.

Constantly. Constanter.

A. 1259. This so constantly . . .

1276. Their position is constant.

1377. They appear constantly in their own places.

1381. Souls and Spirits who are not yet allotted a constant position in the Grand Man . . .

2311. All words have a spiritual sense . . . and this most constantly.

2333². This correspondence is most constant. 2607. 2712. 4691.

8394. He must then remain constant in good to the end of life.

H. 123. The Angels turn themselves constantly to Him . . . 143².

C. J. 49. These afterwards become more constant than others, so that they may be called constancies . . . T.802^e. D.3513. 3514.

W. 120. In the natural world, these quarters are constant . . . But in the Spiritual World . . . the Sun constantly appears in its own place.

165. In ultimates all things are fixed, stated, and constant.

205^e. As in a solid consisting-constante-of these three degrees . . .

P. 190. Many things are created to be constant, in order that inconstant things may come into existence. Constant things enum.

— . Things various cannot come into existence except in things constant, stated, and certain.

—^c. From the constant and stated things, some natural men . . . find arguments in favour of nature . . .

212. The cause is from the Divine Providence in ultimates, where, through constancies and inconstancies, it deals wonderfully with human sagacity . . .

333⁴. As there is so constant a progression of the Divine Providence in the vegetation and regeneration of trees, it must be constant in the reformation and regeneration of men . . .

M. 100^e. These goods cause the husband to be constantly in the understanding of truth . . .

160. The inclination to unite the man to herself is constant and perpetual with the wife, but inconstant and alternate with the man. Gen.art.

T. 78². Constantly remain there . . .

393. It is a constant truth . . .

D. 4009. From constancies in inmost things there come forth indefinite inconstancies in lowest ones.

E. 136. Constancy in truths. Sig.

Constantly. Perenniter. A.1627.

Constantine. Constantinus. T.137¹⁰. 632. 636. 637. 174².

Constantinople. Constantinopolis.

P. 312². Think of Constantinople, etc.

D. 4658. One who had been a mufti at Constantinople . . .

Doc. 302 II. On a council at Constantinople.

Constellation. Sidus.

A. 530². Remains are like some heavenly constellation . . .

5377². The very constellations correspond ; it is the Societies of Heaven and their abodes with which there is a correspondence of the constellations . . .

8379. They want to induce on their houses an appearance as of the visible heavens with their constellations, for they believe the abodes of the Angels to be there.

8902². 'The stars,' and 'the constellations'=the Knowledges of truth and of good. Refs.

9408². The ancients had no other idea . . . than that the constellations were the abodes of the Angels.

9441. Each star is as a sun in its own place . . .

T. 759². The star of stars.

E. 304⁵. 'The stars of heaven and the constellations thereof shall not give their light' (Is.xiii.10)=the knowledges of truth and good.

401¹². 'The stars' (Is.xiii.10)=Knowledges of good ; the 'constellations,' Knowledges of truth.

Consternation. Consternare, Consternatio.

A. 5881. 'They were terrified at his presence' (Gen. xlv.3)=a moving among them.

8314. 'Then were the dukes of Edom affrighted' (Ex. xv.15)=the like with those who are in a life of evil from self-love.

9327³. 'I will put consternation in their hearts' (Lev. xxvi.16).

9328. The consternation of all falsities. Sig. and Ex.

9330². When they are in Hell they are in terror and consternation at the truths from good in which the Angels are from the Lord.

R. 911. A moving of the mind, and consternation at Divine truths.Sig.

E. 406³. Occurs. 411¹⁸. 650⁶⁴. 727¹⁸. 783³. 811²³.

Constitute. Constituere.

Constitution. Constitutio.

A. 34. Love and faith constitute one and the same thing.

35. The will and the understanding constitute one life.

684. On the Societies which constitute Heaven.

809. The Scientific or the Rational of faith never constitutes the Church or the man of the Church, but charity . . .

978². What constitutes the internal, and what the external man.

1228. The faith from charity, or faith itself which constitutes the internal Church.

1270⁰. The constitution of the sphere in the World of Spirits was meanwhile changed. D.3367.

1276². The Heavens constitute as it were one man.

1366. Which constitute his internal worship . . .

1370. The profanations of them constitute genera and species of idolatries.

1623. Myriads of rays constitute one perceptible general . . .

1718. The things of the body alone constitute the external man . . .

1752⁰. Constitute one angelic Society . . .

2114. All who constitute the Church . . .

3305. There are two things which constitute the Natural, as there are two which constitute the Ratiopal . . . 3314.

5288. 'Let him set him over the land of Egypt' (Gen. xli.33)=which shall order all things in the Natural. Ex.

10125. The men in whom the Church is constitute the Church in general, and the Angels in whom Heaven is constitute Heaven in general ; yet the men regarded in themselves do not constitute the Church, but the Lord with them ; and so the Angels regarded in themselves do not constitute Heaven, but the Lord with them.

10547⁰. All celestial and spiritual things flow into natural and worldly ones, and form and constitute them.

H. 7. The Angels taken together are called Heaven, because they constitute it . . .

146. They who constitute the Celestial . . . They who constitute the Spiritual Kingdom . . .

226. All the preachers are appointed by the Lord . . .

231². They who constitute the arms . . .

308. Constitute the members of that man.

W. 230⁰. These three constitute three degrees of height . . .

333⁰. A steward appointed . . .

T. 497². These two faculties of the internal man constitute his spirit . . .

580. Constitute the Lord's external Church, and the internal Church . . .

593. Both constitute the natural man . . .

D. 1688. On those who constitute the province of . . . 1693⁰. 1710. 1721. 1730. 1736. 1738. 1740. 1741. 1743. 1761. 1791. 1808, etc.

3203. According to their interior constitution.

E. 219. The Heaven which constitutes that Kingdom . . .

331⁸. 'To separate them and set their bounds' (Deut. xxxii.8)=to estrange from falsities, and to endow with truths. 431¹⁰. 724²⁶.

403¹². The Lord's Kingdom is signified by 'the mountain of Jehovah which is established in the head of the mountains' (Mic.iv.1). Ex. 850⁶.

624²¹. 'I have appointed thee a god to Pharaoh' (Ex. vii.1).

666⁴. Occurs.

714⁹. They who constitute the head . . . they who constitute the body, of the dragon . . .

863². 'The appointed time' (Lam.i.15)=its last time, when the Lord will come. 922².

Constriction. Constrictio. D.1944. 3714.

Construct. Construere.

Construction. Constructio.

H. 190. The houses in which the Angels dwell are not constructed like houses in the world . . .

T. 336². In the construction of a garden . . .

611. These construct the first home of his mind . . .

D. 3725. Occurs. 4354.

Consul. Consul. T.141². 418. 459¹².

Consult. Consulere.

Consultation. Consultatio.

A. 233². If the senses, etc., are consulted . . .

949. In that chamber they consult together . . .

2497. (On consulting the Rational.) 2511. 2516. 2519. 2523. 2531. 2551. 2553. 2568².

4441. Consultation from the truths of faith. Sig.

4442. Consultation about the truth of that Church. Sig.

4443. They consulted from their religiosity. Sig.

4454. The consultation of truth from an ancient Divine stock with the good and truth of this religiosity. Sig.

4760. Consultation about Divine truth from scientifics. Sig. and Ex.

4788. That those who were in some truth of simple good consulted scientifics. Sig. and Ex.

5402^o. If he then consults the Word from the affection of knowing truths . . .

5653. Consultation from doctrinal things concerning introduction. Sig.

6377⁴. That the Intellectual would consult scientifics about the arcana of faith. Sig.

6822. He who consults for the Church, consults for . . .

6933. It is a common saying, that . . . everyone should first consult for himself . . .

8686. To consult truth Divine. Sig. 8692. 8694.

8703. 'To counsel' (Ex.xviii.19), when by Divine good, which is represented by Jethro=what is decided by the Divine.

H. 472². The neighbour's good is to be consulted.

Life 72. From love he consults for his country . . .

M. 3. After consultation . . .

298. The woman ought to consult her parents . . .

T. 412². They can consult the good of society, and yet not love the neighbour, like those who consult the good of others for the sake of the world . . .

422. Consults the general prosperity of his people . . . Consults the good of the souls of men . . . Consults the good of society . . . Consults the good of the neighbour . . .

D. 3426. On consultations of Spirits.

E. 684¹¹. To consult-consultare-occurs. 685^e.

Consume. Consumere.

Consumption. Consumptio.

A. 2420. 'Lest thou be consumed' (Gen.xix.17)=if otherwise, it would perish.

5149. That falsity from evil would consume. Sig.

—². It is the falsity of evil which consumes good ; itself is opposed to good, but by itself does not consume goods, but through falsity . . .

6116. 'The silver was consumed from the land of Egypt' (Gen.xlvii.15)=that the true scientific was no longer visible in the Natural and within the Church.

6834. 'The bush was not at all consumed' (Ex.iii.2) . . . Not to be consumed with fire=not to be dissipated by the good of Divine love.

6849. Hence the Lord is so often called a 'consuming fire.' E.504²⁰.

7505. Consumption in general. Sig. . . Here, the consumption of truth. . . The consumption of good. Sig.

7646. The consumption of all things which have anything from truth. Sig. . . The truth not consumed by the former falsity. Sig. . . These are the falsities which consume the most general truths and goods.

8644². He would be consumed in a moment . . . 8760^e. 8816.

9141. The consumption of cohering goods. Sig.

—². By 'to desolate' is here signified the consumption which is effected through cupidities, for these are fires which consume . . .

—³. That consumption through cupidities is meant by this word in the Original Language. Ill.

10431. 'To consume,' when predicated of Jehovah, =to perish by their own evil. Ex. 10439. 10533.

H. 506^o. It would consume all their life.

R. 863. 'Fire came down from God out of Heaven, and consumed them' (Rev.xx.9)=that they perished by the concupiscences of infernal love.

T. 691². The Angels would be consumed . . .

E. 280⁸. Occurs. 304¹⁰. 342⁹. 355²¹. 357²³. 403⁴. 422¹⁵. 569¹⁷. 577⁸. 650¹⁶. 768¹¹. 918³.

340¹⁵. The dissipation of evils and falsities which against the truths and goods of the Church, is signified by, 'thou shalt consume all the people which Jehovah thy God shall deliver thee' (Deut.vii.16).

539⁹. 'They shall consume, into smoke shall they consume away' (Ps.xxxvii.20)=that they will perish through falsities of evil.

555¹⁹. The cupidities of falsity which utterly consume. Sig.

—²⁰. 'The vintage shall be consumed' (Is.xxxii.10) =that the truth of the Church shall be no more.

654⁷⁰. 'Thy posterity shall be consumed by the fire' (Ezek.xxiii.25)=that the rest will perish through earthly loves.

659²¹. 'To be consumed by the sword, or famine'=to be destroyed through falsities and evils.

1100¹⁶. 'To consume the birds of the heavens, and the fishes of the sea' (Zeph.i.3)=to destroy spiritual and natural affection.

Consummate. Consummare.

Consummation. Consummatio.

A. 32. Now is the consummation of the age . . .

34^e. The consummation of the age treated of in the Word. 931². 1843. 1857. 3104. 3448¹⁰. 3488². 3703²³. 3858¹⁴. 3863¹³.

411. 'Vastation' regards the celestial things of faith ;

'desolation,' the spiritual things of faith; then come 'consummation,' and 'excision.'

1311². The arrival of evil at its height is expressed in the Word by its being 'consummated,' for all evil has its limits . . .

1808^c. Celestial and spiritual things, and also Knowledge, are darkened about the time of the consummation of the age, when there is no faith, that is, no charity. Sig. 2495².

1837. The time and state before consummation. Sig. 1843.

—^c. 'Sunset' is the last time of the Church, which is called 'the consummation,' at which time there is no longer any charity.

1839³. In proportion as anyone is in the celestial things of love, is his horror when he perceives the consummation.

1846^c. The consummation of the age, or the last times of the Church. Tr.

1857. 'Because the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet consummated' (Gen.xv.16)=the last time, when there is no longer any good. . . 'Consummation'=the last time, when there is no longer any good.

—³. Evil itself thrusts itself into Hell, and this successively until the evil is consummated . . .

—⁴. Visitation does not come until evil is consummated, that is, until there are no longer any good of charity and truth of faith, which consummation is often treated of in the Prophets. Ill.

1852. 'The sun set'=the extreme time when there is consummation.

2239. That the falsity and evil of self-love had grown even to consummation. Sig.

—^c. When with man there is no longer anything of good and truth within, there are wasting and desolation, thus consummation.

2240⁴. Here the desolation of faith, and consummation, are described by 'a cry.'

2243. 'Whether they have made a consummation according to the cry thereof which is come to Me, and if not, I will know' (Gen.xviii.21)=whether evil has arrived at its height.

—³. What consummation is may be comprehended from the Churches. The Most Ancient Church . . . degenerated . . . until nothing celestial was left, and then was its consummation, which is described by the state of those before the Flood. The Ancient Church . . . so departed from the good of charity that nothing of charity remained . . . and then was its consummation. . . The Hebrew Church . . . in course of time was variously disfigured, and its external worship was turned into idolatry, and then was its consummation. The fourth Church, which was restored among the descendants of Jacob . . . at last so fell away into falsities and evils that every ritual became idolatrous, and then was its consummation. . . The Christian Church . . . has now become of such a character that they do not even know that the fundamental of faith is love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour, and although they say from doctrine that the Lord is the Saviour, that they will rise again, and that there are a Heaven and a Hell, few believe these things . . . therefore its consummation is not far off. Hence it is evident what consummation is, namely, that it is when evil arrives at its height. The case is the same in particular, that is, with each man.

—^c. The state which precedes consummation is described in the Word by 'vastation' and 'desolation,' which are followed by 'visitation.'

2813³. That truth Divine, or the Word as to the internal sense, will be resuscitated in the consummation of the age. Sig.

2905^c. The state of the Church is then called 'decision,' consummation, and 'impletion.'

2909³. The end or consummation of the Church was thus represented.

2910. The Lord calls it 'the consummation of the age,' and 'the night.'

—^c. When the Church is being consummated and is perishing, the Lord always raises up a new one . . .

2913³. It here treats of the resuscitation of the Spiritual Church by the Lord after the former one is fallen away or is consummated.

3353². It here treats of the end of the Church, which is called 'the coming of the Lord,' and 'the consummation of the age.'

3398⁴. Such was the state which is meant by . . . 'the consummation of the age' . . .

—^c. As there is now scarcely any faith, because no charity, thus as it is the consummation of the age . . .

4057. 'The consummation of the age' or 'the last judgment' . . . is the last time of the Church . . . when there are no longer charity and faith . . . The consummation of the first Church is described by the Flood; the consummation of the second Church, by the extirpation of the nations in Canaan, and also by many extirpations and excisions in the Prophets; the consummation of the third Church is not described in the Word, but is foretold, and was the destruction of Jerusalem and the dispersion of the Jews . . .; the fourth consummation is that of the modern Christian Church, which is foretold by the Lord in the Gospels and in the Revelation, and it is now at hand. P.328⁴. T.760.

4059. By the Last Judgment is meant the consummation or vastation of the Church, or its vastation as to charity and faith. 4230.

4231². When these things appear . . . then is the consummation of the Church, that is, the Last Judgment, and the Lord's Advent. Sig.

4333. The rejection of the old Church, and the establishment of the new one is what is meant by 'the consummation of the age,' etc.

—³. As on that occasion the consummation of the age was after the Lord's advent, many things said by the Lord about the consummation of that age are also applicable to that nation . . . But still it is the consummation of the age now at hand which is there specially treated of.

4431^e. With the Hivites, iniquity was not so consummated . . .

[A.]4516^e. Therefore the descendants of Jacob were not admitted into Canaan until the iniquity of the inhabitants of the Land was consummated (Gen.xv.16).

4535. By His 'advent,' or 'the consummation of the age,' is signified the last time of the Church, which in the Word is also called 'the last judgment.'

—³. This last time of the former Church, and the first of the new Church, is what is also called 'the consummation of the age,' and His 'advent,' for then the Lord departs from the former Church, and comes to the new one. Ill.

7933². The Lord's saying that in Him are to be consummated, and have been consummated, all things contained in the Scripture . . .

8902¹². It here treats of the consummation of the age . . . by which is meant the last time of the Church.

9295⁴. The consummation of the age, which is 'the harvest,' is the last state of the Church as to the reception of the truths of faith in good.

10248². 'The consummation of the age' (Matt.xxiv.3) = the last time of the Church, thus its end, when there is no faith because no charity. 'The age' = the duration of the Church from beginning to end. Ill. J.35. 70². M.80.

10622. Toleration even to consummation. Sig.

— . Evil is tolerated by the Lord until it is consummated, or filled.

— . In general, by consummation is meant the end of the Church, and its end is when there are no longer any charity or faith; as the Church then turns itself completely away from the Lord, and is no longer in any good, but in evil, its consummation is spoken of; and then visitation takes place . . .

—². In particular, consummation takes place with a man in almost the same way; for everyone is tolerated among the good when he comes into the other life . . . But after a while his interiors are opened, and if these are evil, he is gradually carried into his evil, until he is his own evil as to the will, and his own falsity as to the understanding, and then evil is said to be consummated with him, and he is cast into Hell.

—³. That 'consummation' = the end of the Church, is evident from the following passages. Ill. T.755, Ill.

L. 16⁶. The Lord then said, 'It is finished.'

P. 328. In course of time every religion decreases and is consummated. Gen.art.

R. 4². By 'the consummation of the age' is meant the last state of the old Church; and by 'the advent of the Lord,' the first state of the new one. 52⁴.

478. 'The mystery of God shall be consummated' (Rev.x.7) = that then shall appear what is foretold in both Testaments. . . 'To be consummated' = to be filled, to have an end, and then to appear. E.612.

—². When there are no good of charity and truth of faith in the Church, its state is called 'consummation,' 'devastation,' 'desolation,' and 'decision.'

519. The exploration and manifestation of the state of the Church after consummation. Sig.

638. 'Because in them is consummated the wrath of God' (Rev.xv.1) = the devastation of the Church, and then its end. E.929.

—². This is the end of the Church which is signified by 'consummation,' and is called 'devastation,' in the following passages. Ex. and Ill.

674a. 'Till the seven plagues of the seven Angels were consummated' (ver.8) = until after devastation, when there is the end of the Church.

676². Devastation and consummation in the Spiritual World are thus effected. Ex.

700². It here treats of the consummation or end of the present Church . . .

704^e. As it is the consummation of the age, that is, the end of 'the old Church, when there are the Lord's advent and the beginning of the new Church . . .

750. 'Until the words of God should be consummated' (Rev.xvii.17) = until all the things which are foretold concerning them should be fulfilled. 'To consume' = to fulfil.

—^e. 'I am with you . . . until the consummation of the age' (Matt.xxviii.20) = until the end of the Church; and then, if they do not approach the Lord Himself, and live according to His commandments, they are left by the Lord, and when left by the Lord they become as pagans who have no religion; and then the Lord is only with those who will be of His New Church. These things are signified by, 'until the words of God shall be consummated,' and by 'even until the consummation of the age.'

844. 'Till the thousand years shall be consummated' (Rev.xx.3) = for some time. 850. 856.

B. 70. The last state of the present Church, when its end comes, is meant by 'the consummation of the age,' and then the Lord's 'advent,' in Matt.xxiv. Gen.art.

T. 4. As the Church established by the Lord through the apostles is at this day so fully consummated that scarcely any remains of it are left . . .

180. Until there does not remain any truth which is not falsified and consummated. Sig.

635. In seven chapters in the Revelation is described the consummation of the present Church.

753. On the consummation of the age, etc. Chap.

— . The consummation of the age is the last time or end of the Church. Gen.art.

— . There have been a number of Churches on this Earth, and in course of time all have been consummated, and after their consummation new Churches have come into existence . . . The consummation of the Church takes place when there remains no Divine truth except what is falsified or rejected; and when there is no genuine truth there can be no genuine good . . . Therefore when truth is consummated in a Church, good is also consummated there; and when this takes place the Church has an end, that is, then is its consummation.

754. The Church is consummated by various means, especially by such things as cause falsity to appear as truth; and when falsity appears to be truth . . . spiritual good no longer exists. . . The reason why truth and good with it are consummated . . .

755°. 'Devastation,' 'desolation,' and 'decision' have a similar signification to 'consummation'; but 'desolation' = the consummation of truth; 'devastation,' the consummation of good; and 'decision,' the full consummation of both. The fulness of time in which the Lord came into the world, and in which He will come, is also 'consummation.'

756. The consummation of the age may be illustrated by various things in the natural world. . .

758°. That the Christian Church as it now is, is so fully consummated and devastated, cannot be seen by those on earth who have confirmed themselves in its falsities. . .

759°. By natural lumen alone it is not recognized that the Church is consummated, that is, that it is in mere falsities, until truth from Heaven beams forth in its own light.

784°. These things can only take place in the consummation of the age. Sig.

D. 4344. (The state of consummation of evil Spirits.) 4452. 4471. 4472. 4475. 5184. 5185. 5198.

E. 36°. The age is now consummated.

47°. 'The consummation of the age' = the last time of the Church. 131⁶. 304⁴⁶. 315²¹. 374°. 397°. 1182³.

175³. 'Nation' = the evil which will consummate it.

313¹². Wherefore it is compared with . . . 'the clusters which are left when the vintage is consummated' (Is. xxiv. 13). 638¹⁸. 919°.

374°. That the Church with that nation has been utterly destroyed is meant by, 'I have heard from the Lord Jehovah of armies a consummation and a decision upon the whole earth' (Is. xxviii. 22). 'A consummation and a decision' = plenary destruction.

397. When evils are consummated, that is, completed. . .

397°. Hence it is evident what is signified by 'consummation' in the following passages. III.

426°. 'The consummation of the age' = the time of the Last Judgment.

486. 'The seventh' = what is full and consummated.

624°. The reason the Last Judgment does not come until there is consummation, that is. . .

624²⁰. 'To consummate transgression and seal up sins' (Dan. ix. 24) = when all in the Church are in falsities of doctrine and in evils as to life.

706¹³. 'The consummation of the age' = the end of the old Church.

761°. 'Consummation' (Dan. xii. 7) = filling up, thus, to the full.

929°. When the Church is such, it is consummated.

957. 'To be consummated' (Rev. xv. 8) = to be finished, here, to be rejected.

1087. 'Until the words of God should be consummated' = to the last state of the Church, when comes the judgment, and afterwards what is new. 'To be consummated' = to have an end.

5 M. On the consummation of the age, etc. Gen.art.

13. The consummation of the age means the consummation of the Church. . . It takes place when there are no longer any truths of faith and goods of charity in any of their own essence, and thus all the ways to Heaven are blocked. This consummation scarcely appears to anyone here, because. . .

14. In this consummation or end of the Church, — This is the Church of God. . . is cried from every pulpit, and they are quite unaware that they are in mere darkness, because they believe falsities to be truths, and truths falsities, and also evils to be goods, and goods evils.

15. That the consummation of the age is the end of the Church, is a visible fact in the Spiritual World. Ex.

Coro. 57. The fourth state of the Jewish Church was the profanation of holy things, and then its consummation, or night. Gen.art.

—. Vastation and consummation differ from each other as do the shade of evening and the thick darkness of night; for vastation is recession from the Church, but consummation is plenary separation from it. The difference illustrated by comparisons.

58. The state of consummation of the Israelitish Church described in the Word. III.

—. 4. The last consummation of the Israelitish and Jewish Church was completed when the Lord. . . cried out upon the cross, 'It is consummated' (John xix. 30).

Inv. III. The New Church is not established except in the consummation of the former one.

12. The desolation of the truth of the Church may be compared to consummations on earth; as that heat and all those times are consummated by winter; that light is consummated by night. . .

Consumption. (The Disease.) See under BREAST, and INFECTION.

Contact. Contactus. A. 1277°. 10023°. T. 56°.

Contagion. Contagio.

Contagious. Contagiosus.

A. 6503. Lest it be infected by any contagion. Sig. . . 'To embalm' = a means of preservation from contagion. . . The means of preserving spiritual good from contagion. Tr.

6666°. All evil is contagious. . . T. 120°.

10130°. This contagion is what is signified by the touch of unclean things.

10134°. Evils grow daily, and in proportion as they grow, one infects another as with a contagion, especially parents their children. . .

P. 215°. From them, the lust of commanding spread as a contagion to many. . .

328°. Hence the contagion of evil. . .

D. 1682. Thus that people was preserved from the contagions of evils. 5016. 5480. 5593.

1787. Had infected others with their contagion. . .

5202. The contagion increased everywhere.

Contain. Continere.

Containant. Continens.

A. 620. The earth is the containant of the soil, and the soil is the containant of the field, as love is the containant of faith, and faith is the containant of the Knowledges of faith which are inseminated.

1322. There is a certain general by which they are kept together . . . but the general which keeps them together is the worship of self.

3100. 'The man wondering at her kept still' (Gen. xxiv.21)=a state of perception as to these things. Ex.

3627. Nothing can be held together in a form except by something else . . . The human body is held together in form by the atmospheres . . .

5120². The cup is the containant, and the wine is what is contained . . . thus the one is meant by the other.

5144^c. 'Baskets' represented containants, and the things in them, the contents.

5146². He supposes that exterior cohere with interior things continuously-continenter.

5212. Scientifics are the containants of natural good, as ears are of corn.

5697. 'He refrained himself' (Gen.xliii.31) = concealment.

5869. 'Joseph could not refrain himself to all who were standing with him' (Gen.xlv.1)=that now all things were prepared for conjunction by the celestial internal.

5882. Truths are the contents, and the Natural is the containant; wherefore, in the internal sense, the containant is now signified, and now the thing contained, according to the series of things.

6115². All scientifics and truths . . . must be placed and contained in a general . . . The most general universal by which all things are held together is the Lord Himself, and that which holds them together is the Divine truth proceeding from Him . . . The more general Societies are those to which correspond the members, organs, and viscera in man, which by a wonderful connection are in such a form, that they mutually regard each other, and thus mutually hold each other together . . . In man, the most general universal which holds together the individual things, is the soul, and also is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord; for this continually flows in . . .

6147. The Natural is what contains, and scientifics are the things contained, hence 'Egypt'=both the containant and the thing contained, that is, both the Natural and what is scientific.

7270⁴. Thus are successives held together in their own order and connection.

7519³. Contained in this verse . . .

8408. 'Pot'=a containant of good, and, in the opposite sense, a containant of evil. Ex. . . The Corporeal and the Natural of man are the containants of good or of evil . . .

8531. Good therein, as much as it may contain. Sig.

8540. The containant takes this signification from the thing contained.

9471. The external truths and goods by which they are held together. Sig.

—^c. All external things hold together internal ones . . .

9499. Divine good conjoined with Divine truth, which is the ultimate, terminant, concludent, and containant of Heaven, is like the atmosphere . . . which holds together the whole surface of the body in its connection.

9824. That which is outermost not only holds together the interior things . . .

—². What is external holds together all interior things in their own order, and in their form and connection . . .

—³. In proportion as doing contains in it what man thinks and wills, interior things are held together in their form and connection . . .

9895. The external colligament by which all things are held together in connection and form. Sig.

—^c. Those things which are lowest, or ultimate, hold together the higher or interior things in connection and in form.

10177. The altar has a similar signification to that which is upon it, for the altar is the containant, and that which is upon it is the thing contained, and the containant and the thing contained make one thing, as the table and the bread which is upon it, the cup and the wine which is in it.

H. 297. The Lord Himself flows in with every man according to the form of Heaven . . . and thus holds together in connection each and all things with him . . .

476. Deeds or works contain in themselves all things of man's love and faith.

N. 279⁴. The Lord rules the primes and ultimates of order, primes from ultimates, and ultimates from primes, and thus holds all things together in connection and in order. Refs.

S. 27. See BASIS at these refs. 34. W.209. 212. 213. 221.

31^c. Hence the sense of the letter is the containant.

33. The roof and walls, which are its containants . . .

W. 58^c. Being reagents, they are containants.

176. See ATMOSPHERE at these refs. 183. 296. 299. 316⁴.

200. As spiritual heat is the containant of love, and spiritual light the containant of wisdom . . .

257^c. The Natural is the containing ultimate.

260. As the natural mind is the covering and the containant of the higher degrees of the human mind, it is a reagent . . .

297. It follows that use is the containant of wisdom and of love. 299.

P. 220². After death, man retains the purer things of nature which are nearest to spiritual things, and these are then his containants.

R. 395. In the Word, the containant=the same as the thing contained . . . 406. 672.

M. 2. The earth which was adjacent to me.

— Upon this adjacent earth . . .

266^o. The whole Heaven is nothing but a containant of uses from primes to ultimates: what is use but the actual love of the neighbour? and what holds the Heavens together but this love?

380¹¹. The things which proceed from the sun of the world are the containants of life, and are called natural things.

T. 614. Man is withheld from evil and kept in good by the Lord.

711. The Holy Supper universally and singularly contains all things of the Church, and all things of Heaven. Gen.art.

778^e. The Lord is Divine love and Divine wisdom . . . the human form is their containant.

779. This now continually—continenter—for many years.

E. 483⁸. 'Broken cisterns, that can hold no waters' (Jer.ii.13)=doctrinal things from their Own intelligence in which there are no truths. 537¹³.

Contaminate. Contaminare.

Contamination. Contaminatio.

A. 1066. 'The earth is defiled under its inhabitants' (Is.xxiv.5).

1071^e. They who pervert and contaminate the holy and true things of faith by wanting to investigate them through knowledges and reasonings. Sig.

1106. So long as they are in falsity they cannot be intromitted into heavenly Societies, for they would thereby contaminate them.

1667². They are not goods so long as hereditary evil contaminates them . . .

2045³. The influx of celestial love from the Lord is then continually . . . contaminated . . .

2056. When 'uncircumcised' is joined to anything, it = the obscuring and contamination thereof.

6350. To contaminate spiritual good by profaning it. Sig.

H. 390(u). A judge who punishes the evil . . . lest the good be contaminated . . .

R. 97³. The good he then does is spurious good, which is inwardly contaminated by his evils.

M. 102^e. Lasciviousnesses, which contaminate his marriage love.

146. Man's Natural is from birth contaminated with evils . . .

D. 4395. Thus to contaminate society . . .

4749. He was not allowed to contaminate his internal.

Contemn. Contemnere.

Contempt. Contemptus.

A. 950. They had contemned all Divine worship.

952^e. As he had despised others in comparison with himself, he became blacker than others.

1080. With those who are in no charity, there is continuous contempt for others . . .

1507. Not despising others in comparison with himself . . .

1878. There are those who in the life of the body have contemned the Word . . . 5719.

2027³. At heart they had despised others in comparison with themselves . . .

2045². They who love themselves either despise, vituperate, or hate all those who are not subservient to them.

2057^e. Those are in self-love who despise others in comparison with themselves . . . 2219^e. 2273. 2327³. 7370. 8318. 9976.

2122. They who come from the Christian world . . . utterly despise all things which are of charity and faith. 3489. —².

2216. In laughter . . . there is for the most part something of contempt, which, although it does not appear, still lurks there . . .

2261³. Those can never have of the Lord's life who . . . despise others in comparison with themselves . . .

2354². All those deny the Lord's Divine Human and Holy proceeding who are in the life of evil, that is, all those who despise others in comparison with themselves . . .

2380^e. It is suggested to them . . . that they are more meritorious than others, whom they despise in comparison with themselves . . .

2468². Such a religiosity falls into those who are in natural good, but who despise others in comparison with themselves.

2910². Under these loves, hatred against the neighbour hides itself, which is such that . . . when their loves are attacked, they store up in their disposition contempt against that neighbour . . .

3318³. Temptations take away those things which are . . . of contempt for others in comparison with ourselves . . .

3322⁷. They who turn from good by utterly despising truth. Sig. —⁹.

—¹⁰. 'With contempt of soul' (Ezek.xxxvi.5).

3336. 'Esau despised his birthright' (Gen.xxv.34)= that at present the good of life made nothing of the priority.

3906. Good from proprium has in it . . . contempt for others.

3951². When they renounce worldly things, they expose themselves to contempt . . .

3956. Meritoriousness . . . conjoins itself with . . . contempt for others. 3994². 9976.

3993⁸. The evils and falsities with which goods and truths cannot be mingled . . . are hatreds, revenges, cruelties, and thence contempt for others in comparison with ourselves . . .

4067³. He who despises others, attaches to himself like Spirits.

4221. Whatever good he had done to the neighbour he had done for the sake of himself, all others he had despised. (The state and lot of such.)

[A.]4293². At this day, as formerly, the Jews despise all others in comparison with themselves.

4464². If his life has been only in external things, as in pleasures from . . . self-eminence and consequent contempt for others . . . the spiritual sphere which encompasses him is shocking . . .

4463². He who in the life of the body has despised others in comparison with himself, in the other life also despises others in comparison with himself.

4681. 'They hated him'=contempt for the Divine truth represented by Joseph. Ex.

4750⁵. These are the interior things of self-love; its exterior things are contempt for others in comparison with ourselves . . .

4898. 'Lest we be a contempt' (Gen.xxxviii.23)=disgrace.

4949. Such are they who have despised others in comparison with themselves . . . (See under OTHER.)

5186. They who constitute the province of the gall bladder . . . are they who in the life of the body have despised what is upright and pious. 5187.

5758^e. He loves himself above all others, whom he thus despises, if not with the mouth, with the heart.

5786². Hence it is, that such utterly despise . . . the things of Heaven.

5993². As everything of man's life from the proprium is of the love of self and of the world, thus is contempt for others in comparison with ourselves . . .

6203^e. (How contempt for others grows.)

6390^e. Contempt from those who are in the good of charity. Sig.

7272². From these principles he lives . . . in contempt for others . . .

7643. Hence come . . . contempt for others . . .

8480³. Good from man exists with those who . . . despise the neighbour in comparison with themselves.

8678. They who want to exercise command over others, despise others in comparison with themselves . . .

9210⁴. They not only despise the neighbour, but also hate him if he does not make one with themselves.

9450. The signs that their sins are not forgiven are . . . they despise others in comparison with themselves . . .

H. 587². In the worst Hells are they who have been in self-love, and consequently in contempt for others . . .

S. 1. They may easily fall into contempt for the Word . . .

P. 216. When the natural man sees . . . that the good are in contempt and in poverty . . .

217⁶. Such are in Hell . . . in contempt and misery . . .

250. When he sees the worshippers of God in contempt and poverty . . .

279³. They begin to glory that they are not such sinners as others, which can hardly be separated from . . . a certain contempt for others in comparison with themselves . . .

M. 336. From spiritual cold in marriages there is dis-union of souls and disjunction of minds, whence come indifference, discord, contempt . . .

T. 405². The evils which are with those who are in the love of dominion from self-love, in general are, contempt for others . . . and where there are such evils, there is also contempt for God and Divine things . . .

411. To love the neighbour as one's self, is not to despise him in comparison with self . . .

D. 1249. All others appear to them as . . . contemptible-contemptibles.

1378. The same Spirit greatly despised others in comparison with himself . . . 2684. 2777. 3113. 3732. 3736. D.Min.4549.

4347. On contempt and hatred . . . Such contempt is of no account when not from self-love, as despising others in comparison with ourselves, and from hatred. These are the contempts which condemn in the other life; but it does not condemn to despise others because they are not clever . . . for this cannot but be with all men, because they live in society, and one ought to think about the quality of another . . . Such contempt, although false . . . does no harm in the other life, being easily dissipated when one is in love and charity . . . Such have been many of my acquaintances who have despised me, and whom I have despised, not in comparison with myself . . . nor from hatred . . . It is the contempt of hatred when anyone wants to take away the honours, goods, or life of another; and to despise others in comparison with one's self, is when anyone regards others as nothing in comparison with himself, [for then] the contempt is of self-love. 4384.

4662. (The Hell of those who) have despised others in comparison with themselves.

4746. They who as to the external life have appeared proud, and despisers-contemptores-of the neighbour, and yet have been right and guiltless as to the internal life, come into Heaven. 4749, Examp.

Contend. Contendere.

Contention. Contentio.

A. 1577. 'Let there be no contention between me and thee' (Gen.xiii.8)=no discord between them. —^e.

1951. Continual contentions in the things of faith. Sig.

1958. 'Kadesh'=contentions about truths.

3427. 'He called the name of the well Ezek, because they contended with him' (Gen.xxvi.20)=denial on account of these things . . . To quarrel, or 'contend'=to deny . . . By 'Ezek,' or contention, is signified the denial of the internal sense of the Word. 3428.

4287. 'Because as a prince thou hast contended with God and with men, and thou hast prevailed' (Gen.xxii.28)=continual victories in combats as to truths and goods. 'To contend as a prince'=to conquer in combats.

4317². 'To contend with God,' in the historical sense, =to be urgent that there might be the representative of a Church with them.

5963. 'See that ye fall not out in the way' (Gen.xlv.24)=that they are in tranquillity.

8588. 'Meribah' means contention or chiding.

9024. Contention among themselves about truths. Sig.

9041. Grievous contention among truths. Sig.

R. 117. That the Lord would contend with them from the Word. Sig.

700². Its contentions with those who will be of the New Church. Sig.

D. 1347. Live in almost continual contentions . . .

E. 644²⁵. Contentions about truths. Sig.

Content. Contentus.

A. 132. As the man was such that he was not content to be led by the Lord . . . Tr.

138. 'Alone' = that he was not content to be led by the Lord . . .

1675⁹. Hence come the insanities of not being content with their lot . . .

3460. That they were content. Sig.

3938⁷. To be content in God. Des.

4981. Hence, in the external sense, 'the blessing of Jehovah,' relatively to man's state in the world, = to be content in God, and consequently to be content with the state of honour and of wealth in which he is, whether he is among the honoured and rich, or among the less honoured and the poor; for he who is content in God, regards honours and riches as means of uses, and when he thinks about them, and at the same time about eternal life, he makes the former nothing, and the latter the essential.

5051⁶. There is heavenly marriage love when a man lives content in the Lord with his partner whom he tenderly loves, and with his children; thus in the world he has interior pleasantness, and in the other life heavenly joy.

6393². They who want a reward for their works are never content . . .

6408. Here, the blessedness of the affections can only flow in obscurely, merely as tranquillity from being content in disposition . . .

7364. Everyone (in Mars) lives content with his goods.

8118. All the most ancients were content with their goods.

8478³. Those have care for the morrow who are not content with their lot . . .

8717⁶. To these He gives to be glad with a few things in time, in place of honours and riches, and to be more content than the rich and honoured.

8865³. That which reigns universally is the being of everyone's life; all man's cheerfulness and content are thence, even when he is thinking about other things.

9103. The good of charity in the interior man is the good of spiritual life . . . It does not come to sensation, but to the perception that so it ought to be, and it makes the disposition content.

10160. What more do we need, they say (in the second Earth), than to have food and clothing, and so dwell content and quiet.

H. 278². They who are in a state of innocence . . . live content with their own, whether it be little or much, because they know that they receive as much as is profitable for them . . .

284⁶. I can describe the peace of Heaven . . . but only relatively to that rest of mind which those enjoy who are content in God.

288⁶. Heavenly peace also exists with men who are in wisdom from the conjunction of good and truth, and who consequently perceive themselves to be content in God . . .

364. Among the poor there are very many who are not content with their lot . . . But it is otherwise with the poor who are content with their lot.

P. 250². Those who are in the least dignity can be in a greater degree of happiness when it is well with them and they are content with their lot.

D. 2513. Spirits and men would enjoy the highest joy . . . if each one were content with his lot. Ex. 2516. 2518. 2611. 4560⁶. 4644. See 5219.

5790¹. (The good are known there by their being content with their lot.)

Context. Contextus.

A. 1143⁶. They who keep the mind in the historical context . . .

Contexture. Contextura. W. 18². 370.

Contiguity. Contiguitas.

Contiguous. Contiguus.

W. 56. Not by continuity, but by contiguity . . .

291². These substances, contiguous to his body . . .

P. 57⁶. What is living in a man or Angel is from the proceeding Divine conjoined with him by contiguity, which appears to him as his own.

R. 55⁶. The Lord's presence with man is adjunction, thus conjunction by contiguity, and this contiguity is nearer and fuller as man loves the Lord . . .

Contingency. See HAPPEN.

Continual. Jugis.

Continually. Jugiter.

See CONTAIN, at A. 5146. T. 779.

A. 9904. 'For a memorial before Jehovah continually' (Ex. xxviii. 29) = from merey to eternity.

9909. 'Upon his heart before Jehovah continually' (ver. 30) = perpetually shining forth from good. . . Continually = perpetually.

9939. 'It shall be upon the forehead of Aaron continually' (ver. 38) = a representative of the Lord's love to eternity . . . 'Continually' = to eternity. Ex.

10042¹. By 'the Continual-juge' - is signified in special the daily sacrifice, and in all general, worship. 10133. —². 10143. 10203.

E. 391². 'The Continual,' in the Word, = all representative worship.

Continue. Continuare.

Continuation. Continuatio.

Continually. Continue, Continuo.

Continuous. Continuus.

See under DEGREE.

A. 64^e. Continued to the time of Abram . . .

70^e. Death is a continuation of life. 448. 1854. 2119.
P. 277a. R. 533².

390. They are in continuous terror . . .

553. To eternity, with continuous increments . . .

681^e. From the continuous experience of years . . .
1931^e.

760. Through continuous pleasures . . .

761. The Angels continually defend man . . .

851. There are continuous other things in the internal sense.

986. Continually predominate . . .

1047. It continually infuses . . .

1321². A continuous reflection upon self . . .

1392^e. The communications of happiness are such continuous transmissions . . .

1532. They are continuous representatives . . .

1623. The whole atmosphere appears continuous of very small rainbows.

1643². Through continuous series . . . 4442^e.

1666². In the eupidity itself there is the continuity of that love.

1678. Continuation. Sig. 7219.

1690². The Lord's continuous temptations.

2633. A beginning and continuity. Sig.

3325⁸. 'The eighth day' = continuity from a new beginning, namely, the continuity of love.

3938^e. This continuity of love is what is called affection, and is that continuity which reigns in man's life . . .

4247. Good continually flows in. Sig. —². —. 5828².

—². As good continually flows in, it produces the affection of truth; for the affection of truth is from no other source than the Divine good with continuous endeavour to flow in.

4495. 'The third day' = what is complete from beginning to end, thus also, what is continuous.

4525. Without correspondence, nothing would be continuous from the beginning of life, thus from the Lord, thus it would be disconnected . . .

4622⁴. He found that the death of his body had been the continuation of the life of his spirit.

4987. In the Original Language, one series is not distinguished from another by interstitial signs . . . but it appears as continuous from beginning to end; the things in the internal sense are similarly continuous . . .

5006⁴. There, man's life in the world is exactly continued, and is such as it had been in the world.

5130. He who is in faith, is continually in the recollection of the Lord. Ex.

5828³. When there is efflux, there is continuous influx from Heaven . . .

6054. The life after death is a continuation of the life in the world.

6076. What is continuous of perception. Sig.

6278. Continually. Sig.

6465². He who conceives exterior and interior things as being continually purer, and thus cohering through continuity . . . supposes that on account of the coherence and continuity—continuitatem—the one dies when the other dies . . .

6484. He continued there his former life, as all do.

6599. Thought appears to man as continuous . . .

7191. Angelic discourse is continuous. Ex.

8054². It ought to be everywhere filled up with Spirits, in order that there may be what is continuous from the Lord down to man, for if it is discontinuous, man would perish.

—³. The continuous endeavour of evil Spirits . . .

8397. What is successive and continuous. Sig.

8399. What is continuous, and the quality. Sig.

8458². Good is there presented in a continuous quantity, thus not as much or little; for good is there presented as round, which is continuous in form.

8603². Interior do not cohere with exterior things through continuity; but are distinct . . .

9838. Similar and continuous from the external of the Spiritual Kingdom. Sig. . . 'From it' = what is continuous; for that which is from another thing is not only similar to it, but is also continuous from it.

9926^e. The instruments which give out a continuous sound = Divine celestial truths.

H. 38. Interior and exterior things are not circumstanced continuously, but discretely.

— . Continuous degrees. Ex. W. 184. I. 16.

147. They see him out of themselves, because there is continuity.

196. This happens because there is continuity, and in what is continuous there appears no distance except from those things which are not continuous.

241. The speech of the celestial Angels is therefore . . . soft, and as it were continuous . . .

522. The Divine mercy . . . is also continuous with every man . . .

570. Cupidity is love in its continuity, for what a man loves he continually desires.

W. 55². But still that which is created in God by God is not continuous from Him . . . If in created things there were any being in itself, it would be continuous from God, and what is continuous from God is God.

56. Every created thing is, from this origin, of such a nature as to be a recipient of God, not by continuity, but by contiguity . . .

88. Influx takes place through correspondences, and cannot do so through continuity.

90². In that World man lives so separated from nature, that there is not any communication through continuity, that is, as of purer and grosser, but as prior and posterior . . .

161^e. In the Spiritual World there are continual light and continual heat.

172. In a continuous series from the First . . .

185^e. An induction continuous with effects: yet causes do not produce effects by continuity, but by discreteness . . .

218². The conjunction of degrees of height is not by continuity . . . but by correspondences.

219². These three things (the mind, the forces in the body, and the body itself) do not act through continuity, but through discreteness, which is to act through correspondences.

236. It might then be supposed that love and wisdom with man increase only by continuity.

237. The natural degree increases with man by continuity according to knowledges . . . The spiritual degree, in like manner, may increase by degrees to the summit of its continuity . . .

238^e. Therefore the differences of love, wisdom, and use, as to these degrees, are such that they have no community with each other through any continuity.

240². These two faculties . . . are continually from the Lord.

256. Regarded in itself, the natural degree of the mind is continuous. Gen. art.

—². This light is received by continuity by the natural degree . . .

257⁴. The elevation of the natural mind is effected by continuity . . .

258. The human understanding rising up by continuity around the two higher degrees, receives the light of the wisdom of those degrees . . .

285^e. As the Divine is not in space, neither is it continuous, as is the inmost of nature.

305. They have brought by continuation from the substance of the spiritual Sun that which was there from the Divine . . . From this sphere, by continuation from the Sun by means of the atmospheres, have arisen the substances and matters from which earths exist.

310². This endeavour is afterwards continuous from earths . . .

313. From their continual evaporations . . .

340. There is a continuous influx from the Spiritual World into the natural. Gen. art.

346². Every discrete degree . . . decreases as light to shade, through continuity . . .

432^e. In this primitive there is a continual striving after the human form.

P. 32². He may enlarge this degree by continuity . . .

34². The spiritual degree of wisdom is not continued with the natural degree by continuity, but is conjoined with it by correspondences . . . The celestial degree of wisdom is not continued with the spiritual one by continuity, but is conjoined with it by correspondences.

41. The Natural does not communicate with the Spiritual by continuity, but by correspondences.

67. It is the Continuous of the Divine Providence . . . 123.

285. As these two faculties are perpetual, and continuous from primes to ultimates . . .

296⁷. The Divine Providence with the evil is the continual permission of evil, to the end that there may be a continual withdrawal from it. Ex.

—⁸. The Divine Providence is also continual in this . . . This is the Continuous of the Divine Providence with the evil . . .

R. 186. The Continuation concerning the Last Judgment.

875⁸. Will . . . is a continuous effort to act.

M. 183⁵. Fructifications, etc., are continuations of creation.

185². The changes which take place in man's internals are more perfectly continuous than those which take place in his externals . . .

T. 40. Life . . . continually flows in.

41². The Lord continually operates the conjunction of love and wisdom with man; but unless man looks to the Lord . . . he continually operates their division. —³.

70². God is omnipresent by a continual struggle with them, and by a continual effort to reduce them into order.

74³. God . . . continually acts into man . . .

78⁴. Creation is continuous in our World . . .

132³. Falsities in a continuous series . . .

159². A column of light continuous to that place . . .

166. In a continuous series' . . . 679.

335⁷. By continual suction in the womb . . .

423. It is continually seated in his mind . . .

439. The continual looking to reward . . .

500². His absolute power, and its irresistible operation, which is continual for man's salvation.

508⁵. Its doctrinal things are continuous truths from the Lord . . .

577. The Lord is continually in the act of regenerating man, because he is continually in the act of saving him.

591. Like the tail of a peacock . . . which is continued to its soles, without cohering with them.

596^e. Then regeneration is continued . . .

652³. The sphere . . . which continually proceeds from the Lord . . .

695⁶. By their continuous appearance . . .

760. The third Church . . . was continued through the Word written by Moses and the prophets.

773. The salvation of men . . . is thus a continuation of creation . . .

816. From the continual inspections and travellings of their minds . . .

D. 4226°. Until he is endowed with such continuity.

E. 747°. The continuous influx of falsity from them.

Sig.

Contract. Contrahere.

Contraction. Contractio.

A. 957. They who in the life of the body have contracted . . . H. 527.

1507. He had contracted a sphere of supereminence and authority.

1514. Had thence contracted a nature . . . D. 2169.

4799°. The face of these is contracted. H. 553.

5388°. He injected a contraction or painful straitness in the lower region of the belly.

8247°. Their face is thence contracted from within, lest anything of thought should shine out. . . It is kept ready either to let out or contract . . .

8250. The internal form of the face contracted itself . . .

10492°. Aversion is excited, and from it contraction is perceived.

H. 458. Hypocrites have contracted the habit . . .

W. 254. As the fibril of a nerve contracts itself . . .

P. 319. The dilatations and contractions (of the heart and lungs).

M. 49. Marriages are contracted . . . 274.

292. They had contracted a terrible fear of their wives.

318. Again to contract matrimony . . . 319. 320.

D. 2457. Evil acquired or contracted by actuality. 3699.

3257. He introduced a kind of contraction and pain.

4116. Contracted from the Knowledges of things . . .

4329. They contract fear and horror.

4468°. Thence they had contracted this nature.

4778. I felt a contraction and pain in the chest.

Contradict. Contradicere.

Contradiction. Contradictio.

Contradictory. Contradictorius.

A. 3750°. When he was contradicted . . . there was something turning and creeping in the abdomen. D. 3662.

4720°. That open contradictions may be reconciled . . .

5082°. That no contradiction appear.

9025°. Hence there often appear contradictions (in the Word).

10659°. Light from Heaven cannot enter where there reigns such a shade from contradictory things.

S. 51. Some things appear as contradictions, when yet in the Word, regarded in its own light, there is no contradiction. Examps.

W. 55. Is utterly contradictory. P. 95. 219°.

283. To make something out of nothing is contradic- tory, and that which is contradictory is against the light of truth which is from the Divine wisdom, and whatever is not from the Divine wisdom is not from the Divine omnipotence.

P. 287°. Appears as if it were contradictory, but still is not so.

326°. To acknowledge God and do what is evil is contradictory; also to do what is good and not to acknowledge God . . .

R. 839¹³. They were not allowed to contradict the Word.

T. 74°. Limited omnipotence is a contradiction.

132°. It is a contradiction to say . . .

172°. Who does not see the contradiction? 393°.

485°. On the contradictions, etc., of modern faith . . .

651. Would be contradictory . . .

796°. When anyone contradicts (this persuasion), he not only attacks the matter in question, but also the person.

D. 1964. Spirits who, from their life in the body, have acquired the delight of contradicting.

2361. On Societies, that therein are also such as contradict or dissent from them.

2362. I have continually observed the contradictory things of Spirits, for without contradictories there is no limited sphere.

2383. They then contradict . . .

3486. He was angry with him because he had contradicted him.

3515. They resist in silence, without any open contradiction.

3592. Almost everything the eye sees is a contradictory object . . .

5103°. Luther said that his words cannot be contradicted.

5104. A place where there are continual contradictions.

Contrariwise. Vicissim. A. 3607. T. 485, etc.

Contrary. Contrarius, Contrariare.

Contrariety. Contrarietas.

See under AGAINST.

A. 1366. They can hardly be brought to receive the truths which are contrary to their falsities.

3425°. When, therefore, it treats in the Word of those things which are contrary to the Divine . . .

3993°. The evils and falsities with which goods and truths cannot be mingled, are those which are contrary to love to God and to love towards the neighbour.

4968°. The historicals are not contrary to each other.

5427°. If there is contrariety (between the exterior and the interior man) . . .

6052. The cause of abomination is that they are contrary to their principles and loves . . .

6144°. Through desolations and temptations are perceived the states contrary to heavenly life . . . The sense and perception of happiness only come from the relation to contraries.

6309^e. Things of the light of Heaven become darkness when they fall into those which are of the light of the world, for in themselves they are contrary; in order for them not to be contrary, man is regenerated . . .

7812. There are Spirits who persuade contraries . . .

—^e. The quality of good is known from its contrary: all perception of a thing is according to reflection relative to the differences from contraries . . .

H. 299. If the affection is contrary to the man's affection . . .

344. How contrary is the education of children now . . .

M. 425. Opposites have no relation among each other, but are contraries; relatives are between the greatest and least of the same thing; but contraries are, from opposition, against them, and among themselves are relatives . . .

444⁴. You will see that the things which are said are turned into the contraries . . .

T. 172². Two things which are contrary to each other . . .

D. 2168. Such Spirits are wont to think contraries . . .

2417^e. Thus mercy is turned into the contrary with Spirits of such a nature.

3175. There are two contraries in man and Spirit. Ex.

3591. Contrary things would continually confound them: wherefore it is of the Lord's Providence that one finds so many contraries in every particular . . . that, being confounded by so many contraries, they may remain in universal truths . . .

3592. There are, moreover, indefinite contrary objects which induce falsities.

4772. Where there is enlightenment there must be a view of contraries.

Contrast. See PICTURE.

Contribute. Contribuere.

See under BRING TOGETHER, and MAKE.

A. 1285^e. Which contribute to the perfection of the whole.

6148². Man contributes nothing to it . . .

7290³. Miracles contribute nothing to faith . . .

D. 2020. All contributed something to the thoughts . . . 2670.

Contribution. Sparta. Sporta (?).

H. 392. Every Angel has his special charge.

P. 83⁴. Make contributions to hospitals. T. 425. 459⁸. C. 162. 185.

M. 210^e. Draws its contributions . . .

T. 154. Each took of it a measure according to . . .

Contrite. Contritus.

Contrition. Contritio.

A. 3318⁴. (How man becomes contrite in heart.)

3994. Hence it is that the Lord inflows with good into a humble and contrite heart.

T. 503⁵. Instead of repentance, we take contrition . . .

512. Contrition, which is said to precede faith, and to be followed by the consolation of the Gospel, is not repentance. Gen.art.

—^e. A species of anxiety, grief, and terror, which they call contrition. Ex.

513. Whether this contrition is repentance, or not. Ex.

514. As contrition is not repentance, is it of any moment? Ex.

—^e. Hence it is evident, that contrition, not being repentance, is not anything.

515. Whether there is any such contrition without repentance. Ex.

—². From these things . . . I am confirmed that contrition, unless it is repentance . . . is a mere freak of the fancy.

597^e. The contrition which is held to precede the modern faith, is not temptation . . .

665⁷. We have believed that conscience is contrition . . .

Contrive. Excogitare.

A. 2576⁴. 'The work of contrivance' (Ex.xxvi.31).

7296. They contrived many arts to defraud others.

9598. 'With the work of the contriver shalt thou make them' (Ex.xxvi.1)=what is intellectual. 'The contriver'=the Intellectual, for this thinks, and does from what is thought. Ill. 9835. 9858.

9688. To devise is of the understanding.

9915². The Voluntary, the Intellectual, and the Scientific are signified by 'the embroiderer,' 'the contriver,' and 'the weaver.'

10332. 'To devise cunning works,' or to invent inventions (Ex.xxxi.4)=that which proceeds from the understanding. Ex.

E. 448¹². 'Invent instruments of singing' (Amos vi.5).

Controvert. Controvertere.

Controversy. Controversia.

A. 2120. Heresies and controversies. Sig.

2435². (The controversy about the primogeniture.) 3863². 4925⁴. 5351³. T. 336.

3428. In the thing itself about which they debate there are innumerable things which cannot be seen so long as the thing itself is not acknowledged . . .

H. 270². The Angels of that Heaven never debate whether it is so, or is not so.

D. 1937. (Skillful debating among Spirits.)

1953. They who labour much in controversies . . .

1955. In proportion as the mind is intent upon controversies, the truth perishes . . .

4391. Heresies and controversies. Sig.

E. 365⁴. This is the origin of all dissensions controversies, and heresies in the Church.

Contumacious. See STUBBORN.

Conventicle. Conventicula. D.3766^e.

Converse. Colloqui, Colloquutio.

See CONFERENCE.

A. 1277^e. They could converse together, even if one were in India, and the other in Europe.

1641. Spirits converse with each other . . . D.2952.

1791. Internal converse with Jehovah.

1819. The converse of the interior man with the internal. Sig.

2802. The converse of the Lord with His Father.

4442². It was a common thing for them to introduce things as it were conversing together . . .

5229^e. When any Spirit remembers another, he is presented, so that they can converse together.

6752⁹. 'Moses and Elias talking with Him' (Matt. xvii.3). When the Lord's Divine appeared in the world, none could talk with Him but those who represented the Word, for talking with the Lord is through the Word.

Converse. Confabulari, Confabulatio.

H. 358. He may converse about worldly things.

R. 153¹⁰. They are then allowed to walk, converse, etc.

M. 3². Heavenly joy supposed to consist in sweetest conversations with the Angels. 5.

T. 160². While we were thus conversing . . .

280. So many companies conversing about things of wisdom . . .

434. The Social Gatherings in the primitive Church were . . . at the same time conversations about various things.

D. 2775. When remitted into a state like that of the body, Spirits converse in exactly the same way.

Converse. Conversari, Conversatio.

A. 995². The pleasures of conversation with companions.

2472. Spirits can thus . . . converse with every Spirit, of whatever language . . .

2476. From the interior memory in the other life one can speak and converse with all in the universe.

2718⁴. Is there not happiness from other sources, as from conversation, discourse, meditation?

4366^e. Spirits and Angels have social intercourse with each other like men, and converse together.

4804. They who had preferred the delight of social intercourse to every other delight, and who have loved those with whom they have had social intercourse, caring not whether they were good or evil . . .

5388. If the end be the pleasure of conversation, etc. . .

6484. He was one of the subtle evil Spirits, because he had indulged more in thought than in discourse and social intercourse.

8118. Angels could then converse with men.

9438. They who are in Heaven can speak and have intercourse with (Angels, Spirits, and men of other solar systems).

10836. (The inhabitants of the sixth Earth) have social intercourse with those who are within the same family.

H. 358. He may have social intercourse with others . . .

499. Either from report or from conversation.

W. 1. Flowing in . . . by conversation . . .

R. 153³. They leave their work, and love only company, talking, etc.

D. 2900. Sometimes during conversation (I have been in a state of interior thought).

3137. Simulated friendships, for the sake of sweet conversations.

4282. They excel in cleverness of conversation.

4324. From the internals, thus from the end and love, do Spirits converse and speak together.

4335. Spirits speak together from the interior memory. . . . Hence it is that all Souls, of whatever language, can converse and speak together.

4352. All there know hypocrites from a slight conversation.

D. Min. 4574. There are Spirits who in the world have had social intercourse with others without any end except mere presence . . .

C. 189. (Conversation as a recreation.)

Converse. Sermocinare.

Conversation. Sermo, Sermocinatio.

A. 961. (Consequences of using Scripture in common conversation, and jesting.) D.1304.

1635^e. Human conversation enters through the ear, by an external way; but the conversation of Spirits does not enter through the ear . . . but by an internal way . . .

1642^e. From Whom alone there are discourse, and the Word. D.2141.

1846⁴. 'When they hear the discourse they have no root in themselves . . . Afterwards, when affliction and persecution arise because of the discourse, they are at once offended' (Mark iv.16,17).

2146. In common conversation. 2245. 2701^e. 3693. 4624. 4653.

2170². (The conversation of the Angels seen representatively in the World of Spirits.) 2729. 3216. 3217. 3218. 3219. 3220. 3221. 3699. 5198². 5201⁴. 5313¹². 8215². 9125³. 9139². 9166. 9272². R.661^e.

2380. When anything false or evil is infused, either in conversation by an evil man, or in thought by an evil Spirit, the Angels at once turn it into something true or good . . .

5128⁴. By the life is not meant how it appears in conversation and works, but how it is in conversation and works; for the life of the conversation is from the thought, and the life of the works is from the will; both from the intention or end; such, therefore, as is the intention or end in the conversation or works, such is the life; for conversation without interior life is only sound . . .

5131³. Thought is the cause, and conversation the effect; if there is correspondence, faith from charity inflows into the thought, and this into the conversation, and they so act as one, that the conversation, through correspondence, is as it were the end.

5388. His character was not at first evident from his conversation.

5576³. (Effect of cheerful conversation at meal times.)

6414. 'Giving discourses of elegance' (Gen.xlix.21)=gladness of mind . . . For all discourse proceeds from the mind . . . E.439².

6484. See CONVERSE-conversari, at this ref.

6601. There were five Societies which manifested themselves through living discourse . . .

6924. Things which cast a shade, which are chiefly the affections of elegance of discourse and of learning; for these things hide the real things . . .

6982^c. The truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine cannot be presented to anyone as discourse, or speech, except through the Holy Spirit. Ex.

7191. Angelic discourse is continuous. Ex.

—². The form of Heaven is represented in angelic discourse. In all angelic discourse there is a harmony like that of songs, which, in every termination, ceases in a monosyllable, thus in unity . . . The reason is that everything in Heaven relates to one God . . . Hence it is evident, that everything of thought, and thence of discourse, flows in through Heaven from the Lord, and hence there is such a harmony in the discourse which terminates in unity.

8068. 'In the mouth'=in the discourse, and in the discourse are both parts of the mind . . . the Intellectual in the sense of the words and things, the Voluntary in the affection, which gives life to the discourse.

8377. (Delight in conversation at meals in Jupiter.)

8384. The Spirits of Jupiter possess a sweet address and sagacious conversation; they consider what they say.

8868³. With the Angels, all things of their discourse are open even to the Lord, which is clearly perceived, and is also heard from the softness and quality of it . . .

9311^c. 'Everyone who . . . heareth My sayings, and doeth them' (Luke vi.47). 'To hear the words, or sayings'=to learn and know the precepts of faith which are from the Lord.

9987. In the general sense, 'a word'=an utterance of the mouth, or a discourse . . .

10709^c. (In the fourth Earth) they join in conversation through the face and lips, and through sound varied according to the ideas of thought . . .

H. 96². They who are in the mouth and tongue are in conversation from the understanding and perception.

210. The discourses of the Angels of the inmost Heaven are never perceived in the middle Heaven . . .

322. It has been granted to be with some (of the ancients) in familiar conversation.

3 G

C. J. 42³. (Sermons of the English which leave it doubtful whether good is to be done, or not.)

Life 7. (When the English clergy are preparing their sermons, or preachings . . .)

R. 454. (The neatness and elegance of the discourse of the solidifians.) Sig.

M. 24. The priest ascended the pulpit, and delivered a sermon full of the spirit of wisdom . . .

140. Application of all things of conversation to what is libidinous.

183. There was an exaltation as from the fire of love in the discourse of the Angels.

258. A talking about love by the wife.

B. 79^c. As they know that the laity regard these things as saving . . . they diligently subjoin them to their sermons and conversation . . . See 59.

T. 80^c. Such is the state of thought and conversation of satans after death.

134. While they were in conversation about Redemption . . .

185³. He began a sermon on the Divine Trinity.

391. Has been made known to me from conversation with many of the laity . . .

406. It is a common saying.

433². At table they had conversations about various things . . .

778. The Angels know man's love from the tone, and his intelligence from the discourse . . . Wherefore, all things which proceed from man, whether action or discourse, make the man, and are the man himself.

810. The principal reason why those preachers are deprived of their office, is that they do not frame their sermons from the Word . . . but from their own rational light . . . They take texts from the Word, but merely touch them with their lips.

D. 1209. (During their examination by the Angels) while their discourse flows easily, it is in agreement with the act of their life . . . 1355.

2142. The discourse of Spirits inflowed unexpectedly into my ideas . . .

2634. When I was in tacit discourse with Spirits . . .

3605¹. (What sermons ought to be.)

E. 411¹⁰. 'Let the sayings of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart be before Thee' (Ps.xix.14) . . . 'The sayings of the mouth'=the understanding of truth; and 'the meditation of the heart,' the perception of good.

4483¹⁶. 'The discourse of Jehovah' (Ps.cv.19)=the Divine good from which is Divine truth.

Convert. Convertere.

Conversion. Conversio.

See TURN.

A. 4847. They at once turned to other gods.

5479. 'He turned himself about from upon them' (Gen.xlii.24)=somewhat of drawing back . . . For the Lord never turns Himself away from anyone, but moderates the influx of good . . .

[A.] 6110⁴. Evils and falsities . . . turn and convert them from the Lord.

7051⁴. Believe that that nation will at last be converted to the Lord. N.248².

8143. 'The heart of Pharaoh and his servants was turned against the people' (Ex.xiv.5)=a change of the state into evil . . . 'To be turned'=to be changed.

8301⁶. You could convert stones sooner than them.

9993⁹. The cake is not 'turned' (Hos.vii.8) when the external man rules over the internal : for then the order is inverted . . .

10498². It is said, 'Lest it be converted, and healed' (Is.vi.10), by which is signified, that if they were to understand the internal things of the Word, of the Church, and of worship, they would profane them. N.172². P.231⁹. 260². E.706⁹. 1081². 1160³.

10602². This is to avert themselves from God, and not convert themselves to God.

H. 141. This is the case in every turning of their faces and bodies . . . 143. 151. T.767, Ex. E.1112².

143. The turnings of the Angels are not like the turnings of men . . .

144. That there is such a turning to the Lord is wonderful . . . for there may be a number together in one place, and each turn the face and body differently from the others, and yet all see the Lord before them . . .

246. When an Angel or Spirit comes to a man, and by turning to him, is conjoined with him . . . 252. 255.

253. The interiors and exteriors of man are such, that they are either turned to the Lord as to their common Centre, or to self, thus back from the Lord : those which are turned to the Lord, are also turned to Heaven ; and those which are turned to self, are also turned to the world ; and those which are turned-versa-hither, can with difficulty be elevated ; yet they are elevated by the Lord, so far as possible, through the conversion of the love, and this is done through truths from the Word.

255². When Angels and Spirits turn themselves to a man, they can speak with him at any distance . . . But when they turn themselves from the man, and speak together, nothing whatever of what they are saying is heard by the man, even if it were close to his ear : hence it is evident that all conjunction in the Spiritual World is according to the conversion.

—³. The emissary Spirit turns himself to the man, and the rest of them to their Spirit . . . Thus the conjunction of many with one is effected through the conversion.

464². Some understood, when they were turned to those who were in the light of truth . . .

479². When this is done, he turns his face constantly to his own love . . . 512.

496². They frequently turn themselves to certain quarters . . . From the turning to the quarters . . . it is known what is the love which leads them.

552². A Spirit turns himself towards his like, for thus he breathes his own life . . . but not when he turns himself in another direction. In the Spiritual World, communication with others is effected according to the turning of the face, and those are constantly before the face who are in a like love, and this in every turning of the body. Hence all infernal Spirits turn themselves back from the Lord . . . but all the Angels turn themselves to the Lord . . .

574. When this sphere is perceived . . . he is affected at heart . . . Hence it is that the Spirit turns himself thither . . .

580. A third kind of infernal arts relates to the communication and influx of thoughts and affections by conversions, etc.

Life 19. Man is kept in the freedom of turning himself either to Hell or to Heaven ; if he turns himself to Hell, he turns himself away from Heaven ; but if he turns himself to Heaven, he turns himself away from Hell. —. —.

W. 101². The Angels turn themselves to the Lord less or more ; they who turn themselves more, receive more from heat and less from light ; but they who turn themselves less to the Lord, receive more from light and less from heat : hence it is that the Angels are distinguished into two Kingdoms . . .

129. All that is here said about the turning of the Angels to the Lord . . . is also to be understood of man as to his spirit . . .

138. This turning to the Lord is an actual turning ; it is a kind of elevation . . .

P. 231⁸. The man's conversion is described by 'the unclean Spirit going out from him' ; and his reversion to his former evils by the return of the unclean Spirit with seven others worse than himself . . .

—⁹. That he who is once converted to good and truth is to persevere to the end of life. Sig.

260. The Jews not yet converted . . .

296². All these forms of concupiscences have to be individually converted ; the man himself . . . is to be converted . . . and each concupiscence of evil is to be converted . . . and to convert a dragon into a lamb . . . can only be done successively . . .

338⁷. It is easier to convert an owl into a dove than an infernal Spirit into an Angel.

R. 42. 'I turned to see the voice that spake with me' (Rev.i.12)=an inversion of the state of those who are in the good of life, as to the perception of truth in the Word, when they turn themselves to the Lord. John said that he heard the voice 'behind him' ; and now, that 'he turned to see the voice' ; and again, that 'being turned, he saw seven candlesticks' ; from which it is evident, that he heard the voice from behind, and that he turned himself . . . Before man turns himself to the Lord, and acknowledges Him as the God of Heaven and earth, he cannot see the Divine truth in the Word. Ex. E.9⁵. 55. 61. 62.

84. This conversion of the state of life is what is here meant.

938. That they will turn themselves to the Lord, and that the Lord will turn Himself to them, because they are conjoined through love. Sig.

M. 171². Contrariwise, married partners who agree in dispositions and affections turn themselves towards each other.

224^e. Hence it is that husbands who are very fond of their wives turn themselves towards them . . .

438. Man can turn himself to whichever sphere he pleases, but in proportion as he turns himself to one, he turns himself away from the other. Gen.art.

444^f. By turning from God to himself, (man originated evil). T.490^o.

— They asked, How could man turn himself from God, and turn to himself, when he cannot (do anything) except from God? Ex.

B. 64. (The doctrine that) in his conversion man is as a stock. 69, Ex. T.356^e.

T. 536. After death, all who do good from religion . . . turn themselves to the Lord God the Saviour.

642^e. In order that the conversion of man may take place . . .

677. All foreign proselytes who are converted to the Christian religion (also receive baptism).

720. Man is constantly kept in a state in which repentance and conversion are possible . . .

796^f. Luther . . . was in a state of conversion above many others . . .

798^f. From the zeal of converting him, I said . . .

D. 223. Everything . . . of Heaven . . . that comes where there are infernal Genii is converted into evil. Ex.

4850. They cannot be turned from themselves . . . To be turned from the Lord, is a sign of turning from good, and of turning to evil.

5527. They who are in Hell constantly turn themselves to their own love . . .

5529. They who are not yet vastated . . . do not constantly turn themselves to their reigning love. 5531.

5930. How Spirits are examined by conversion.

E. 355^{3d}. 'To turn judgment into gall' (Amos vi.12) = to turn truth into falsity . . . 519⁶.

381³. 'All faces are turned into paleness' (Jer.xxx.6) = no good and truth, but evil and falsity. 721²².

405¹⁴. Regeneration through truths from good is signified by, 'He turned the rock into a pool of waters, and the flint into a fountain of waters' (Is.xciv.8).

578⁵. 'The torrents shall be turned into pitch' (Is.xxxiv.9).

654⁹. 'They shall turn to Jehovah' (Is.xix.22) = conversion.

677. The conversion of those who are a little spiritual. Sig. and Ex.

724⁸. 'He shall turn the heart of the fathers to the sons, and the heart of the sons to their fathers' (Mal.iv.6). Ex.

740¹¹. 'Jesus turned, and said unto Peter' (Matt.xvi.23).

746¹⁴. Peter's being 'converted' (Luke xxii.32) = the truth from good which is from the Lord.

768²². 'How then art thou turned' (Jer.ii.21).

780⁵. 'Can the Ethiopian change his skin?' (Jer.xiii.23) = that evil cannot change its nature.

820⁷. 'Then Peter, turning about' (John xxi.20). 821⁶.

998^e. As truth turns itself to good, so truth is vivified.

Convince. Convincere, Evincere.

Conviction. Convictio.

See under CHARGE.

A. 2568^f. Cannot believe until he is convinced by what he can feel . . . 2588². —³.

2694³. Convinced for a moment only . . .

4169^e. Such are borne into Hell without any conviction of being in falsity.

4747². They suppose that anyone can easily receive if only he is convinced . . .

7465^e. They are first convinced that they are in evil . . .

J. 26^e. I was thus fully convinced . . .

S. 4^e. To convince even the natural man, if he is willing to be convinced.

R. 544. 'To pasture all nations with a rod of iron' = through truths from the sense of the letter, and at the same time by rational things from natural light, to convince those who are willing to be convinced. 828.

M. 295. Those things of which the spirit is convinced, are allotted a place above those which, without consulting reason, enter on authority . . .

T. 344. Conviction (a part of the manifestation of the faith of the New Church).

796³. After conviction, (Luther) began to favour the truths of the New Church . . .

D. 2455^e. In order to convince him . . .

Convocation. See ASSEMBLY.

Convulsion. Convulsio, Convellere. T.569^d. D.3767.

Cook. Coquere.

Cooking. Coctio.

A. 941. They cook men . . . D.723. 730. 749. 1277. 2711^e.

2342. 'He did bake unleavened' (Gen.xix.3) = purification.

—⁴. The very cooking was representative.

2567¹⁰. By 'daughters, whom he should take for cooks, etc.' (1 Sam.viii.13) are signified the goods of doctrine, by which he would make them favour him.

3316. 'Jacob cooked pottage' (Gen.xxv.29) = a heap of doctrinal things. . . 'To cook' it = to heap up, or bring together.

3812⁵. 'Let them cook the bones in the midst of it' (Ezek.xxiv.5) = violence done to them.

7852. A distinction is made in the Word between what is roasted and what is boiled; and by what is roasted is signified good, because by fire; and by 'boiled' is meant truth, because by water.

7857. 'Nor in boiling boiled in waters' (Ex.xii.9) = that it shall not go forth from the truth which is of faith.

[A]. 7978. 'They baked the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt, unleavened cakes' (Ex.xii.39)=that from the good of truth there was again produced good . . . 'To bake,' when said of the truth of good,=to produce.

8496. 'Bake that which ye will bake' (Ex.xvi.23)=preparation for the conjunction of good. 'And see the that which ye will see the'=preparation for the conjunction of truth. 'To bake,' being done by fire,=preparation for the conjunction of good. . . That baking is said of bread and the meat-offering, which were made by fire. Ill. 8497.

9301. 'Thou shalt not see the a kid in its mother's milk' (Ex.xxiii.19)=that the good of innocence of a latter state is not to be conjoined with the truth of innocence of a former state. 'To see the'=to conjoin.

10105. 'Thou shalt see the its flesh in the holy place' (Ex.xxix.31)=the preparation of good for the uses of life through the truths of doctrine in enlightenment from the Lord. 'To see the'=to prepare for the use of life through truths of doctrine.

— By the waters in which the cooking of the flesh of the sacrifices was done, are signified truths.

—³. 'To boil in waters'=to reduce truths into doctrine, and thus prepare for the use of life. Ill.

D. 2500°. They make friends of cooks—coquos.

E. 555¹². 'To cook'=to prepare and conjoin, in order to serve for the use of life.

—^c. 'To cook children' (Lam.iv.10)=to destroy the truths and goods of doctrine from the Word through falsities.

675¹². 'Ten women shall bake your bread in one oven' (Lev.xxvi.26)=that in all Churches there is so little good and truth with man as to be scarcely anything.

Co-operate. Cooperare.

Co-operation. Cooperatio.

H. 453°. When the Material . . . is deprived of its co-operation with the Spiritual . . .

567°. Influx and consequent co-operation present the effects which appear before the eyes in the world.

R. 451³. What is the Divine operation in internals, without the co-operation of man in externals as of himself?

484°. Believe, my friend, that in the things of faith, man operates and co-operates as of himself; and, without this co-operation, the act of faith . . . is nothing but the statue, Lot's wife . . .

T. 371°. There is a mutual conjunction of the Lord and man, which is not effected by act and react, but by co-operation; for the Lord acts, and man receives action from him, and operates as of himself . . .

457¹. This is like the active and the passive, and the co-operation of the latter, which is effected from the active in the passive.

516°. (The notion that) there is no co-operation on man's part with the Holy Spirit in the act of justification.

522°. Man must remove evils, because the Lord does not do this immediately, without man's co-operation.

576°. The new birth is effected by the Lord alone . . . man co-operating. Gen.art.

— Man's co-operation with the Lord. Ex.

—^c. Man's action, concordant with the Lord's action, is what is here meant by co-operation.

577. That regeneration follows the faith of the present Church, which leaves out man's co-operation, is vanity of vanities. Action and co-operation such as have been described, can be seen in everything which is in any state of activity and mobility. Such are the action and co-operation of the heart and of every artery connected with it; the heart acts, and the artery by its sheaths or coats co-operates. . . The ribs first co-operate with the lungs, and, immediately after, the lungs with the ribs. (Other exams.) There is such co-operation also in every sense . . . Who cannot perceive from this, that if there were not such action and co-operation with the influent life in the spiritual organism of the brain, thought and will could not exist? For life flows from the Lord into that organism; and because this co-operates, there is a perception of what is thought . . . If life were to act alone, and man were not to co-operate as from himself, he could no more think than a stock, or than a temple, while the minister is preaching. . . Such would man be in respect to charity and faith, if he did not co-operate with the Lord. 578, By comparisons.

580°. If man is not saved, he himself is in fault by not co-operating.

588°. God alone acts; and man suffers himself to be acted upon, and, to all appearance, co-operates as of himself, although interiorly from God.

591°. It is said . . . that man's co-operation is to be excluded.

615. Who, without this free-will, can . . . co-operate . . .

D. 1533. Such are the co-operations of Spirits with man.

E. 239¹. (The necessity of co-operation on the part of man.) Ex. and Sig. 616², Ex.

Co-ordinate. Coordinare.

Co-ordination. Coordinatio.

H. 392°. Co-ordinated and subordinated according to Divine order . . .

M. 524². Every form is from various things, and is such as is their harmonious co-ordination and arrangement into a one.

T. 15. Heaven is co-ordinated into Societies . . . 32°. 395³. In the man in whom these three loves are rightly subordinated, they are also so co-ordinated that . . .

680. Hence subordinations, by means of which all are co-ordinated as into a one.

D. 2316°. In the Heavens there are as it were perpetual centres . . . from the co-ordination of which everything is co-ordinated.

Copper. Cuprum, Cupreus.

See BRASS.

H. 115°. Copper=natural good, in which was the next posterity.

- R. 913. Copper, or brass, = the good of charity.
M. 77. (A visit to those of the Copper Age.)
 182°. They gave insignia to the three novitiates, which were copper plates . . .
 T. 609°. Copper = natural good, which is the good of the ultimate Heaven. D. Min. 4737.
D. Min. 4737. One who had thought much about copper . . .
 E. 176. Copper, or brass = the good of the external or natural man . . . Hence called the Copper Age.

Copulation. Concubitus. A. 3399. D. 6051¹³.
 See COUPLE.

Copy. Exemplar. A. 5688°. S. 72. 73. T. 123.

Coral. Corallium, Ramoth.

- A. 1232. 'Coral' (Ezek. xxvii. 16).
 W. 61°. Evident from the corals in the depths of the seas. E. 1208°.
 T. 328°. They differ . . . as a coral and a ruby.

Cord. Funis.

- A. 414°. 'Curtains and cords' (Jer. x. 20) = spiritual things from celestial ones.
 2299°. They let down small cords = funiculas. H. 335°. D. 235.
 9348°. (The correspondence of 'cord'.)
 9777°. 'Long cords' (Is. liv. 2) = an ample connection of truths.
 — 3. 'Cords' (Is. xxxiii. 20) = things that conjoin.
 9854. 'With cord-work' (Ex. xxviii. 14) = a method of conjunction. 'A cord' = funiculus = what conjoins.
 — 2. In the other life there appear cords of varied twist and density, and by them are represented various methods of conjunction; hence 'cords,' in the Word, = things which conjoin. III.
 —. 'Cords of vanity' (Is. v. 18) = conjunctions of falsities, through which comes iniquity, or evil of life.
 — c. 'Cords,' in the Word, also = portions of inheritances and of land, because the measurements were made by cords. III.
 9880. 'With cord-work' (ver. 22) = indissoluble conjunction. 9884. 9886.

10545°. 'The cords are plucked away' (Jer. x. 20) = that there is no longer any conjunction of good and truth, or of truths among each other. E. 724¹⁶.

H. 479°. Their love is like a bond, or like a cord, with which they are as it were tied round . . .

548°. They are drawn by their own evil, as by a rope.

L. 14°. 'Cords, and the snares of death' (Ps. xviii. 5) = temptations, which, being from Hell, are called 'the cords of Hell.'

M. 328. As a ship's rope cannot pass through the eye of a needle.

D. 1664. (A rope used in punishment.) 3979.

4265. A Spirit who had cords, which he extended, to draw his victims into his mouth.

4786°. Communication of thoughts and influx is represented by little cords coming down.

E. 391¹⁸. 'To bind with cords' (Ps. cxviii. 27) = to conjoin.

600¹². 'To lengthen the cords' (Is. liv. 2) = their extension. 'Cords,' here, = their conjunction, 799⁵. — 10.

Coriander. Coriandrum.

A. 8521. 'It was like seed of coriander, white' (Ex. xvi. 31) = truth therein, that it was pure. . . It is said, 'seed of coriander,' because it is white.

E. 146⁵. 'Seed of coriander, white,' = truth from a celestial origin.

Cormorant. Platea. See BITTERN; and BIRD, at E. 1100²².

Corn. Frumentum.

A. 1071⁴. 'Where is the corn and wine?' (Lam. ii. 12) = where are love and faith?

3580. 'A multitude of corn' (Gen. xxvii. 28) = thence natural good, (because predicated of the Natural). III. 3597⁴.

— 3. 'Corn' (Hos. xiv. 7) = spiritual good.

3941⁴. 'Corn' (Joel i. 10) = all the good of the Church. 10137⁴.

5212. 'Corn' = the good of the Natural. 5295, 5342.

5295. The reason 'corn' = good, is that 'a field' = the Church . . .

5345. 'Joseph heaped up corn as the sand of the sea, very much' (Gen. xli. 49) = the multiplication of truth by good. . . 'Corn' = truth in will and act.

5410. 'To buy corn from Egypt' (Gen. xlii. 3) = to appropriate to themselves the good of truth through scientifics. 'Corn' = the good of truth.

5487. 'They filled their vessels with corn' (ver. 25) = that scientifics were endowed with good from truth. . . 'Corn' = good from truth, or the good of truth. 5614. 5939.

5614. By the corn which they receive this time signified interior life, for now they are with Benjamin.

5737. 'Corn' = good.

5959. 'Ten she asses carrying corn and bread' (Gen. xlv. 23) = the good of truth, and the truth of good. . . 'Corn' = the good of truth, but here, the truth of good because from the celestial Internal, which is Joseph. Ex.

6537. 'Corn' = the good which is from truth, and also the truth of good.

7602. 'Corn,' in general, = the good of truth; 'barley,' and 'wheat,' in special . . .

8462°. 'Corn' (Ps. lxxviii. 24) = the good of truth.

9223. 'Corn' (Ex. xxii. 29) = the good of the truth of faith. 9296⁵.

9960¹⁴. 'Corn' (Hos. ii. 9) = the interior good of the Spiritual Church.

10031°. 'Corn' (Lam. ii. 12) = the good of truth.

10402⁷. 'Corn' = the good from which is truth. Refs.

E. 304³⁸. Occurs. 340¹⁵. 375²². 376⁸. — 10. 543⁹. 911¹⁷.

[E.] 374¹. 'Corn' (Joel i. 10)=good of every kind in the external man.

644¹⁵. That thence they will have love towards a brother and companion, is signified by, 'the floors shall be full of pure corn' (Joel ii. 24).

710²³. 'Corn and new wine' (Deut. vii. 13)=all good and truth in the natural man.

730²⁸. 'Corn' (Ps. lxx. 13)=natural truth.

750¹². 'Corn and wine' (Lam. ii. 12)=the good of doctrine and its truth.

863¹⁵. 'Corn shall make the young men grow, and new wine the maids' (Zech. ix. 17)=that the understanding of truth and the affection of truth will be formed through good and through truth by Him.

922⁵. 'The floors are full of corn' (Joel ii. 24)=the celestial good which they have in abundance.

Corn. Seges.

A. 4686². Corn in a field=the truth in the Church; thus a sheaf in which is corn=doctrine in which is truth.

9146. 'Either the standing corn, or the field' (Ex. xxii. 6)=the truth and good of faith in conception. 'Corn'=the truth of faith . . . because those things which belong to corn, as wheat and barley, and thence bread,=the goods of the Church. . . Wherefore, while corn is standing, or is as yet nascent, it=the truth of faith in conception. III. 9995⁵.

10669³. Occurs.

E. 1081. Corn and fruit trees=the Knowledge of truth and of good.

Corn Floor. See THRASHING FLOOR.

Cornea. Cornea. T. 346.

Corner. Angulus.

Cornerstone. Angularis.

Angular. Angulatus.

A. 1462². 'They have seduced Egypt the corner stone of the tribes' (Is. xix. 13); where it is called the 'corner stone of the tribes,' as serving for a support to the things that are of faith. 5044¹.

5981. How shameful and filthy things are perceived by the Angels. . . They may be compared to angular and pointed things, when deprived of their angularity and prickliness. D. 1995².

6188². 'In the corner of a bed' (Amos iii. 12)=in the lowest of the Natural.

8458². Truth is there presented as angular in various forms. . . Good is presented as round, and continuous.

9494. 'And thou shalt set upon the four corners (of the ark)' (Ex. xxv. 12)=stability. 'Corners'=strength and stability . . . because there is the greatest resistance, and also the connection of the whole. 9537.

— Since 'corner'=strength and stability, like that of Divine truth from Divine good, the Lord is called the 'stone of the corner' in David;—'The stone which the builders have rejected has become the head of the corner.' And in Zech. x. 4;—'From Judah shall be a cornerstone' . . . Also in Is. xxviii. 16;—'Jehovah shall found in Zion a stone of proof, a corner of price, of a foundation founded.'

—². In like manner 'corner'=the stability of doctrine from the truth that is from good, in Jer. li. 26;—'Neither shall they take from thee a stone for a corner, and a stone of foundations.'

— Since by 'corners' is signified stability, horns were placed upon the four corners of the altar.

—³. By 'corners' are also signified strength and power in the following passages. III.

9496². The rings of the ark were relatively as the ball and socket joints, where the arms are joined to the breast; the corners were as the prominences themselves at that junction.

9642. 'Boards for the corner of the south southward' (Ex. xxvii. 18)=even into interior and inmost things where truth is in light. . . 'Corner,' when said of the quarters of the world,=where that state is which is designated and signified by the quarter.

—⁹. All states of good of love and truth of faith are signified by 'the four corners of the earth'; states of good of love by the 'corner of the east,' and 'the corner of the west'; and states of truth of faith by 'the corner of the south and of the north.' III.

9720. 'Upon the four horns of the altar'=in every way. . . 'Corners'=stability and strength; also all things of truth and good; hence by the horns upon the four corners is signified power in every way.

9755. 'The breadth of the court towards the corner of the sea' (Ex. xxvii. 12)=the state of that Heaven as to scientific truths. . . Here, by 'the corner of the sea,' is understood the corner of the west.

10050. 'The corner of a bed and the extremity of a couch' (Amos iii. 12)=the lowest Natural, which is the external Sensual, and its truth and good.

H. 488². Whisper in corners.

534². 'The head of the corner,' is where the two ways branch off.

W. 41². The angle of incidence.

R. Preface 3. These were sent to the corners.

137². 'In the corner of a bed and in the extremity of a couch'=further away from the goods and truths of doctrine.

294. A hypocrite, when he comes among the wise, either goes away, or betakes himself to a corner in the room, and makes himself invisible, and sits mute.

342. 'I saw four Angels standing upon the four corners of the earth' (Rev. vii. 1). The 'four corners of the earth'=the universal World of Spirits. . . S58. E. 417.

—². That 'corners'=quarters, and thence the four corners all the quarters, may be evident from the following places. III.

—³. Since 'corners'=quarters, they therefore signify all things, as all things of Heaven or of Hell, or of good or truth. III.

—⁴. That a 'corner'=the ultimate which supports higher things, as a foundation a house, and thus also all things. III.

915². Since all truth of doctrine from the Word is founded upon the acknowledgment of the Lord, the Lord is called . . . 'the stone of the corner which the builders have rejected.' . . . That 'the stone of a corner' is a stone of the foundations, is evident from Jer. li. 26.

T. 405². They then toss it into a corner.

798². Calvin betook himself to a corner of that Society.

D. 4738. They sit in the corners. 4830.

5426. (On the corners in the World of Spirits at the time of the Last Judgment.) 5452. 5453. 5466. 5467. 5470.

5798. The way which leads to Heaven is the same way (for all) as far as the corner stone. Gen.art.

E. 304⁵⁸. 'The four corners of the earth and the four winds of heaven' (Rev. vii. 1)=all truths and goods of the Church in the complex.

355⁵⁸. 'The corner'=truth protecting.

417². 'Corners'=the extremes, and thus signify all things, because they include them. —⁴. —⁵. III.

—¹². The 'corner stone'=all Divine truth upon which Heaven and the Church are founded; and as the foundation is the ultimate on which the house or temple rests, it=all things. III.

629¹¹. Corner stone=the truth of the natural man, which is called scientific truth.

652¹¹. 'The corners that shall be devastated' (Zeph. iii. 6)=the truths and goods of the Church in the whole complex.

654²⁸. 'The corner stone'=their foundation.

Cornucopia. Cornucopia. T. 154². E. 316⁶.

Corollary. Corollarium. A. 5061. H. 78. T. 109. 158.

Coronation. Coronatio. A. 4581². 4966³. T. 297. E. 316⁶.

Coronet. Coronamentum. A. 10009.

Coronis. Coronis. T. 585. 795.

Coro. 1. Date of the Coronis.

Corpora Striata. D. 1058. D. Wis. v².

Corporeal. Corporeus.

See BODY.

A. 30². Love and faith in the internal man are situated as are heat and light in the external corporeal.

69. As men so immersed themselves in corporeal and worldly things . . . the way (to speak with Spirits and Angels) is closed; but as soon as the corporeal things recede . . . the way is opened . . .

123. The worldly and corporeal man neither acknowledges nor concedes (that everything is the Lord's) . . .

141. With the worldly and corporeal man proprium is everything . . .

242. The Sensual averted itself from what is celestial, and turned itself to what is corporeal, and thus cursed itself. Sig.

243. After they began to love themselves, they preferred sensuous things to the internal man, wherefore they were separated, and became corporeal, and thus were damned.

250^e. 'The heel'=the lowest Natural, as the Corporeal.

268. When goods and truths in the internal man no longer appear, man is external or corporeal.

305. 'To till the ground from which he was taken'=to become corporeal, as he had been before regeneration.

309. Are carried to corporeal and earthly things . . .

345. They were said 'to till the ground' who look to corporeal and earthly things.

542. They who are taken up into Heaven . . . have their corporeal things and phantasies lulled, for no one can enter into Heaven with the corporeal things and phantasies which they draw with them from the world . . .

574. 'Flesh'=that man had become corporeal.

627. That the Corporeal of man had destroyed all the understanding of truth. Sig.

—'. 'Flesh'=every man, especially the corporeal man, or all the Corporeal.

661^e. 'Flesh under the heavens'=what is merely corporeal; 'the heavens'=the intellectual things of truth and the voluntary things of good, and when these are separated from what is corporeal, man can no longer live . . .

911. The order is for celestial things to rule spiritual, through these natural, and at last through these corporeal things; but when corporeal and natural things dominate spiritual and celestial ones, order is destroyed . . .

—³. It is the opposite with those who place life solely in corporeal things, that is, in cupidities, pleasures, appetites, and sensuous things; that is, who perceive nothing as delightful except what is of the love of self and of the world . . . As with these, corporeal and natural things dominate spiritual and celestial ones . . .

959. They induced on them as it were bodies, and corporeal senses, and thus tortured them . . . 969^e.

978². Sensuous things not of the body, but from bodily things, form the external man; not only with a man, but also with a Spirit.

995. In themselves, corporeal and sensuous things are merely material, inanimate, and dead; but they live from the delights which come from interior things in order.

—². Some suppose . . . that corporeal and worldly things withdraw and withhold man from spiritual and celestial life . . . But no one is forbidden to enjoy the pleasures of the body and of sensuous things . . . All these are the lowest or corporeal affections which originate from interior affections. Ex.

1408. This is why not only corporeal things must die before man can be regenerated, but also why the body itself must die before man can come into Heaven . . . So it is with the Word; its corporeal things are those which are of the sense of the letter . . .

1411. 'Depart from thy land'=the corporeal and worldly things from which He was to recede.

1412. 'From the land of thy birth'=exterior corporeal and worldly things . . . There are with man exterior and interior corporeal and worldly things ; the exterior ones are those which are proper to the body, as pleasures and sensuous things ; the interior ones are affections and scientifics.

[A.] 1414. The infirmities which the Lord derived from the mother are the corporeal things treated of in this verse, and from which He was to recede in order that celestial and spiritual things might be presented to Him . . . The infirmity which man derives from his mother is a corporeal something which is dispersed during regeneration.

—^e. With the Lord alone was the correspondence of all things of the body with the Divine most perfect, or infinitely perfect ; hence the union of corporeal things with Divine celestial things, and of sensuous things with Divine spiritual ones. Thus is He Perfect Man, and Only Man.

1639. (For refs. to the corporeal memory, see MEMORY at this and following refs.)

1718. The things of the body, as its senses, together with appetites and pleasures, do not alone constitute the external man ; but only the outermost man, which is merely corporeal.

1748. All things which are unclean natural, and corporeal. Sig.

—, 'The sole of the foot,' and 'the heel'=the ultimate Natural ; the 'shoe' is what invests them, wherefore it=what is still further natural, thus the Corporeal itself.

—^e. The ultimate Natural and Corporeal is the vessel of all things with man. Sig.

2041³. As at such times corporeal and worldly things are lulled, and as it were dead, even the unregenerate perceive something of heavenly light . . .

2119. After death, as soon as man's corporeals grow cold, which takes place after some days, he is resuscitated by the Lord . . .

2216. So long as there is such an affection in the Rational as manifests itself by laughter, so long is there something corporeal or worldly, thus merely human . . .

2333². When the ideas are held in the internal sense, the sense of the letter appears dim, and to the Angels as nothing, for the Angels are no longer in such worldly and corporeal things as are those of man . . . but in spiritual and celestial ones . . . and this from the correspondence of spiritual things with worldly ones, and of celestial things with corporeal ones . . .

2379^e. A man who is in good cannot perceive that he is in society with the Angels, nor can he perceive the angelic joy, because he is in corporeal things . . .

2380³. While man is still in corporeal things, he is in such general obscure idea and perception, that he hardly knows whether he is in the good of charity or not . . .

2411². If he reflects, he may know that in proportion as he is removed from corporeal and worldly things, he is in a spiritual idea . . . as when he is in any temptation, misfortune, or disease . . . For what is celestial and spiritual constantly inflows . . . but it is the evil and falsity which flow in from corporeal and worldly things which prevent its reception.

2494. Such men have angelic intelligence and wisdom stored up in the inmost of their interior memory, but this intelligence and wisdom can never appear to them until they put off corporeal things.

2621. The soul is the very being of man, and the sensitive or Corporeal is his manifesting . . .

2967². Before the corporeal things which are contrary to them are quiescent, as are those things which are of the love of self and of the world, the celestial and spiritual things which are of the affection of good and truth cannot flow in.

2973⁵. With those who are in corporeal and worldly love, good from the Lord cannot flow in through the soul into the body, but their interiors are in darkness. Sig. 3342^e.

3304². The influx which begins from the Divine is terminated in the lowest of the Natural, that is, in what is worldly and corporeal . . .

3345^e. Man cannot believe these things, because he does not think beyond worldly and corporeal things, and therefore supposes that the interior things with him are nothing, when yet they are everything, and the exterior, that is, the worldly and corporeal things, in which he places everything, are relatively scarcely anything.

3490. The Lord made His whole Human Divine, both the interior which is the Rational, and the exterior which is the Natural, and also the very Corporeal.

3632. The Divine and thence the heavenly order is not terminated except with man in his corporeal things, namely, in his gestures, actions, the expression of his face, his speech, his external sensations, and in their delights . . .

3665⁴. Some Knowledges flow in immediately through the good of the Rational, and thence into the good of the Natural, also into the truth of this good, and again thence into the external Natural or Corporeal, where they branch off into various streams. Some flow in mediately through the truth of the Rational into the truth of the Natural, also into the good of this truth, and again thence into the external Natural or Corporeal.

3693. Obliterated by corporeal things, which are such as extinguish those things which are of the perception in which is his interior man.

3778³. This good is of service to man for acquiring spiritual good, for it is external corporeal, and from external appearances . . . In childhood, man acknowledges nothing else to be true and good, for although he is taught what internal good and truth are, he has no other idea of them than a corporeal one.

3885. When I was in the light of Heaven, corporeal and worldly things appeared as it were beneath me : nevertheless I still perceived them, but as being more remote from me, and as not pertaining to me. I then seemed to be in Heaven with my head, but not with my body.

3928. The external man is such, that from himself he does not covet anything but corporeal and worldly things . . .

— The celestial Angels can never be with man in his corporeal and worldly delight until it is reduced to subservience, that is, that the corporeal and worldly delight is no longer the end in view, but is made subservient to heavenly delight . . . When this is done, the Angels can be with man in both, and then the delight becomes bliss . . .

4027². The idea of this will be obscure so long as man lives in the body, for the corporeal and worldly things in which he is, constantly pour forth shades, and keep the mind down in lower things.

4038². With man there are three things in general, namely, the Corporeal, the Natural, and the Rational; the Corporeal is outermost . . . In proportion as the first of these reigns, man is said to be corporeal . . . These three parts communicate together in a wonderful way, namely, the Corporeal with the Natural . . . When man is first born, he is merely corporeal . . . The Corporeal communicates with the Natural through sensuous things, and this distinctly through those things which pertain to the understanding and those which pertain to the will . . .

—³. There are external sensuous things through which man's Corporeal communicates with his Natural, and interior sensuous things through which man's Natural communicates with his Rational . . .

4221. There exhaled from him a kind of corporeal sphere; his speech was not like that of Spirits . . . In the same way there before appeared a certain person who was in appearance not like a Spirit, but like a grossly corporeal man . . .

4269^e. In the other life, where worldly and corporeal things are removed . . .

4345³. When man puts off the body . . . it becomes manifest to him that his corporeal things had been nothing but the most general things of his spirit, and that corporeal things existed and subsisted from those of his spirit . . .

4527². They then appear to themselves to be endowed with a body as in the world, and to enjoy every sense as there, but a purer and keener one, because corporeal things do not stand in the way . . . thus that they are in as it were a purified body . . . See D. 1956.

4618. When man dies, he does not die except as to that Corporeal which had served him for uses on earth; but he continues his life as to his spirit in the World where corporeal things are no longer of any use.

4622. The things of the other life . . . do not fall under the corporeal sense proper to man, but under that sense which is proper to those who are there.

—³. Corporeal things, which are relatively gross, had rendered the sensations comparatively dull.

—⁴. As soon as man dies, and the corporeal things with him grow cold . . .

—⁶. Those will not believe these things who are immersed in corporeal, earthly, and worldly things, that is, those of them who have these things as an end . . .

4642. 'Edom' = the Lord's Divine Human as to the Natural and the Corporeal . . . For doctrinal things are as a body to truth, or in the spiritual sense, are the corporeal things of natural truth . . . for doctrine is not in itself truth, but truth is in doctrine as the soul in its body.

4857³. They who are immersed in corporeal and earthly things do not know that there is anything spiritual and celestial . . .

5072. The subject treated of in this chapter (Gen. xl.) is the state of temptations through which corporeal things were to be reduced to correspondence. Corporeal things properly so called are sensuous things, which are of two kinds, some being subordinate to the intellectual, and some to the will part.

5077. The very Corporeal of man is nothing but a receptacle of sensations, consequently of life from them; the principal is the Sensitive, and the instrumental is the Corporeal; the instrumental, without its principal to which it is adapted, cannot even be called the Corporeal such as man carries about with him in the world, but the instrumental together with the principal, when they act as one; this, therefore, is the Corporeal.

5078². See BODY at this ref.

—⁴. (Use of the earthly Corporeal.)

5114². Almost as the Corporeal with man is quiescent in sleep . . .

5865. There appeared to him as it were a black mass with no life; this was the corporeal life of that man . . . It was said that the corporeal life of man who is in the good of faith . . . does not appear black, but woody, and of the colour of wood. See D. 2762. 4060.

5990. There are now many Spirits who want . . . to flow into man's speech and actions, thus into his corporeal things; when yet the corporeal things are exempted from the particular influx of Spirits and Angels, and are ruled through general influx . . . These Spirits are those who had been adulterers . . . and also those who had been cruel; the reason is, that both the former and the latter are corporeal and sensuous above all others . . .

5991. I saw Spirits who may be called corporeal ones, and who appeared as in a gross body . . . They are those who had been distinguished for their cleverness, and also in the sciences . . . As they had persuaded themselves that all things are of nature, they had closed their interiors more than others . . . Hence they appear grossly corporeal. 6318.

6318. There are men who are more than sensuous, being corporeal . . .

6928. The Spirits of our Earth, especially the recent ones, love corporeal and worldly things, that is, material things . . . Wherefore they are kept in the Lower Earth until they become averse to corporeal and earthly things, and so put them off . . .

6949. 'Became a serpent' = the sensuous and corporeal man separated from the internal . . . As 'a serpent' = what is sensuous, it also = what is corporeal, for the Sensuous has all that belongs to it from the senses of the body. 7293.

7293. The Sensuous and the Corporeal separated from the Rational, that is, not subordinated to it, is full of fallacies . . .

[A.] 8408³. 'The north' = the Sensuous and Corporeal of man, from which evil springs. It here treats of the end of the Church, when what is external, thus what is sensuous and corporeal, and therewith falsity and evil, have dominion . . .

8452³. It is called the delight of concupiscence when the delight of any corporeal or worldly love has dominion . . .

10283¹². 'The teeth' = the corporeal proprium, which is the lowest of man.

10378. The Spirits (of the third Earth) are upright; the reason is, that they are withheld from evils by their not loving to think about earthly and bodily things; for these things withdraw the mind from Heaven . . .

10396². The reason the Israelites were of such a character, was that they were wholly in corporeal and earthly loves . . .

10517. The Spirits of our Earth think little about heavenly things, and much about corporeal and earthly things.

H. 100^o. Thus it is the Corporeal of man in which Heaven ultimately ceases, and upon which it subsists as upon its own base.

115². After those times, man successively became external, and at last corporeal . . .

312^o. For from corporeal and worldly things, when they are loved so much as they now are, there flows in mere darkness . . .

481. He who has corporeal and worldly love, without heavenly, celestial and spiritual, goes to Hell. Gen.art.

— . Corporeal love is to love what is good, sincere, and just, not for the sake of these things, but for the sake of self . . .

—³. The interiors of those who are in corporeal love appear black, because they are closed . . .

—⁴. They who are in corporeal love see nothing in the light of Heaven . . .

—⁵. They who are in corporeal love cannot live at all in the heat of Heaven . . .

—⁶. They who are in corporeal love cannot breathe in Heaven . . . Hence it is evident, that corporeal and worldly love without celestial and spiritual is Hell with man . . .

W. 424. The love defiled in the understanding and by it, becomes natural, sensuous, and corporeal. Gen.art.

—². When that corporeal love drags back its understanding from its height . . .

—³. Hence it is evident what is the quality of those who are called corporeal men: they are not corporeal as to the understanding, but they are corporeal as to the love, that is, they are not corporeal as to the understanding when they are speaking in company, but when they are speaking to themselves in spirit; and as they are such in spirit, after death they become what are called corporeal Spirits as to both the love and the understanding . . .

M. 59. Every man when born is merely corporeal, and from corporeal becomes more and more interiorly natural, and thus rational, and at last spiritual; the reason he thus successively advances, is that the Corporeal is like ground into which natural, rational, and spiritual things are inserted in their order . . . In like manner (in marriage) he begins from what is corporeal, and proceeds into what is natural . . . They who then love corporeal natural things, and only rational things therefrom, cannot be conjoined with their consort as into a one, except as to those externals . . .

133. In a word, man is born as corporeal as worms, and remains corporeal, unless he learns from others how to know, understand, and be wise.

225. This conjugal sphere . . . with the Angels is celestial and spiritual, with men natural, with beasts and birds animal, with worms merely corporeal, and with plants is devoid of life.

269². Self-love, or the love of commanding others, is a corporeal love.

442^o. These last are called natural corporeal, the former natural sensuous, and the first natural.

447. Every man is born corporeal, becomes sensuous, then natural, etc. . . The reason he thus advances is in order that planes may be formed . . .

495. Adulteries from the purpose of the will, and those from the confirmation of the understanding, render man natural, sensuous, and corporeal. Gen.art.

496. There are three kinds of natural men . . . In the third degree are those who love only themselves, setting the heart in quest of honours; these are properly meant by the corporeal; the reason is, that they immerse in the body all things of the will and thence of the understanding . . .

T. 593. This will, which is formed by the man, may be called the corporeal will, because it actuates the body . . .

D. 1104. As soon as the interior corporeal things grow cold, they are separated from man . . .

1166^o. Corporeal things as it were drag down the ideas of the mind, and immerse them in corporeal things.

1224. What is merely corporeal is what words proximately contain; whence it is evident that those who place elegance merely in ambiguities, or in eloquence, or poetry, are only corporeal.

1309. In vivid dreams, corporeal things are separated, also those things which are next to corporeal things . . .

1424. They care nothing for earthly and corporeal things.

1669. They were unwilling to admit that they had ever been corporeal . . . 1684. 1685. 1686.

1670^o. Corporeal forms are circumstanced entirely according to the state of the atmospheres and of many things in the Earths in which they are.

1829. They who are corporeal, Spirits as well as men, namely, those with whom the phantasies and cupidities of the natural mind cohere with corporeal things . . .

1897. Things corporeal and worldly serve Spirits for a subject or receptacle, as it were, of the idea. 1898.

2191. That there are three, may be inferred from the degrees in the body; to the Corporeal, or sensuous Corporeal, are referred touch, taste, and smell... These relate to the corporeal things, or appetites... The hearing is merely sensuous corporeal; sight is sensuous natural...

2355. That Souls and Spirits take corporeal things with them into the other life.

2751. That man or human things, corporeal ones, are the ultimates of order.

—, I spoke with Spirits about man's corporeal or material things, that they are the ultimates of order... Hence it was given to conclude that the natural minds of man are the ultimates of order. 2754.

2762. On the regeneration of the corporeal or material things of man; how they are represented.

2780^e. Impressions about others cannot be shaken off in the other life until they come into Heaven, when such things as are corporeal and material are wiped away by the Lord.

2794. Everyone's corporeal and natural soul is formed in the life of the body. (See SOUL at this ref.)

2841. That natural and corporeal things, when separated from spiritual and celestial ones, grow putrid.

—, It was given to say to Spirits, that the joys of the world, worldly and corporeal things, separated from spiritual and celestial ones, are just like extravasations of blood...

2983. There exists a corporeal sphere, or that of the senses of the body, which is exterior, into which also I was let.

3100. On a place where there are corporeal delights, (that is, sports, dances, etc.).

3393. Unless this plane be given, that so corporeal things may be accommodated to those which are proximately interior, it is not granted by the Lord to be among the angelic ones as to the thoughts and affections.

3476. They who are corporeal, as they are especially on this Earth, cannot reason, so long as they are corporeal, except from corporeal and material things...

3852. See NATURAL at these refs. 3853. 3854. 3856.

4015. Hence it is evident that there must be death of corporeal things, even of the corporeal memory, in order that the Spirit may be presented.

4474. Wherever that Siren scattered her corporeal things, there at once appeared a sphere as of corporeal men, each of whom differed from Spirits even as to his steps: she thus continually descended into corporeal things, thus towards Hell. 4464.

4627². The Corporeal of man is that which sees earthly things... hears people speaking, tastes and relishes food, smells what floats in the air, and feels by the touch through the whole body; this is man's Corporeal; this dies and becomes a corpse, together with those things which proximately concur to produce these sensations. The Corporeal is also all action and gesture, also speech; and therefore the muscles and that which is properly called flesh.

4825. They cared for nothing but corporeal things, and the corporeal things of life... eating, drinking, playing, talking about such things... and I was told by the Angels that at this day most men are like this, wherefore they dwell in obscurity... and become corporeal.

5686. Men cannot apprehend interior things from corporeal ones... for there is no physical influx; and that they are more real than corporeal things they still less apprehend; thus neither that those real things are the human things themselves, and that corporeal ones are relatively ministrant, being formed for correspondence, and which, being lower and posterior, are less real than interior or higher things.

D. Min. 4594. On Spirits who appear as it were corporeal.

4747. On those who, in the other life, become sensuous corporeal.

Corpse. Cadaver.

Cadaverous. Cadaverosus.

A. 175. An aromatic odour, like that of an embalmed corpse: when the celestial Angels are present, what is cadaverous is perceived as aromatic. 1518. H.449.

814. They who bear interneecine hatred... are kept in the deepest cadaverous Hell, where there is a strong stench as from corpses: they prefer this stench to the most delightful odours. D.1279. 1288.

916^e. Such are like birds which fly round a carcase; for such faith is the bird, and the carcase is the man without charity.

949^e. They are of a livid colour, such as is that of corpses.

1124. There exhaled from them the sphere of a cadaverous stench. D.3356.

1153². With man, everything is dead, nay cadaverous.

1326. With those whose worship is called 'Babel,' there is no internal worship, but there is something dead, in fact cadaverous, within, which is worshipped.

1397^e. He smelt his own cadaverous stench.

1514². When the sphere of those who have lived in grievous hatred and revenge, and in cruelty, is turned into odours, there is a cadaverous stench. 1860.

1667^e. Where the carcase is, there are the eagles.

2057². As they exhale a filthy idea of self, their delight is there turned into a cadaverous stench, whereby they are made sensible of the Hell of self. 2363. 8945⁴. D.3660. 3665.

3900¹⁰. 'Whosoever the carcase is, there will the eagles be gathered together' (Matt.xxiv.28)=that confirmations of falsities through reasonings will be multiplied in the vastated Church. When the Church is devoid of the good and thence of the truth of faith... it is said to be dead... and therefore is compared to 'a carcase.' 3901^e.

4171. The actual evil which a man receives by his own fault is signified in the Word by 'a carcase'; hence in the Ancient and Jewish Churches, it was forbidden to eat what died of its own accord, or a carcase. Ill.

4417². They appeared with a ghastly face, as it were cadaverous, so that they might be called effigies of death. 4533. 4798. D.2580. 3455^e.

[A.] 4527². Falls back to the corpse . . .

—³. Some saw their own corpse through my eyes . . .

4631. Two or three times there breathed on me a cadaverous odour . . . It was from the Hell where were foul robbers, and assassins, and those who committed crimes with grievous deceit. . . When there was an excrementitious mingled with a cadaverous odour it came from the Hell where are adulterers who are also cruel. 7161⁴.

5394^e. From the caverns, there exhaled a cadaverous stench; the reason was that the cruel and deceitful were therein, to whom a cadaverous odour is most delightful.

5828⁴. That which has perished by evils is called 'a carcase.'

6978^e. 'A heap of carcasses, and no end of bodies' (Nahum iii.3)=that there are innumerable evils, and those who are in evils.

7319. Profaned truth there stinks like a corpse.

8530^e. Truth without good . . . is like a body without a soul . . . and if in place of good there is evil, it is like a corpse.

9809^e. 'He hath filled with dead bodies' (Ps.ex.6)=thus spiritual death, which is a total deprivation of truth and good.

9965⁴. 'To eat a carcase, and what has been torn' (Lev.xvii.15)=the appropriation of evil and falsity.

H. 488^e. They who have hankered for revenge, and have thence contracted a fierce and cruel nature, love cadaverous things; and are in such Hells.

C. J. 19^e. They who were in the neglect and contempt of truth appeared livid, like corpses.

W. 130^e. This heresy stinks there like a carcase. R.875³.

P. 282^e. If the understanding alone were healed, man would become like a corpse embalmed, or covered with spices and roses, which would soon derive a stench from the corpse.

R. 153¹². In the light of Heaven, satans appear like corpses.

T. 34^e. Man then becomes a spiritual corpse.

D. 323. When a man has led an evil life, he there emits a stench like that from a corpse . . .

2474. Works without faith are like a body without a soul, thus like a corpse . . .

3353^e. When they acted against love with interior deceit . . . the Spirits fled, and cried out that they could not endure so cadaverous an odour . . .

3968^e. On cadaverous Spirits.

4336. Like ravens to a carcase.

4337^e. Where the carcase is, there are the ravens.

4464. Sirens at last become like corpses . . . and have a cadaverous smell, which they carry about with them; the reason is, that they desire nothing else than to return into worldly and corporeal things.

4720. They sit on coffins, in which there are corpses: some sit on the corpses themselves; some on the bones; in that light they also appear like ghastly corpses; because they adore what is dead, and deny what is alive.

5200. They are at last sent into Hell, where they lie like corpses, some in bed, some on the earth; and there they are as it were half-dead, with ghastly faces, for 10, 50, 100, 1000, 2000 years . . . 5634.

5996. On a cadaverous bosom from the violation of marriage . . . Such violaters are in the cadaverous Hell.

E. 355²³. Those are called 'slain' who have perished by falsities; and those 'corpses,' who have perished by evils. 405⁴⁶.

† 386^e. Occurs. 388¹⁵. 650⁶². 655⁵. 1100²².

481⁴. 'A dead body' (Jer.xxxvi.30)=the man of the Church without spiritual life, which he has through truths from the Word, on the extinction of which life he lusts for nothing but falsities, and is averse to truths; thus he becomes dead, and, in the spiritual sense, a corpse.

619¹⁸. 'In its carcase he found a swarm of bees and honey' (Judg.xiv.8)=that after that faith has been dissipated, in its place there succeeds the good of charity.

659^e. Nothing is more delightful than a cadaverous stench to those who have been assassins and poisoners, also to those who have perceived delight in violating women.

659²⁰. 'A carcase trodden under foot' (Is.xiv.19)=an infernal Spirit with whom everything is spiritually dead, in consequence of good being utterly destroyed.

Correspond. Correspondere.

Correspondence. Correspondentia.

Correspondently. Correspondenter.

See REPRESENT.

A. 747. 'Two and two' (Gen.vii.9)=correspondence. They cannot be pairs unless they correspond to each other . . .

911. Like corresponding things with the external man. Sig. and Ex.

—². The correspondence of the external man to the internal. Ex. 1461. 1568. 1717². 1900. 2967², Ex. 3223^e. 3304^e. 3425², Ex. 3493². 3504^e, Sig. 3539². 3993³.

— . Then, as in Heaven, so in man, externals correspond with internals, that is, obey them.

—^e. There is then no correspondence, or obedience, of the externals . . .

925². (Good and truth) correspond to sweet odours . . .

978². With every man there is a Celestial and Spiritual which corresponds to the angelic Heaven; a Rational which corresponds to the Heaven of angelic Spirits; and an interior Sensuous which corresponds to the Heaven of Spirits. — .

1159. Such is the correspondence of the tongue with man's intellectual part, or with thought.

1414^e. With Him alone was there a most perfect correspondence of all things of the body with the Divine . . .

1458. Such is the correspondence of light and of intellectual things in Heaven.

1476. Scientifics become ultimate vessels which correspond to rational things, rational things to spiritual ones, and spiritual ones to celestial ones.

1831. Parallelism and correspondence as to celestial things, (but not as to spiritual). Sig. 1832, Ex. 1862. 2935², Ex.

—°. As they mutually correspond to each other, as an active and a passive, it is called correspondence.

1900². The celestial and spiritual things of the internal man find no correspondence for themselves, except in truths . . .

2162⁸. 'Earth'=all lower things corresponding to them; as lower rational and natural things, of which, from correspondence, celestial and spiritual things are also predicated . . .

2269³. (Good and truth) mutually correspond to each other; according to the correspondence, conjunction is effected. 4247.

2333². This from the correspondence of spiritual things with worldly ones, and of celestial things with corporeal ones; which correspondence is most constant . . .

—³. (Examps. to show) the nature of correspondence, or, what is the same thing, how worldly and corporeal ideas pass over into corresponding spiritual and celestial ideas, when they are elevated to Heaven.

2466². This from the correspondence there is between spiritual and natural things.

2542. The correspondence there is between hearing and obeying; which correspondence is hidden in the very word hear . . . The origin of this correspondence is in the other life, where they who are obedient correspond to hearing.

2567⁸. Partly by correspondence, partly by representatives, and partly by significatives.

2728. Evident from influx and correspondence. Ex.

2763². Besides representatives, there are also correspondents . . . In the World of Spirits, these things not only represent; they correspond . . .

2853². All parts of the human body correspond to the Societies in Heaven . . . 2996.

2899. By means of this style, they correspond . . .

2973⁴. The Lord disposes the circuits to correspondence with the inmosts . . .

2987. On representations and correspondences. Gen.art. 3213. 3337. 3472.

—°. Between spiritual and natural things there are correspondences, but those which come forth from spiritual things into natural ones are representations: correspondences are so called because they correspond, and representations because they represent. 2988, Examp. 2989. 2990.

2992. There is nothing in the natural world . . . which does not represent something in the Spiritual World, or which has not something there to which it corresponds. Examp. 2993.

—°. They led my thoughts through the spiritual things to which (the viscera) correspond . . .

2994. The representatives and correspondences in the external man do not appear like the things to which they correspond in the internal man . . . Blessed, after death, is he who is in correspondence, that is, whose external man corresponds to his internal.

2995⁶. As there was no longer correspondence, Heaven was closed.

2996⁶. Those in Hell are out of the Grand Man, and correspond, (not to organs, but) to filths, blemishes, and diseases. 4225. 4227³.

2997. The soul has correspondence with the external man, and the correspondence is such that . . .

3001. To that life the recipients correspond. . . This correspondence is that of life with the recipients of life. Those men who are in love and charity are in correspondence . . . but those who are in what is contrary to love and charity are not in correspondence . . . 3484.

3057⁸. Then the things which are general in the natural man are disposed by the Lord to correspondence with things in Heaven. Refs.

3131². Angels have spiritual ideas corresponding to these natural ones. That such is the correspondence of natural and spiritual things and thence ideas. Refs.

3138. If there is correspondence, the apperception of truth (is caused); if there is not correspondence, the apperception of falsity.

3147⁷. In order that the Natural may receive correspondently . . .

3224. With these persons there is correspondence.

3225. There is correspondence between the things of the light of Heaven and those of the light of the world, that is, between the things of the internal and those of the external man; and representation is whatever exists in those things which are of the light of the world . . .

3286⁴. The chief work of regeneration is to make the natural man correspond to the rational . . . When it obeys, it corresponds; and in proportion as it corresponds, man is regenerated.

3349. (Refs. to the subject of correspondences and representations.)

3425. The things in the letter are not opposite, because they correspond . . .

3464². Then he has in himself correspondence . . . The bread and wine in the Holy Supper correspond . . . and as there is such correspondence, there flows in through the Angels from Heaven . . .

3484. To this life correspond forms which are substances . . . This is the correspondence of the organs with the life . . .

3493². The Rational then appears to be darkened, because there is no correspondence (with the Natural). Ex.

3504. A life corresponding to the Rational. Sig.

3507². There is such a correspondence . . . through the Word . . .

[A.] 3540°. All the laws in the Word have correspondence with the laws of good and truth which are in Heaven.

3570°. Because they correspond, they are similarly circumstanced.

3624. On the correspondence of all man's organs and members, both interior and exterior, with the Grand Man. Gen.art. 3630. 3741. 3745°. 3883. 4039. 4218. 4280°. 4318. 4403. 4523. 4622. 4652. 4791. 4931. 5050. 5377. 5552. 5711.

— The universal Heaven is so formed as to correspond to the Lord, to His Divine Human; and man is so formed as to correspond to Heaven, and through Heaven, to the Lord. 4044°.

3626. Through this correspondence . . . the Angels know the most secret things in man, in the world, and in universal nature . . .

3628. Not only the things of the mind . . . correspond to spiritual and celestial things, but also the whole man in general, so that there is not the smallest part of him which does not correspond; hence man comes into existence, and subsists . . . 3629. 3883°. 4223°.

—². Unless to these forces there corresponded internal forces . . .

—³. Unless there were interior modifications . . . to which correspond the exterior modifications which are of the air . . . Unless there were interior light . . . to which corresponds the exterior light . . .

3629°. The more Societies there are, the better and stronger is the correspondence . . . 4800.

3632. Correspondences teach their qualities . . .

—^c. Spiritual things are effigied in natural acts correspondently . . .

3634. The man who is in correspondence . . . is in Heaven as to his spirit . . .

3636°. From this universal correspondence, are derived all the rest.

3637. He put on the Human . . . in order that the universal Heaven . . . might correspond to Him alone.

3646. With brute animals the case is similar as to correspondences . . .

3660°. He was to implant in the Natural such good and truth as would correspond with the good and truth of the Divine Rational; without corresponding goods and truths there is no conjunction.

3679°. When the Natural corresponds, the man is rational . . . but when it does not correspond, he is not rational. Ex. . . Hence it is evident, that every man thinks according to the state of correspondence . . . of the Natural with the Rational. (The same with Spirits.)

3735°. Such is the correspondence (between the thoughts of men and those of the Angels. 4104. 4373°. 5329°) . . . Hence the man who reads the Word holily, is, through such correspondences, closely conjoined with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord . . .

3883. The correspondence is that of the Lord's Divine with the celestial and spiritual things in Heaven, and of these celestial and spiritual things with the natural things which are in the world; principally, with those with man . . .

3884. The left part of the brain corresponds to intellectual things, and the right to voluntary. 4052.

—². The breathing of Heaven . . . through a marvellous correspondence, inflows into man's breathing.

—⁴. The cardiac pulsations of Heaven have correspondence with the heart . . . and the respirations of Heaven have correspondence with the lungs . . .

3888. The will is that to which correspond the pulsations of the heart, and the understanding is that to which corresponds the breathing of the lungs.

3889. There is a correspondence of celestial things with the motions of the heart, and of spiritual things with those of the lungs. Ex.

3906. Until external truths are adapted to correspondence with internal.

3928. Are reduced to agreement and correspondence through temptations . . .

3934°. When they correspond, works are of either charity or faith.

3938. (Divine things comprehended only by correspondence.)

3969. The interior man as to goods and truths is as it were dead, if the natural man does not correspond to him as to goods and truths. Refs. 3993°.

4041°. Hence is man's correspondence with the Heavens.

4044. When spiritual things are rightly represented in natural, they correspond. 4053°.

— (The possibility and nature of correspondences, explained.) 4053.

—^c. Nothing can subsist from itself, but from another, and this again from another, and at last from the First; and this by the connection of correspondences. 5377.

4045. As there is such a correspondence . . .

4067°. There is no genus or species of good and truth, to which angelic Societies do not correspond; and there is no genus or species of evil and falsity, to which diabolical Societies do not correspond.

4104°. They are corresponding representatives.

4121. Wherefore they correspond.

4154. The goods and truths of the external man are of three degrees, and they correspond to the internal ones . . .

4215°. This is from correspondence.

— There is a correspondence of the internals with all things of the face . . . There is a correspondence of the thoughts and affections with the acts and gestures . . . Because such external acts correspond, they are signs of internal things . . . 5323.

4223. The Heavens do indeed correspond to the organic forms of the body . . . but still they chiefly correspond to the functions of these organs. Ex. . . It is the functions to which they chiefly correspond, and because there are functions, there are also organic forms to which they correspond . . . Hence there is a correspondence with the organs, because there is with the functions. 4653°. W.324.

4280³. Through the knowledge (of correspondences), man has communication with Heaven.

4318. It is the chief of the intelligence of the Angels to know that the universal Heaven corresponds to His Divine Human, and consequently that all Angels, Spirits, and men correspond to Heaven; and also to know and perceive how they correspond.

4323^e. Still, man is continually held in correspondence with Heaven by the Lord . . .

4330. Not only do external things correspond to the Grand Man, but also internal ones, thus both those of the external and those of the internal man. The Societies . . . to which correspond the things of the external man, are to a large extent from this Earth . . .

4366². That spiritual and civil life correspond . . .

4373^o. Such are the perpetual correspondences, which cause the Word to be Divine and holy.

4387². They receive ideas from the spiritual things which correspond to them . . . This is the effect of correspondences . . .

4403^e. According to correspondence with the sensories, 4404, Ex. 4406.

4434⁶. In the Word all things are real correspondences . . . and are continuous through the three Heavens from the Lord. 4442^e. 8989^e. 9272².

4523. (The ear corresponds to the air and to sound; the eye is formed correspondently to the modifications of the ether and of light; and all the organs and viscera correspond to the things which are in nature.)

4524^e. Therefore everything in the Spiritual World, and thus everything in man, corresponds to Him.

4525. Hence it is evident, that especially with man there is a correspondence of all things with the Spiritual World, and that without this correspondence he could not subsist a moment, for without correspondence there would be no continuity from the very being of life . . . The reason correspondence is more immediate and close in man's case . . . 4931.

4624^o. (The correspondences in common speech.) H. 97, Examps.

4652. The nature of the correspondence between the soul and the body . . . may be seen from the correspondence . . . of thought . . . with speech. Ex.

4653^o. The interiors of man's discourse have for the most part originated through correspondence . . .

4791. There is not the least thing with man with which there is not correspondence.

4793. Things which correspond act as one.

—³. The taste depends on these interior things, through correspondence.

4814^o. Everything in the Word is turned, with the Angels, into a corresponding sense. 7112^o.

4964. (Acquaintance of the ancients with correspondences.) 4966, Examps. 5223. 7729⁸. 9293³. 9391⁸. 10407. S. 21. P. 255², Des. E. 700²⁴.

—². (Magic arose from the abuse of correspondences.) 5223². 6692². 7097. 7296, Ex. 10355⁴.

5072. The reduction of the very corporeals to correspondence. Tr. 5122². 5128⁶.

5116². Such see that all things correspond, and that because they correspond, they represent.

5131. 'When it is well with thee'=when there is correspondence.

— . There is a correspondence of sensuous things with natural ones; there is a correspondence of natural things with spiritual ones; and there is a correspondence of spiritual things with celestial ones; and, finally, there is a correspondence of celestial things with the Lord's Divine: thus there is a succession of correspondences from the Divine down to the ultimate Natural.

—². (Correspondences may be thus explained.) The effect must correspond to the cause, and the cause must correspond to the end . . . and, as they correspond, the end can be in the cause and actuate it, and the cause can be in the effect and actuate it; consequently, the end, through the cause, can actuate the effect. It is otherwise when there is no correspondence . . . Everything in man and in nature is successive, like end, cause, and effect; and when they thus correspond to each other, they act as one. Examps.

—^o. Hence it is evident, that the interior and exterior things of man . . . must be reduced to correspondence . . .

5133. By communication with the interior Natural, is meant conjunction through correspondence. Sig.

—². If there is not correspondence . . .

5146^o. How the case is with the correspondence of interiors in exteriors . . .

5168². That which alone subordinates and reduces the Natural to correspondence, is good in which there is innocence; which is called 'charity.'

5208². How the correspondence between the Spiritual and the Natural with man is effected. Ex. 5342².

5329^o. As there is a correspondence of all things in the world with those which are in Heaven . . . 5377. Enum. 7112². 7384.

5377^o. Hence it is, that as man corresponds, so he appears there. 5387^o.

5409. 'The ten brethren of Joseph'=such truths of the Church as correspond.

5420. There was not as yet correspondence, and, through correspondence, conjunction. 5423, Sig. 5427.

5423^o. Correspondence is the appearing of what is internal in what is external, and its representation there.

5427³. Hence, to the exterior man who is not in correspondence, the interior appears as nothing . . . But when there is correspondence, the exterior man sees through the medium what is in the interior . . . 5428.

5492². When the correspondences are understood instead.

5511. No conjunction, on account of non-correspondence. Sig. and Ex.

5552. The things in man which have the greatest life, correspond to those Societies in the Heavens which have the greatest life and happiness . . .

5614³. The least thing has its correspondence . . .

The Spiritual and the Natural act as one through correspondence.

[A.] 565¹. The Natural is subjugated when it is reduced to correspondence; and when the Natural is reduced to correspondence, it reacts no more . . . 6454.

5711. The correspondence of diseases. Gen.art.

6052. (Correspondences were especially cultivated in Egypt, and were perverted to magic.) P.255².

6232³. One thing in the natural world corresponds to thousands and thousands in the Spiritual World . . .

6319. The influx of the Angels with man . . . is according to correspondences . . . Thus do spiritual things fall into their correspondents, consequently into their representatives, with man. Examp.

— Correspondences in dreams.

—^e. The intercourse of the soul with the body is such as is the influx of the Spiritual World into the natural . . . thus is according to correspondences.

6943. Man does not apprehend naked spiritual things . . . wherefore they are described by corresponding natural things. 694S⁴.

6948². The Divine truth . . . excites correspondents in their order . . .

7290. Correspondences, representatives, and significatives conjoin the natural world with the Spiritual World.

7296. 'The wise ones' = those who were in the knowledge of spiritual things, and of their correspondences with natural ones.

7850. A spiritual correspondent is not understood; and the term significative is understood to mean something quite different from a corresponding significative; the fact however being, that a spiritual or significative correspondent is conjoined with that to which it corresponds, as man's sight is with his eye . . .

8610. Correspondence with truth in the first of order. Sig. . . For interior things are conjoined with exterior ones, and, finally, with ultimate ones, through correspondences . . . But if there is not correspondence, there is disjunction.

8615³. Correspondences have all force, so that what is done on earth according to correspondences has power in Heaven; for correspondences are from the Divine. Those who are in the good of love and of faith are in correspondences, and the Divine effects all things with them . . . All the miraeles of the Word were effected through correspondences. The Word is so written, that every most minute thing therein corresponds to the things in Heaven; hence the word has Divine force; and conjoins Heaven with the earth . . . 9357. 9393⁴.

8750². The correspondence of states there with times in the world . . .

8778. Correspondence and conjunction. Sig. and Ex.

—². There can be no correspondence, unless, through subordination, lower things are subjected to higher ones . . .

8812^e. Natural things come into existence from spiritual ones as effects from their causes; hence there is a correspondence of all things in the world with the things in Heaven.

8870². Such things are the abuses of correspondences there. Sig.

8904. The correspondence is such that what is spiritual is represented in what is natural . . .

9272². Such things in the world have been created according to correspondences; for (all the objects of) universal nature correspond to such things in the Spiritual World.

9280². All things in the world correspond; and, according to correspondences, represent and signify spiritual and celestial things . . . Refs.

9300³. Man thinks justly, even about the things of faith and love, when he thinks from correspondences; for correspondences are natural truths, in which, as in mirrors, are represented spiritual truths . . .

9396³. Into this correspondence has man been created . . .

9407⁴. Their chief knowledge was the knowledge of correspondences . . . H.87.

9670². To the angels of the inmost Heaven correspond those things with man . . .

9739. From the correspondence of Divine things in Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

10181³. Between the things in an interior degree and those in an exterior one, there is no likeness, except through correspondences.

10199². Hence it is evident what correspondence is, and what is the nature of it.

10297. Correspondence in every way. Sig.

10355³. (In the Silver Age) information about heavenly things . . . was conveyed through such things as are called correspondences and representations . . . M.76, Des.

—⁵. The Word is written by pure correspondences. 10604³. 10632⁴. 10687. H.1 (d), Refs.

10517^e. Man loves those things which correspond to his interior affections, although, while he lives in the world, he does not know it.

10604². Between spiritual and natural ideas there is a correspondence; and through correspondence the former are turned into the latter when man speaks.

10633. Each and all things in the natural world have correspondence with the things in the Spiritual World, and this down to every single word; and the Word is so written, that the words in their series involve series of spiritual things, which do not appear to man unless he knows correspondences . . .

H. 87. There is a correspondence of all things of Heaven with all things of man. Gen.art. T.65.

— The knowledge of correspondences is angelic knowledge.

— The most ancients, like the Angels, thought from correspondence itself; and therefore spoke with them. H.115. S.21.

88. As, without a perception of what correspondence is, nothing about the Spiritual World can be known in light . . . nor about the soul of man and its operation into the body ; nor about man's state after death . . .

[H.] 89. What correspondence is, explained. The whole natural world corresponds to the Spiritual World ; not only in general, but also in particular ; wherefore, whatever in the natural world comes forth from the Spiritual World is called a correspondent.

90^e. Therefore, whatever comes forth in the body from the mind is called a correspondent.

91. The nature of correspondence may be seen by man's face . . . Therefore, those things which take place in the body, whether in the face, speech, or gestures, are called correspondences.

93. We now treat of the correspondence of the whole Heaven with the individual things of man.

94. The Societies in any member correspond to the same member in man . . . From this correspondence, man subsists.

96. The correspondence of the two Kingdoms of Heaven with the heart and lungs is the general correspondence of Heaven with man ; a less general one is that with each of the members, organs, and viscera. Examps.

—c. The influx of Heaven is into the functions and uses of the members . . . Thence is the correspondence.

100. But correspondence extends itself more widely ; for there is a correspondence of the Heavens among themselves : to the third Heaven corresponds the second Heaven ; and to the second Heaven corresponds the first Heaven ; and this corresponds to the bodily forms in man . . .

101. All the correspondence there is with Heaven is with the Lord's Divine Human . . . for unless the Divine Human inflowed into Heaven, and, according to correspondences, into all things of the world, there could be no Angels or men.

103. There is a correspondence of Heaven with all things of the Earth. Gen.art. . . All things of the Earth, and, in general, all things of the world, are correspondences. H. 303².

104. The things in the animal kingdom are correspondences in the first degree, because they are alive ; those in the vegetable kingdom are correspondences in the second degree, because they only grow ; and those in the mineral kingdom are correspondences in the third degree, because they neither live nor grow. (The correspondences in the three kingdoms enum.) Besides these, the things prepared from them by human industry are correspondences. Enum.

105. (The heavenly bodies, and all atmospheric phenomena are correspondences ; and so are all things which proceed from the sun ; the seasons, and the times of the day.)

106. In a word, all things which come forth in nature, from the least to the greatest of it, are correspondences. The reason they are correspondences, is that the natural world . . . comes forth and subsists from the Spiritual World, and both from the Divine. —(i.), Refs.

107. Everything is a correspondent which comes forth and subsists in nature by Divine order. 108, Ex.

3 H

109^e. Often when in gardens I have looked at trees, fruits, flowers, and vegetables, I have noticed the correspondences in Heaven . . .

110. No one can now know the spiritual things in Heaven to which natural things correspond, except from Heaven, because the knowledge of correspondences is now utterly lost. But I will illustrate the nature of the correspondence of spiritual things with natural ones. Examps.

112. How the conjunction of Heaven with the world is effected, through correspondences. Ex. . . Hence it is evident, that the correspondence of natural things with spiritual ones, or that of the world with Heaven, is through uses . . . and that the forms with which uses are clothed are so far correspondences . . . as they are forms of uses. Examps.

113. All things which are contrary to Divine order, correspond to Hell.

114. The knowledge of correspondences and its use. Ex. . . Hence, through correspondences, there is given to man communication with Heaven . . . wherefore, when man is in the knowledge of correspondences, he can be together with the Angels as to the thoughts . . . In order that there may be a conjunction of Heaven with man, the Word has been written by pure correspondences . . . wherefore, if man were in the knowledge of correspondences, he would understand the Word as to its spiritual sense . . .

115. After the most ancient times, there succeeded those who did not think from correspondences themselves, but from the knowledge of correspondences . . . Afterwards, there succeeded those who did indeed know correspondences, but did not think from the knowledge of them . . . After these times, the knowledge of correspondences was quite lost . . . S. 23.

116. The Spiritual in which is Heaven is above nature, and is entirely distinct from the Natural ; nor do they communicate together, except through correspondences.

117. In the Heavens all things come forth from the Lord according to correspondences with the interiors of the Angels . . .

118. The garments with which the Angels are clothed, like all other things, correspond ; and as they correspond, they really exist.

186. Not only the palaces and houses, but each and all things within and without them, correspond to the interior things which are from the Lord with the Angels . . .

207^e. A Society of a higher Heaven has no communication with one of a lower, except through correspondences ; and communication through correspondences is what is called influx.

262. (In the Heavens,) words, both spoken and written, correspond to the ideas of their thought ; and all correspondence is natural and spontaneous.

300. With the natural or external man, there is a conjunction (of Heaven) through correspondences.

306^e. The thought of the Angels is spiritual, and that of man is natural ; these thoughts . . . are one, because they correspond. S. 67^e.

356, App. 12. Between the things in the internal and external man there is correspondence; therefore they everywhere appear under another form; so that they cannot be distinguished except through the knowledge of correspondences. N.34.

394. Everyone in Heaven has his work according to correspondence; but the correspondence is not with the work, but with the use of each work. He who, in Heaven, is in a function or work corresponding to his use, is in a state of life entirely similar to that in which he was in the world, for what is spiritual and what is natural act as one through correspondences . . .

418. This correspondence (of Heaven with man) can never be filled up. Ex.

426. The varieties of the duration (of stay in the World of Spirits) arise from the correspondence or non-correspondence of the interiors and exteriors.

430². The correspondence of man with Heaven and Hell. Ex. . . His rational mind, while in process of formation, corresponds to the World of Spirits; the things above, to Heaven; and those below, to Hell . . .

485. Everyone's delights of life, after death, are turned into corresponding ones. Gen.art. 487. 488. 489. 490.

487. There is nothing natural to which something spiritual does not correspond. 23, Enum.

—^e. In proportion as he apprehends from the knowledge of correspondences, he may know what will be the state of his life after death.

489². Such see Divine things in every object; they do indeed see the objects, but the Divine correspondents at once flow into their minds . . . —^d.

498. With everyone (in the Spiritual World,) the exteriors and interiors must act as one and correspond . . .

571^e. All things which appear in the Spiritual World, appear according to correspondences.

580. The abuse of correspondences (by infernal Spirits).

N. 261. The Word is written by correspondences, and thus by representatives. (Refs. to passages on this subject.) W.H.12.

C. J. 23^e. All the visible things of the Spiritual World are correspondences of the affections which are with Spirits and Angels. F.63². W.343. E.575³.

S. 7. The distinction between these degrees cannot be known, unless correspondence is known; for they are entirely distinct . . . but make one through correspondences; for the Natural corresponds to the Spiritual, and also to the Celestial. De Verbo 3^a.

8. As the Word is interiorly spiritual and celestial, it is written by pure correspondences; and what is written by pure correspondences, is in the ultimate sense written in a style like that of the Prophets and Evangelists . . .

20. In the most ancient times, the science of correspondences was the science of sciences; and was so universal, that all their manuscripts and books were written by correspondences; the Book of Job . . . is full of correspondences. The hieroglyphics . . . and mythologies . . . were nothing else. All the rites and statutes of the Ancient and Israelitish Churches consisted of pure correspondences. Enum. M.182². 532².

—^e. The Lord spoke by correspondences, because He spoke from His Divine; for what is from the Divine, falls, in nature, into such things as correspond to the Divine ones . . .

21. Enoch, with his associates, collected correspondences from their lips . . .

— (The countries enumerated in which correspondences were cultivated.) 102.

22. When correspondences were turned into idolatry and magic, the knowledge of them was providentially obliterated.

24. The reason why the knowledge of correspondences was not disclosed (to the first Christian Church), was that the Christians in the primitive Church were very simple . . . and after those times darkness covered the universal Christian world from the papal dominion . . . and after the Reformation they began to divide faith from charity, and to worship three gods . . .

26. Man can do violence to the spiritual sense, if he is in the knowledge of correspondences . . . for by some correspondences known to him he can pervert it . . .

56. No one comes into the spiritual sense through correspondences, unless he is first in genuine truths from doctrine; for man can falsify the Word through some correspondences known to him . . . De Verbo 21.

67^e. Conjunction itself through correspondences is such from creation.

102. The ancient Word was written by pure correspondences . . . But as that Word was full of such correspondences as remotely signified celestial and spiritual things, and therefore began to be falsified . . . another Word, written by correspondences not so remote, was given . . .

— The wisdom of the ancients was from the knowledge of correspondences, and through it they had interior perception and communication with the Heavens. They who knew the correspondences of the ancient Word interiorly, were called the wise and intelligent; and afterwards, diviners and magi.

W. 52. Each and all things in the created universe have such a correspondence with each and all things of man, that it may be said that man too is a kind of universe: there is a correspondence of his affections and thence of his thoughts with all things of the animal kingdom; of his will and thence of his understanding, with all things of the vegetable kingdom; and of his ultimate life, with all things of the mineral kingdom . . . In the Spiritual World, there are all things which exist in the natural world in its three kingdoms, and they are correspondences of the affections and thoughts . . . as well as of the ultimate things of life, of those who are there . . . 324.

83. The two worlds communicate only through correspondences. Examp.

—². These make one through correspondence.

87. Love and fire correspond to each other.

— All the externals (of the Angels) are the correspondences of their internals; but they are spiritual and not natural correspondences.

88. Influx takes place through correspondences, and cannot possibly do so through continuity.

90°. The communication (between the two worlds) . . . is as between prior and posterior ; between which no communication is possible, except through correspondences, Ex.

93. Spiritual fire is the Divine love and wisdom in its first correspondence.

95°. Heat and light are procedents, and because they are procedents, they are also correspondences.

101°. The correspondence is plenary . . . W.413°.

185°. Without Knowledge of these degrees, nothing can be known . . . about the difference between what is spiritual and what is natural, therefore nothing about correspondence.

202°. There is such a difference of affections and thoughts, and therefore of speech, between the Angels of the higher and lower Heavens . . . that communication is made only through the correspondences which exist through the immediate influx of the Lord into all the Heavens, and through mediate influx through the highest Heaven into the lowest.

218. Endeavour acts only through forces corresponding to itself. . . Endeavour, force, and motion are no otherwise conjoined than according to degrees of height . . . the conjunction of which is through correspondences.

219°. To act discretely is to act through correspondences.

221. As these senses are in the Word according to the three degrees of height, and conjunction between them is effected through correspondences . . .

238. The spiritual degree . . . communicates with the natural degree only through correspondences, and communication through correspondences is not sensibly felt. 252°, Ex.

—°. As communication between the three degrees is possible only through correspondences, the differences of love, wisdom, and use according to these degrees are such that . . .

256. Through correspondence with the two higher degrees, the natural degree, while elevated, appears to be discrete. Gen.art.

295°. Natural and Spiritual differ according to degrees of height, and do not communicate with each other, except through correspondences. Ex.

322°. The reason why objects there come forth and change, is that they all come forth according to the affections and derivative thoughts of the Angels, for they are correspondences ; and as the things which correspond make one with that to which they correspond, they are a representative image of it. The real image itself does not appear when all these things are regarded in their forms, but in their uses. . . When the Angels have seen these things from the correspondence of the uses, they have recognized themselves in them.

341. Influx from Hell operates the things which are evil uses in places where there are things that correspond. Gen.art.

343°. Wherefore, when affections or cupidities . . . meet homogeneous or corresponding things in earths, a Spiritual is present which gives a soul, and a material which gives a body . . .

—°. The Spiritual World is not in space, but wherever there is a corresponding affection.

371. On the correspondence of the will with the heart, and of the understanding with the lungs. Gen.art.

374. (From this correspondence) there is a correspondence of all things of the mind with all things of the body. Gen.art. . . Correspondence is between spiritual things and natural, and their conjunction is effected by it. (Examps. of correspondence.)

—°. Therefore he could not but think that . . . correspondence is something which flows in by continuity.

377. (Refs. to passages on the subject of correspondence.)

390. The conjunction of man's spirit with the body is through the correspondence of his will and understanding with his heart and lungs ; and disjunction is through non-correspondence. Gen.art.

394. From the correspondence of the heart with the will, and of the understanding with the lungs, may be known all things that can be known about the will and understanding, or about love and wisdom ; thus about man's soul. Gen.art. 412.

412°. They are correspondences, for they act correspondently, or synchronously . . . And as they are correspondences, the one can be seen in the other.

413°. To see from correspondence is to see the lungs from the understanding, and the understanding from the lungs, and thus to have confirmation from both at once.

P. 40°. Unclean correspondents affect the evil, and clean correspondents affect the good.

181. All things of the mind correspond to all things of the body . . . T.38°.

219°. The Lord conjoins man with Himself through correspondences. Ex.

220°. Man then puts on spiritual and eternal things corresponding to them.

—°. The Lord conjoins Himself with uses through correspondences. Ex. . . All things of the Word are correspondences . . . and as they are correspondences, they are also appearances . . .

255°. (Origin of idolatry from correspondences.) M.342°.

R. 400°. There is a correspondence between a man and a tree.

772°. Such correspondence is from creation.

875°. In that World all things take place and come forth, and are also changed, according to correspondences. Examp. M.76°.

943°. The state of Spirits and Angels is spiritual, and that of men is natural ; which two states are consociated solely through correspondences ; and consociation through correspondences does indeed effect that they are together in affections, but not in thoughts . . .

M. 62. There is a correspondence of this love with the marriage of the Lord and the Church. Gen.art.

116. On the marriage of the Lord and the Church, and its correspondence. Chap.

532². The correspondences of which the spiritual sense consists are now unfolded . . . in order to effect the conjunction of the men of the Church with Him, and consociation with the Angels . . .

T. 75⁵. (One of the universal Knowledges for understanding creation, is) that there is a correspondence between the things in the Spiritual World and those in the natural.

78². All these things which thou hast seen, are correspondences of the affections of love of the Angels who are near. Des.

—³. Because He is omnipresent, there are such correspondences of the affections of His love and wisdom in the whole natural world ; but in our World, which is called the Spiritual World, there are like correspondences with those who receive affections and perceptions from God . . .

203. That the knowledge of correspondences was long preserved with the nations in Asia. Examp.

204^o. Correspondences are representations of spiritual and celestial things in natural ones.

207. Why the knowledge of correspondences is now revealed.

238. Such correspondence is from creation, to the end that the Angelic Heaven and the Church on earth, and in general the Spiritual World and the natural world, should make one, and that the Lord should conjoin Himself with both at once.

375². There is nothing in the mind to which something in the body does not correspond, and that which corresponds may be called its embodiment.

388². In the Spiritual World all things appear at a distance according to correspondences ; and when they appear in forms, they are called representations of spiritual things in objects like those which are natural.

583. With man, there is a perpetual correspondence between those things which take place naturally and those which take place spiritually . . .

698. Without acquaintance with the correspondences of natural things with spiritual ones, no one can know the uses and benefits of the Holy Supper. Gen.art. 702.

— . He who knows correspondences, may know the spiritual sense.

Hist. Crea. (Gen.ii.9). There is nothing on earth to which something in Heaven does not correspond.

D. 186. There is a correspondence of all things, which can be turned into delights through various correspondences.

1666. The things on the left side of the brain correspond to those on the right in the body . . .

1714. Hence, for the sake of correspondences, come the representations of spiritual and celestial things with corporeal and material ones.

1830. Universals correspond to those things which are in man, otherwise singulars could not subsist. Gen.art.

2157^o. The faultiness . . . of the natural mind must harmoniously correspond . . . and without correspondence there can be no holiness ; wherefore correspondence is that which is given by the Lord . . . to the end that they may so correspond as almost not to know that they have a Natural ; for when there is correspondence, the Natural is as it were nothing. . . In a word, correspondence is what causes Angels to seem to themselves not to be natural Spirits . . . for in certain states the Natural, through correspondence, as it were disappears. But men, Spirits, and Angels are so full of faults, that correspondence can never take place to eternity ; yet it is always being perfected by the Lord. Therefore, when they disagree . . . they undergo chastisements, until correspondence is given by the Lord. 2158.

2159. Not even the least idea of the interior mind can be reduced to full correspondence . . .

2197. To every composite idea with men, and to the ideas of which they are composed, there correspond Spirits and Societies of Spirits. Gen.art.

2208. On an attempt of an Angel to act through correspondences.

2292. There can never be correspondence (for man) except in the most general things . . . How, therefore, can man ever be reformed so that there may be correspondence, except only in a few things ; by which few things the Lord leads them into Heaven . . . 2573.

2472^o. The interiors of the body are all correspondences, and so representatives of the interiors of Heaven.

2830. The animal and vegetable kingdoms so correspond, that when man thinks of one, Spirits and Angels may, at the same time, think and speak about the other. Gen.art.

3202. Natural Spirits who correspond to celestial Spirits. Des.

3565. Hence is evident what is the nature of correspondences, and that it is not known in an interior degree that there are things which correspond. This spiritual food corresponds to the food of the body . . . Nor is it known that the Cogitative and Voluntary corresponds to the muscels. From this it is also evident that it is not known, by lower Spirits, that the things which come forth with angelic Spirits correspond ; and so, again, those which come forth from Angels. While these correspondences are not known, and are therefore scarcely acknowledged, it is absurd to desire to penetrate into inmost and highest mysteries.

3566. See Food at this ref.

3817. How spheres correspond and are affected, became evident when I was walking about a stable of horses and smelt their ordure, of which upright Spirits at once complained, saying that they could not endure that odour, because there at once came to them the sphere of reasonings from natural things, and thus they felt the sphere to which it corresponded . . . 3894.

3894. So when I was eating butter on my bread, certain Spirits, or a Society of Spirits, were so indignant that they tried to hurt my tongue, saying that they could not bear it, because butter signifies what is celestial . . . wherefore I had to abstain from butter for a long time. In the same way one particular teacup pleased better than any other, for the sole reason that they drew from it a sphere which was less spiritual. So in many other things which I ate and drank, as milk, and other things ; from which it was evident that the visible correspondence of the spiritual or celestial sphere should be preserved . . .

4063. Thus the eye is formed exactly according to all the modifications of the ether, and the ear according to all the modifications of the air ; and therefore the eye and ear have a connection and correspondence with the ether and the air . . .

4064. In like manner the whole man with his brains, and the viscera of the body . . . and also the organs of the interior senses ; unless they had been formed according to the Lord's influx, thus that of the Grand Man, and unless each and all things of the body, both interior and exterior, corresponded to some such Grand Man, it could never have existed and subsisted, or live as it does, for the correspondence of each and all things is bound to be most exact in order for it to be what it is . . .

4152. I spoke with them, saying that such an influx could not be an influx of correspondences . . . for the influx of correspondences is different, namely, that spiritual things flow into natural ones and present them ; as that love presents heat ; intelligence, light, and so on ; which correspond.

4295. How the case is with representatives in Heaven, and with correspondence, shown by the example of knowledge and eating. I thought in the street about eating, or what I should eat . . . and I perceived that the Angels thought of nothing of the kind, but about Knowledges and knowledge, and that there came forth thence into my thought, the thought together with those who were in the World of Spirits, about eating . . . Thus discourse about Knowledges falls with man into the things which he eats ; and the cause of such a correspondence is, that Knowledges are spiritual foods. . . In all other things there in like manner exist correspondences which man can never know unless he is informed ; and they are so numerous that, as to their genera and species, they cannot be enumerated.

4482. Certain Spirits supposed that those who are raised into the Second and Third Heavens are devoid of these external things . . . but they were told that they have everything with them. . . This was corroborated by a comparison, as, that musical instruments . . . cannot produce sound unless they have wood to which the strings are attached ; and also that their sound, and its quality and extension, are determined by the wood. So must there be a correspondence of external things with internal ones, as is the case with the Angels. It was further illustrated by this, that if the Angels were devoid of external corresponding things, they would be like a body without feet ; and the inmost ones, like a head without a body.

4863. They correspond by opposition to celestial things.

4949. See MAGIC at this ref.

5054°. When those on the higher mountains are in the things themselves, or are speaking about them, those on the lower ones are in the representatives which correspond ; wherefore it is provided by the Lord that those who are on the higher mountain should be in good and thence in truths, for the life of the lower ones depends upon them.

5076. I heard a Spirit coming thither, who, immediately on his arrival, began to act and to operate, and, in fact, according to correspondences ; the correspondence being with such things as they were thinking. Examps. . . Those of them who are not good are altogether such mimics according to the correspondence of evils.

5189. The knowledge of correspondences and representatives is the ultimate plane of angelic wisdom . . .

5226. They who act through correspondences are numerous . . .

5620. All the letters of the Hebrew language have correspondence. (See LETTER at this ref.) 5622.

5716. The correspondence (of the cities and houses) is close and material according to the ideas of the thoughts of men in the world ; but now in this last time of the Church there is effected . . . another correspondence, thus not so immediate and proximate, but more remote through correspondences.

5809⁷. The Africans have a book which is to them the Word, written by correspondences by enlightened men.

5923. How (Melancthon) had procured for himself communication with Heaven by the abuse of correspondences. Ex.

5999. I was admitted into a library (in Heaven) . . . containing books of the ancients, written by correspondences. In other libraries . . . still more interiorly, there are books for the most ancients, from which the society called 'Enoch' collected correspondences . . .

6035¹⁰. (Spirits and Angels) know diseases by correspondence ; they have medicines which correspond . . .

6084. Natural speech can be understood by Spirits who are in a spiritual state, but only according to correspondences.

6088°. As all things which appear in the Spiritual World correspond to the affections, and thence to the thoughts of the understanding, they have houses, palaces, garments, fields, gardens, paradises . . . and therefore there is no food except according to correspondences. Moreover, the works of those who are in Hell have correspondences with the Heavens, but not the infernal Spirits themselves . . .

D. Min. 4564. On the urine : correspondence.

4597. The bindings take place because Spirits are then correspondently associated . . .

4645°. He who is in good is perfected even to angelic wisdom, but correspondently with the agreement and correspondence between internal and external things which there had been while he lived in the world.

[D. Min.] 4648. On correspondence in diseases. (See DISEASE at this ref.) 4680.

4658. As hypocrites induce pains in the teeth, so other Spirits induce other bodily pains which correspond. Gen.art.

4699°. See SPIRIT at this ref.

4710. The most universal correspondence is that there is light in Heaven, in which there are love and intelligence; to love corresponds heat, and to intelligence light . . . all things are derived from this correspondence, and they correspond; but they are such correspondences as not to be otherwise alike.

E. 195⁴. Man becomes spiritual by being in like truths with the Angels, or in corresponding ones: it is said in corresponding ones, because each and all things in the sense of the letter are correspondences; for they correspond with the truths which are with the Angels. 597.

273. All things in the natural world correspond to those which are in the Spiritual World. Enum.

376²⁶. Such is the correspondence between spiritual and natural things, that when there are bread and wine in the thought of man, there are the good of love and the good of faith in the thought of the Angels . . .

427. All things in man's whole body, both within and without, correspond to Heaven . . .

575³. There are also appearances in the Spiritual World which are not correspondences. Ex.

1080². What correspondence and influx are, shown by examples.

D. Wis. ii⁴. These productions take place according to the laws of correspondence; and all things of the body, internal and external, are correspondences. Ex.

—. When anything from what is spiritual as its origin and cause becomes visible and perceptible before the senses, there is then a correspondence between them. Such is the correspondence between the spiritual and natural things with man . . . As the latter have come forth and perpetually subsist from the former, they are correspondences; and therefore they act as one; as end, cause, and effect. Exampl. . . It is a universal law of correspondences, that what is spiritual fits itself into the use which is its end, and actuates and modifies the use by heat and light, and clothes it . . . until it becomes a form subservient to the end . . .

xii. 4. There is no ratio between the Natural and the Spiritual, but conjunction exists through correspondences; nor is there any ratio between the Spiritual of the ultimate Heaven and the Celestial of the highest Heaven, but conjunction exists through correspondences; nor again is there any ratio between the Celestial of the highest Heaven and the Lord's Divine, but still there exists conjunction through correspondences.

J. (Post.) 98. See BOOK at these refs. 121.

De Verbo 7. On correspondences. Gen.art.

Inv. 59. There is a mighty force in correspondences, because Heaven and the world, or the Spiritual and the Natural, are together in them. Therefore the Word has been written by pure correspondences . . . And therefore the Sacraments have been instituted by correspondences, on which account there is Divine power in them.

Corrugation. Corrugatio. A.4180⁴. 10492².

Corrupt. Corrumpere.

Corruption. Corruptio, Corruptela.

Corrupter. Corruptor.

A. 568. A corrupt man is here treated of.

621. The earth is called 'corrupt' (Gen.vi.11), from direful persuasions . . . 'To corrupt,' is predicated of the things of the understanding.

622. That 'to corrupt' is predicated of persuasions. Ill. 1326⁵.

625. 'Corrupt' (ver.12)=that there is nothing but falsity.

627. 'Because all flesh had corrupted its way upon the earth' (id.)=that man's Corporeal had destroyed all understanding of truth.

1076. A corrupt Church defined.

9060. 'To corrupt' (Ex.xxi.26), when said of the truth of faith, here signified by 'the eye,'=to extinguish. 9061.

10420. 'To corrupt themselves' (Ex.xxxiii.7), when said of worship,=to turn themselves away from the Divine.

T. 433. These are means of corruption; to draw men to their side.

D. 2712. Thus the world is now corrupt . . .

E. 410¹⁰. 'A corrupt girdle' (Jer.xiii.7). Ex. 569²⁰.

444¹². 'Ye have corrupted the covenant of Levi' (Mal.ii.8)=That the Church with the Israelites had perverted the truths of the Word, and thence the goods of life, and had thus destroyed conjunction with the Lord. 701⁹.

654⁶⁸. (The signification of 'corrupt' further ill.) 725¹¹. 750⁵. 768¹⁹. 863¹⁶. 1201.

768²⁴. 'Sons that are corrupters' (Is.i.4)=the falsities of those who are in falsity from that evil.

Cortical. Corticalis, Cortex. D.3811.

See under BRAIN.

A. 3677°. Such love to wander only in the rind (of knowledge).

4052. See BEGINNING—principium, at this ref.

8245. They use a head-covering made of bluish bark.

8379. Their habitations are lined with bluish bark.

W. 366². The cortical or glandular substance forms the surface of the cerebrum, also the surface of the corpora striata . . . and the middle of the cerebellum and spinal marrow.

373². The receptacles of the will and understanding are plainly to be seen in the cortical substance, as minute glands.

T. 78⁴. As the rind and bark clothe the trunks and branches of trees . . .

351³. The brain consists of two substances, one of which is glandular, and is called the cortical and cineritious substance . . . This substance is disposed into clusters like grapes on a vine; these clusterings are its series.

484. Like bark about wood.

593. Like the inner bark-philyrac-which adheres to the bark of a tree. —.

Ad. 3/2361. Like the undulatory creeping of the cortical substances in the brain . . .

D. 999. In the ureter, where there is, as it were, a cortical substance . . .

1075. From the cortical and striate substances of the viscera, we may infer concerning the difference of Spirits as to spiritual and celestial things. Gen.art.

— In the vitreous humour of the eye . . . a cortical substance, but not a striate one.

3607. How the fibres flow from their beginnings or cortical substancees.

—^e. The fibres represent spiritual things; and the beginnings of the fibres, which are beneath the cortical substance, represent celestial things; in which there are forms still more indefinite.

5779^e. This may be seen in the cerebrum, cerebellum, medulla oblongata, and spinal marrow; in which there are cortical substancees, from which the fibres flow forth; for here are the beginnings of all things in the body. E.775². Inv.14.

Coruscate. Coruscare.

Coruscation. Coruscatio.

A. 1527. Like bright stars, gleaming according to the quality of their charity and faith.

9865². The colours there coruscate according to the amount of good . . .

10600. This is signified by the glittering of the skin of Moses' face. 10691. 10703. 10705.

10691. 'To glitter'=to shine forth.

H. 118. He appears as a Moon, of a similar brightness, but coruscating more than our moon. —².

178. The most intelligent have garments which coruscate as with flame . . . 179, Ex.

185. Where all things coruscate . . .

R. 566⁴. Like a coruscating beam . . .

M. 42². The coruscation-coruscum-of our Heaven.

D. 4639. The Sun in the Third Heaven appears . . . with an intensely flashing flame, the flashing of which is indescribable.

Cottage. Casa.

A. 692. Occurs. 10515. R.153⁷. 442². D.2513. 6046.

H. 586². In the milder Hells there appear rude cottages . . . —^e. M.79⁵.

Couch. Sponda.

A. 6188². Occurs.

10050². 'The corner of a bed, and the extremity of a couch' (Amos iii.12)=the lowest Natural, which is the external Sensuous, and its truth and good. See R.137³. E.163².

R. 456². Their couches are of rushes.

E. 684²⁶. 'The couch of my spreading' (Ps.cxxxii.3) =doctrine.

Couch. Stratus. D.3790^e.

See BED-torus.

A. 6350. 'He went up to my couch' (Gen.xlix.4)=that he contaminated spiritual good in the Natural. E.434^e.

Council. Concilium.

A. 4738². How the distinction between the Lord's Divine and Human was made in a certain council. Des. D.4551.

R. 417². They were gathered together to sit in council . . .

776². I have spoken with some who had been delegates in the Nicene, Lateran, and Tridentine Councils . . .

914². The Council of Trent, quoted. P.257². R. Pref. x. 795. B.2. 23. De Just. 1.

962². It was a Council convoked by the Lord. B.120. T.188.

B. 22. These four articles . . . have been handed down from the time of the Nicene Council, and the writers after it . . .

31. The Nicene creed was made at the Council of Nicaea, a city of Bithynia, to which all the bishops of Asia, Africa, and Europe were convoked by the Emperor Constantine in the year 325. T.174². 632.

T. 94². To vindicate the Lord's Divinity, the Nicene Council invented the Son of God born from eternity. 137¹¹.

136². The Nicene Council introduced three Divine Persons from eternity, and thereby turned the Church into a theatre . . . 174, Gen.art.

172. No other Trinity than a Trinity of Gods was understood by those who were in the Nicene Council. T.206. 634.

176. What faith is to be placed in councils, when they do not immediately approach the God of the Church? 177⁴. 634².

—². It is said in Heaven, that when the Nicene Council was over, the things were accomplished which the Lord foretold in Matt.xxiv.29 . . . After the two Nicene Councils, the Church became like the same star darkened . . .

177⁴. This was done by the heretics before the Nicene Council . . .

178. When Jupiter convokes a council.

338². Ever since the Nicene Council . . . 644.

489. Trust not in any council . . .

503. (A meeting convened, at which many were present who had attended councils both before and after the Nicene one. All were against man's having free-will.)

597. No one admitted into any spiritual temptation since the Nicene Council introduced the faith of three Gods. Why.

632. See SYNOD at this ref.

—^e. See ATHANASIAN CREED at this ref.

638. The Nicene Council likened to Eve, who offered the fruit to her husband.

760. There have been two epochs of the Christian Church; one before the Nicene Council, and one after it. Ecc. Hist. 2.

[T.] 786². The doctrine which they concocted after the Nicene Council.

D. 6089. On the Council of Trent. Gen. art.

Council. Synedrium.

J. 56⁴. They have a certain Council, in place of the Council or Consistory at Rome. 58². 61². T. 819. D. 5229. 5234.

T. 137. A Council convened in the World of Spirits. —¹².

E. 746¹⁹. Punishments for more grievous evils are signified by 'the Council' (Matt. v. 22).

Council-chamber. Curia. A. 831⁶. M. 7⁴. 10³. —⁴. 77³. 179. 315⁵. T. 136. 178. D. 4774.

Counsel. Consilium.

Counsellor. Consiliarius.

A. 1736⁶. 'Counsellor.'

4227. Perverting their counsels.

6681. They formed a design. Sig.

M. 14. Counsellors in Heaven. 15. 19.

T. 165. What is to be done?

D. 1164. Man can never take good counsels, unless he believes that the Lord provides for each and all things.

4002. Occurs. 4344. 4392⁶.

E. 237³. 'Counsel' (Ezek. vii. 26) = what is right.

298⁴. 'To lead in counsel' (Ps. lxxiii. 21) = through Divine truth.

624¹⁷. 'Counsel from the ancients' (Ezek. vii. 26) = wisdom thence.

654⁵⁹. 'To make counsel, but not from Me' (Is. xxx. 1) = thoughts and conclusions about the things of Heaven from self, and not from the Lord.

687⁶. 'Counsel' (Ps. i. 1), of which 'walking' is pre-dicated, has regard to thought.

696¹⁷. His Divine wisdom and Divine power are signified by 'the spirit of wisdom and intelligence,' and by 'the spirit of counsel and might' (Is. xi. 2).

721¹². 'Counsellor' (Micah iv. 9) = the understanding of the truth of the Word.

1100¹⁰. 'A man of counsel' (Is. xlv. 11) = a man who is intelligent from the truths which are from the good of love.

Count. Enumeratio.

See under NUMBER.

T. 539. There is no need of an enumeration of sins . . .

Count. Recensere, Recensio, Recensitio.

A. 457. An Angel counted merely the most universal kinds of the joys of Spirits . . .

1142. Mere names are enumerated.

2482. Enumerating the causes . . .

4603. The sons of Jacob enumerated again. 4609.

7231⁶. Occurs. H. 355. 471⁶.

10727. An enumeration of all. Sig.

H. 462a. All their deeds were recounted from their memory.

R. 362. In the enumeration of the tribes . . .

Countenance. Vultus.

A. 1118⁶. They could never put on another countenance, except according to what they were thinking. 4326³. D. 3317.

1388. Occurs. 7935².

1640³. (From the countenance the character is known.) 6616.

3527. Hence man is sometimes affected by the countenance of another, although this is not from his countenance, but from the mind thus shining forth.

3573³. As the natural mind represents itself in the face and its expression . . . for as the face is the countenance of the natural mind, so the natural mind ought to be the countenance of the rational mind.

4066⁶. Hence the face or countenance = the states of the thoughts and the states of the affections.

4292⁴. Man's face, by its various expressions, represents both his thought and his will. Everybody knows that the face represents through its expressions; for from the expressions of the face with the sincere, may be seen their interior states.

4327⁶. The deceitful put on a most friendly expression. D. 2856.

7745⁶. By the formations of the countenance . . .

8248. The affections are manifested through the expressions, and their changes . . .

H. 48. No one there can hide his interiors by his expression. 457⁶.

M. 192. From infancy men learn to induce expressions on their faces . . .

E. 1080². The variations of the face, which are called the expressions, correspond to the affections of the disposition: wherefore the face is varied as to its expressions, as are the affections of the disposition as to their states.

Counterfeit. See LIE-mentiri.

Country. Patria.

A. 3816⁶. They who are such here in regard to their country . . . are such there in regard to the Lord's Kingdom.

6821. Our country is the neighbour above a society, because it is in the place of a parent; for there a man is born; it feeds him and guards him from injuries. Our country is to be benefited from love according to its necessities; which chiefly regard its sustenance, its civil life, and spiritual life. He who loves his country, and from good-will benefits it, in the other life loves the Lord's Kingdom; for there the Lord's Kingdom is his country . . . H. 64⁶. 517². T. 412, Gen. art. 414. D. 5399.

6822. The Church is the neighbour above our country.
Ex. T.415², Ex.

8900°. The Lord's Kingdom is the country of all who are therein, and our country is our 'mother' in the natural sense, as the Church is in the spiritual.

9198². 'No prophet is accepted in his own country' (Luke iv. 24)=that the Lord and the Divine truth which is from Him are less received and loved at heart within the Church, than without it.

9210. Occurs. H.361². 390°. 556. 558. 564. D.4392°.

H. 393². See CIVIL at this ref.

J. 48. The Reformed are distinct there according to their countries. Enum. C.J.14. 20.

C. J. 41. See ENGLAND at these refs. T.808.

P. 252°. Hence, everyone is allowed to protect his country against invasion . . .

T. 305°. In the widest sense, by the fourth commandment is meant to love our country; because it feeds and protects us; wherefore country or fatherland is named from father.

407°. See WAR at this ref.

430. See TAX at this ref.

441². Like those who regard their country from the love of self and the world . . . D.5399.

D. 4741. When (Charles XII.) had destroyed his country.

5901. Some (Spirits) from the same country.

E. 815². Why the Lord could do no miracles in His own country. Ex.

C. 83. Our country is the neighbour according to its goods, spiritual, moral, and civil. Ex.

85°. Hence our country is to be loved in a higher degree (than other kingdoms).

86. Even if I cannot love my country on account of its spiritual good, I can do so with regard to its moral and civil good, so far as this is not dependent upon its spiritual good, even if that country hates me. Thus I must not in hatred regard it as an enemy, nor as a stranger, but must still love it; doing it no injury, but consulting its good, in so far as it is good for it . . .

87. Every kingdom is the neighbour . . . according to the good it performs to our country. Ex.

Couple. Copula, Copulari, Copulatio.

A. 55². When the understanding is coupled to the will. 672.

725°. There is no truth which is not coupled to good.

1096². The copula is then broken.

8983². Not a marriage, but a coupling as of a concubine with a man; which coupling does not correspond to the heavenly marriage.

M. 299². Lest she should be dragged into a connection-copula-with an unloved man.

320². Conjugal conjunctions, and extra-conjugal couplings.

D. 3217. (The notion that) the devil was created . . . as a couple between heavenly and corporeal things.

3468. Coupled with their lasciviousness . . .

6110⁵. (The copulation of cats.)

Courage. Intrepiditas. W.378. M.164.

Courageous. Animosus. M.218.

Courier. Veredarius.

A. 9293⁵. 'Mules and swift beasts' (Is.lxvi.20)=the scientific things of truth and good. E.355¹⁵. 433²⁸.

E. 1155². 'Mules'=rational things; 'swift beasts,' the same as to goods.

Course. Curriculum.

A. 2776². 'Through the whole course of life . . . 6353². 727². S991°. T.821².

4220°. After short courses of life there . . .

4352². Inrooted by the preceding course of life.

Course. Cursus. H.340°. M.17².

Court. Atrium.

A. 34. Cannot approach the first threshold of the court of the Heavens . . .

65. They who have been carried up to the first court of Heaven while I was reading the Word . . .

1629. The dwellings of good Spirits have piazzas, or long arched courts, where they walk. 2196². D.1821.

3271. In the Hebrew, this word also means courts.

4674². Some are elevated into the first Societies, which are in the court of Heaven; but begin to be tortured . . .

5580. Introduced . . . as by a court into a house.

7353°. The exterior things of the mind are compared to 'courts' (Ex.viii.13). 7407.

8772°. When truths are acknowledged, they are as in the court . . .

9230². The memory and understanding are like courts. . . N.109. J.36.

9485°. 'The court' represented the ultimate Heaven. 9594. 9686. 9688. 9711. 9741, Ex. and Ill. 9755. 9758. E.630⁴.

9543°. By the habitation and the court of the tent, and by the curtains and veils therein, were represented things in the Spiritual Kingdom, which is the second Heaven.

9741². The external of each Heaven is what is called the ultimate or first Heaven, and was represented by 'the court': hence the court was twofold about the temple, exterior, and interior: the exterior court=those who are in the externals of the Spiritual Kingdom, and the interior court, those who are in the externals of the Celestial Kingdom. See 1 Kings vi. 3, 36; 2 Kings xxi. 4; Ezek.xl.17, 31, 34; xlii; and also xl. 23, 28, 32, 44; xlii. 3; xliii. 5.

9742°. Hence the court was on the south of the habitation.

10110². They who are in truths as to the understanding alone, are not in any chamber of the house, but only in the court.

R. 487. 'The court which is without the temple cast out, and measure it not' (Rev.xi.2)=that the state of the Church on earth, such as it is as yet, is to be removed, and not known. The 'court outside the temple'=the Church on earth. . . E.631,Ex.

—². Elsewhere in the Word, 'a court'=the external of the Church; for there were two courts, through which it was necessary to pass, in order to enter the temple. . . As 'the court'=the external of the Church, it also=the Church on earth, and also Heaven in ultimates. . . Ill. E.630,Ill.

T. 76. They followed me into the entrance-hall.

533^e. The understanding is the court, through which he goes out and in. E.107.

D. 3459^e. They can then never come to the courtyard of Knowledge.

E. 283¹³. 'The voice of the wings heard to the outer court' (Ezek.x.5)=the quality of Divine truth in the ultimate Heaven.

391¹¹. 'The courts of Jehovah' (Ps.lxxxiv.2)=the lower Heavens, where the entrance is.

458^e. 'The courts of our God' (Ps.xcii.13)=the external Church.

629³. 'The porch,' and 'the court' of the temple=all things which are without the Church, but which still regard it, which are all things in the natural man of the man of the Church. . .

630. 'The court' (Rev.xi.2)=the external of the Word, and thence of the Church and of worship. Ex.

— The court, which was outside, or in front of the temple=the first or ultimate Heaven. . .

—³. The temple had two courts; one outside the temple, and the other within the temple; and by the court outside the temple is signified the very entrance into Heaven and the Church, in which are they who are being introduced into Heaven; and by the court within the temple was represented the ultimate Heaven. It is the same in relation to the Church, and also to the Word and to worship; for by the court outside the temple is signified the external of the Word, through which man is introduced into the spiritual sense, in which are the Angels. —⁶. —⁸. —¹⁰.

—¹¹. 'To dwell in Thy courts' (Ps.lxv.4)=to live in Heaven.

—¹². 'A day in Thy courts is better than a thousand' (Ps.lxxxiv.10). Here 'courts'=the first Heaven, through which there is entrance into the higher Heavens; wherefore it is added, 'I have chosen to stand at the door in the house of my God.'

—^e. 'To weep between the court and the altar' (Joel ii.17)=lamentation over the vastation of Divine truth and Divine good in the Church; for 'the court' has a similar signification to 'the temple'; namely, the Church as to Divine truth.

714¹⁸. Occurs.

Court. Aula.

Courtier. Aulicus.

A. 1509. They had lived at courts.

4789^e. The 'chamberlains' were the inner courtiers.

5081. 'Upon his two ministers, courtiers' (Gen.xl.2) =from the sensuous things of the body of both kinds. Ex.

5164². They were Pharaoh's chief courtiers and magnates.

H. 51². In one royal palace, or court.

W. 355. Court occurs. 356^e. T. 122. 177³. 433. D. 2500. 2502. 2503. 2513.

P. 113. Enlarges the court of the reigning love.

M. 7⁴. Courtier occurs. 11. 14. 15. 16. D. 5260¹.

155a. A golden shower falling on a hall.

T. 9³. The rest of the gods, who composed the court of Jupiter.

76. The hall of a prince there.

Courteous. Affabilis. D. 2906.

Courtesy. Comitas. M. 290.

Courtesy. Officiositas. M. 164.

Courtyard. Hypethrum. M. 14. 208.

Cousin. Patruelis. A. 1153^e.

Covenant. Foedus.

A. 665. 'I will set up My covenant with thee' (Gen. vi.18)=that he would be regenerated; for no covenant can come between God and man, except conjunction through love and faith; thus 'covenant'=conjunction; for it is the heavenly marriage, which is the veriest covenant; and this has no existence except with those who are being regenerated; so that regeneration itself is signified by 'covenant' in the widest sense. The Lord enters into a covenant with man when He regenerates him; wherefore, with the ancients, a 'covenant' represented nothing else. 1023.

—^e. Hence the covenants so often made with the sons of Jacob were nothing but representative rituals. 4290³.

666. That 'a covenant'=nothing but regeneration, and the things belonging to regeneration, may be evident from the Word throughout, where the Lord Himself is called 'the covenant,' because He alone is the One who regenerates, and Who is regarded by a regenerate man, and is the All in all of love and faith. Ill.

— In Mal. iii. 1, the Lord is called 'the Angel of the covenant.'

— The Sabbath is called 'an eternal covenant' (Ex.xxxi.16), because it=the Lord Himself.

—². As the Lord is the real covenant itself, it is evident that to the covenant belongs everything which conjoins man with the Lord, thus love and faith, and the things of love and faith; for these are the Lord's, and the Lord is in them; thus the real covenant is in them. These things, however, do not exist except with the regenerate, with whom whatever is the Regenerator's is of the covenant, or is the covenant. Ill.

—^e. 'The ark,' 'book,' and 'blood' of 'the covenant'=the Lord. 4735⁷. —¹⁰.

1023. 'I set up My covenant' (Gen.ix.9)=the Lord's presence in charity. 1032. 1039. 1044.

1025³. 'To set up a covenant' (Gen.xvii.7)=the conjunction of the Lord with men in the universe through love.

1038. 'This is the sign of the covenant' (Gen.ix.12)=a mark of the Lord's presence in charity. . . This is evident from the nature of a covenant; for every covenant is for the sake of conjunction, that they may live in friendship or in love; hence marriage is called a covenant. . . This is the veriest essence of a covenant. . . 1059.

—². As 'a covenant'=the conjunction of the Lord with man through love, or, what is the same, the presence of the Lord with man in love and charity, the real covenant is called in the Word 'the covenant of peace.' Ill.

—⁵. As 'a covenant'=the conjunction of the Lord with man through love, it=conjunction through all things which are of love, which are the truths of faith, and are called 'commandments' . . .

—⁶. Hence 'a covenant' is an internal thing . . .

—⁷. That external things are not a covenant, unless internal ones are joined to them . . . but are signs of a covenant. . . Hence the Sabbath, and circumcision, are called 'signs of the covenant.' Ill.

1044³. The nature of this covenant, explained.

1049. 'I will remember My covenant which is between Me and between you' (ver.15)=the Lord's mercy, in special, towards the regenerate and those who can be regenerated.

1055. 'To remember the covenant of eternity' (ver. 16)=that the Lord may be present with him in charity. . . No covenant is eternal except love to the Lord, and love towards the neighbour.

—^e. When man can be regenerate, or be restored again to order, and can receive mutual love, there is then the covenant or conjunction through charity which is here treated of.

1864. 'In that day Jehovah made a covenant with Abram' (Gen.xv.18)=the conjunction of the Lord's interior man with His internal one. 'A covenant'=conjunction. 1996.

— . Jehovah never makes a covenant with man . . . 2842.

2003. 'Behold, My covenant is with thee' (Gen.xvii. 4)=the union of the Divine essence with the Human one. 'Covenant'=conjunction.

2018. 'I will set up My covenant between Me and between thee' (ver.7)=union. 'Covenant'=union.

2021. 'Covenant'=conjunction. 2719. 2720⁶. 3452.

2033. 'Thou shalt keep My covenant' (ver.9)=union still closer. 'Covenant'=union and conjunction. The repetition of the word 'covenant'=closer conjunction.

2037. 'This is My covenant, which ye shall keep between Me and between you' (ver.10)=a mark of the conjunction of all things with the Lord. 'A covenant'=conjunction; here, a mark of conjunction, as is evident from the following verse, where it is called 'a sign of the covenant.' The signs of the covenant were all the outward rites of the Church . . .

2053. 'My covenant shall be in your flesh' (ver.13)=the conjunction of the Lord with man in his impurity.

'Covenant'=conjunction. 2054. 4197³, Refs. 7195. 8495. 9391¹⁸. 9416². R.466^e. E.388²⁷. 391¹⁶.

2059. 'He hath made void My covenant' (ver.14)=that it cannot be conjoined.

2084. 'I will set up My covenant with him into an eternal covenant' (ver.19)=eternal union. 'Covenant'=conjunction; and when predicated of the Lord, the union of His Divine essence with His Human one, and of the Human one with the Divine.

2092. 'I will set up my covenant with Isaac' (ver.21)=union with the Divine Rational.

2842³. 'To make a covenant' (1's.lxxxix.3) regards Divine good; 'to swear,' Divine truth.

3375. 'Covenant' is predicated of what is celestial.

3459². Hence it is not said that they made a covenant with Isaac . . . because 'covenant' is predicated of good.

3654⁸. 'A new covenant' (Jer.xxxi.31)=conjunction with the Lord through good.

4189. 'Let us make a covenant, I and thou' (Gen. xxxi.44)=the conjunction of the Divine Natural with the goods of works.

4195. Heaps were used by the ancients as a . . . witness that there a covenant had been made.

4199⁹. The commandments of the decalogue were called 'the testimony,' because they were of a covenant, thus of conjunction between the Lord and man . . . Ill.

6804. 'God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob' (Ex.ii.24)=on account of conjunction with the Church through the Lord's Divine Human. 7195. 7200.

—⁵. That 'covenant'=conjunction, may be evident from the covenants between kingdoms, for they are thereby conjoined; and from their being stipulations by each side which are to be kept, in order that the conjunction may be maintained; these stipulations or compacts are also called a covenant. Those which in the Word are called 'a covenant,' are, on man's side, in a confined sense, the ten commandments; in a wider sense, all the statutes, etc., which the Lord enjoined from Sinai; and in a still wider sense, the books of Moses . . . On the Lord's side they are mercy and choice. (All these points illustrated in succession.)

—⁸. 'A covenant'=conjunction through love and faith. Ill.

—¹¹. There were also signs of a covenant in the representative Church. Ill.

8767. 'If ye shall keep My covenant' (Ex.xix.5)=life in good, and thence conjunction. 'To keep the covenant'=to live according to the commandments, thus in good, and so to be conjoined with the Lord. . . For the articles of the covenant were all things that were commanded . . . The reason 'to keep the covenant' also=to be conjoined, is that by 'covenant' in the universal sense, is signified conjunction. Refs.

8778. As covenants are to be made by consent on both sides, Jehovah proposes, and the people answer . . . But the covenant is made with man only through his reception of the influx of truth from the Divine, and then through correspondence. Ex.

9182⁶. 'To make a covenant with the wild beasts of the field, with bird, and with the reptile of the earth' (Hos.ii.18)=the conjunction of the Lord through the internal and external good and truth with man.

[A.] 920⁷. Hence that salt is called 'the salt of the covenant of thy God' (Lev.ii.13); for 'covenant'=conjunction; and 'salt'=the desire for conjunction.

9344. 'Thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods' (Ex.xxiii.32)=no communication with evils and falsities. 'To make a covenant'=to be conjoined; thus also to be communicated . . .

9396. 'He took the Book of the Covenant' (Ex.xxiv.7)=the Word in the letter, with which is conjoined the Word in Heaven. 'Covenant'=conjunction.

—⁴. As by 'covenant' is signified conjunction, and as by the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord . . . there is effected conjunction, all things which are of Divine truth from the Lord are called 'a covenant,' Enum. and III.

9400. 'Behold, the blood of the covenant' (ver.8)=thereby conjunction of the Lord as to the Divine Human with Heaven and with earth. 'Covenant'=conjunction.

10371. 'The covenant of an age' (Ex.xxxi.16)=conjunction with the Lord to eternity.

10632. 'Behold, I make a covenant' (Ex.xxxiv.10)=the primary things through which there is the conjunction of the Lord with mankind through the Word. 'Covenant'=conjunction.

10640. 'Take heed to thyself, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitant of the land upon which thou comest' (ver.12)=that no adherence is to be given to any religion whatever in which there is evil. 'To make a covenant'=to be conjoined; thus also to adhere to. 10647.

10683. 'Upon the mouth of these words I make a covenant with thee and with Israel' (ver.27)=that thereby there is conjunction with those who are in external and internal worship. . . 'To make a covenant'=conjunction.

L. 30³. 'A covenant for the people, and a light of the nations' (Is.xlii.6)=the Lord as to the Human.

Life 57. As through this Law there is conjunction of the Lord with man, and of man with the Lord, it is called 'the covenant,' and 'the testimony' . . . 60, III. P.95⁶. 326⁷. T.285. E.391¹⁶.

60⁶. Covenants are made for the sake of love, friendship, consociation; thus of conjunction.

R. 474². Hence the conjunction of the Lord with the Church was represented by a covenant, such as there is between two who swear to a compact.

M. 75⁸. There is a table therein, on which is the inscription, THE COVENANT BETWEEN JEHOVAH AND THE HEAVENS.

128⁶. As the Word is the medium of conjunction, it is called the covenant, Old and New.

T. 730. It is with the Holy Supper as with a covenant, which, after the articles are settled, is agreed to, and finally signed and sealed. That the Lord's blood is a covenant, He Himself teaches . . . 'The new testament' is the new covenant; therefore the Word written through the prophets before the coming of the Lord, is called the Old Testament or Covenant, while that written after His Coming by the evangelists and apostles, is called the New Testament or Covenant . . . The Word is the covenant itself which the Lord made with man, and man with the Lord; for the Lord descended as . . . the Divine truth; and as this is His Blood, in the Israelitish Church . . . blood was called 'the blood of the covenant' (Ex.xxiv.8; Zech.ix.11); and the Lord, 'the Covenant of the people' (Is.xlii.6, etc.).

E. 329⁷. 'The Book of the covenant'=the Divine truth through which there is conjunction.

340¹². 'Covenant'=conjunction through love. 695¹.

392⁸. When the Law is called 'a covenant,' the Word is understood, through which there is conjunction.

—¹². 'Covenant'=the truth of doctrine; 'testimony,' the good of life according to truths of doctrine.

433²⁵. 'Covenant'=conjunction with the Lord through love to Him.

650⁵¹. 'A covenant of peace'=conjunction with the Lord through the Divine things proceeding from Him . . .

684²⁰. 'I have made a covenant with Mine Elect' (Ps.lxxxix.3)=the union of His Divine with the Human. —³³.

696¹⁶. 'The covenant of life and peace' (Mal.ii.5)=the union of His Divine with the Human.

701². This reciprocal conjunction, of the Lord with man, and of man with the Lord . . . is what is meant by 'the covenant' in the Word.

—⁴. 'Covenant'=conjunction with the Lord through the reception of Divine truth in the understanding and will . . . and this conjunction takes place reciprocally . . . for it is evident from the Word:—I. That the Lord Himself is called 'the covenant,' because conjunction is effected by Himself with Himself through the Divine which proceeds from Himself. II. That the Divine proceeding, which is the Divine truth, thus the Word, is 'the covenant,' because it conjoins. III. That the precepts, judgments, and statutes commanded to the Sons of Israel were a covenant to them, because thereby there was at that time conjunction with the Lord. IV. That, moreover, whatever conjoins is called 'a covenant.' (All these points illustrated at great length.)

—¹⁵. What is meant by the old covenant, and what by the new covenant. Ex. —²⁰.

—²¹. The covenant made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob was different. Ex. and III.

971⁵. As man is to desist from evils as of himself, the ten commandments were written on two tables, and these were called 'the covenant' . . . 1027⁶, Ex.

Cover. Tegere, Contegere, Integere, Obtegere.

See Roof.

A. 1087. 'They covered the nakedness of their father' (Gen.ix.23)=that they excused these things. 9960¹⁶.

2534². The seers are said to be 'covered' (Is.xxix.10), when they know nothing of truth, and see nothing of truth.

4866. 'To cover' (Gen.xxxviii.15)=to hide.

6848. 'Moses covered his faces' (Ex.iii.6)=that the interiors were protected.

7387. 'Covered the land of Egypt' (Ex.viii.6). 'To cover,' being said of the natural mind,=that it was filled with falsities, and thence reasonings, (frogs).

8230. 'Covered the chariots and horsemen' (Ex.xiv.28)=that their own falsities hid them.

8297. 'The sea covered them' (Ex.xv.10)=that all falsity thronged on them.

8453. 'Covered the camp' (Ex.xvi.13)=that it infilled all the Natural.

8764¹. 'The wings covered their bodies' (Ezek.i.11)=that the Divine truth covered the Divine good from which it proceeds.

9515. 'Covering the mercy-seat with their wings' (Ex.xxv.20)=spiritual things covering in.

9544^c. As the Natural covers and closes what is above, it is called a covering.

9629^c. 'To cover' (Ex.xxvi.13)=to protect. Ex.

9960. 'To cover the flesh of nakedness' (Ex.xxviii.42)=lest the interiors of love appear, which are filthy and infernal. —¹⁴.

M. 431². The reason they were 'to cover it' (Dent.xiii.13), was that all those places in Hell are covered and closed . . .

E. 617¹. 'To cover,' is predicated of truths. Ex. 717⁹. Occurs.

Cover. Operire.

Covering. Opimentum, Opertura.

A. 795. 'All the high mountains were covered' (Gen.vii.19)=that all the goods of charity were extinguished. 798.

3212^c. The body is only the covering of its spirit. T. 569. D.2355.

4860. 'She covered herself' (Gen.xxxviii.14)=thus not acknowledged; for 'to cover'=to hide. (Compare 4866.)

H. 586. Opertura occurs. 594^c.

T. 342^c. Are covered by the icy water.

E. 240⁴. See NAKED at this ref.

Covering. Involucrum.

W. 257⁶. They constitute the cutaneous covering of the spiritual body.

314. Occurs. 408^c.

402^c. The covering which is called the pleura.

P. 180^c. Thus does the sheath conjoin itself with all the internal things.

T. 60. There is a general covering about every member, which insinuates itself into every part . . . Thus the sheath of every muscle enters into its fibres . . . In like manner the coverings of the liver, etc.

Covering. Tegmen. A.10406². 10755.

Covering. Tegumentum.

1718^c. The body is only as it were a covering . . .

2576². See COVERING-relamen, at this ref.

—⁶. 'The hanging for the door of the tent' (Ex.xxvi.36)=the appearances of good and truth . . . which are the intermediate ones in which are the Angels of the Second Heaven . . . For there were five pillars and bases for this hanging, by which number is signified what is relatively little . . .

—³. 'The hanging for the door of the court' (Ex.xxvii.16)=the appearances of good and truth . . . which are of the lowest Rational, in which are the Angels of the First Heaven . . . Its pillars were not covered over with gold, but were girt with silver . . . and their bases were of brass . . .

9003. 'Her covering' or clothing (Ex.xxi.10)=the support of the exterior life; for, in the spiritual sense, 'covering' or garment=lower scientifics, and these are what spiritually support the external life of man.

9214. 'Because it is his covering only' (Ex.xxii.27)=because sensuous things have been laid under interior ones. 'Covering' or garment=what is sensuous.

9433². 'A cloud by day, a smoke by night, and a covering-obtegmentum' (Is.iv.5)=the veiling over of Divine truth; thus accommodation according to apprehension. E.294¹⁰. 594¹⁵.

9477. The good of love is the Celestial, and the truth of faith is its covering; for truths cover goods.

9630. 'Thou shalt make a covering for the tent' (Ex.xxvi.14)=a compass; for the covering made of skins of red rams made a compass above and around the tent.

9632. 'And a covering of badgers' skins from above' (id.)=outside of it . . . 'A covering'=a compass.

—³. In the externals with man there are four coverings. Ex. . . Like things are represented in the coverings which constituted the expanse of the tabernacle . . .

9686. 'Thou shalt make a hanging for the door of the tent' (ver.36)=the medium uniting the Second with the First Heaven . . . 9689.

9763. 'For the door of the court a hanging' (Ex.xxvii.16)=introduction into that Heaven, and a guard lest it be entered by any except those who are prepared. . . . 'A hanging'=a guard lest it be entered; for a door is guarded by a hanging.

9827. A mitre is a covering for the head. 9949.

—². The covering of the head then appears to be taken away from them . . .

10754. Her head-covering described.

S. 45^c. As truths pellucid from good such as are in the sense of the letter are signified by these precious stones, they are called his 'covering' (Ezek.xxviii.13). R.90². E.717⁹.

T. 213. The common covering . . . called the skull.

D. 3036^c. A wonderful general influx through the integuments.

E. 208¹⁰. These truths are called 'the coverings of Judah' (Is.xxii.8).

Covering. Velamen.

A. 2576. 'He is to thee a covering of the eyes, unto all that are with thee' (Gen.xx.16)=that rational truths are as a covering or clothing to spiritual truths. Ex.

[A. 2576]². The exterior things of the Word are a covering or clothing.

— The coverings, or veils and coverings—tegumenta, of the tabernacle=the exterior celestial and spiritual things in the three Heavens. Fully Ex.

3084. Relatively to truth, what is scientific is called a covering and a garment.

6378. 'His covering in the blood of grapes' (Gen. xlix.11)=that His Intellectual is the Divine good from His Divine love. . . 'Covering'=the Intellectual; for it is a recipient, and that which receives, being a vessel, is like a covering. See 3300². E.475¹².

— (The distinction between 'vestment' and 'covering.') Ex.

6752². 'The covering' on Moses' face (Ex.xxxiv.33)=the external of the law. Ex. 10600. 10701. —^e. 10702². 10706.

10703. 'He removed the covering until he came out' (ver.34)=a state of enlightenment then. Ex.

10755. A covering round the loins.

S. 86. 'A covering upon all nations' (Is.xxv.8).

W. 194. Each degree is distinguished from the others by its own coverings; and all the degrees by a general covering; and the general covering communicates with the interior and inmost things in their order. Hence the conjunction and unanimous action of all things. 195. 278.

256². The natural degree, being the ultimate one, is as it were the general covering of the two higher degrees.

357. Above the Sensuous (of atheists) appears as it were a covering . . . M.415^e. 421.

419⁴. Meanwhile, there is as it were a covering interposed (between Heaven and man).

M. 32². In the male, the inmost is love, and its covering is wisdom . . . But in the female, the inmost is that wisdom of the male, and its covering is love thence derived.

T. 404. To them the things of Heaven are as coverings . . .

584. The seed there clothes itself with a natural covering.

D. 5465. Some cast a black covering over his face . . .

Covet. See CONCUISCENCE and GAPE.

Cow. Vacca.

A. 3300⁴. 'Red cows' (Num.xix.2). Ex. 5198^e. 9723⁴. E.364⁶.

5198. 'Seven kine coming up' (Gen.xli.2)=the truths of the Natural. . . That 'kine' or heifers=the truths of the Natural, may be evident from the fact, that oxen and bullocks=the goods of the Natural; for when the male=good, the female=truth; and vice versa. 5202³. 5205. 5207. 5268.

5202. 'Seven other kine coming up after them out of the river' (ver.3)=the falsities which are of the Natural also in the boundary. . . In the opposite, 'kine'=falsities in the Natural. 5206.

5212². By 'the seven kine' are signified the things of the interior Natural, which are called the truths of the Natural . . . 5263. 5265.

10835. Woolly cows like sheep in the Sixth Earth.

P. 326¹². 'The kine' (1 Sam. vi. 10)=good natural affections . . . The lowing of the kine in the way=the difficult conversion of the concupiscences of evil of the natural man into good affections. The offering of the kine with the cart for a burnt-offering=that the Lord was thus propitiated. E.700²³.

D. 2972. Spirits heard sounding like cows with bells.

2973. I saw a black cow with a woman, which licked and even kissed her, which was a sign that the belled Spirits would do them no harm . . .

E. 513¹⁴. Those who abound in Knowledges because they have the Word and the prophets, are meant by 'the kine of Bashan in the mountain of Samaria' (Amos iv.2).

Crab. Cancer.

P. 251. The disease called cancer . . . T.120². Coro.13.

M. 295. As a crab walks . . . I.9⁵.

T. 348². Like the eye of a boiled fish or crab.

582^e. Like the life of a fish or crab.

D. 4348². They said that such contribute to cancer.

Crafty. Callere, Callidus.

Craftiness. Calliditas.

See under CUNNING.

A. 1515^e. Many of the infernals are pre-eminently skilled in doctrinal things.

2480. Had been skilled in languages . . .

6952³. 'Their tails'=the more crafty reasonings . . . against truths; the more crafty the reasonings are, the lower they are.

H. 543^e. Those infernals are set over the others who excel in craftiness and arts . . .

558^e. They who are skilled in the art of letting good Spirits into their proprium.

P. 310². The sensuous . . . are pre-eminently crafty and cunning . . . and their craftiness and cunning they call intelligence and wisdom.

R. 455^e. As sensuous men are crafty and cunning, like foxes, the Lord says, 'Be ye prudent as serpents.'

Crass. See GROSS.

Crawl. See CREEP.

Create. Creare.

Creation. Creatio.

Creatable. Creabilis.

See under PRODUCE, and UNIVERSE.

A. 4. (Not the creation of the world, but the new creation of man, is treated of here.) 8891². —³. 9408³.

16. Regeneration itself is thence called the new creation of man. Almost everywhere in the propheticals, 'to create,' 'to form,' and 'to make'=to regenerate, with a difference. Ill. 88^e. 472. 593.

30. The progression of faith with those who are being created anew.

62. The six states of man's regeneration are called 'the days' of his creation.

66. From the descendants of the Most Ancient Church, Moses had these things about the creation, etc.

69. Man was so created by the Lord . . . 2231². 2930. 3702. 3804^e. 4041^e. 4279². 5850^e. H.499². P.275.

435. The first chapter treats of the creation of the spiritual man, and the following one, of the creation of the celestial man.

472. 'The day in which God created man' (Gen.v.1) = when he became spiritual; 'and in the likeness of God He made him' = when he became celestial.

593. 'The man whom I have created' (Gen.vi.7) = whom He had regenerated; and afterwards, 'whom He made,' that is, whom He perfected, or regenerated until he became celestial.

1109. After a time, they are as it were created anew.

1377. Since the first creation . . .

1736⁴. 'To create the heavens and to form the earth' (Is.xlv.18) = to regenerate; thus the Creator of heaven and earth = the Regenerator. 2005^e. 3470^e.

3404². What the Lord was doing before the world was created . . . 8325³. H.167. T.31.

3648^e. Production is continuous creation.

3704³. 'Hath not one God created us?' (Mal.ii.x.) 'To create,' here, = to regenerate.

4303. It treats of the new creation of man, that is, of his regeneration.

4322. (The notion about what has been impressed from the first creation.) 5116². 5173². 6482.

—^e. Preservation in connection and form is perpetual creation. 6482. 9502.

4803. In Heaven there is a continual purification, and, so to speak, a new creation.

5116². Propagation is perpetual creation.

5272². (All things being created by the Word does not mean that they were created by God's mere command.) But the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine good is the veriest reality and the veriest essentiality in the universe, and this is what makes and creates. Ex. 6115^e. 7004². 8200. H.137, Ex.

6697. The Divine created the universe for no other end than the existence of mankind. 9237. 9441. W.170^e.

6879^e. The first Divine quality to be known is that He created the universe, and that the created universe subsists from Him.

7270². (As the Divine truth itself cannot be received by any finite being,) the Lord created successives . . .

8043³. Regeneration is called the new creation.

8510^e. By the creation in Genesis is meant the new creation, or regeneration. E.555¹⁴.

8552. (Necessity of man's being created anew.)

8812^e. All things in the world were created to the image of those in Heaven . . .

9272². Such things in the world have been created according to correspondences . . .

9336^e. Hence the new creation of man, which is his regeneration, is as the creation of heaven and earth: wherefore . . . the creation of heaven and earth in Genesis means the creation of the Celestial Church, which is called 'man.'

9396³. Into this correspondence has man been created.

9407⁶. 'In the day that thou wast created' (Ezek. xxviii.13) = the first state when they were regenerated.

9502. Through the Divine sphere of good and truth . . . Heaven came into existence and was created.

9706. Man has been created to the image of Heaven and to the image of the world . . . 9776. 10156⁴. H.202. D.4603. 4607.

9846². Truths are created to all likeness of good . . .

9877. The Divine good proceeding from the Lord, creates this form.

9942⁴. By the creation of heaven and earth in Genesis, is meant and described the new creation or regeneration of the man of the Church at that time; thus the establishment of the Celestial Church. 10373. —^e. 10545.

10076⁵. From the Divine truth . . . the Heavens have come into existence, and from it they perpetually come into existence, that is, subsist; or, what is the same, from it the Heavens have been created, and from it are perpetually being created, that is, preserved; for preservation is perpetual creation; as subsistence is a perpetual coming into existence.

10194. That which has been created by the Divine, increases in perfection towards its interiors.

10299⁵. Man was no otherwise created than to be a receptacle of the Divine . . .

10373². 'To create' (Is.xliii.1) = what is new that was not before; 'to form' = the quality; and 'to make' = the effect.

10634. 'Which have not been created in all the earth' (Ex.xxxiv.10) = that such a Divine had never been in the world where the Church is. . . They are said to be 'created,' when they are Divine from innmosts to outermosts, or from primes to ultimates . . . It is said that Jehovah would 'do His marvels, which have not been created in all the earth,' because by 'creation' is signified that which is Divine from innmosts to outermosts, or from primes to ultimates; for everything which is from the Divine, begins from Him, and progresses according to order down to the ultimate end; thus through the Heavens down to the world, and there comes to rest as in its ultimate; for the ultimate of Divine order is in nature: that which is of this character is called created. . .

H. 30(o). Man from creation is Divine order in form. Refs.

137^e. In the Book of Creation . . . T.53^e.

J. 4. 'To create' = to form, to establish, and to regenerate. III.

9. Man was created last, and what is created last is the basis of all the things which go before. Creation commenced from the highest or innmost things, because from the Divine, and proceeded to ultimates or outermosts, and then first subsisted: the ultimate of creation is the natural world, and therein the terraqueous globe with all things on it. When these had been finished, man was created . . .

[J.] 20. Man was created in order to become an Angel, because in him there is the ultimate of order.

46². The Church before the Flood is described in Genesis by the new creation of heaven and earth . . . For by the creation of heaven and earth is meant the establishment of a New Church.

L. 1^e. From the Divine love through the Divine wisdom, all things have been created.

W. 4. From the Uncreate, Infinite, Being itself, and Life itself, no one can be created immediately, because the Divine is one and not divisible; but he must be created from created and finite things, so formed that the Divine can be in them.

5². This Sun, or Divine love, cannot through its own heat and through its own light, create anyone immediately from itself; for so he would be love in its own essence; but it can create from substances and matters so formed that they can receive the heat itself and the light itself. Ex.

21^e. How, as a Man, He could create all things . . .

44^e. All that is created must needs be from the Uncreate; and what is created is also finite.

47. The Divine love and the Divine wisdom cannot but be and come forth in other things created by itself. Gen.art.

52. All things in the universe have been created by the Divine love and Divine wisdom of God Man. Gen. art. P.3, Gen.art.

53. Of created and finite things, being and coming into existence can be predicated, also substance and form, and likewise life, may love and wisdom; but all these are created and finite . . . For all that is created is in itself inanimate and dead; but it is animated and vivified by this, that the Divine is in it, and it is in the Divine.

55. It is said that the world has been created out of nothing . . . But the universe, which is an image of God, and consequently full of God, could not be created except in God by God . . . From nothing, which is not, to create that which is, is utterly contradictory. Still, that which is created in God by God, is not continuous from Him; for God is being in itself, and in created things there is not any being in itself . . . The angelic idea about this is, that what is created in God by God is like that in man which he has drawn from his life, but from which the life has been extracted; and which is such that it is suitable to his life, but still is not his life . . . T.76⁴.

56. Every created thing, by virtue of this its origin, is such in its nature, that it is a recipient of God, not by continuity, but by contiguity . . . It is suitable, because it has been created in God by God; and as it been thus created, it is an analogue . . .

61. All things which have been created, in a certain image relate to man. Gen.art.

65. The uses of all things which have been created ascend through degrees from ultimates to man, and through man to God the Creator, from Whom they are. Gen.art.

68. In everything created by God there is reaction . . . This reaction appears as if it belonged to the created thing . . .

80. The Divine is the same in the greatest and least of all things which have been created, and do not live . . .

107. Unless it be known that there are two suns, nothing can be rightly understood about creation, and man.

151. The Lord created the universe and all things of it by the medium of the Sun . . . Gen.art. T.76.

152. No one can deny that the sun is the first of creation . . . Ex.

—^e. The sun also has been created by the Lord.

153. There are two suns through which all things have been created by the Lord . . . Through the Sun of the Spiritual World all things have been created by the Lord, but not through the sun of the natural world . . . The sun of the natural world has been created to render subsidiary aid. 157. 166, Ex.

154. In every created thing there are end, cause, and effect . . . Therefore it follows, that the universe and all things of it, have been created by the Lord through the Sun in which is the end of all things.

155. Creation itself cannot be brought to apprehension, unless space and time are removed from the thought; but if these are removed, it can be comprehended . . . Then you will perceive that the greatest and the least of space do not at all differ; and then you cannot but have an idea of the creation of the universe like that of the creation of the singulars in the universe; and that the diversity in created things comes from the fact that there are infinite things in God Man . . .

156. The creation of the universe and of all things of it cannot be said to have taken place from space to space, nor from time to time, thus progressively and successively; but from the Eternal and the Infinite . . .

160. (There are spaces in nature) because creation has ceased there, and subsists in its repose.

163. Without two suns, one alive and the other dead, there can be no creation. Gen.art.

165. A dead sun has been created in order that in ultimates all things may be fixed, stated, and constant . . . Thus, and no otherwise, is creation founded . . . The terraqueous globe . . . is as a matrix, from which are produced the effects which are the ends of creation.

167. The end of creation comes into existence in ultimates, which is, that all things may return to the Creator, and that there may be conjunction. Gen.art. 170.

171. Creation continually advances to this ultimate end, through end, cause, and effect; because these three are in the Lord the Creator . . . From which it is evident, that in the general progression to the ultimate end, the created universe is relatively the middle end; for forms of uses in their order up to man are continually-raised out of the ground by the Lord the Creator . . . 172.

198. Hence the Divine, which is substance in itself . . . is that from which are each and all things that have been created; thus God is the All in all of the universe.

222. There are degrees of both kinds in the greatest and the least of all things which have been created. Gen.art.

229^e. There are innumerable things in the first created substances . . .

282. The Lord from eternity, Who is Jehovah, created the universe and all things of it from Himself, and not from nothing. Gen.art. 285³.

283. All things have been created from substance which is substance in itself . . . Many have seen this, but feared they would come to think that the created universe is God. . . The reason is, that they have thought of the creation of the universe from time and space, which are proper to nature; and no one can, from nature, perceive the creation of the universe; but everyone can, from God, perceive nature and its creation. . . Although God created the universe from Himself, there is nothing in the created universe which is God.

284. In this Fourth Part, the creation of the universe by God is treated of.

285. The Lord could not have created the universe. . . unless He were a Man. Gen.art.

—^e. The Human is the inmost in every created thing, but devoid of space.

290. The Lord . . . produced from Himself the Sun of the Spiritual World, and from it created the universe and all things of it. Gen.art.

—^e. The sun of the natural world has been created, in order that the work of creation might be brought to a close and finished.

303^e. They who set up a creation of the universe, not through continual mediations from the First, cannot but build broken hypotheses . . .

307. All the uses which are the ends of creation are in forms, and receive forms from substances and matters such as are in earths. Gen.art. . . The ends of creation are what are produced by the Lord as a Sun through the atmospheres from the earths, and these ends are called uses. . . They are called uses . . . because they look to God the Creator . . . and thereby conjoin Him with His great work. Ex.

312. See PRODUCTION at this ref.

313. In all forms of uses there is some image of the creation. Gen.art.

—^e. This image of the creation lies concealed in their endeavours.

314. In the forms of uses of the vegetable kingdom the image of creation appears in this; that from their primes they proceed to their ultimates, and from the ultimates to the primes . . . The stems invested with the barks relate to the Earth invested with earths, from which the creation and formation of all uses come forth. . . An image of creation in the forms of uses is exhibited in the progression of their formation from primes to ultimates, and from ultimates to primes; and also in this; that in all the progression there is the end of producing the fruits and seeds, which are uses. Hence it is evident, that the progression of the creation of the universe was from its Prime, which is the Lord girt with the Sun, to ultimates, which are earths; and from these, through uses, to its Prime or the Lord; also that the ends of the whole creation have been uses.

315. The heat, light, and atmospheres of the natural world effect nothing to this image of creation; but only the heat, light, and atmospheres of the Sun of the Spiritual World; these bear that image with them, and put it into the forms of the uses of the vegetable kingdom. . . Natural forces contribute nothing whatever to giving them an image of creation; for the image of creation is spiritual: but in order that it may appear and perform a use in the natural world, and may stand fixed and be permanent, it must be materialized, that is, filled full with the matters of the world.

316. In the forms of uses of the animal kingdom, there is a similar image of creation, in that from seed let into a womb or egg there is formed a body, which is its ultimate, and that when this grows up, it produces new seeds.

—². A similar image of creation comes forth in every single thing in man; for similar is the progression of love through wisdom into use . . .

322. All these objects come forth around an Angel and around the angelic Societies, as if produced or created by them. Des.

326^e. Thus the creation as of a universe is produced before the eyes of an Angel.

327. All things which have been created by the Lord are uses . . . Gen.art.

329. The end of the creation of the universe, is that the angelic Heaven may exist . . . Hence all things which have been created are mediate ends . . .

336. Evil uses have not been created by the Lord; but they originated together with Hell. Gen.art.

339. Evil uses as well as good uses might thus be supposed to be simultaneous from creation.

—^e. Hence it is evident, that such things . . . have not been created from the beginning . . . T.53^e.

348^e. Hence it is evident, that the Lord has not created and does not create any but good uses; but that Hell produces the evil ones.

349^e. Such end by ascribing all things to nature, even the creation of the universe . . . They can still say afterwards that God created nature . . . But by God the Creator they understand nature, in fact, its inmost . . .

358. Two receptacles of Himself, called the will and understanding, have been created and formed with man by the Lord . . . Gen.art.

—^e. Something shall now be said about the creation of man.

P. 2. The Treatise on the Divine Love and Wisdom . . . treats of creation, and not of the preservation of things after creation . . . therefore this is to be treated of in this work.

3². Sustentation is perpetual creation . . .

—^e. Upon the conjunction of the Creator with man, the connection of all things depends, and . . . the preservation of all things.

5. This one is, in a certain image, in every created thing. Gen.art.

[P.] 9. In the universe, and in each and all things of it, as created by the Lord, there has been the marriage of good and truth. Since the creation this marriage has been severed with man.

27². It follows that Heaven was the Lord's end in creation; and as Heaven was the end in the creation, it is the end of His Divine Providence. The Lord did not create the universe for His own sake, but for the sake of those with whom He will be in Heaven. 323. Gen.art. T.13. 66^e. 773.

— . There is His image and likeness in them from creation . . .

32. From creation man is such that he can be more and more nearly conjoined with the Lord. Gen.art.

51. Hence it is evident . . . that we can think of the creation of the universe by God; but not at all of the creation from nature.

157². There is an only essence, substance, and form, from which are all the essences, substances and forms which have been created. Ex.

190. Many constants have been created, in order that inconstants could exist. Enum. —³.

—³. Without His Divine Providence, which is as a continual creation . . .

202. He created the universe, that in that creation there might come forth an infinite and eternal creation by Himself; and this creation comes forth by the Lord's forming a Heaven from men . . . The infinite and eternal which the Lord regards in forming His Heaven of men, is that it shall be enlarged to infinity and eternity; and that He may thus constantly dwell in the end of His creation. This is the infinite and eternal creation, for which the Lord provided by the creation of the universe; and, through His Divine Providence, He is constantly in this creation. Ex. 203².

219². The finite cannot proceed from the infinite . . . yet the finite can be produced by the infinite; but this is creating; not proceeding.

241. Adam and his wife do not mean the first men that were created in this world; but the men of the Most Ancient Church, whose new creation or regeneration is thus described; the new creation itself, or their regeneration, by the creation of heaven and earth in Genesis. (Difficulties in the account of the creation.)

324². What would the Lord [be], with all the creation of the universe; unless He had also created images and likenesses of Himself . . .

—⁶. Every man has been created in order to live to eternity in a blessed state. Ex. —⁷.

332. The secondary ends of creation.

— . The laws of order established at the first creation.

R. 254. 'Thou hast created all things, and through Thy will they are and have been created' (Rev.iv.11)= that all things of Heaven and the Church have been made and formed, and that they are reformed and regenerated, from the Lord's Divine love, through His Divine wisdom; or from the Divine good, through the Divine truth, which also is the Word. 'To create'=to reform and regenerate through Divine truth; and 'the Lord's will'

= the Divine good. . . 'To create' = to reform and regenerate. Ill. E.294, Ex. 295.

290. 'Every created thing that is in heaven, and in earth, and under the earth, and in the sea' (Rev.v.13)= the Angels . . . Their being called 'created thing' is according to the style of the Word, in which, by all created things, of both the animal and vegetable kingdoms, are signified various things with man . . . Ill.

—³. It is said 'every created thing,' and thereby is meant every reformed thing, or all the reformed; for 'to create'=to reform and regenerate. E.342.

475. 'Who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things that therein are' (Rev. x.6)= Him Who vivifies all who are in Heaven and the Church, and each and all things with them. In the natural sense, 'to create'=to create; but in the spiritual sense, to reform and regenerate, which also is to vivify. E.609.

663. That all things of the world, of Heaven, and of the Church, have been created and made by the Lord from His Divine love through His Divine wisdom. Sig.

M. 84. Good and truth are the universals of creation, and thence are in all created things; but, in created subjects, are according to the form of each. Gen.art. 85^e.

85. The order in which each and all things of the universe have been created, is that one is for the sake of another, and therefore one depends upon another, as a chain upon its links.

86. Thus, subsistence or preservation is perpetual coming forth or creation. T.46^e. 224. D.1714.

183³. Fructifications, propagations, and proliferations are continuations of creation; for creation cannot be from any source, except Divine love through Divine wisdom in Divine use . . .

294. Such scenery is created instantaneously by the Lord.

328. Wherefore, you are able to think about the essence and omnipresence of God from eternity, that is, about God before the creation of the World . . . I told them that I had once thought about the essence and omnipresence of God from eternity, that is, about God before the creation of the world; and as I was not as yet able to remove spaces and times from the ideas of my thought, I became anxious; for there entered the idea of nature instead of God: but it was said to me, Remove the ideas of space and time, and you will see. It was given me to remove them, and I saw; and from that time I could think of God from eternity . . . T.31³.

380^e. Hence it is evident that the universe has been created by one God. T.13. Gen.art.

400. The sphere of the love of creating advances in order; from the end, through causes, into effects, and makes periods; whereby creation is preserved in the state foreseen and provided. Gen.art.

I. 5². Creation was effected through that Sun which is pure love, thus by Jehovah God; because love is the very being of life, and wisdom is the coming forth of life thence, and all things have been created from love through wisdom. This is meant by, 'The Word was with God, and God was the Word. All things were made by Him, and without Him was nothing made which was made: and the world was made through Him' (John i.). T.37. 76². 87^e

—³. For the created universe is a coherent work from love through wisdom . . .

9. Hence it follows, that the natural world was secondarily created through its sun.

11⁴. There is only one life, and this is not creatable . . .

T. 30². In God and before God there were no spaces or times before creation; but after it.

31³. The world was created, not in time, but times were introduced by God with creation.

33. Every created thing is finite; and the Infinite is in finites as in receptacles. Gen.art.

— . From that Sun, through its heat and light, the universe has been created, from its primes to its ultimates. . . One thing was formed from another, and thus degrees were made . . .

—^e. From what is said about the creation in my works, it is evident, that God first finited His infinity through substances emitted from Himself . . .

40. Light is not creatable, but the forms which receive it have been created . . . It is the same with life . . . It is not creatable, but flows in continually . . . Consequently, wisdom is not creatable; and so neither are faith, truth, love, charity, nor good; but the forms which receive them have been created. 471.

46. These [characteristics] of the Divine love were the cause of the creation of the universe, and are the cause of its preservation. Gen.art.

65. Man was created a form of Divine order. Gen.art.

67. Before the creation, God was love itself and wisdom itself, and these two are in the endeavour to perform uses . . . The universe was created that uses might come forth . . . and as man is the principal end of creation, it follows that each and all things have been created for the sake of man . . .

71². God created man from order, in order, and into order . . .

73². The omnipotent God created the world from the order in Himself . . . 74². 75⁶.

75. On the creation of the universe. Chap.

76. I was in meditation about the creation of the universe . . .

—². I said to the Angels . . . It would be vain to conclude anything about the creation of the universe, unless it were first known that there are two worlds . . . The universe was created by Jehovah God through the Sun in whose midst He is; and . . . it was created from His love, through His wisdom . . .

—³. By means of the light and heat from the Sun of your World, spiritual atmospheres . . . were created, one from another . . . but as this spiritual universe cannot come forth without a natural universe . . . the sun from which all natural things proceed was created together with it; and through this, by means of light and heat, three atmospheres encompassing the former . . . and at last, by means of these, the terraqueous globe . . . But this is a very general sketch of the creation and its progression.

78. An Angel said, We have heard in our Society that, in consequence of meditating on the creation of the universe, you were invited into a Society near ours, and that there you said such things about the creation as they favoured . . . I will now show you how animals and plants of every kind were produced by God . . .

—³. These things have been shown you, in order that in a particular type you might see the whole creation . . . The difference is, that such things in our World are created by God instantaneously, according to the affections of the Angels; but in your world they were created in like manner at the beginning; but it was provided that they should be perpetually renewed by generations of one from another, and that creation should be so continued. The reason why creation in our World is instantaneous, and in yours is continued by generations, is that the atmospheres and earths of our World are spiritual, and those of your world are natural; and natural things were created that they might clothe spiritual ones . . . Without some knowledge of the Spiritual World, no one can know that creation is continual in our World, and that in yours it was similar to this while the universe was created by God.

—^e. (The objects in Hell) were not created there by God; nor were they created by Him in the natural world . . . for all things that God creates are good; but such things upon the earth originated together with Hell . . .

79. Once, when I was thinking of the creation of the universe, there came some philosophers . . . One of them said, My mind is, that creation is from nature, and thus that nature created itself, and that it has existed from eternity . . . (The others deliver their opinions at great length.)

224. Through truth and good the universe was created.

364. God could not create another like Himself . . . Neither could He create life, as neither can light be created; but He could create man a form of life, as He created the eye a form of light.

403. Then is man in a perfect state, according to creation.

472. Hence the following are not creatable:—1. The Infinite. 2. Love and wisdom. 3. Life. 4. Light and heat. 5. Activity regarded in itself. But the organs which receive these are creatable, and are created. . . Sound is not creatable . . . It is according to creation that where there are actives there are also passives . . . If actives were creatable, as passives are, there would have been no need of the sun with its light and heat, but all created things would subsist without them . . . The sun of this world consists of created substances, the activity of which produces fire.

499. Without some sort of free will in all created things . . . no creation could have taken place. Ex.

500. No creation was possible without order . . .

571. Necessity of man's being created anew. 576.

573. 'To be created' = to be regenerated. Ill.

589. This faculty is by creation inherent in every man.

714. From the first day of creation . . . E.1129⁴.

[T.] 773. As the salvation of men . . . is thus a continuation of creation, the term 'to create' is used in the Word passim, and it means to form for Heaven. III.

794. All things which are seen in the Spiritual World are instantaneously created by the Lord; as houses, paradises, food . . . and they are created in correspondence with the interiors of Angels and Spirits . . . While all things which are seen in the natural world come forth and grow from seed.

Ad. 655. The order instituted at the first creation.

3/4297. In each word of the Lord's Prayer there is an idea of creation.

D. 2506. Men are so created by the Lord that they may create uses of delight.

3477. Some . . . reason from the time of the creation of the world; what God was doing before the creation of the world . . .

4204. Whether nature existed before the world was created.

4722. (Notions of atheists about creation.)

4837. On regeneration, or the new creation. . . In the Word, the Lord is often called the Creator, and it is said that He created the heavens and the earth, also that He creates new ones, and man is called a new creature. The case is this. From what is hereditary, and also from his own actual life, man in the other life does not appear as a man, but as a horrible monster; but as he receives new life from the Lord, so does he receive the human form, and, at last, a beautiful angelic one, which is a likeness of the Lord. This takes place just as if the Lord had created man anew by a similar procedure and a similar method. Hence it is, that 'to create' = to regenerate, and that a regenerate man is a new creature.

5604^e. Instead of the history of the creation, the subject of the new creation of man (is treated of in the Word in Heaven).

E. 29³. The creation of heaven and earth in Genesis = the establishment of the Most Ancient Church. Refs. 280¹⁴. 513¹⁰. 725². 1057.

294². 'To create' = to reform and regenerate men, and thus to establish the Church. III.

295. 'To create' = to come forth into existence.

304⁵⁴. 'To create new heavens and a new earth' = to establish a new Church as to its interiors and exteriors.

453⁷. 'To create,' when said of goods and truths, = to form them with man, and to regenerate him.

609. 'To create' = not only to cause to be, but also perpetually to be, by holding it together and sustaining it through the Divine which proceeds . . .

650¹⁸. 'The creation' in Genesis = the new creation or regeneration of the man of the Most Ancient Church.

726⁴. This heat and light . . . specifically, are called Divine truth; but taken together with the auras, they are called the Divine which proceeds: from these the Heavens were created, and also the world . . .

1126². The reason God is uncreate, is that life cannot be created; but it can create; for to be created is to come forth from another . . .

1196². From the Sun which is Divine love commenced all the work of creation; and through the sun which is fire it was carried through.

1209². In everything spiritual there are three forces; a force of acting, a force of creating, and a force of forming . . . The force of creating is the force of producing causes and effects from the beginning down to the end, and it proceeds from the First through intermediates to the ultimate; the First is the Sun of Heaven . . . intermediates are spiritual, natural, and earthly things; from which in the ultimate come productions; and as in the creation that force proceeded from the First to the ultimate, it afterwards proceeds in the same way, in order that productions may be continual . . . Wherefore productions, which are chiefly animals and plants, are continuations of creation. It matters not that the continuations are effected through seeds; it is still the same creative force which produces them. That there are some seeds being produced even yet, is within the experience of some. 1210³. 1211⁶.

1211⁴. Nothing is born there from sown seed, but from created seed, and creation there is instantaneous; the duration being sometimes long, and sometimes only momentaneous. Ex. 1212², Ex.

1226². The omnipresence and omniscience of the Lord may also be comprehended from the creation of the universe; for the universe was so created by Him, that He is in primes and in ultimates, also in the centre and the circumferences; and uses are those things in which He is. Gen.art. . . The creation of the universe cannot be better seen than from its types in the Heavens; there, creation is perpetual and instantaneous. Des.

—4. From the perpetual and instantaneous creation of all things in the Heavens, may be seen, as in a type, the creation of the whole world with its Earths; that in these there is nothing created except for use . . .

—5. From man's life; which, if reviewed from the creation of all things in him . . .

—6. Every man, in like manner, is created and born for use . . .

—8. Now as, in the beginning, each and all things in the world were created for use, and all things in man also were formed for use, and the Lord, from creation, regarded the whole human race as one man, in which everyone is in like manner for use . . . it is evident, that the universe was so created, that the Lord is in primes and in ultimates, also in the centre and the circumferences, that is, in the midst of all things; and that uses are the things in which He is. D. 3574. D. Love viii.

D. Love xi². All creation was effected through discrete degrees . . .

D. Wis. viii³. Hence all creation has been effected in ultimates . . .

xii. 4. All things which have been created, are created to compliance with life itself, which is the Lord. Gen.art.

—3. All things which have been created in the world have been created for the use, benefit, and delight of men . . .

5. When creation has once been perfected, it is still continued through influx from the Sun of Heaven; otherwise all things would perish . . .

—³. A full idea of creation . . . cannot be given (because of the deep arcana connected with the subject).

Ang. Idea. The Angelic Idea about the Creation of the Universe by the Lord. Gen. art. . . God is the Centre . . . and unless He were a Man, creation would not have been possible. The Lord created the universe through His Divine proceeding; and as this is life itself, all things have been created from life and through life. . . . From that Sun, as a great centre, proceed circles, one from another, down to the ultimate . . . These are the spiritual atmospheres . . . and, in the ultimate, by means of these atmospheres, and afterwards by means of the natural atmospheres, which are from the sun of the world, was effected the creation of the earth . . . which creation is afterwards continued through generations from seeds. Those Angels who knew that the universe so created is a continuous work from the Creator down to ultimates . . . said, that the first proceeding was continued down to ultimates through discrete degrees . . .

J. (Post.) 12². In the Spiritual World . . . the houses of a city are not built as in this world, but rise up created in a moment by the Lord; and the same with all other things.

Can. On God. 6. He created the universe from Divine love through Divine wisdom; or what is the same, from Divine good through Divine truth.

7. With Him the creation of the universe had as an end an angelic Heaven from mankind.

9. This end had been in God the Creator from eternity, and is so to eternity, and thence comes the preservation of the created universe by Him.

iv. On the creation of the universe by the One and Infinite God.

1. No one can conceive in idea, or perceive, that God created the universe, unless he first knows something about the Spiritual World and its Sun, and also about the correspondence and thence the conjunction of spiritual with natural things. 12.

7. Jehovah God, through the Sun in whose midst He is, created the Spiritual World; and through this, mediately, the natural world.

11. An idea of creation perpetually comes forth in the Spiritual World; because all things which there come forth and take place, are created in a moment by Jehovah God.

12. In the Spiritual World, creation can be made visible to the eye; all things there are being created by the Lord; as, for instance, in a moment a house is created; the furniture of the house is created; foods are created; garments are created; fields, gardens, plains are created; flocks and herds are created; these and innumerable other things are created according to the affections, and thence the perceptions of the Angels; and they appear around them and last as long as they are in that affection; and they are removed as soon as they cease from it. In the Hells, too, there are created serpents, and hurtful beasts and birds; not that they are created by the Lord, but that goods are turned into evils. Hence it is evident, that all things in this world are being created by the Lord, and are fixed by the natural things which encompass them.

vi. On the creation of the universe by the One and Infinite God; from the Divine love, through the Divine wisdom.

2. Through these two, heat and light, the world subsists, and all things on its surface are yearly created . . .

vii. On the end itself of creation, that it is an angelic Heaven from mankind.

Coro. 23. 'To create heaven and earth' means to gather together of the departed, and to found an angelic Heaven; and, through this, to derive and produce a Church on earth.

—². 'To create,' in the Word, = to produce anew and form; and, properly, to regenerate; which is the reason why regeneration is called the new creation. Ill.

Docu. 302. A. These (evil beasts and plants in Hell) are not created by God; nor are they created by Him in the natural world . . . for all things created by God are good. On the earth they were created at the same time that Hell was created; and this comes into existence from men . . .

Creator. Creator.

See under CREATE at W.65. 167. 171. 307. 349. P.3. Ang. Idea. Can.9.

A. 88^e. When the Lord is called 'Creator,' 'Former,' or 'Maker,' each term always involves a distinct idea in the internal sense. 10373².

1736¹. 'The Creator of heaven and earth' = the Regenerator. Refs. 10634². E.328¹⁰.

2156^e. They say they acknowledge one Supreme Being, the Creator of the universe; but really acknowledge no God. 2747². 6197^e. 7097¹. 7251. D.169. 857. 1449. 4772².

3470^e. Hence the Lord is so often called 'Former,' and 'Creator.'

9441. What would this be for the Infinite Creator?

W. 169. In God the Creator, Who is the Lord from eternity, are these three (end, cause, and effect).

R. 630². Jehovah the Creator is the Lord from eternity. . . . Who cannot understand that there is one God the Creator of the universe, and not three Creators?

961^e. Jehovah the Lord from eternity the Creator; in time, the Saviour; and to eternity, the Reformer . . .

I. 9². In the midst of that Sun is Jehovah God, the Creator and Upholder of the universe.

D. 2510. That the uses of all things in the universe reveal the Creator.

Creatress. Creatrix. W.33^e. 262. T.178. E.1209².

Creature. Creatura.

A. 46^e. Those are called 'creatures,' to whom the Gospel is to be preached, because they are to be created anew (Mark xvi.15). R.290².

[A.] 780. A new creature, or that they have received new life from the Lord. Sig.

638⁵⁴. 'The creatures in the sea having souls' (Rev. viii. 9)=scientific truths with goods. E. 513, Ex.

970⁸⁰. This is meant by that the old man with his concupiscences must die, in order that man may become a new creature.

9755¹². 'Creatures' (Rev. viii. 9)=those who are in doctrinal things of truth.

J. 4^o. The new creation of man is his reformation; hence a new creature is a reformed man.

405. 'There died the third part of those creatures in the sea which had souls' (Rev. viii. 9)=that those who have lived and do live that faith, cannot be reformed and receive life. . . 'Creatures' = those who can be reformed.

—². As affections and perceptions there appear in the forms of animals or creatures on the earth, which are called beasts; of creatures in the air, which are called birds; and of creatures in the sea, which are called fishes; beasts, birds, and fishes are so often mentioned in the Word. III.

T. 571. So far man is spiritual, and is a new creature. 572.

687. A baptized, that is, a regenerate person, is meant by 'a creature' (Mark xvi. 15; Rom. viii.); and by a new creature (2 Cor. v. 17; Gal. vi. 15); for 'a creature' is so called from 'create,' by which is signified to regenerate. D. 4837.

E. 342. 'Every creature' (Mark xvi.)=all who receive the Gospel, and thereby can be reformed. Others are not meant by 'creatures,' because they do not receive.

513^o. 'Every creature' (Rev. v. 13)=both Angels and men.

Coro. 3^o. 'The beginning of the creature of God' (Rev. iii. 14) . . . 'Creatures,' here, =those who can be created anew, that is, regenerated, and thus become of the Lord's Church. III.

Credulous. Credulus.

A. 1967^o. They thus become credulous . . . D. 1728. 1752.

Creed. See APOSTLES' CREED, ATHANASIAN CREED, NICENE CREED; and also under CONFESS, and SYMBOL.

Creep. Repere, Prorepere.

Creeping. Reptilis.

A. 39^o. As the man now begins to be made alive . . . he is compared first to 'the creeping things of the waters' (Gen. i. 18).

40. 'The creeping things which the waters brought forth'=scientifics, which are of the external man. . . That the creeping things of the waters, or fishes, = scientifics. III.

44^o. The things of the understanding are signified by 'the creeping things which the waters cause to creep forth,' etc. . . Those of the will, are here signified by 'the living soul which the land produces,' and by 'the beast, and creeping thing=reptans' (ver. 24).

594. 'From man to beast, and even to the creeping thing' (Gen. vi. 7)=that whatever is of the will would extinguish him. . . Whatever is of the will is called 'beasts, and creeping things;' here, 'creeping things' =pleasures both corporeal and sensuous.

674. 'Bird' = intellectual, and 'beast,' voluntary things; and that 'the creeping thing of the ground' (ver. 20)=both, but the lowest, may be evident from the fact, that the creeping thing=repens-of the ground is the lowest.

746. 'Everything that creeps upon the ground' (Gen. vii. 8)=what is sensuous. . . The most ancients compared the sensuous things of man and his pleasurable ones to creeping things and creeping things =reptilibus et repentibus, and so called them, because they are the outermost things, and as it were creep on the surface of a man, and because they are not permitted to raise themselves higher.

774. 'Every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth' (ver. 7)=every sensuous and corporeal good . . . the creeping thing is mentioned last. . . Animals, beasts, and creeping things that creep on the land=voluntary things.

803. 'As to . . . every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth,' etc. (ver. 21)=their persuasions; in which . . . 'the creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth'=corporeal and earthly things. . . The persuasions of the Antediluvians are here fully described . . .

810. 'Creeping thing' (ver. 23)=pleasures.

909. 'Bird'=the intellectual, and 'beast' the voluntary things of his internal man; and 'every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth' (Gen. viii. 17)=like things corresponding to them in the external man; for in this passage, 'the creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth' relates to both the bird, or intellectual things, and to the beast, or voluntary things. The most ancients called sensuous things and the pleasures of the body creeping things that creep, because they are just like creeping things that creep upon the earth . . . 911, Ex.

916. 'Every wild beast and every creeping thing' (ver. 19)=his goods. . . 'The creeping thing'=the goods of the external man. 'Every bird, and everything creeping upon the earth'=truths. . . 'The thing creeping upon the earth'=external truths. . . In the preceding verse, it was called 'the creeping thing that creepeth,' because it signified both the good and the truth of the external man. Ex.

990. 'Everything that the ground maketh to creep forth' (Gen. ix. 2)=the affections of good. Ex.

994. 'Every creeping thing that liveth' (ver. 4)=all the pleasures in which there is good, which is alive. 'Creeping things,' here, mean all clean beasts and birds, because it is said, 'they are given for meat.' In the proper sense, 'creeping things' are the lowest of all which are mentioned, Lev. xi. 23, 29, 30; and they were unclean things: but in a wider sense, as here, they are animals which are given for food; but are here called 'creeping things,' because they = pleasures. Man's affections are signified by 'clean beasts,' but as they are perceived only in his pleasures, and man therefore calls them pleasures, they are here called 'creeping things.' Ex. —⁴.

—⁵. Pleasures are also called 'creeping things' in other parts of the Word; and a distinction is there made between clean and unclean creeping things; that is, between pleasures the delights of which are alive or heavenly, and those the delights of which are dead or infernal. Ill.

—⁷. 'Every form of creeping thing' (Ezek.viii.10)=filthy pleasures, the interiors of which are cupidities . . .

—^e. As 'creeping things'=such filthy things, they were accounted so unclean in the representative Church, that no one was even allowed to touch them; and he who merely touched them was unclean. (Lev.v.2; xi.31,32,33; xxii.5,6.)

996². Creeping things=both the pleasures of the body, and the pleasures of sensuous things . . .

1760^e. The dissent of the thoughts is perceived as something tacit that creeps.

6398². The sensuous things of man were represented by serpents, because they are the lowest things with man . . . and as it were crawl . . .

7295^a. The third degree is that frogs crept forth out of the waters. 9331⁶.

9182⁶. 'The creeping thing of the land'=the goods and truths of the external and sensuous man. Refs.

P. 275^e. He would at first creep like a quadruped.

D. 3662². The popes then feel something turning and creeping in the abdomen.

4678. The evil Genii . . . then appeared like creeping things in the streets, seeking with the greatest anxiety how to get out.

E. 342⁵. 'Everything that creepeth in the seas' (Ps. lxxiv.34)=those who are sensuous.

357³⁰. 'A covenant with . . . the creeping thing of the land,' etc. (Hos.ii.18)=conjunction with . . . the affection of the Knowledges of truth and good of the Church.

388²⁵. 'Creeping thing, and bird of every wing' (Ps. cxlviii.10)=the delight of good and truth of the natural and of the spiritual man.

400⁹. The creeping thing that creepeth=reptans-upon the land' (Ezek.xxxviii.20)=the Sensuous, which is the ultimate of the Natural, with the delights and scientifics there.

514¹¹. 'Creeping things' (Ps.civ.)=living scientifics.

556⁶. 'The creeping things of the land' (Deut.xxxii.24)=the things of the sensuous man: when separated from the spiritual man, these are merely falsities from evils.

650¹⁰. 'Things creeping innumerable' (Ps.civ.)=what is scientific there.

—¹². 'The creeping things' (Ps.cxlviii.)=the Sensuous, which is the ultimate of the natural man.

—³⁴. 'The creeping thing of the land' (Hos.ii.)=

the scientific of the natural man; in special, the scientific of the Sensuous. 701²⁰.

—⁴¹. 'The creeping thing of the land' (Ezek. xxxviii.)=the thoughts and affections in the corporeal Sensuous.

Creep. Reptare.

See CREEP=repere, at A.44. E.400.

A. 41. The things which are from the Lord . . . have a species of body, here signified by 'moving itself' or creeping.

2702¹⁵. 'The living soul that creepeth' (Ezek.xlvii.9)=their pleasures. (=the scientific truths which are of faith. 9050¹⁰.) E.629⁸.

Creep in. Irrepere. A.1937². T.338².

Cremaster. M.107^e.

Crest. Crista.

Crested. Cristatus.

R. 438. The erected hairs on a dog's back.

M. 103. There were crested helmets on the horses' heads.

361². The love . . . hardens the substances of its form, and erects them as it were into crests . . .

T. 71. On the heads of some of the birds were crests in the form of crowns.

Crime. Crimen. A.9262⁴. M.288. 530. —. D.4823. E.655⁵. 863¹⁷.

Crime. Facinus.

Criminal. Facinorosus.

A. 1118^e. Simulation was to them an enormous crime.

D. 2787. Occurs. 2791. 2973. 2974. 3680. 3924^e. 4396. 4466. 4467. 4470. 4494. 4545. 4615. 4806. 4948. 4950. 5208. 5457.

Crimson. Purpura, Purpureus.*

A.1116. Beautiful colours of their dwellings, crimson and blue. D.3925.

1156. 'Hyacinthine and crimson from the isles of Elishah' (Ezek.xxvii.7)=rituals corresponding to internal worship; thus =representatives of celestial things. 2576⁸. (=the good of truth. 5954⁶.) (=the intelligence of truth and good. 9466³.)

1232. 'Crimson,' etc. (ver. 16)=Knowledges of good.

2576⁴. This veil represented the inmost appearances of rational good and truth, in which are the Angels of the Third Heaven, which appearances are described by 'the hyacinthine, crimson, scarlet double-dyed, and fine linen interwoven' (Ex.xxvi.31); in which the red colour represented the goods of love, and the white its truths.

3300⁴. See RED at this ref.

—⁵. 'If sins are red like crimson' (Is.i.18). P.278a⁵.

4530^e. See COLOUR at these refs. 9467. H.179.

4922⁵. 'Hyacinthine and crimson'=celestial goods and truths; 'scarlet double-dyed, and fine linen interwoven'=spiritual goods and truths. Ill.

* By these terms a bright crimson or deep scarlet seems to be meant.

[A.4922.] 'Double-dyed of crimson' (Num.xix.6).

923¹³. 'Purple and fine linen' (Luke xvi.19)=the Knowledges of good and truth from the Word. 9467⁵. H.365². T.595². E.118⁴.

9466. This good reigns in the inmost Heaven, and in the Second Heaven it presents a crimson and a hyacinthine colour; the good itself, a crimson colour . . .

9467. 'Crimson' (Ex.xxv.4)=the celestial love of good. . . The reason of this signification of 'crimson' is that by a red colour is signified the good of celestial love. Ex. and Ill. 9596. 9671. 9833.

—⁴. Good from a celestial origin is also signified by 'crimson' in Ezek.xxvii.7 . . . 'Hyacinthine and crimson were thy covering'=Knowledges of truth and good from a celestial origin.

9596. First there is truth from a celestial origin, ('fine linen'); then comes the affection of truth, ('hyacinthine'); then the affection of good thence, ('crimson'); and at last spiritual good, ('scarlet double-dyed').

9687^e. 'Crimson,' etc. (Ex.xxvi.36)=the goods reigning in these Heavens.

9833. 'Crimson,' etc. (in the ephod, Ex.xxviii.5,6)=the good of charity and of faith. 9834. 9839.

9860. 'Crimson,' etc. (in the breastplate, Ex.xxviii.15)=the good of charity and of faith.

9868³. See CHRYSOPRASE at this ref.

9873³. 'Crimson'=the good of celestial love; 'scarlet double-dyed,' the good of spiritual love. S.46^e.

10037⁴. 'Those brought up upon crimson' (Lam.iv.5)=those who are in the Knowledges of good.

10227²⁰. 'The purple' in which the rich man was clothed=genuine good. (=the good of the Word. S.40³.)

S. 84². ('Crimson' is a term which has reference to good.)

W. 380^e. In the Heavens where love to the Lord reigns . . . the Angels are clad in crimson garments.

R. 305^e. Colours derived from red, as scarlet and crimson.

463. Crimson for decorations.

—⁶. The sailors were clad in a crimson garment.

— They cried, We are doctors clad in the purple—purpurati.

725. 'The woman was arrayed in crimson and scarlet' (Rev.xvii.4)=Divine celestial good and truth of the Word with them. 'Crimson'=Divine celestial good; 'scarlet,' Divine celestial truth. Ill. 773.

875. The Angel from the east was in a resplendent crimson garment, and the one from the south in a bright hyacinthine one.

962. The seats in the first row were covered with crimson silk; those in the second, with blue; and those in the third with white cloth.

M. 15. (Various crimson garments mentioned.) 20². 42⁴. 75⁴. 183. 266. T.595². 673. D.3752.

76⁶. A rainbow of three colours; crimson, hyacinthine, and bright white: the crimson passed through the hyacinthine, and tinged the white with a deep blue; and this flowed back through the hyacinthine into the crimson, and raised it into a kind of flaming beam. . . The crimson signified the wife's marriage love, (and its being raised into a flaming beam) signified the husband's marriage love flowing back to the wife.

208. The rain became crimson, then scarlet . . .

294. Crimson flowers formed the outermost circle . . .

382. Love tinges her face with a kind of flame, from the shining through of which is the dawn and bloom of her life.

T. 109³. From the rouge she appeared beautiful. 148³.

136. The first gymnasium was surrounded with a crimson light . . .

172². Purple—purpuratus—cardinals.

216. In its ultimate, the Word is like a transparent object . . . which from the flame is red like crimson, and from the light is white like snow.

439. Before the Angels, the good of merit appears like rust, and the good not of merit like crimson.

537^e. In Heaven they are clothed in . . . red, and after they have been initiated into the goods of the New Church, in . . . crimson.

686. They who have been regenerated through the Divine good of love, go in crimson garments, and are called Celestial Angels . . . The reason is, that crimson is the colour of love, which it derives from the sun's fire and redness.

Ad. 3/1289. Crimson is a red or rosy colour mingled with azure.

3/1291. Nature produces such linen from a crimson flower, etc.; and it represents what is natural, which is snowy, and flows from a crimson flower, that is, from a colour which is intermediate between hyacinthine and scarlet.

3/1827. Hyacinthine, or a resplendent yellow, with crimson points,=grace; 'crimson'=mercy; it derives its redness from love, its azure from Heaven.

3/1830. Universal grace is represented by a golden yellow verging to crimson; mercy and love by crimson and blood colour.

3/1843. The colour of a ruby is red, and therefore=mercy in God Messiah . . . thus has a similar signification to the red mentioned above in crimson and scarlet double-dyed.

D. 3246. A flaming crimson object seen. A.7620.

E. 195⁸. 'Crimson and hyacinthine' (Ezek.xxvii.7)=the celestial love of good and truth.

652¹⁰. 'Crimson' (Lam.iv.5)=the genuine good of the Word; specifically, the celestial love of truth.

1042. As a red colour derives its origin there from what is fiery or flaming . . . 'crimson'=good from a celestial origin. 1143. —².

Criterion. Characteristicon. A.471. 1680². T.379⁴.

Critic, Critical. Criticus.

A. 6621. They who have studied the mere critical art in reading the Word. Rep. D.805. 1952.

H. 353. (Critical things one of the sciences of the literary world.) See 464.

D. 1950. On the quality of critics in the other life. 5606^e.

2040. That critics know nothing in comparison with those who are not critics. 2056. 2380.

Croak. Coaxare.

A. 7352. See FROG at these refs. R.702.

Croak. Crocitare. T.45^e. 78^e. 375².

Crocodile. Crocodilus.

R. 601³. They who are in falsities from evil appear as basilisks and crocodiles.

624^e. In the Word, the deceitful are signified by . . . 'crocodiles' and 'vipers'; and deceit, by their poison.

M. 79^e. (Crocodiles seen there.)

T. 45^e. Self-love causes its cupidities to appear there like crocodiles, etc.

148. They are like pirates, who, at sea, are crocodiles.

381^e. As to the teeth, they are like crocodiles.

455³. Their friendship is like a young crocodile in a cake of honey.

491. The crocodile turns its food into poison . . .

D. 4908. The effort to ascend on high (of those who had been both revengeful and pious) appeared like a crocodile of an ugly colour with a long and broad tail rising on high . . . perpendicularly . . . But as the communication with the Angels was taken away, so the crocodile descended . . .

Crook. See under ROD.

Crooked. Tortuosus.

See OBLIQUE.

A. 8753³. That the truths of faith are perverted, is signified by 'crooked ways' (Judg.v.6).

E. 581⁸. 'Leviathan the crooked serpent' (Is.xxvii.1) = cunning.

652^e. 'To go in crooked ways' (Judg.v.6)=to wander away from truths.

Crop. Sata. A.9272². W.318.

Cross. Crux.

Crucify. Crucifigere.

Crucifixion. Crucifixio.

See under PASSION, and TORTMENT.

A. 2776². The passion of the cross was the last of the Lord's temptation, through which He fully united the Human to the Divine, and the Divine to the Human . . . 2816². 2818. 2921⁶. 10026².

2854. (Common opinion as to the cross.) 7272².

4599⁵. These temptations are signified by 'the cross' which they will carry. (Luke xiv.27.) 10490⁴ —7.

9144⁹. All things done by the Jews to the Lord when He was crucified, signified the states of their Church as to Divine truth, or the Word.

9930⁵. The cross was the last of His temptations . . . and after it He put on Divine good, and thus united His Divine Human to the Divine itself which was in Him.

10655³. That by this last combat, which was the passion of the cross, He fully subjugated the Hells, the Lord teaches in John xii.23,27,28,31,32,33.

10755. He wanted to preach the Lord crucified . . .

L. 3⁶. The passion of the cross was the last combat or temptation, through which He fully conquered the Hells, and fully glorified His Human. 12, Gen.art.

15. Through the passion of the cross, the Lord did not take away sins, but carried them. Gen.art.

16⁶. Their crucifying Him = that they had destroyed and profaned the whole Word. T.130³. E.122⁴.

34. The full union of the Divine and the Human in Him was effected through the passion of the cross, which was the last of His temptations. Gen.art.

Life 66^e. That he should 'take up his cross' (Mark x.21) = that he should fight against concupiscences. E.934^e.

99. 'The cross' = temptation. Ill. R.639², Ill. E.893³, Ill.

P. 247. The reason that nation was permitted to crucify the Lord. Ex.

R. 504. 'Where also our Lord was crucified' (Rev.xi.8) = no acknowledgment of the Lord's Divine Human, and thus a state of rejection. E.655.

527. He who loves evils, also loves to do evil to the Lord, nay, to crucify Him: this is inmosty latent in all evil . . .

640. The Divine truth of the Word teaches that those who for its sake afflict their souls and crucify their flesh, shall have peace in the Lord. Sig.

311. In the celestial sense, 'to commit murder' means to be rashly angry with the Lord, to hate Him, and to will to blot out His name: these are they of whom it is said that they crucify Him; which also they would do . . . if He were to come into the world as before.

682². See BAPTISM at these refs. 685^e.

728. Man must receive Him, but not as He hung on the cross . . .

D. 3404^e. (When the Spirit formed a cross with the bright stings, he excited the nearest ones.)

4740. He said he sat at the wood (of the Lord's cross).

5409. The sign of the cross seen on a lofty mountain: an indication that Babylon was recommenced.

E. 122⁴. 'To carry the cross' (Mark x.21) = to undergo assaults and temptations by falsities.

476. See BLOOD at this ref.

519⁴. The Lord's despair on the cross. Ex.

655³. The Jews crucifying the Lord = that the evils and consequent falsities which they loved crucified Him.

—4. What crucifixion, or hanging upon wood, signified among the Jews . . . There were two death punishments among them; crucifixion and stoning; and by crucifixion was signified condemnation and a curse on account of the destruction of good in the Church . . . The reason was, that the wood upon which they were hung=good, and, in the opposite sense, evil.

[E. 655]³. That hanging upon wood, or crucifixion, was imposed on account of the destruction of good in the Church, and that it thus represented evil from infernal love, from which come condemnation and a curse. III.

—⁹. 'To crucify' (Matt.xxiii.34) relates to the good of doctrine . . . and=to destroy.

893³. 'The cross'=man's proprium, against which he is to fight.

J.(Post.) 293. The Jews said to me, Why did Christ suffer the cross? I replied, Because He was the greatest Prophet, and therefore carried the iniquities of the people, as the prophet who lay on his right side . . . of whom it is also said that he carried the iniquities. In like manner other prophets . . . When they heard this, they said that they would go away and consult together.

Cross over. See PASS THROUGH.

Crosswise. Conversim.

A. 627². 'He placed his hands crosswise' (Gen.xlviii.14)=not according to order.

Crosswise. Decussatim. A.8373.

Crowd. Constipare.

Crowding. Constipatio.

A. 8210². Casting into Hell is a crowding by falsities from evil. 8232.

T. 160². A paved way, crowded with Spirits.

Crowd. Turba.

See DISTURB—turbare.

A. 842². Thus excite disturbances . . . Then after the disturbance, or turbulent state, there arises as it were a serenity.

5172⁹. They can be in great disturbances, yet not be disturbed.

5221. In a general state of enlightenment there is disturbance at first . . .

5396. See CHOIR at this ref.

5963. Contention . . . is a disturbance of the mind.

7975. 'A great mixed crowd' (Ex.xii.38)=goods and truths not genuine. Ex.

—⁹. 'Lo, a great multitude' (Rev.vii.9).

8304. To cast out the infernal crew. Sig. 8626.

10236⁶. Such is the infernal crew.

10812. A crowd of Spirits of that Earth.

H. 344. A crowd collected in the street.

508². The malignant crew . . .

543. Angels restrain the disturbances in Hell.

550. The infernal crew desire . . . to torment.

J. 58^e. A diabolical crew ascended.

C. J. 54. Calvin is accepted in his Society, because he is an upright man, and does not make disturbances. D.6041.

W. 273². The reigning love is as the devil, and the thoughts of falsity thence are as the devil's crew. —.

—³. There is another love, called satan . . . cunning villainies and devices are its crew.

P. 35^e. As he is averse to the diabolical crew.

R. 363. 'A great multitude, which no one could number' (Rev.vii.9)=all the others, who are not of those enumerated, yet are in the Lord's New Heaven and New Church, and are they who constitute the ultimate Heaven and the external Church, whose quality no one knows except the Lord alone. (=all those who are in the good of life according to their religion, in which are not genuine truths. E.452.)

745. 'Multitudes' (Rev.xvii.15)=those who are in discipline. (=those who are in truths or in falsities; for 'multitudes' are the people of the lower orders. E.1077). E.455⁶.

803. 'A great crowd in heaven' (Rev.xix.1)=the Angels of the lower Heavens. 811. See E.1195. 1214.

926. I saw a crowd. M.233.

D. 284. On Hell and the infernal crew.

325. The devil's crew can do nothing; but can perceive what is true, not unwillingly.

374. On the cruelty of the infernal crew.

617. How deceitful are the devil's crew . . .

774. On the merely infernal crew.

1177. On a crew in the interior Heaven.

1246. On an infernal crew in a dark chamber.

1594. On a wicked crew, wandering through Heaven.

2323⁹. See EQUILIBRIUM at this ref.

4594. On the crew of Sirens. 5486.

4627¹². There was a crowd in this sensuous lumen . . .

4629⁹. Among the low crowd are many who never raise their thoughts above sensuous things . . .

4732. The crowd of such (good Spirits) is very great.

4734. That crew (of robbers). 5714.

4769. On the atheistical crew in Europe.

4773. Occurs. 4956.

4872. On the dragon and his crew.

5093. The disturbance is thus quelled. 5212.

5103. Luther excited disturbances.

5202. (On a crowd of Spirits at the Last Judgment.)

5208^e. The crowd who adored him, and were evil, were then cast down.

5254. All there were subject to the monks . . . a very lazy crew . . .

5373. I saw a crowd vast in number (of dragonists) cast down from Heaven . . .

5567. On the wicked Babylonish crew. 5637.

5649^e. A very great crowd from various nations, who are all of them domestic servants . . .

5664a. A crowd of (Mohammedan Spirits).

5832. I saw a great crowd (of adulterers) driven into a desert . . .

5856. A roving crew from the Mohammedans . . .

5925. The diabolical crew were favourable towards them . . .

5937. They continually formed confederacies . . . one crew with this cupidity, another with another.

5978. Spirits were heard making disturbances . . . On inquiry as to what the disturbance was about, it was seen that they were searching with fury where the Lord was . . .

5995°. The delight of (Dippel's) life was to confute all, and excite disturbances.

D. Min. 4608. I do not know the quality of that crew.

4774. By inspiration of the diabolical crew . . .

Crown. Corona, Coronare.

See Top.

A. 2699°. Appear to themselves in crowns.

3350. By representations they formed a golden crown studded with diamonds round His head.

7643°. 'They crowned are as the locusts' (Nahum.iii.17). E.543¹⁰.

9144¹². Hence it is evident what is signified by 'the thorny crown.' (See under THORN).

9818²¹. 'A crown of adornment' (Is.xxviii.5)=the wisdom which is of good. 9930⁶.

9930². 'A crown' is a representative of Divine good. Ill.

—³. That a crown represented Divine good from which is Divine truth, is evident from the crown of kings; for kings represent the Lord as to Divine truth; hence they had a crown on the head, and a sceptre in the hand; for government from Divine good was represented by a crown, and from Divine truth by a sceptre. Ill.

—⁴. 'Crown' (Ps.cxxxii.18)=Divine good from which is wisdom; from which also is His government. The crown which is wisdom is said to 'flourish,' by that which He acquired for Himself in the world through combats and victories.

—⁷. 'A crown of ornament' (Is.lxii.1)=the wisdom which is of good. —⁸.

—⁹. 'A crown upon the head' (Ezek.xvi.12)=wisdom thence. —¹⁰. E.577³.

—¹¹. As the good of wisdom is acquired through combats of temptations, which are effected through the truths of faith, they who fought against evils and falsities, and conquered, received crowns: hence the martyrs' crowns: they were the insignia of command by the Lord over evils. Crowns=rewards of victory over evils, and that therefore they=goods of wisdom, because these are the rewards. Ill.

—¹². 'A golden crown' (Rev.xiv.14)=Divine good from which is Divine truth.

—^e. 'A crown' (Rev.ii.10; iii.11)=good from truths; thus wisdom; for this is of the good of love from the truths of faith.

10540³. 'A crown of ornament' (Ezek.xvi.12)=spiritual good, which is the good of truth; 'a crown'=good; and 'beauty,' what is spiritual.

S. 12. 'A crown' (Rev.vi.2)=eternal life, the reward of victory.

13². The locusts having 'crowns' (Rev.ix.7)=that they appeared to themselves as conquerors. R.432. E.553.

P. 259°. As various jewels give beauty in a king's crown.

R. 66. These varieties (in the Church) may be compared to the various jewels in a king's crown. 73. T.763°.

103. 'I will give thee the crown of life' (Rev.ii.10)=that they will then have eternal life, the reward of victory . . . As the martyrs desired it, after death crowns were given them, by which was signified the reward of victory: they still appear in their crowns in Heaven. (=wisdom. E.126).

189. 'That no one take thy crown' (Rev.iii.11)=lest wisdom perish, from which comes eternal happiness . . . The reason 'a crown'=wisdom, is that wisdom holds the highest place with man, and thus crowns him: nor does a king's crown signify anything else; for 'a king'=Divine truth, from which comes all wisdom. E.218.

—². Wisdom is signified by 'a crown.' Ill.

—'. 'A crown of adornment' (Ezek.xvi.12)=wisdom from Divine truth, or from the Word. —. E.126³. 195⁷. 272⁸.

235. 'They had on their heads golden crowns' (Rev. iv.4)=the things which are of wisdom from love. 'A crown'=wisdom. (=Divine good. E.272.)

252. 'They cast their crowns before the throne' (ver. 10)=acknowledgment that their wisdom is from Him alone. E.292.

300. 'A crown was given to him' (Rev.vi.2)=an ensign of his combat. The reason 'a crown'=a badge of combat, is that in ancient times kings wore crowns in battle. Ill. And as temptations are spiritual combats, which the martyrs endured, crowns were given them as ensigns of victory. E.358.

534. 'On her head a crown of twelve stars' (Rev.xii.1)=wisdom and intelligence from the Knowledges of Divine good and Divine truth from the Word. 'A crown on the head'=wisdom and intelligence. E.709.

643. 'A golden crown' (Rev.xiv.14)=wisdom from love; and as it was seen on the head of the Son of Man, by 'a golden crown' is signified Divine wisdom from His Divine love.

M. 20°. The bride wore a crown of gold set with rubies.

155a⁴. The dove had a crown as of gold on its head. 293°.

460°. This is the crown of her honour.

503. Virginity is the crown of chastity. Ex.

T. 342°. In place of a king's crown, they set on His head a crown of thorns.

786. This New Church is the crown of all the Churches. Gen.art. 787. 789°, Sig.

E. 126³. The reason 'a crown'=wisdom, is that all things which invest and distinguish man derive their signification from that part of the man which they invest or distinguish: 'a crown,' therefore, =wisdom, because it is a distinction for the head, by which is signified wisdom, because it resides there. Ill.

152⁶. 'The crown of our head has fallen' (Lam.v.16)=wisdom (has done so). 272°.

[E.] 272². That 'crowns'=good, and thence wisdom ; and that truths are what are crowned. Ill. 292.

— 'Upon himself shall his crown flourish' (Ps. cxxxii. 18)=Divine good from which is Divine wisdom, and from which is His government. (=perpetual victory over evils. 684²⁹.)

—⁴. 'In that day shall Jehovah of Armies be for a crown of adornment' (Is.xxviii.5)=wisdom which is of good from the Divine.

—⁵. 'Jerusalem'=the Church which is in truths from good ; hence it is called 'a crown of ornament in the hand of Jehovah' (Is.lxii.1) . . . 'A crown of ornament' = the wisdom which is of good . . . and on account of this signification, it is said to be 'in the hand of Jehovah.'

—⁶. 'The adornment of your head shall come down, the crown of your ornament' (Jer.xiii.18)=the wisdom which is of good. 'Ornament'=the Divine truth of the Church.

—⁹. 'The crown' (on the head of the rider on the white horse, Rev.vi.2), being predicated of the Lord, = Divine good, which He put on even as to the Human, as the reward of victory.

—¹⁰. 'The golden crown' (on the head of the Son of Man, Rev.xiv.14)=Divine good from which is Divine truth.

—¹¹. That 'a crown'=Divine good from which is Divine truth, was represented by the plate of gold which was on the face of the mitre worn by Aaron, which plate is also called 'a crown,' and 'a coronet' (Ex.xxviii.36, 37 ; xxix.6 ; xxxix.30 ; Lev.viii.9).

340⁷. 'A crown of the best gold' (Ps.xxi.3)=good from which are these (truths from good) . . . 'The crown' of kings = Divine good.

358³. Where temptations are treated of, 'a crown' = (eternal life the reward of victory,) as in Rev.ii.10.

—³. As the wars in the Word=combat against evils and falsities, and kings=truths from good which fight against them ; when they were in the knowledge of correspondences, kings in battle had a crown on the head and a bracelet on the arm (2 Sam.i.6-10). A crown in battle was an ensign of combat.

376³¹. The glorying of intelligence or learning is signified by 'the crown of pride' (Is.xxviii.1). 734⁴⁵.

430¹³. 'The crown' (on the woman's head, Rev.xii.1) =their good.

907. 'Having on His head a golden crown' (Rev.xiv.14)=Divine good girded for judgment. Ex.

Inv. 53^a. As now we have one God in the Church, Who is God Man and Man God, this Church is called the crown of all the Churches.

Crucify. See CROSS.

Cruel. Crudelis.

Cruelty. Crudelitas.

Cruelly. Crudeliter.

See FIERCE-sacrus.

A. 814. On the Hells of those who have passed their life in . . . cruelty. Gen.art. 818. 819^e. 824. 954.

824. See ADULTERY at these refs. 3469⁴. 5057. 5394.

5990. 7370. D.2621. 2622. 2643. 2656. 2665. 2666, 2843. 3319. 3598. 3673.

1514. When the sphere of those who have lived in cruelty, etc., is turned into odours, there is a cadaverous stench. 5394^e.

1742². The life of evil Spirits . . . is one of the cupidities of the love of self and of the world, and is thence one of hatreds, revenges, and cruelties . . .

2045². It is self-love from which spring . . . all cruelties. 2327^e. 2910².

2754. The modern Antediluvians . . . are cruel ; they have cared only for themselves ; and have accounted it nothing if the whole world were to perish for their sakes : there is a great number of such at this day . . . from Christendom : their Hell is the most grievous of all. 4327^e.

3605⁴. See JEW at this ref.

3750^e. Cruelty of Sirens. 3663^e. 3688.

5145³. See HATRED at this ref.

6666². See EVIL SPIRIT at this ref. D.189.

7248². These inhabitants of Venus are delighted with rapine, but are not cruel . . .

8318. Thus do revenge and cruelty become the delight of life (of those who are under the influence of self-love).

H. 488^e. They who have contracted a fierce and cruel nature there love cadaverous things.

553. Fiercenesses and cruelties from the interiors appear through the forms (of the infernals).

P. 330⁸. (Predestination) is a cruel heresy. Ex. B.65³.

T. 405³. Cruelty (is one of the evils characteristic of those who are in the love of dominion from self-love).

D. 247. On the extreme cruelty of some who with the mouth profess mercy and holiness.

374. On the cruelty of the infernal crew.

— The cruelty of the infernal crew can never be described : against those upon whom they exercise their cruelties they act from phantasies in the most hostile manner . . . If they could exercise their cruelties according to their phantasies, their butcher's work would be more cruel than that of the most ferocious beasts : by their phantasies they as it were bring forth axes and instruments of death, and unless God Messiah were to master their savagery, those whom they strive to torment would have a most cruel sensation [of suffering] . . . Mankind would have exercised such cruelties if God Messiah had not saved them . . . 377. 391. 593. 723. 730. 749. 1213.

794. Such (lukewarm Spirits) are more cruel than others.

2618. Cruelty of the descendants of Jacob.

2621. David's cruelty. 2638. 3346^e. 3657. 3659.

3366. Cruelty exercised against the Lord.

3412. This Earth has now wandered so far into cruel thoughts inwardly, while they speak well, that externals are by themselves . . .

4038. See CONSCIENCE at this ref.

4049. On the cruel under the buttocks.

6016. On cruelty . . . There was one who was cruel (Erik Benz., junior), for he was delighted when he saw injuries and violent deaths. He was among those who are cruel, with whom I spoke. They said that they long lie as if they were half dead, until that disposition is appeased, and after they are as it were resuscitated, they have no sense, wherefore they have no noses . . . because they cannot have perception . . . Their place is in the extremity of the west, upon the lands there.

D. Min. 4551. Some exercise their cruelty by means of the phantasy that they have as it were a burning candle, with which they burn others . . . Some kindle tow and burn them . . .

E. 413⁴. 'The cruel day of Jehovah' (Is. xiii. 9) = the Last Judgment.

714²⁷. Their wine being called 'the poison of dragons, and the cruel gall of asps' (Deut. xxxii. 33) = that the truth of the Church with the descendants of Jacob was external, containing within it infernal evils and falsities. 433³⁰. 519⁷.

734¹⁶. That they were not one whit in the love of truth, but in the love of falsity, is signified by that people being 'cruel, and having no mercy' (Jer. vi. 23).

Crumb. Mica.

A. 923³. 'His desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table' (Luke xvi. 21) = his desire to learn a few truths from those who were in abundance within the Church. H. 365². E. 118⁴.

M. 33^e. Every bit of her affection . . .

329². Every grain of thought . . .

T. 76^e. Pencils of light . . .

185⁴. Not a particle of it appears.

Cruse. Lecytus. A. 9548⁴.

Cruse. Lenticula. A. 4844¹².

Cruse. Paropsis.

A. 9325⁹. 'A new cruse, or a new vessel' (2 Kings ii. 20) = the scientifics and Knowledges of good and truth. Refs.

T. 673. The cups and platters cleansed by the Jews.

Crutch. See STAFF—scipio.

Cry. Clamare, Clamor.

See SHOUT; and under VOICE.

A. 375. 'A voice crying, or 'the voice of a cry' is a common formula in the Word, and is applied to any noise, disturbance, annoyance, even to what is joyous. Ill. Here, it denotes accusation. (Gen. iv. 10).

376. Hence 'the bloods cry' = guilt.

795⁴. 'To cry from the head of the mountains' (Is. xlii. 11) = to worship the Lord from love. E. 405¹².

1664¹⁰. Hence many things connected with war are attributed to the Lord, as here 'to shout,' and 'to cry' (ver. 13).

2239. 'The cry' (of Sodom and Gomorrah) = what is false. 2240, Ill. 2243. 2396. 2851⁷.

2243². As there is falsity from evil, and falsity producing evil, the term 'cry' is here used (Gen. xviii. 21), as a kind of general term signifying that which it involves, namely, evil . . .

2351. 'They cried to Lot' (Gen. xix. 5) = falsity from evil raging against good. . . 'To cry' is predicated of falsity.

2692. See ANGEL OF GOD at these refs. 2821.

—. 'To cry out of heaven' = influx. 2821. 2841.

4638⁴. 'A cry' (Matt. xxv. 6) = a change.

4779³. 'To give forth a cry, and 'to cry bitterly' (Ezek. xxvii. 30) = a lament over falsity or truth destroyed.

5011. 'She cried to the men of the house' (Gen. xxxix. 14) = falsities.

5016. 'I cried with a great voice' (id.) = aversion. Ex.

5323. 'They cried before him, Bend the knee' (Gen. xli. 43) . . . 'To cry' = acknowledgment through faith.

—³. As a cry is an act which corresponds to a living confession or acknowledgment from faith, the ritual of crying was received among the ancients when such a thing was signified. Ill.

—^e. In the opposite, 'to cry' = no acknowledgment, thus aversion; and it is predicated of falsity. Refs.

5365. 'The people cried to Pharaoh for bread' (ver. 55) = the need of good for truth. Ex.

5480. 'To wail, 'cry, and 'weep' (Jer. xlviii. 31, 32) = to have mercy and to grieve.

5585. If there is no conjoining medium, there is no reception of good . . . and if man then cries to the Lord there is no hearing, because he cries from evil, thus for himself against all. 6852.

5870. '(Joseph) cried' (Gen. xlv. 1) = that the effect was near.

6801. '(The Sons of Israel) cried' (Ex. ii. 23) = imploration.

6802. 'Their cry went up to God' (id.) = that they were heard.

6852. 'I have heard their cry' (Ex. iii. 7) = the aid of mercy. 'Cry' = imploration. 6862.

7119. 'Therefore they cry' (Ex. v. 8) = their great thought. . . 'Saying,' and 'speaking' = thought, and therefore so does 'crying'; but 'crying' = intense thought, with the full intention of doing.

7142. 'They cried to Pharaoh' (ver. 15) = indignation displayed.

7782. 'There shall be a great cry in the whole land of Egypt' (Ex. xi. 6) = interior lamentation.

8179. 'Wherefore criest thou unto Me?' (Ex. xiv. 15) = no need of intercession.

8353. 'He cried to Jehovah' (Ex. xv. 25) = supplication to the Lord from grief. 'To cry' = imploration; also interior lamentation; hence also it = supplication from grief.

[A.] 8573. 'Moses cried to Jehovah' (Ex.xvii.4)=interior lamentation, and intercession. Ex.

9202. 'If in crying he shall cry to Me' (Ex.xxii.23)=supplication to the Lord for aid. (9217.) The reason intense supplication is expressed by 'a cry,' is that the supplication, even silent, of those who supplicate from the heart, is heard in Heaven as a cry: this happens when men merely think, and still more when they groan, from a sincere heart; this was represented by a cry in the representative Church, and thus it became a ritual among the Jews. The case is the same with those who are teaching; in Heaven they are heard as crying. Not only do the thoughts, but especially do the affections which are of good and truth speak in Heaven; that these speak, and, if they are ardent, that they cry, has been given to know from experience. But affections of evil and falsity are not at all heard in Heaven, even if the man who supplicates from them should cry loudly . . . but these are heard in Hell, and as cries there too, if they are ardent. D.4821. 4822.

9203. 'Hearing I will hear their cry' (id.)=that they shall be aided.

10456. 'It is not the voice of the cry victory, and it is not the voice of the cry the thing is lost' (Ex.xxxii.18)=that Heaven acts on one side and Hell on the other; thus falsity against truth and truth against falsity. 'The voice of a cry,' or the voice in shouting=the quality of the interiors of that nation.

L. 5. See DAY at this ref.

F. 53. 'The men shall cry, and every inhabitant of the land shall howl' (Jer.xlvii.2)=the lack of all truth and good in the Church.

R. 326. 'They cried with a great voice' (Rev.vi.10)=grief of heart. E.393, III.

471. 'He cried with a great voice as a lion roareth' (Rev.x.3)=grievous lamentation that the Church is taken away from Him. E.601.

535. See BEAR-parere, at these refs. E.711.

645. 'Crying with a great voice to him that sat on the cloud' (Rev.xiv.15)=the supplication of the Angels of Heaven to the Lord. (=annunciation. E.910. 913. 917.)

787. 'They cried' (Rev.xviii.18)=their mourning. E.1173.

831. 'To cry with a great voice' (Rev.xix.17)=from Divine zeal. Ex.

884. 'Crying' (Rev.xxi.4)=fear on account of falsities from Hell.

885. 'Cry' is said of grief and fear on account of falsities from Hell, and consequently on account of devastation thereby. III.

—^e. 'Cry,' however, is said of every affection that breaks forth from the heart; wherefore it is a word of lamentation, of imploration, of supplication from grief, of attestation, of indignation, of confession, nay, of exultation. E.393^e.

M. 207. I heard an unwonted cry. T.694.

T. 759^d. The cry that it alone is orthodox . . .

E. 223⁶. See WINE at these refs. 652⁷.

400¹⁰. 'Cry' (Jer.xlix.21) is said of the condemnation of evil; and 'voice,' of that of falsity.

406⁴. Occurs. 412¹⁰. 540⁴. 781¹⁵. 815⁴. 817⁹. 850¹². 852⁸. 1145⁸.

419⁸. 'Cry' is said of goods.

424. 'He cried with a great voice' (Rev.vii.2)=a Divine command. . . 'Cry' is predicated of the good of love.

459. 'Crying with a great voice' (ver.10)=adoration from the good of truth, and consequent joy of heart. . . 'To cry'=interior affection, because a cry is the effect of it; for when a man is in interior affection, and consequently comes into confession, he cries; this is why 'a cry'=every spiritual affection, whether of joy, of grief, or anything else.

514¹³. 'The cry of the Chaldeans in the ships' (Is. xliiii.14)=the destruction of their doctrinal things.

652¹⁹. 'No cry in our quarters' (Ps.cxliv.14)=nowhere any lamentation over the lack of them.

654⁹. 'To cry'=grief.

Cry. Exclamare, Exclamatio.

A. 3597. 'Esau cried with a cry great and bitter even very much' (Gen.xxvii.34)=a great alteration thereof in respect to the inversion of the state.

D. 4452. Their persuasive cries.

Cry. Glocitare.

E. 650³⁸. 'The beasts of the field cry unto Thee' (Joel i.20)=the grief of those who are in natural affection, and thence in longing for the Knowledges of truth and good. 730¹³.

Crypt. See VAULT.

Crystal. Crystallum.

Crystalline. Crystallinus.

A. 7175^e. The Spirits of Mercury want to appear as crystalline globes. . . The reason is that they remove from themselves all material ideas. Moreover the Knowledges of immaterial things are represented in the other life by crystals. D.3237.

9872³. 'A jasper stone like a resplendent crystal' (Rev.xxi.11) . . . 'A crystal'=the truth of faith from good.

H. 489². They who have loved Divine truths and the Word from interior affection . . . dwell in light . . . When they look through their windows, it is as it were through pure crystals. . . For the truths from the Word which they have loved, correspond to . . . crystals.

—⁵. They who have ascribed all things to the Divine . . . are in heavenly light; and all things which appear before their eyes derive from that light transparency . . . The walls of their houses are as it were crystalline, thus transparent. (See TRANSPARENT.)

W. 245. As crystalline glass transmits natural light.

R. 238. 'Before the throne was a sea of glass like unto crystal' (Rev.iv.6)=the New Heaven from Christians who had been in general truths from the sense of the letter.

—². It is said 'a sea of glass like unto crystal,' from the transparency of the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord.

875⁵. The walls of (the Temple of Wisdom) were of crystal.

897. 'Even as a jasper stone, like a resplendent crystal'=Divine truth shining and translucent from the spiritual sense. These words describe the understanding of the Word with those who are in the doctrine of the New Jerusalem and in a life according thereto . . . —^e.

932. 'He showed me a pure river of the water of life, resplendent as crystal' (Rev.xxii.1)=the Revelation now opened and explained as to its spiritual sense, where Divine truths are revealed in abundance by the Lord. . . . 'A pure river of the water of life, resplendent as crystal'=the Divine truth of the Word in abundance, translucent from its spiritual sense, which is in the light of Heaven. . . . 'Resplendent as crystal'=these truths translucent from the spiritual sense, which is in the light of Heaven.

M. 12. The lofty windows (of the Prince's palace) were of the most transparent crystal.

20. Crystal cups.

T. 34⁴. The reception of the Divine life in the highest degree may be compared to the influx of light into a diamond; the reception of life in the second degree, with the influx of light into a crystal . . .

D. 3213. A pearly, then a crystalline, then an adamantine aura.

Cube. Cubulus.

D. 2627. Correspondence of bread cut up into cubes. (See BREAD at this ref.)

Cubit. Cubitus.

A. 9529. Occurs. 9530. 9531. 10179. 10181.

R. 909. 'Cubits'=quality; the same as 'measure.'

D. 3405^e. Their action was into the elbow.

Cucumber. Cucumis.

E. 513^e. 'Cucumbers,' etc. (Num.xi.5)=such things as are of the lowest Natural, that is, of the sensuous Corporeal.

Cultivate. Excolere.

See under WORSHIP.

A. 2913. See CANAANITE at this ref.

H. 351^e. Their interiors not much cultivated . . . 356^e.

356^e. The human mind is like ground, which is as it is made by cultivation.

466. See RATIONAL at these refs. 468. 469. 488². 489⁴. D.5785.

488³. They who are in the knowledge of doctrinal things, but have not applied anything to life . . . shun cultivated places.

E. 304⁸⁷. 'Ye shall be tilled and sown' (Ezek.xxxvi.9)=to inseminate these things. 768²².

Cummin. Cuminum.

A. 10669⁴. 'Cummin' (Is.xxviii.25)=scientifics, because these are the first things which are learned in order that man may receive intelligence.

Cunning. *Astus, Astutia, Astutus.

A. 2733. See SPIRIT at this ref.

3993¹². Simulation and cunning which have good for their end . . . are prudence, and the evils mixed with them may be mingled with good, on account of the end in view: but simulation and cunning which have evil as their end, are not prudence, but are cunning* and deceit, with which good cannot be at all conjoined . . .

4948. They who have lived a delicate life conjoined with interior cunning* are under the sole of the right foot . . . beneath the earth of lower things, where the Hell of such is: in their houses there is nothing but filth, and they seem to themselves to carry such things . . . D.2773.

6398^e. See SERPENT at these refs. 6949^e. P.310⁶.

6655. 'Come, let us use prudence with them'=cunning*; for 'prudence' in the mouth of the evil means cunning*; for what they do from cunning* and deceit they call prudence. . . All they who are in evil call cunning* prudence; and they make intelligence and wisdom to consist in that alone. (P.298.) They who are such in the world become worse in the other life, and there continually act from cunning* against goods and truths . . . Hence when men within the Church place wisdom in cunning*, they have communication with the Hells. True men of the Church are so far removed from cunning* that they utterly abhor it.

6666². (The cunning* of the infernals. Des.) H.577. 7272². Occurs.

7296². See MAGIC at these refs. 10409⁶. H.508².

9993³. A cunning man easily perceives these arcana, because he is delighted to lead others thereby . . .

1023⁶. See SENSUAL at these refs. H.267(b). T.402⁶. E.560. 763. —².

10409⁴. Hence machinations and cunning succeed with the evil; but their prosperity ends with their life in the world, and becomes the reverse.

10812^e. (This monkish Spirit) was adroit in seducing, although stupid in the things of Heaven.

H. 278². Acting from an evil end (the Angels) call cunning*, which they shun as the poison of a serpent, because it is utterly contrary to innocence.

358. See RICH at these refs. D.5794.

508⁴. They who have at heart denied the Divine . . . call everyone a god who excels in cunning . . .

574². (When a Spirit first enters Hell,) he is examined as to the quality of his cunning, and thus as to his power.

577². Man hardly knows that his spirit contains so much wickedness and cunning. D.4115.

—^e. (In proportion as such a man is brought into spiritual goods) he meditates cunning and deceit . . . This cunning adds itself to the evil of his spirit, and forms it, and causes it to be such evil as it is in its own nature.

[H.] 579^e. See VIPER at this ref.

S. 13³. 'Stings in their tails'=cunning in cheating (by persuasions). E. 560. (See STING.)

Life 81. The evil of stealing enters more deeply into man than any other evil, because it is conjoined with cunning* and deceit; and cunning* and deceit insinuate themselves even into man's spiritual mind, in which is his thought with understanding.

P. 111². It is the internal understanding which is in cunning . . . and it is the external understanding which is in machinations from cunning.

126. Then in place of cunning there is implanted prudence.

206². See CONCUPISCENCE at this ref.

310². See CRAFTY at these refs. R. 455^e.

R. 624. See DECEIT at this ref.

T. 454^e. This the cunning robber sees in his fellow.

D. 2838. So crafty and cunning are some Spirits, that they are much more cunning than in the life of the body; but this cunning is the Natural which they have acquired, thus a kind of instinct.

5161. On the Hell of those who are cunning.

5692. On the cunning and deceitful in the other life.

— A host of the cunning and deceitful dwell in the western quarter . . . Those who have exercised cunning* and deceit in secret are invisible to others, because they think within themselves, and thus remove the interiors from the body, and therefore from the sight of others . . . But they are detected when as to their ideas they are let into the body or external sensual; and then they can speak affably, and can confirm whatever they want so that it appears true and good. Such are against the Divine, and make nothing of the things of the Church. In themselves they are sensuous, and are serpents, but more poisonous than others, being vipers; and so do they appear too in the light of Heaven. Each and all are gathered together in their own places according to the nature of their deceit and cunning; but their lot is that they become more stupid than all others, because their interiors are full of secret and thus deep deceit and cunning*; wherefore the most cunning and deceitful ones are near the north, where are the stupidest: such are their Hells.

5778². (Spirits) once invented this wile . . .

5843. See POPE at these refs. 5846. 5847.

5863. (On a very cunning spy.) 5864.

6034⁴. They who are in these loves, especially in self-love, appear insane . . . but still they are very cunning; some are so in the highest degree.

D. Min. 4760. See RICHELIEU at this ref.

E. 560. He who cheats cunningly and craftily hurts most of all.

—². It is believed that those who are cunning and crafty are also prudent and intelligent; but cunning and wickedness are not prudence and intelligence, but, regarded in themselves, are insanity and folly . . .

715³. The reason why by 'the head of the dragon' is also signified cunning, is that all who constitute its head are merely natural and sensuous, and if they have at the same time studied the Word and the doctrine of the Church, and have taken up falsities as truths and confirmed them scientifically, they are cunning above all others; but this cunning does not manifest itself so much in the world as when they become Spirits, for in the world they cover over their cunning with outward piety and counterfeited morality, which hide the cunning; but as it resides in their spirits, it openly appears when the externals are removed. The cunning, however, which is signified by the dragon's head, is cunning in perverting the goods and truths of the Word through reasonings from fallacies and sophistries, also from persuasives, through which the understanding is fascinated . . .

C. 164^e. Cunning with (the Commander of an army) is not cunning, but prudence.

Cunning. Versutus. D. 1257. 4359.

Cup. See BASIN, and CRUSE-paropsis.

Cup. Calix.

A. 1072⁴. 'Babel is a cup of gold' (Jer. li. 7). R. 672², Ill.

1787². 'Let this cup pass from Me' (Matt. xxii. 39).

5120². See CUP-scyphus, at this ref.

5376³. This state of desolation . . . is here called 'the cup of the anger and wrath of Jehovah,' and 'the cup of trembling' (Is. li. 17). — E. 4061².

10235⁶. The reason the laver was according to the work of the laver of a cup (1 Kings vii. 26), was that by 'a cup,' 'a cup-scyphum,' or 'a cup-poculum,' is signified the Scientific which is of man's Natural or Sensual.

E. 376⁴⁰. Occurs. E. 724¹⁹.

6547⁰. 'With the cup of devastation and desolation' (Ezek. xliii. 33)=the falsities of evil which utterly devastate and desolate all the goods and truths of the Church.

960². Vessels have a similar signification to that of the things contained in them, as cups, cups-scyphi, cups-pocula, . . . therefore they sometimes=falsities from Hell. Ill.

—⁹. 'A cup,' or 'cup-poculum'=temptations. Ill.

Cup. Cyathus.

M. 20. Tables at the four corners of the room, on which were crystal cups. —^e.

Cup. Poculum.

A. 5120⁴. 'To give a cup of water in My name' (Mark ix. 41)=to instruct in the truths of faith from a little charity.

—⁶. As 'a cup,' or 'cup-scyphus'=that which it contains, and 'wine,' that which is contained, 'a cup'=the external of man, and 'wine' his internal. Therefore the Lord says, 'Ye cleanse first the outside of the cup and of the platter' . . . by 'cup' also here is meant the truth of faith; and to cultivate this without its good is 'to cleanse in the outside of the cup' . . . But to cultivate the good of faith causes truths to be conjoined with goods in the interior man; even fallacies are then accepted as truths; which is signified by 'cleansing first the inside of the cup, and causing the outside to be clean also.' E.475⁶. 794³.

—¹². As 'cup,' in the opposite=falsities through which come evils, also falsities from evils, 'cup' also = temptation, because this takes place when falsity fights against truth, and thence evil against good. Ill.

—¹³. In an utterly opposite sense, 'cup,' or 'cup-scyphus' = the falsity from evil with those who are profane, that is, who are inwardly in what is contrary to charity, yet outwardly counterfeit it. Ill.

9996². The sensuous Scientific, which is the ultimate of the Intellectual, is meant by 'a cup-scyphum,' or 'cup,' for the wine or water which is in it = truths. . . And as the ultimate is the containant of all the interior things, interior things also are meant by these vessels; by 'a cup-scyphum,' or 'cup,' intellectual truths; and, in the opposite, falsities.

10235⁶. See CUP-calix, at these refs. E.960². —⁹.

R. 635. 'The cup of His wrath' (Rev.xiv.10)=the truth through which is good, falsified. E.1022.

672². 'Cups,' etc.=those things which are contained in them. Ill.

728. 'Having a golden cup in her hand, full of the abominations and filthiness of her whoredom' (Rev.xvii.4)=that religiosity from the holy things of the Word profaned, and from its goods and truths defiled by direful falsities. E.1045.

T. 704. 'He took the cup' (Matt.xxvi.27).

D. 4827. See DRINK at this ref.

E. 375³⁴. 'My cup shall abound' (Ps.xxiii.5)=the intelligence which is from truths; for 'cup' has a similar signification to wine. (=the truth of doctrine from the Word. 727².)

376³⁹. Occurs.

887. 'Cup'=the external containant of truth, thus the Word in the sense of its letter. . .

1116. 'In the cup in which she has mixed, mix to her double' (Rev.xviii.6)=much retribution in proportion as they have profaned truth.

Cup. Scyphus.

A. 5118. 'Pharaoh's cup was in my hand' (Gen.xl.11)=the influx of the interior Natural into what is exterior, and the beginning of reception. . . 'Cup'=that which contains, and at the same time that which is contained.

5119. 'To press out into Pharaoh's cup'=reciprocal influx. Ex.

5120. 'I gave the cup upon Pharaoh's palm'=appropriation by the interior Natural.

—². 'A cup,' 'cup-poculum,' or 'cup-calix'=spiritual truth, that is, the truth of faith which is from the good of charity, the same as 'wine;' and in the opposite, the falsity through which is evil, and also falsity from evil. The reason 'a cup' has a similar signification to 'wine,' is that a cup is the containant, and wine is what is contained; thus they constitute one thing, and therefore the one is meant by the other. Ill. 5144. E.960².

3 K

—³. 'My cup shall abound.'

—⁶. See CUP-poculum, at these refs. 9996².

—¹¹. 'Cup'=insanity from falsities and consequent evils. Ill.

5126. 'Thou shalt give Pharaoh's cup into his hand' (ver.13)=that they shall serve the interior Natural. To give a cup to drink=to appropriate; and also to serve.

5736. 'My cup,' the silver cup, thou shalt put into the sack's mouth of the youngest' (Gen.xliv.2)=interior truth given to the medium. 'A silver cup'=the truth of faith from the good of charity; and as it was Joseph's cup, it=interior truth. 5747.

9394⁵. See BASIN at this ref.

9551. 'The bowls,' etc (of the candlestick, Ex.xxv.31)=spiritual things in what is natural. . . because they were productions from the candlestick, as the palms are from the body.

9557. 'Three bowls made like almonds' (ver.33)=what is full as to scientifics from good. . . 'Bowls'=the scientific truths which are from the good of charity.

9563. 'Four bowls made like almonds' (ver.34)=the scientifics of truth from good. 'Bowls made like almonds'=scientifics from good.

10235⁶. See CUP-calix, at these refs. E.960².

R. 417⁹. He said, I will drink out of an invisible cup.

T. 172². As clear as water in a crystal cup.

D. 3898. I saw glass cups full of wine and sugar.

E. 376³¹. 'Bowls of wine from which they drink' (Amos vi.6)=the external truths from which is worship. (=to adduce many things from the Word, so that they may appear. 448¹².)

Cupbearer. See BUTLER.

Cupidity. Cupiditas.

Desire, To. Cupire.

A. 18. 'The faces of the abyss'=his cupidities and consequent falsities, from which, and in which, he is wholly.

24^e. Through his cupidities man is led and bent by the Lord to what is good. Sig. 50².

25. That the Lord does not extinguish cupidities. Sig. 1874.

33. If you remove loves, or, what is the same, cupidities, because these are of love, thought would at once cease, and you would be like a dead man.

45^e. The lower things, which derive more from the body, are called 'the wild beasts of that earth,' and are cupidities and pleasures.

59. Cupidities are first to be mastered, because the whole man is composed of mere cupidities and consequent falsities. During regeneration these cupidities and falsities cannot be abolished in a moment, for that would be to destroy the whole man, since he has acquired no other life; wherefore evil Spirits are long left with him, that they may excite his cupidities, so that these may be loosened in numberless ways, and indeed so that they can be bent by the Lord to what is good, and thus the man be reformed.

[A.] 105. As no one can do what is good of himself, will is not of man . . . but cupidity is of man.

139°. He who desires, is already in evil.

207. 'Good to eat' = cupidity.

233°. See BELIEVE at this ref.

251². 'A flying fire-serpent' = the cupidity which is of self-love.

306°. 'The flame of a sword turning itself' = man's Own love with its insane cupidities and consequent persuasions, which are such that he does indeed will to enter, but is carried away to corporeal and earthly things.

307. The sixth and seventh posterities, which perished by the Flood, are here treated of . . . that they were left to their insane cupidities and persuasions.

320. A Spirit . . . is altogether as a man as to senses, cupidities, and thoughts.

357. See ANGER at this ref.

555. That with the man where the Church was, cupidities began to reign, which are 'daughters.' Tr. 568, Ex. 569.

557. See NEPHILIM at these refs. 640.

559. They had become such that their cupidities and persuasions could not but destroy them. Sig.

568. Corrupt man is here treated of, who has no will, but instead of will mere cupidity, which they suppose to be and also call will. 652. 895. 977°.

—°. As at this day there is no will of good, but cupidity, and yet something intellectual or rational can be given, so many laws were given in the Jewish Church concerning the prerogative of the man, and the obedience of the wife.

570. Their quality is here described, that they immersed the truths of the Church in their cupidities, and thus defiled them. Ex. 571. 582. 593.

—°. See PERSUASION at these refs. 794.

574³. See FIRE at these refs. 1528. 3300⁵. 4175°. 6314°. 6832°. —°. 7356°. 7519°. H. 570. 571.

594. See BEAST at these refs. 803. 987. 7872. 9190.

601. The man of the Most Ancient Church who remained could not be regenerated, on account of his direful persuasions and filthy cupidities; and that he would thereby utterly destroy himself. Tr.

622. Cupidities. Sig. —°.

623. The earth is said 'to be filled with violence,' from filthy cupidities; in the highest degree from the cupidities which are of self-love, or insolent conceit.

641°. Evil Spirits flow into the right side of the brain with cupidities; their influx is like an inundation of phantasies and cupidities. 660°. 1270. D. 3363. 3375.

643°. 'Brimstone' = filthy cupidities.

645. Preservation from the inundation of cupidities. Sig.

653. While man is being reformed . . . the Spirits who excite cupidities are entirely warded off from him; for there are two kinds of evil Spirits, those who act into man's reasonings, and those who act into his cupidities.

695. The Hells are kept bound by their cupidities and phantasies . . .

751³. While man is being tempted as to voluntary things . . . evil Genii . . . kindle him with his cupidities . . . and thus combat through his very cupidities . . . in a moment they infuse themselves into his life of cupidities . . .

757. Temptation as to cupidities can never be separated from temptation as to intellectual things; otherwise it would not be temptation, but an inundation such as there is with those who live in the conflagrations of cupidities . . .

760. Through the loves of the world and of self, thus through cupidities, which are the continuations of these loves, man has caused his life to consist of nothing but such things.

794°. Every cupidity which a man favours makes the life of his will; and every principle or persuasion of falsity makes the life of his understanding; these lives make one life when they immerse the truths or doctrinal things of faith in their cupidities . . . But when a man knows what is true so that it cannot be perverted, it cannot be so much infused in cupidities.

801. Thus cupidities (are to be called voluntary things) although they are not at all of the will.

808. 'He destroyed every substance' = the cupidities which are of self-love. . . The cupidities of the Antediluvians were those of self-love: there are two most universal kinds of cupidities; those of self-love, and those of the love of the world. Man desires only what he loves, wherefore cupidities are of love. With these people there reigned self-love, thus its cupidities.

828°. This punishment returns many times within hundreds and thousands of years, until they are imbued with horror for such cupidities. D. 2709.

831. They had contracted the habit of insinuating themselves into the cupidities and pleasures of others . . .

845. It is man's Voluntary which is acted upon by Hell; and not so much the Intellectual, unless it is immersed in cupidities.

—². It is worse with those who from cupidities have confirmed themselves in falsities, so that falsities and cupidities constitute one life. Tr.

847. When the temptation is natural, the fluctuation is between those things which are of cupidities and those which are contrary to them.

857. In the internal man are remains . . . In the external are cupidities and consequent falsities; and so long as these external things are not mastered and extinguished, the way for goods and truths from the internal is not open. . . (During trials) his cupidities begin to cease; but as soon as he returns to his former state, the external man dominates . . . 2041³. 2982°.

892. Man is in a state of bondage while cupidities and falsities command. Ex.

—². When those who are in a state of freedom from the Lord see, and still more when they feel, the life of cupidities and falsities, they abhor it as do those who see Hell open before their eyes.

999. See CONCUISCENCE at these refs. T.611.

1188. See FALSITY at these refs. 1189. 1212. 1295. 1666². 1679². 4729. 5563.

1200². Such are they who live in mere cupidities, because they live a mere life of the body and of the world.

1270. (The Antediluvians were permitted to flow into me only with cupidities.) Des. D.3363. 3364. 3375.

1297. See BITUMEN at these refs. 1299. 1666. 1688.

1322. Evil Spirits are tied together by similar phantasies and cupidities . . .

1326³. 'Faces of flames'=cupidities.

1327⁴. See PROFANE at this ref.

—⁵. Avarice is the lowest earthly cupidity.

1472². When man begins to place delight in knowledge alone, it is bodily cupidity which carries him along.

1510. See GENII at these refs. 1820². —⁴. 5035.

1551⁵. 'Gods of gold'=cupidities.

1587. See SODOM at these refs. 1598. 1600. 1689.

1589². The affection of good vivifies everything into which it flows; it even vivifies the affections of evil, or cupidities . . . but the man who is in cupidity perverts the good; nevertheless, the life therefrom remains. Ex.

1666. See SIDDIM at this ref.

—². All cupidity is of some filthy love, for that is desired which is loved, and hence it is called cupidity; and in the cupidity itself there is what is continuous of that love; and whatever favours that cupidity is called falsity. As cupidities and falsities are what lay man waste . . . this is described by what is 'salt.' Ill. . . As what is burning and what is salt destroy the land, so does cupidity destroy goods, and falsity truths.

1668². Evils or evil Spirits rebel in proportion as . . . cupidities and falsities insinuate themselves into man's goods and truths; for the life of evil Spirits is in cupidities and falsities. 1742.

1679². It is the very life of man which desires, that is, which loves . . .

—⁶. See MERIT at this ref.

1860. Whatever favours a man's pleasure and cupidity, he feels to be good.

1861. 'A torch of fire'=the heat of cupidities. . . Cupidities there appear as torches of fire . . . It is the cupidities of hatreds, revenges, cruelties, and adulteries, especially when mingled with deceit, which so appear.

—⁴. 'Burning pitch'=direful cupidities.

1879. They hate the interior things of the Word, because they are against their cupidities . . .

1909. Hence it is that cupidities and phantasies live . . .

1969. Evil Spirits are scarcely anything but cupidities and phantasies.

2041². See LOVE at this ref.

2220³. 'Daughters'=cupidities.

2889. Evil Spirits can hardly apprehend . . . that they do not begin to live until the life of the cupidities of evil and of persuasions of falsity is extinguished . . .

2890. Evil Spirits regard man as a vile slave, for they infuse into him their own cupidities and persuasions . . .

2892. He who believes that he rules himself . . . is carried into cupidities . . .

3175³. See TRUTH at this ref.

3321². The things which favour his cupidities he calls truths . . .

3696. Peace comes forth in externals by the removal of cupidities and falsities; for these are what cause all unrest . . . As man grows up, he gives himself into worldly cares and thence into anxieties through the cupidities of the love of self and the world and the falsities thence derived. 5662². 6325.

—³. 'The evil wild beast'=the cupidities of evil, which shall cease.

4067³. A man takes to himself Societies . . . as for example, he who is avaricious takes to himself Societies of like Spirits, who are in that kind of cupidity.

4317⁵. It is of hereditary evil to love self above others . . . and the world above Heaven, and all the cupidities or evil affections thence derived.

4496. The pain after circumcision=cupidity, because circumcision=purification from the love of self and of the world, and all the cupidity of the flesh is from these loves . . . While a man is being purified from these loves . . . he is in pain and anxiety; the cupidities which are then being wiped away are what feel the pain and anxiety.

4623². So far as anyone is in the cupidities of evil and the persuasions of falsity, as to the thoughts he is nothing but phantasy.

4729. 'We will say, An evil wild beast hath devoured him'=a lie from the life of cupidities.

4751². (Character of the cupidity of gain.)

4776. 'An evil wild beast hath devoured him'=that the cupidities of evil have extinguished. . . The veriest truth of the Church is that love to the Lord and the neighbour are the primary things; cupidities extinguish this truth, for they who are in the life of cupidities cannot be in the life of love and charity, because they are entirely opposite; the life of cupidities is to love self alone . . .

4793⁴. They apply only those scientifics which favour filthy cupidities.

4798. All the cupidities or evil affections of evil Spirits are inscribed on their faces.

4947. They who have lived to the world . . . but only from an external cupidity, or one of the body; and not from an internal one, or one of the mind.

5032³. Evil Spirits and Genii are in their life when they can enter into anyone's cupidities; and when they have entered into them they entice to any evil . . .

5079². When a man dies he has with him all natural affections and cupidities.

5084. If the natural man has dominion . . . the things of faith are no longer believed, for fallacies overshadow, and cupidities suffocate them.

[A.]5127². The interior man is in the faculty and power . . . of not willing and thinking what the exterior man from phantasy sees, and from cupidity has an appetite for.

5159². (With the unregenerate) the causes in the body (which produce changes of state) are the cupidities which come and which depart with age . . . The causes in civil life are apparent in external bridlings of the cupidities . . .

5215. 'Parched with the east wind' = full of cupidities . . . In the opposite sense, 'the east wind' and 'the east' = the love of self and of the world, consequently, concupiscences and cupidities. —³, Ill.

5382. The cupidity of finding fault.

5464². The cupidity of gain, of honours, and of reputation . . . seizes upon all the means of persuasion, (especially on truths,) for these have a secret power of attracting minds.

5651². It is necessary for the Natural to become of no account . . . because from infancy it has imbued nothing but what is of the cupidities of self and the world . . .

5712. Diseases correspond to the cupidities and passions of the disposition, and these are their origins. Ex.

5725. Spiritual inundation is double; one kind is of cupidities, and the other of falsities; that which is of cupidities is of the voluntary part, and of the right side of the brain. D.4155.

5854³. Man's life, from cupidities and phantasies, is contrary to good and truth, (and therefore it requires to be supported by evil Spirits).

6110⁶. Morning in Hell is the heat of cupidities.

6205. Evil Spirits chiefly put on man's persuasions and cupidities; and when they put them on they rule him from command, for he who introduces himself into a man's cupidities and persuasions subjects the man to himself.

6534⁴. 'The red horse' = reasonings from the cupidities of evil.

6977⁶. He at last abstains, not from freedom, but from compulsion, the cupidity of doing what is evil still remaining, which cupidity is held in check through fears . . . This is the state of the evil in the other life.

7110. The cupidity of infesting. Sig.

7272². In the cupidity of revenge. . .

—⁶. Evils from an evil origin are those which are from cupidity arising from the love of self and of the world.

7280⁶. When the evil come into the other life . . . and are left to their cupidities, they are like wild beasts . . .

7293⁵. 'Dragons' = reasonings from the loves of self and of the world, thus from the cupidities of evil.

7356. 'Into thy ovens, and into thy kneading-troughs' = into the delights of cupidities. Ex. . . The delights of cupidities are delights from the loves of Hell, which are the loves of self and of the world.

7424. 'Louse in man and in beast' = the interior and exterior evils of cupidities.

—². They are called evils of cupidities, because all evils are of cupidities, because cupidities are of loves.

7519. 'Ashes of the furnace' = the exciting of the falsities of cupidities through presence with those who are infesting.

—³. The filthy things of cupidities with blasphemies are excited when Divine truth flows in, and Heaven comes nearer. Ex.

—⁶. 'Burning as a furnace' = the cupidities of evil.

— . 'To set them on fire' = to kindle cupidities.

—⁷. 'The smoke of a furnace' = falsities from the evils of cupidities.

—⁸. 'A furnace of fire' = the evils of cupidities.

— . Cupidity is what is continuous of love. H.570.

7872. 'From man and even to beast' = their evil cupidities, interior and exterior.

8318³. They who are in evil from the love of the world . . . desire to possess all things of their neighbour; and when they are in this cupidity, they are devoid of all charity and mercy.

8364². The diseases which affect the spiritual life are evils, and are called cupidities and concupiscences.

—⁴. 'A burning fever' = the cupidity of evil.

8455². This is the delight and tranquillity of cupidities, which counterfeits a state of peace.

8821. 'The smoke went up like the smoke of a furnace' = an obscurity like the obscurity from cupidities.

9096. External bonds are the affections of the love of self and of the world . . . but if these do not descend from internal bonds, they are evil, and are called cupidities . . .

—⁶. Slavery consists in being led by the cupidities which are from Hell. Refs.

9139. The deprivation of the good and truth of the Church through cupidities. Sig.

— . 'To desolate' = to deprive through cupidities. 9141, Ex.

9141⁴. The consumption and desolation of good and truth through cupidities. Sig.

9188⁸. They who learn and teach from the cupidity of gain and of honours. Sig.

9190⁶. Evil affections are called cupidities.

9391¹⁴. To pervert the scientifics of the Word in favour of their own cupidities. Sig.

H. 290 (t). The cupidities which are of the love of self and of the world completely take away peace. Refs.

570. What man loves he constantly desires.

571. When this heat (from Hell) flows into man, it excites cupidities.

574. From every Hell there exhales a sphere of the cupidities in which its inhabitants are. When this sphere is perceived by one who is in similar cupidity, he is affected at heart and filled with delight, for cupidity and its delight make one, for what anyone desires is delightful to him. . . No one in the Spiritual World can resist his own cupidity, because the cupidity is of his love . . .

P. 61. He is an evil affection, which is cupidity, if the love of evil has been in him.

144. The understanding is blinded by the cupidities of evil ; so long as the will is in them it moves the understanding to confirm them ; and in proportion as the cupidities of evil are confirmed, the will cannot be in affections of good, and from them see truths, and thus be reformed. Examp.

R. 864. They will be unceasingly and to eternity interiorly infested by the love of their falsity and the cupidities of their evil. Sig.

M. 22^e. They said, 'Who could see such beauties, and not feel some desire?'

55^e. They said, We have been with the most beautiful, and have felt no desire . . .

79^e. All those wild beasts were nothing but representative forms of the cupidities in which the inhabitants were ; the cupidities themselves were represented by those horrible dogs.

249. From no determination to any study or business comes wandering cupidity. Gen.art.

440^e. Regarded in themselves, the cupidities of the flesh are nothing but conglomerated concupiscences of evil and falsity.

T. 588. All who do not indulge his cupidities.

Ad. 949. The desires themselves are continuations of such loves ; so are cupidities, which are desires in the natural mind ; from which this mind is called the disposition ; and these cupidities are called the cupidities of the disposition.

D. 597. On the ardent cupidity of Spirits. There are Spirits who are easily kindled with cupidity, so that they become extremely impatient and as it were burn with cupidity, and this without any use for themselves . . . It has sometimes happened that I have burned with the cupidity of possessing and of buying this or that article, and I perceived that . . . it was the Spirits who thus testified their cupidity . . . Their cupidity lasted a long time . . . although they know that the things they desire will be of no use to them . . . Their cupidity is kindled by many others, who are in a general Society, and of whom those who are with man are the proximate subjects ; and in order that I might the better know this, that cupidity was changed with me in a moment. Thus it is Spirits who excite cupidities, concupiscences, and the like. This has happened to me so frequently that I cannot count the times.

1132^e. (These Spirits) attract not only what a man or Spirit thinks, but also what he desires ; so that they constantly desire to know his cupidities, but this is not so much permitted, because every man and Spirit is evil, and, from himself, has only a life of cupidities.

1134. The men who become such Spirits . . . are those who desire to elicit from others what they think . . . in order to keep the man in bonds. They also long to know a man's cupidities . . . and then keep him still more in bonds. Therefore this is not permitted, as neither is it in the life of the body, except those cupidities which they favour . . .

1568. Appetite is said of the body ; to desire, or cupidity, of the disposition ; to long, or yearning, of the rational mind ; whereas to will is of the inmost mind . . .

1999. How the case is with excitations of cupidities, with those who are in faith. . . It is like an image in a mirror . . . for cupidity and evil are excited by evil Spirits ; and when a man is in faith, nothing adheres or is imputed to him, but it is turned into good . . .

2024. A certain Spirit was in the cupidity of possessing something . . . There appeared a sphere as it were of somewhat on fire, which was a sphere of the cupidity in which he was held ; and he appeared to be something very small as it were swimming in that sphere ; it was the sphere of the cupidity circumscribed. In that state he lamented that he was in intense pain from not obtaining what he desired. I thought he would perish ; but just then there entered from the Lord another more subtle sphere, which was a sphere of uses. Thus his pain was mitigated, as he confessed ; saying, that he received consolation in the degree in which the rays of the sphere of use entered. Thus was he taught that he ought not to covet anything, except from use, and that use ought to excite the affection.

2025. Moreover, the cupidities prevailing with some of possessing without regard to use, which they afterwards defend, by inventing uses, are also communicated ; a common case with women.

2152. If license were granted to Spirits to act according to their cupidity, all things would perish, for it would grow hugely . . .

2323. In the World of Spirits, especially in that of Souls, license is sometimes granted them . . . so that the rein is given to their cupidities, but rarely to their falsities . . .

2345. A state of quiet is a state not of cupidities ; the state of cupidities in which man is delighted is a state of the quiet of evil Spirits, and, in the other life, is turned into a turbulent state, or that of a rough sea.

2371. The thoughts of Spirits, which are only persuasions, have not been so well perceived, as those which have been cupidities. . . When persuasions only have been in the thought of Spirits, they have not been perceived by me ; but when cupidities and affections are therein, they easily manifest themselves, for they affect ; wherefore, also, they have sometimes spoken with me by mere cupidities and their variations . . .

2704. On those who are carried away with the cupidity of virginities.

2911. I observed how man is thus bent by the Lord from cupidities, through a persuasion from uses ; thus into cupidities by the evil, and out of cupidities through the good . . . 4389.

2965. Liberty is granted to Spirits (in the World of Spirits) to act according to their cupidities, but still they are led, so that what they desire is with admission, and presently as it were with restriction. . . Thus they suppose that they live their own life, and are in liberty, for they are thus led through series of their cupidities, but not beyond the limits within which good may come forth to them and the others.

[D.] 3309. On those who desire to build.

3376. After the Flood, man was as it were inverted, namely, cupidities . . . and the things of faith remained . . . so that the intellectual things of faith could be stored up with man, although he remained in his direful cupidities; thus thought was separated from the will, which was as it were left to cupidities; so that there is no will . . .

3538^e. In order that man may not be solicitous about the future, or trust in his own prudence . . . they who are in faith rarely obtain what they desire while they desire it; but still they obtain it afterwards while they are not thinking about it, if it is useful for them.

3614. Man is so carried along by his cupidities, which produce phantasies, that he willingly admits objections (against the Knowledge of faith).

3620. How much of cupidity some receive from fights.

3670. All cupidity, whether small, light, or intense, is a certain general which rules the objects of sight and the speech. . . Thus the cupidity of eating causes that whatever he sees he considers whether it is to be purchased for use . . .

3694^e. This is why . . . the life of cupidities must be destroyed before any one can come into Heaven . . .

3696^e. Persuasion flows in and masters cupidities, as the cupidities which induce persuasion are wont to do. 4117, Ex.

3782. Other Spirits infuse into a Spirit their own cupidities and persuasions, so that he cannot know but that it is from himself. . . In order that I might know this, it has happened now and frequently before, that Spirits have infused both cupidities and persuasions, and I then knew no otherwise than that it was from myself. . . The Spirits with man cannot infuse persuasions when he has not already been in that persuasion, but they can cupidities, and thus persuasions from cupidities. . . They can not only excite cupidities, but also inflame them greatly, sometimes to disgraceful anger and insanity . . .

3863. When the affections of good ceased, and there succeeded mere filthy cupidities, the natural operation into the right side of the face receded, and betook itself into the left side . . . 4071.

4001. No Spirit is allowed to teach man, thus not to lead him, except by cupidity.

4003^e. (The influx of the Lord's life is turned into contraries) according to persuasions and also according to cupidities and their states; for there are states of persuasions and states of cupidities.

4050. There are two lives, the life of persuasions and the life of cupidities, which are at this day distinct with mankind, who suppose that man can be saved by faith alone . . . 4114¹.

4057. On cupidities. I wondered that Sirens, etc., were in such knowledge of infusing and doing evil . . .

but it was perceived that he who is in any cupidity and its delight . . . knows all things belonging to that insane love: all the evil Spirits of that and many other kinds conspire together and breathe in . . . The life of cupidity is attended with this, for he who is in cupidity or insane love is in the knowledge of such things, even when it is excited by others: wherefore, in proportion as he is in the life of cupidities, he is in the knowledge of those things which belong to cupidities . . .

4059. Animals which are evil cupidities . . .

—^e. As man is only in cupidities . . . he knows nothing except through knowledges orally taught . . .

4065. As mankind is such . . . that they are to be bent by cupidities and through cupidities to goods . . . the Lord acts mediately through Heaven and the World of Spirits . . .

4095. These general (ideas) are received according to the recipient's state of persuasion and cupidities.

4096. After the Flood, the life was separated and became two lives, namely, one of cupidities, which remained, being hereditarily transmitted with increase; whereas the life of faith became a life by itself . . .

4105. Unless there be love . . . or cupidity, which is the continuation of love . . . there is no life.

4115. The life which remains after death is the life of persuasion and the life of cupidity. 4116.

4118. The life of cupidities remains with Spirits, and excites with man various cupidities and thus confirmations. 4167^e.

4119. There are Spirits with man who are in a like persuasion and in a like cupidity, and who may be called the subjects of many; for the persuasion and cupidity with the man at once excite those who are like . . . But still there remains a general or regnant persuasion, thus a regnant cupidity. Thus there are Spirits of a like kind with man, until his persuasion and cupidity are changed . . .

4149. In the right side of the head there are cupidities.

4252. Man can never be made better . . . if he obtains what he desires . . . but all things ought to be contrary to his cupidities . . . and still he ought to believe that the Lord rules everything . . .

4258. When good Spirits . . . excite what is contrary to man's cupidities and the life of cupidities, there ensue combat and anxiety, thus temptation.

4299. The life of evil Spirits consists of cupidities, and in proportion as they are removed from cupidities, they are removed from their life; wherefore, in order that they may live, and be prepared for some use, they are sometimes permitted to abide in their cupidities . . .

4434. Because Spirits are permitted to act according to their phantasies and cupidities, they suppose they can do much . . .

4484. On consociations according to affections and cupidities . . .

4485. Souls do not at once come into their consociations, because their phantasies are not those of their cupidities . . .

4487. The life of those who cast themselves into Hell, is previously nothing but the reigning of cupidities and consequent phantasies, not the reverse.

4532. With the evil there is solely the delight of cupidities.

4545. Evil Spirits are sometimes let down into the Hells, and are led about . . . according to their cupidities from their natural life in the world . . .

D. Min. 4610. Principles of truth change and break cupidities or delights of evil. From experience.

E. 551. 'They shall desire to die' (Rev.ix.6)=that they want to destroy the capacity of perceiving good.

556⁸. 'From him that would borrow of thee'=if he longs to be instructed.

586. 'To adore demons'=to worship their own cupidities. . . The affection of evil and falsity is what is called cupidity, and is signified by 'a demon.'

982. Evil loves in their continuity are called cupidities, and also concupiscences.

Curator. See STEWARD.

Curdled. Coagulatus.

D. 3791. It was turned into something like curdled milk.

Cure. Curare.

See under HEAL-sanare.

A. 9031. 'Curing he shall cure him' (Ex.xxi.19)=restoration, namely, through interpretation. Ex.

— Hence it is evident that by 'in curing to cure' is signified the restoration of spiritual truth, which is effected through a just interpretation of scientific truth or of the literal sense of the Word. Ill.

D. 2874. For evil is cured by evil . . .

Curia. See COUNCIL-CHAMBER.

Curiosity. Curiositas.

Curious. Curiosus.

A. 4622. When such a man wishes to know, it is merely because he is in curiosity from doctrine . . .

6734. 'She took the ark,' (Ex.ii.5)=curiosity . . . namely, to know the quality of that truth.

T. 183³. There also flows in the curiosity of conjecturing what they were conversing about before the world was created . . .

D. 1055. All Spirits as it were hunger and thirst to know . . . and are for the most part curious . . .

1435. The Spirits of our Earth also are curious, and desire to know many things . . .

1628. Certain Spirits, from inbred curiosity, wanted to know still more about the things revealed to me, and they knew that if they longed to know them they would not be allowed to do so; wherefore, in order to know them, they endeavoured to think that they did not want to know them, which endeavour was at once perceived, and they were told that they could not know them in that way, because they had used that art . . . but that they should be devoid of the desire, and so leave it to the Lord to grant it when it should be pleasing to Him; which also they endeavoured to do from themselves; but as this too was of them . . . there was still something artificial, or of their own endeavour and will . . . They therefore inquired how they should act; and they were told that they should not do anything from themselves, but should act without reflection about self; and as they could not do this, they wanted to divest themselves of all endeavour, leaving themselves without any will, so as to await it passively . . . But they were told that this was not genuine . . . for that in this way they are not led by the Lord . . .

2505. For some days such have been with me as live for themselves and not for the commonwealth, and they took from me all the delight of life, arrogating all things to themselves, which they did in this way, that they wanted from mere curiosity to hear and perceive what I read, and when they got hold of it they arrogated it to themselves, leaving me out altogether, so that I was obliged to do my work with much annoyance . . .

2955. Another (class receive these writings) as scientifics, and are delighted with them as scientifics and curious things.

2995. When Mohammedan (Spirits) perceive curious things . . . at first they do not care for them . . . thinking that if they receive good it is sufficient . . .

3259. Wherefore, there is adjoined to the Spirits of Mercury reflection more than to others; for avidity, or curiosity, and the love of such things, produces reflection . . .

3630. How curious Spirits are . . .

3784^e. When Spirits cannot know the secrets of others they cannot endure them, for they are intensely curious. Wherefore the Quaker Spirits live apart from others.

4395. It was said concerning these examiners that they are such as in the world had been curious in tracing out the evils of others in order to injure them.

5722. Ericus Benzelius . . . had the Word merely by worldly things, languages, and curious things of his country . . .

5831. All who had looked downwards from desire were cast down, because in this way their minds had been diffused into other things than belonged to their Society, and they had been possessed either by mere curiosity, or the cupidity of exercising command . . . 5901.

Current. See VEIN.

Curse. Maledicere, Maledictio.

See under ACCURSED.

A. 245. His saying to the serpent 'Cursed art thou above every beast, and above every wild beast of the field' (Gen.iii.1)=that the Sensual averted itself from the Celestial, and turned itself to the Corporeal, and thus condemned or cursed itself. . . The Lord never curses anything . . . the diabolical crew do this. Ex. 269.

272. 'The thorn and the thistle'=curse and vastation. 273, Ex. and Ill.

378. 'Cursed art thou, from the ground' (Gen.iv.11)=that he was turned away by schism.

[A.] 379. 'Cursed' = turned away, as shown in n. 245; for iniquities and abominations, or hatreds, are what turn man away from Heaven, so that he looks only downwards to corporeal and earthly things, and thus to those of Hell . . .

531. 'To comfort us from our work, and from the grief of our hands out of the ground which Jehovah hath cursed' (Gen.v.29)=the doctrine whereby that would be restored which had been perverted.

927. 'I will not add to curse the ground any more for man's sake' (Gen.viii.21)=that man would no longer so turn himself away as did the man of the posterity of the Most Ancient Church. . . 'To curse'=to turn himself away.

1093. 'Cursed is Canaan' (Gen.ix.25)=that external worship separated from internal turns man away from the Lord. . . 'To be cursed'=to turn one's self away, for the Lord never curses anyone . . . but it is man who curses himself by turning himself away from the Lord. The Lord is as far from cursing and being angry with anyone as Heaven is from earth . . . That arcana are contained here may be seen from this, that Ham is not cursed . . . but Canaan his son . . . the fourth in order . . .

1423. 'I will curse him that curseth thee' (Gen.xii.3)=the unhappiness of those who do not acknowledge; as is evident from the signification of 'being cursed,' and 'cursing,' which is to turn one's self away from the Lord, thus not to acknowledge; for they who do not acknowledge turn themselves away. Thus 'to curse' here involves all things opposite to those which 'to bless' involves.

2445. In the oppositesense, 'rain'=curse, consequently also damnation.

3530. 'I shall bring upon me a curse, not a blessing' (Gen.xxvii.12)=disjunction. 'A curse'=disjunction or turning away from good.

3532. 'Upon me be the curse of thee, my son' (ver.13)=that there would be no disjunction.

3584. 'They who curse thee, he is cursed' (ver.29)=that he who disjoins himself shall be disjoined.

4502. 'Cursed be their anger because it was vehement, and their fury because it was grievous' (Gen.xlix.7)=the punishment for turning away from truth and good; 'to curse'=to turn one's self away, and also to be punished on that account.

5071. The reason those on the left are called 'the cursed' (Matt.xxv.41) . . . is that they have turned themselves away from good and truth, and have turned themselves to evil and falsity; 'a curse'=a turning away.

5156. 'To hang upon wood'=rejection and damnation; for hanging upon wood was a curse (Deut.xxi.23), and a curse is rejection by the Divine, consequently, damnation.

6358. 'Cursed be their anger because it was vehement'=a grievous turning away from good, and consequent damnation. 'To be cursed'=damnation, for he who is cursed is damned.

7553. When 'rain'=a curse, it=the falsity which is against the truth of faith, and the evil which is against the good of charity, for these are a curse.

9021. 'He who curseth his father and his mother' (Gen.xxi.17)=a denial in every way of the Lord and His Kingdom by those who belong to the Church, and thus a profanation of the good and truth of the Church. 'To curse'=a turning away and disjunction, hence also a denial in every way, for he who turns away and disjoins himself from the Lord denies Him at heart.

9184^e. If a man is in inverted order, gains and honours are curses to him.

9221. 'Thou shalt not curse God' (Gen.xxii.28)=that Divine truths are not to be blasphemed. 'To curse'=to blaspheme, for they who blaspheme, curse. 9222^e.

10409^f. Such things are rather a curse to those who love themselves and the world above all things . . .

P. 216². The natural man . . . does not see that honours and wealth . . . may also be curses, and . . . that when they are curses they are from the devil: it is known that honours and wealth are given by the devil also, for from this he is called the prince of this world.

217. See BLESS=benedicere, at this ref.

242². The curse of Cain involves the spiritual state of those who separate faith from charity, or wisdom from love, into which they come after death.

D. 2354. (How Balaam could have cursed the people.) Ex.

E. 340¹⁹. The devastated Church is called 'a curse' (Zech.viii.13), because evil and falsity are there.

376²⁰. 'The earth which the curse shall devour' (Is. xxiv.6)=the Church; 'the curse'=its perversion.

386¹³. 'To curse' (Is.viii.21)=to detest.

600⁵. 'The cursed,' in the Word, =all who turn themselves away from the Lord; for they reject the charity and the faith of the Church.

700¹⁸. See JERICHO at this ref.

730¹⁶. 'The Curse,' on account of which the land mourneth' (Jer.xxiii.10)=all evil of life and falsity of doctrine.

Curtain. Aulaeum.

A. 3519⁸. 'The curtains' upon the habitation of the tent were to be made of she-goat's wool (Ex.xxvi.7), for a sign that all the holy things which were therein represented, derived their essence from innocence. The she-goat's wool=the ultimate or outermost of innocence, which is in ignorance, such as there is with the gentiles, who, in the internal sense, are the curtains of the tabernacle.

3540⁹. The curtains which were around represented natural things, which are external.

9595. 'Ten curtains' (Ex.xxvi.1)=all the truths of which it consists. 'Curtains,' or 'curtains=cortinae'=the interior truths of faith which belong to the new Intellectual; for the habitation=the Second Heaven, which is Heaven from the reception of Divine truth from the Lord's Divine good; therefore the curtains with which it was constructed and covered=the truths of faith which belong to the new Intellectual: the reason they=interior truths, is that exterior truths are signified by the curtains of goat's wool for the tent which was round about.

—². That 'curtains' or 'curtains-cortinae' = the truths of faith which belong to those who are in the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom. Ill.

9600. 'Curtain' = the interior truth of faith which belongs to the new Intellectual. 9604.

9602. 'One curtain' = so in each of the truths. 9619.

9604. 'Five curtains shall there be joined together, each to the other, and five curtains joined together, each to the other' (ver. 3) = the constant communication of truth with good, and of good with truth . . . for the communications must be reciprocal, in order that there may be a conjugal conjunction of truth and good. Ex.

9615. 'Thou shalt make curtains from goats for the tent upon the habitation' (Ex. xxvi. 7) = the external of Heaven which is from the truths that are from external celestial good. 'Curtains' = the interior truths of faith; here, the exterior truths of faith, because they were for the tent that was upon the habitation.

9617. 'Curtain' = truth from external celestial good. 9627.

S. 42^e. The Word in the sense of the letter . . . is also meant by the curtains and veils of the tabernacle. 46, Gen. art.

46. Hence it follows, that by the ultimates of the tabernacle, which were the curtains and veils, thus its coverings and containants, are signified the ultimates of the Word, which are the truths and goods of the sense of its letter. Because these were signified, all the curtains and veils were made of fine linen interwoven, and of hyacinthine and crimson, and scarlet doubled-dyed, with cherubs. . . In the Arcana Coelestia it is shown that the curtains and veils represent the externals of Heaven and the Church, thus also the externals of the Word . . . 97³. T. 220.

R. 962. Under the roof, high above the table, there appeared a wide-spread canopy, shining with precious stones . . .

T. 136³. A theatre, on which there hangs a painted curtain.

E. 654⁵⁰. 'Curtains' (Is. xix. 9) = natural truths from a spiritual origin; and 'to make and weave them' = to teach.

Curtain. Cortina.

A. 414². 'Curtains' and 'cords' (Jer. x. 20) = spiritual things thence derived.

3242^e. 'The curtains of the land of Midian' (Hab. iii. 7) = a religiosity from falsity.

3268³. 'Curtains' and 'vessels' (Jer. xlix. 29) = the truths (of the Spiritual Church). 3762⁴. E. 799¹².

9595. See CURTAIN-aulaeum, at these refs. —².

—². 'To stretch out the curtains of the habitations' (Is. liv. 2) = the Holy of worship from the truths of faith. (= to multiply truths. 10545³.) (= the increasing of the Church as to truths of doctrine. E. 600¹².)

E. 799¹¹. 'Curtains' (Jer. x. 20) = truths proceeding from that good, and covering it.

Cush. See under ETHIOPIA.

Custody. See GUARD-custodire.

Custom. Assuetudo, Assuescere.

H. 158. Occurs. 343. 492. D. 3553.

533. If man accustoms himself so to think, and from the custom acquires a habit, he is gradually conjoined with Heaven.

Custom. Census.

A. 6394^e. 'To give tribute, or custom' (Matt. xvii. 25) = those who serve. E. 513¹⁸.

M. 287. To support the house from his own property and income.

Custom. Consuetudo.

See HABIT.

A. 3769³. From the love and consequent habit . . .

H. 458. From custom, hypocrites have contracted a habit of composing their interiors so as to imitate good affections.

P. 231. The vicious custom of taking names or sayings from the Word . . . D. 1304.

M. 246². By education, company, and consequent habits . . .

—^e. These dissimilitudes are not indicated by the face, but by the habits.

T. 563. It is known that habit makes a second nature . . .

D. 1963. This harmony results from the habit of life from which the delight is derived: a harmony contrary to true harmony is acquired by habit; for there are those who take pleasure in discords.

2307. The habit (of speaking filthy and obscene things) should be guarded against, because it remains, and the offender is cast out from Societies.

3499. In consequence of such a habit contracted in the life of the body, in the other life they seize whatever comes in their way, and conceal what they are doing and thinking.

3618^e. He afterwards exercised the same artifice from habit . . .

3889. Like the words of our Earth, in which if there are not ideas there is nothing of life, from custom; especially when they begin to be delighted with such speech, it becomes such a habit-habitus, that they conclude from mere forms . . .

4080. As soon as there is actuality, evil puts on custom and habit, and so passes to posterity.

Customary. Solennis, Solenniter.

A. 1422². A customary formula with the ancients . . .

5619. It was customary in the Ancient Church . . .

R. 468. Hence it is customary in worship . . .

M. 306. There are some customary things which are only formal, and there are some customary things which are at the same time essential: among the latter are weddings. That these are among the essential things which are to be manifested in the customary way. Ex.

T. 568². To observe the solemnities of worship . . .

Cut. Caedere.

A. 1296. 'Hewn stones' (Is.ix.10)=what is invented.
 1298². It was commanded to build the altar of whole stones, not hewn . . . because hewn stones . . . =what is artificial, and thus counterfeited things of worship, that is, which are from proprium, or from the production of man's thought and heart; which was to profane worship.

8941. 'Thou shalt not build them hewn' (Ex.xx.25) =not from their Own intelligence. 'Hewn stones'=such things as are from man's Own intelligence; for 'stones'=truths, and to cut=secare, or fit them=to hatch, or invent truths or things like truths from proprium or from man's Own intelligence; for the things which are hatched or invented from proprium or from man's Own intelligence have life from man, which life is no life, because man's proprium is nothing but evil. Refs. . . The truths from which the Lord is to be worshipped, are to be taken exclusively from the Word . . . When truths are taken from proprium, they regard and have as an end dignity and pre-eminence above all people in the world, and also earthly possessions and wealth above all, wherefore they have in them the love of self and of the world, thus all evils in the complex. Further Ex. 10406⁶. R.457². E.585¹¹.

—⁴. 'Hewn stone' also=that which is from man's Own intelligence in the following places. Ill.

9011⁴. 'To hew wood'=to place merit in works. Refs. But 'to hew wood in the forest' (Deut.xix.5)=to discuss them and the like of them, and also to make them the subject of inquiry; for 'a forest'=what is religious. Such things are signified by 'hewing wood in the forest with axes' in Jeremiah: 'The hirelings of Egypt shall go from strength, and they shall come with axes, as hewers=excisores—of wood, they shall hew down=excident—her forest, saith Jehovah' (xlv.22,23). Here 'to hew down wood in the forest'=to act from a false religiosity, and to destroy the things of the Church; for the Church is called 'a forest' from knowledge . . . because 'trees'=perceptions and Knowledges of good and truth . . .

Cut. Incidere, Incisio.

E. 411¹⁷. Their making such things for themselves, is signified by 'hewing out=excidere—' and 'cutting into' (Is.xxii.16).

637¹⁶. 'Incisions upon all the hands' (Jer.xlviii.37) =things falsified.

Cut. Jugulare.

D. 3653. They would cut my throat. 4101.

Cut. Secare, Bisecare.

A. 1111. They who have lived a good civil and moral life, but have persuaded themselves that they would merit Heaven through their works . . . seem to themselves to be cutting grass. (See SAW at this ref.)

4943. In the Lower Earth . . . are they who have placed merit in good works. Many of them seem to themselves to be cutting wood . . . If they do not receive more joy than others they are indignant with the Lord; wherefore, while they are cutting wood, there sometimes appears as if there were something of the Lord under the wood . . . 8740.

8941. See CUT=caedere, at this ref.

10048. 'Thou shalt cut the ram into pieces=segmenta' (Ex.xxix.17)=interior things arranged distinctly in order. . . 'To cut into pieces'=the arrangement in order of the interior things. Ex.

T. 379. Truth cannot be cut in two . . .

E. 279⁷. 'The calf being cut into two parts' (Jer. xxxiv.18)=the good proceeding from the Lord on the one side, and the good received by man on the other; whence comes conjunction.

Cut. See SHEAR.

Cut asunder. Diffindere.

A. 8184. 'Cut asunder the sea' (Ex.xiv.16)=the consequent dissipation of falsity.

8204. 'The waters were cut asunder' (ver.21)=separation from truths and removal; for 'to cut asunder the waters'=the dissipation and separation of falsity.

E. 388⁹. That cupidities and falsities will destroy them, is signified by 'the wild beast shall tear them' (Hos.xiii.8).

391²⁰. That there is no worship at all is signified by 'the altar being rent' (1 Kings xiii.3).

Cut off. Abscindere.

A. 7045. 'She cut off her son's foreskin' (Ex.iv.25) =the removal of filthy loves. . . 'To cut off'=to remove.

Cut off. Amputare.

D. 3974. They wanted me to cut off my tongue with my teeth.

E. 1100⁷. See CUT OFF=decidere, at this ref.

Cut off. Decidere.

E. 386². 'He shall cut off on the right hand' (Is.ix.20) . . . =to inquire into. 600¹³. 617²⁰.

684²⁴. 'Shall Messiah be cut off' (Dan.ix.26).

1100⁷. 'Hew down the tree, and cut off=amputate—his branches' (Dan.iv.14).

Cut off. Excidere, Excisio.

A. 411. See CONSUMMATE at these refs. 4057.

1034. 'All flesh shall not be cut off any more by the waters of a flood' (Gen.ix.11)=that they will not perish as the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church did.

1691⁵. 'I went down to the cuttings off of the mountains' (Jonah ii.6). The Lord's temptations are thus described.

2058. 'That soul shall be cut off from his peoples' (Gen.xvii.14)=eternal death. . . 'Peoples'=those who live in truths, that is, the Angels, and for the soul to be cut off from them is to be damned, or to perish in eternal death.

5360². Desolation and vastation . . . are called 'cutting off', 'consummation,' etc.

9316. 'I will cut him off' [i.e. the Amorite, etc.] (Ex.xxiii.23)=when the Lord has protected against the evils and falsities which infest the Church, and has removed them. . . 'To cut off—exscindere'=to protect, and thus to remove: Hell is removed solely through the protection of Heaven by the Lord.

10453. 'The writing was the writing of God cut out upon the tables' (Ex.xxxiii.16) . . . 'Cut out upon the tables'=what is internal upon what is external, thus in it.

E. 315¹⁰. Exscindere occurs. 316²¹.

391²⁸. 'Samaria is cut off' (Hos.x.7). Ex.

—²⁹. 'The horns of the altar shall be cut off' (Amos iii.14). Ex.

406¹³. 'To cut off from Tyre and Sidon every helper that remaineth' (Jer.xlvii.4)=that they have not any Knowledge of truth and good.

411¹⁷. See CUR-incidere at this ref.

444⁶. 'There shall not be cut off from David a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel' (Jer.xxxiii.17)=that then the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord shall perpetually reign in the Church.

537¹³. 'To hew out pits, broken pits which will not hold waters' (Jer.ii.13)=to hatch doctrinal things from man's Own intelligence . . .

538¹¹. The cuttings off of the mountains to which he went down=the Hell where and whence are evils.

543⁹. Occurs.

638¹⁴. See CISTERN at this ref.

659⁷. 'Whom Thou rememberest no more, and who are cut off from Thy hand' (Ps.lxxxviii.5)=who are deprived of all truth and good.

730⁴³. 'The land of cutting off, and the wilderness' (Lev.xvi.22)=Hell.

781¹⁵. 'Hewn stone' (Lam.iii.9)=those things which belong to man's Own intelligence: and as these things are signified by 'hewn stone,' it was forbidden to build the altar of hewn stones, and also the temple.

922⁸. 'He hewed out a winepress therein' (Is.v.2).

1029⁶. 'Hew down the tree, and cut off—amputate—his branches' (Dan.iv.14).

1145⁶. 'The wood which he cuts down out of the forest, and the work of the hands of the workman with the axe' (Jer.x.3)=evil, from which is worship, which has been fashioned from man's Own intelligence, through falsities . . .

Cut off. Exscindere.

A. 5302. 'The land shall not be cut off in the famine' (Gen.xli.36)=lest man should perish through a lack of truth . . . 'To be cut off'=to perish.

7397. 'To cut off the frogs from thee, and from thy houses' (Ex.viii.9)=that reasonings may cease. . . 'To cut off'=to cease; for 'to cut off' is predicated of the frogs, and to cease of the reasonings.

7505. 'To cut off from it man and beast' (Ezek.xiv.21)=to vastate good interiorly and exteriorly. E.386⁹. 388²⁰.

7547. 'Thou wouldst be cut off from the earth' (Ex. ix.15)=that so there would no longer be any communication by means of the things of the Church. 'To be cut off,' when said of the things of the Church,=to be separated; and when they are separated, or when there is no longer any communication with Heaven by means of the things of the Church, that man then falls into Hell, which is 'to be cut off.'

7889. 'That soul shall be cut off from Israel' (Ex.xii.19)=that he will be separated from those who belong to the Spiritual Church, and will be damned. 'To be cut off'=to be separated, and also to be damned. 7907.

10288. 'Shall be cut off from his peoples' (Ex.xxx.33)=separation and spiritual death. 'To be cut off and killed'=to be separated from those who are in good and thence in truths; and to perish as to spiritual life.

10310. 'He shall be cut off from his peoples' (ver.38)=separation from Heaven and the Church, and spiritual death. 'To be cut off from peoples'=separation and spiritual death: it=separation from Heaven.

10365. 'That soul shall be cut off from the midst of his peoples' (Ex.xxxi.14)=that Heaven and the Church is not with him, but Hell. 'To be cut off from the midst of his peoples'=separation from the Church, and spiritual death; thus that the Church is not with him, but Hell. Ex.

10644. 'His groves ye shall cut down' (Ex.xxxiv.13)=that their doctrinal things are to be utterly rejected.

E. 148³. For 'the name [not] to be cut off and destroyed before Jehovah' (Is.xlviii.19)=the quality of the state through which conjunction is effected; which state is the spiritual state of those who belong to the Church.

275¹⁸. 'I will cut off the Cherethites' (Ezek.xxv.16).

280⁸. 'To cut off man from the surfaces of the land' (Zeph.i.3)=[to cut off] the affection of truth and wisdom.

316²⁰. That the falsities of evil are to be destroyed, is signified by 'the horns of the altar shall be cut off, and shall fall to the earth' (Amos.iii.14). 391²⁹.

355⁵. That then there will be nothing of the Church left among the Jews, is described by 'I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem, and the war bow shall be cut off' (Zech.ix.10), by which is signified that there will no longer be any truth in doctrine, nor understanding of truth, and consequently no combat and resistance against falsity. 357. 734⁵.

388¹². See CAST DOWN—dejicere, at this ref.

403²⁰. For three years he had not found any fruit on the fig-tree, and he therefore told the vine-dresser to 'cut it down' (Luke xiv.7), by which is signified that from beginning to end there had been no natural good with that nation.

405²⁹. 'To ascend to the height of the mountains, to the sides of Lebanon, and to cut down the loftiness of his cedars, and the choice of his fir-trees' (Is.xxxvii.24)=the endeavour to destroy the goods and truths of the Church, both internal and external. 654¹⁴.

555⁶. 'To cut off the little child from the street, and the youth from the broad places' (Jer.ix.21)=the vastation of truth nascent, and of truth born.

577⁸. 'He will cut off from Israel head and tail' (Is.

ix. 14)=that all the intelligence and knowledge of truth will perish from them. 624¹⁶.

[E.] 652³. That the defence of truth against falsity will become none, is signified by 'all the men of war shall be cut off' (Jer. xlix. 26; 1. 30).

768²⁵. That this falsity is destructive of all the good of the Word and of the Church, is signified by 'I will set My faces against that man, and will cut him off from the midst of his people' (Lev. xx. 3).

1029¹¹. 'I will cut off from Babel the name and the residue' (Is. xiv. 22).

—¹⁵. 'Lest ye be cut off on account of her iniquity' (Jer. li. 6).

Cut to pieces. Dissecare.

A. 8593^e. 'Samuel cut him to pieces before Jehovah' (1 Sam. xv. 33)=that they were separated from those who are in falsity from evil from the Intellectual; thus Genii from Spirits.

E. 240⁴. 'To cut to pieces with swords' (Ezek. xvi. 40)=to utterly die through falsifications of truth.

Cuticle. Cuticula. Cuticularis.

See SKIN.

A. 5552. The things in man which have less life correspond to such Societies as are in less life there; as are the cuticles which encompass the universal body; and also the cartilages and bones . . . and also the hairs which break forth from the cuticles.

5553. The Societies to which the cuticles correspond are at the entrance to Heaven; and to them there is given a perception of what kind of Spirits are coming towards the first threshold, whom they either reject or admit; so that they may be called the entrances or thresholds of Heaven.

5559. I have been shown representatively the conformation of the contextures in the cuticles. The conformation with those with whom these outermost things corresponded to interior ones . . . was beautifully woven together, with spirals marvellously wreathed together, after the manner of fringes, which can never be described; they were of an azure colour. Afterwards, there were represented forms still more continuous, subtle, and neat. So appear the cuticles of a regenerate man. But with those who have been deceitful, these outermost things appear as conglutinations of serpents; and with those who have been addicted to magic, as filthy intestinal things.

8977. The men of the external Church, who were represented by 'the Hebrew servants,' are they who learn truth from no delight, but merely because it is the truth of the Church, through which they believe they can be saved . . . In the other life, such are at the entrance to Heaven, and are not in Heaven itself. They are called the cuticular, because they correspond to the skin in the Grand Man. 8980^e.

8980^e. Such are of many genera and species; they are like the cuticles or coats in the body. Enum.

D. 828. There are those who relate to the cuticles. . . There are Spirits who relate to the exterior coats of man; but when I was with them they did not speak; it was merely perceived from them that they induce a heat arising from exhalations through the invisible pores. Now, indeed, they speak, saying that it is they who cover all things.

1022. They who most quickly (enter into the blood) are represented by those who [act] through the cuticles; and are little children . . .

1746. Such are they who care too much about the cuticle, or who are delighted with those things which pertain to the skin. . . The care of the cuticle is manifold, wherefore there are genera and species of such men.

1747. The cuticular are averse to interior and more interior things, consequently to an interior and more interior life. They continually fight against them, for they are external men, who fight against the internal man and are averse to him; as Paul wrote of himself. The exterior Spirits who actuate them, are those who constitute the scaly and filthy skin.

D. Min. 4660. Spirits who induce a pain in the cuticle of the bone of the knee, and its cartilage . . .

Cut-throat. Cultrarius.

A. 2799¹². The reason a knife is scarcely mentioned in the Word, is that in the other life there are evil Spirits, who are called cut-throats, at whose side knives appear to hang, on account of their having a nature so savage, that they want to cut the throat of everyone with a knife.

D. 2967. The dragon . . . wanted to call forth the cut-throats; wherefore he fled to my back, and was himself miserably treated by the cut-throats.

2974. On the cut-throats. . . The crime they set about, was to send to me cut-throats in the night, to kill me while I was asleep. (I dreamed that one whom I supposed to be a friend) suddenly threw himself on my head, and applied his mouth to the back of my neck, wanting to bite me and suck out my blood . . . and so kill me like a leech. . . Wherefore the cut-throats are of such a character, that when they cannot use knives, they bite with the teeth.

Cyclops. Cyclopes.

Coro. 38^e. The Hell from those who were of the Most Ancient Church is the most fearful of all the Hells. . . The ancient writers meant these by the giants who attacked the camp of the gods, and who were cast down by the thunderbolts of Jupiter, and thrust beneath the burning mountain Etna, and were called the Cyclops.

Cylinder. Cylindrus.

A. 1871. Optic cylinders (kaleidoscopes). W.H. 11⁴. N. 260⁴. D. 2164.

D. 3895. They turned their bodies from right to left and from left to right, like a cylinder.

4463. By circumvolutions backwards and forwards, like the laminae round a cylinder.

D. Min. 4684. It was perceived by spiritual ideas how the Church relates to the heart and lungs, by means of a cylinder or axis, in the middle of which were the celestial things of love, and spiritual things round about . . .

4819. One of (these profaners) had a wheel-like disk round a tube . . .

Cyrus. Choreschus.

A. 8989⁶. The Lord is here treated of as to the Human, Who in the representative sense, is 'Cyrus' (Is. xlv. 1). E. 298¹¹. P. P.

Cystic. Cysticus.

A. 5185. There are Spirits who relate to the cystic duct. Des.

Czar. Czar.

D. 4427. I spoke with one (the czar), saying that they had nothing in the other life . . .

5452. I heard one (of the Russians) saying that they fear the czar-Caesarem, and that the czar-Caesar- is everywhere.

5949. I saw the czar Peter, and spoke with him in a dream. He afterwards appeared among the Russians . . . who believe that he has power over their lives and possessions . . . I heard them together with the czar, who said that everything of theirs was his, because the region was his: but I replied that their possessions are not his, but theirs, and that he has no right over their lives, but that they would give of their property so much as was necessary for the safety of the kingdom, and no more; and that their life is from the Lord; and that they are under the law, and the czar too is under it. But it was shown that when the czar wants to have all their property, they give it to him. They worship him as their god. 5963.

6022. The Papists sent two emissaries to the czar Peter the Muscovite, who knew how to insinuate themselves into his passions.

KEY

To the Numbering of the Paragraphs in the 'Doctrine of Charity,' as between the Numbering used in the CONCORDANCE, the Original Latin, and the London and American Translations.

| Concord. | Latin. | London. | American. | Concord. | Latin. | London. | American. | Concord. | Latin. | London. | American. |
|----------|--------|---------|-----------|----------|--------|---------|-----------|----------------------|-----------------|---------|-----------|
| 1 | i. | | | 94 | 2 | 35 | 52 | 159 | vii. | 85 | 100 |
| 2 | 1 | 1 | 1 | 95 | " | 36 | " | 160 | [1] | 86 | 101 |
| 3 | 2 | 2 | 2 | 96 | " | " | 53 | 161 | [2] | 87 | 102 |
| 4 | 3 | 3 | 3 | 97 | " | 37 | 54 | 162 | [3] | 88 | 103 |
| 5 | " | " | 4 | 98 | " | " | 55 | 163 | [4] | 89 | 104 |
| 6 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 99 | " | 38 | 56 | 164 | [5] | 90 | 105 |
| 7 | " | 6 | 7 | 100 | " | 39 | 57 | 165 | [6] | 91 | 106 |
| 8, 9 | 5 | 7 | 8 | 101 | " | 40 | 58 | 166 | [7] | 92 | 107 |
| 10 | " | " | 9 | 102 | 3 | 41 | 59 | 167 | [8] | 93 | 108 |
| 11 | " | 8 | 10 | 103 | " | 42 | 60 | 168 | [9] | 94 | 109 |
| 12 | 6 | 9 | 11 | 104 | " | 43 | 61 | 169 | [10] | 95 | 110 |
| 13 | ii. | | | 105 | " | 44 | 62 | 170 | [11] | 96 | 111 |
| 14 | 1 | 10 | 12 | 106 | " | 45 | 63 | 171 | [12] | 97 | 112 |
| 15 | " | " | 13 | 107 | 4 | 46 | 64 | 172 | [13] | 98 | 113 |
| 16 | " | 11 | " | 108 | " | 47 | " | 173 | viii. | 99 | 114 |
| 17 | 2 | 12 | 14 | 109 | " | 48 | 65 | 174 | " | 101 | 115 |
| 18, 19 | " | " | 15 | 110, III | " | 49 | 66 | 175 | " | 102 | 116 |
| 20 | 3 | 13 | 16 | 112 | " | 50 | 67 | 176 | " | 103 | 117 |
| 21 | " | " | 17 | 113 | " | 51 | 68 | 177 | " | 104 | " |
| 22 | " | " | 18 | 114 | 5 | 52 | 69 | 178 | i | 105 | 118 |
| 23, 24 | 4 | 14 | 19 | 115 | " | 53 | 70 | 179 | " | 106 | " |
| 25, 26 | " | " | 20 | 116 | " | 54 | " | 180 | " | 107 | 119 |
| 27-32 | 5 | 15 | 21 | 117 | " | " | 71 | 181 | " | 108 | 120 |
| 33-39 | 6 | 16 | 22 | 118 | " | 55 | " | 182 | " | 109 | " |
| 40 | 7 | 17 | 23 | 119 | " | 56 | 72 | 183 | " | 110 | 121 |
| 41 | " | " | 24 | 120 | " | 57 | " | 184 | [ix.] | " | " |
| 42 | iii. | 18 | | 121 | " | 58 | " | 185 | 4 | 113 | 122 |
| 43 | 1 | 19 | 25 | 122 | 6 | 59 | 73 | 186 | " | 114 | 123 |
| 44, 45 | " | " | 26 | 123 | " | 60 | 74 | 187 | x. | 115 | 124 |
| 46-49 | 2 | 20 | 27 | 124, 125 | 7 | 61 | 75 | 188 | " | 116 | 125 |
| 50 | 3 | 21 | 28 | 126 | vi. | | | 189 | xi. | 117 | 126 |
| 51-53 | " | " | 29 | 127 | i | 62 | 76 | 190 | " | 118 | 127 |
| 54 | " | " | 30 | 128 | " | 63 | 77 | 191 | " | 119 | 128 |
| 55 | 4 | 22 | 31 | 129 | " | 64 | 78 | 192 | " | 120 | 129 |
| 56 | " | " | 32 | 130 | " | 65 | 79 | 193 | " | 121 | 130 |
| 57 | " | " | 33 | 131 | " | 66 | 80 | 194 | " | 122 | 131 |
| 58, 59 | " | " | 34 | 132 | " | 67 | 81 | 195 | " | 123 | 132 |
| 60, 61 | " | " | 35 | 133 | " | 68 | 82 | 196 | " | 124 | 133 |
| 62-66 | 5 | 23 | 36 | 134 | 2 | 69 | 83 | 197, 198 | " | 125 | 136 |
| 67-71 | 6 | 24 | 37 | 135, 136 | " | 70 | 84 | 199, 200 Art. primus | | | 137 |
| 72 | iv. | 25 | 38 | 137 | 3 | 71 | 85 | 201 | [1] | | 138 |
| 73, 74 | 1 | 26 | 39 | 138 | " | 72 | 86 | 202 | 2 | | 140 |
| 75-77 | " | " | 40 | 139, 140 | " | " | 87 | 203 | 3 | | 143 |
| 78 | 2 | 27 | 41 | 141, 142 | " | 73 | 88 | 204 | 4 | | 145 |
| 79-82 | " | " | 42 | 143 | 4 | 74 | 89 | 205 | 5 | | 147 |
| 83 | 3 | 28 | 43 | 144, 145 | " | 75 | 90 | 206 | 6 | | 149 |
| 84 | " | " | 44 | 146 | " | 76 | 91 | 207 | 7 | | 150 |
| 85 | " | " | 45 | 147 | " | 77 | " | 208 | 8 | | 151 |
| 86 | " | 29 | 46 | 148 | " | 78 | 92 | 209 | [Art.] secundus | | 152 |
| 87 | 4 | 30 | 47 | 149 | 5 | 79 | 93 | 210 | i | | 153 |
| 88 | " | 31 | 48 | 150 | " | 80 | 94 | 211 | " | | 155 |
| 89 | " | 32 | 49 | 151-153 | " | 81 | 95 | 212 | xii. | | 134 |
| 90 | v. | | | 154 | 6 | 82 | 96 | 213 | " | | 135 |
| 91 | 1 | 33 | 50 | 155, 156 | " | " | 97 | 214 | [Art.] quartus | | |
| 92 | " | " | " | 157 | " | 83 | 98 | 215 | [Art.] tertius | | |
| 93 | 2 | 34 | 51 | 158 | vii. | 84 | 99 | | | | |

MORRISON AND GIBB, EDINBURGH,
PRINTERS TO HER MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY

1 1719 01555 6980

1713

